Cityhood petitions to go to county

The Federal Way City Committee will hold its "Charter Banquet" on Thursday at the Twin Lakes Country Club, Information Chairman Ross Davis announced

Persons who attend will sign a special parchment copy of the incorporation petition, which, if Federal Way votes for cityhood, will be framed and hung in the new city hall.

But that move alone, they say, doesn't guarantee that an incorporation proposal will be on the general election ballot here

"After the signatures on the petitions are verified, the question will be considered by the boundary review board," said Ross Davis, the committee's information chairman. "But it will be up to the (King County) council to set the date of the election."

Originally the committee had hoped to get 3,000 signatures on the petitions, an amount they believed would be sufficient to insure that the incorporation proposal would be submitted to the

The next step in the process is up to the King County Boundary Review Board, which will probably hold public hearings on the measure and could opt to rewrite the boundaries proposed by the city committee.

At present, the city would be bounded by Puget Sound on the west, South 255th Street on the north and the Pierce County Line on the south. The eastern boundary would follow the Kent city limits, exclude an unincorporated area around Lake Fenwick and countinue south along the limits of Auburn and the other valley

THE HOME rule committee also commissioned a professional pollster to sample local opinion on a variety of questions related to the three alternatives.

One of the conclusions drawn from the study - it was completed during the summer of 1978 - was that at the time about 65 percent of the population favored incorporation.

Shortly afterward, the Federal Way Chamber of Commerce and the Federal Way Community Council spearheaded a move to form the city committee.

Betts quits sewer board

by Nathalie Weber

Byron Betts, chairman of the Lakehaven Sewer District Board of Commissioners, resigned Thursday night, leaving the board one member short due to the inability of the remaining two commissioners to agree on a replacement.

Betts' resignation at the board's meeting was a fulfillment of intentions he announced a month ago, indicating at that time that he was not interested in retaining his seat under circumstances that feasibly could cause embarrassment to the other two commissioners. Betts did not resign then, however, because Commissioner John Sawyer had left town, leaving the board with only two members, the minimum quorum required. The question of Betts' legality on the board surfaced earlier this year when it was discovered that Betts had moved out of his Redondo home into a north Tacoma home. Since that new residence is outside the sewer district boundaries, state law requires that Betts resign his position on the board.

DESPITE THE LAW, earlier allegations by the NEWS that Betts held his seat illegally were denied by the commissioner, who maintained he lived at his business, Enchanted Village, which is inside the sewer district boundaries.

A month ago, however, Betts announced his intention to resign, suggesting at that time that Leonard Tripp, currently a commissioner for Water District 124, knew the commissioner ropes well and should replace him until the position came up for reelection this fall. Commissioner Bob Green agreed, indicating that Tripp has proven his capabilities on the water district board and also would be an asset to the sewer board. The two commissioners expressed confidence that Sawyer, being a commissioner for both water and sewer, would also approve Tripp's appointment.

However, upon his return to Federal Way—apparently having left town for a month without informing the other commissioners of either board — Sawyer flatly refused Thursday night to agree to Tripp's appointment.

In decided silence, Sawyer's only reaction was that he would rather postpone an appointment. "Filing (for election) for that position is at the end of the month and several groups have notified me that they intend to file someone," he said. "I'd rather wait and appoint someone who will run

BETTS SAID he was surprised that so many people had spoken to Sawyer about the position because he, Betts, had encountered difficulties in finding someone qualified to replace him.

Sawyer responded that he socializes with different people than Betts.

Green, the other commissioner who will appoint Betts' replacement, then asked Sawyer if he would agree to appointing Tripp if Tripp would run for the seat this fall.

"I would consider him a main candidate," Sawyer said. "But I would have to see the slate of candidates."

Green indicated that if Sawyer did not agree to appoint Tripp, he questioned whether they would agree on someone to fill the vacancy before the election. "I've seen Tripp as a water man and I'd agree to him. I'm not sure I'd be confident in anyone else," he said.

SAWYER SAID he had no one definite in mind for the job. Green said, other than Tripp, he neither had suggestions for a replace-

The failure of the board to replace Betts now will prevent any board action due to lack of a quorum for three weeks this month while Green is out of town. Asked what will happen if a board decision is required during that time, Green replied "it won't get made."

No decision was rendered by the commissioners as to when Betts' replacement will be ap-

Meetings changed

The July 19 regular meeting of the Lakehaven Sewer District Board of Commissioners has been changed to 5 p.m. July 12. The Aug. 2 regular meeting also has been changed to 7 p.m.

The changes were necessitated by anticipated lack of quorum at the regular meetings.

Metro to buy buses

Metro will buy 114 new buses from a Canadian firm. The 47seat, wheelchair lift-equipped buses will be in service next year.

Metro Council approved the bid of $12,185,916 made by Flyer Industries, Ltd. of Manitoba after Redmond mayor Selwyn "Bud" Young questioned the foreign purchase. Metro staff explained that American vehicle manufacturers refused to submit bids for the project. Flyer was the lone bid at $103,119 per bus.

Building OK'd on archeolgical site

The addition to Lakehaven Sewer District's Redondo Treament Plant will proceed as planned despite recent findings of an archeological site on part of the plant's property, the Office of Public Archeology reported last week.

That office initiated a study of the six-acre tract in Redondo late last month when it learned the sewer district was planning to build on land that possibly con-vestigation proved that such artifacts did exist in the area, causing some question as to the damage construction would cause to the site.

Additional studies last week, however, revealed that although the articles are spread over a large area, most of that land is owned by private individuals, not

Sewer response prompt

The administrators of Lakehaven Sewer District are to be commended for their quick response to the community concerns recently.

Community Development Research documented the high probability of a significant archeological find on the proposed site for a much needed and federally required sewage secondary treatment plant scheduled for Redondo. With some searching, records were found at the University of Washington which indicated a significant finding in 1952 which apparently was not in the files in Olympia, the usual place to check. The University Office of Public Archeology was put in contact with Russ David and John Bocek of the district.

Lakehaven immediately contracted with the University to do a preliminary site survey to determine the nature, extent of the site, and probable impact upon their plans. A report of the findings pertinent to the plans presumably will be available to King County Zoning Examiner John O'Conner at the hearing next month in Seattle, Tuesday morning, Aug. 14.

Letters to county officials from the Poverty Bay Historical Society and several other concerned neighbors led to the contact with Community Development Research to check the validity of the concerns and initiate appropriate action.

FOR THE committees to do their jobs, it would be necessary to guarantee that they be kept free of domination by special interests, particularly Big Oil and the automotive industry, which already exert a disproportionate amount of influence over the government at Washington. But given the current attitude of the public. this should not be too difficult - particularly if editors and reporters, for once, were to do an adequate job of watchdogging the proceedings.

As the committees began to function, their members would quickly discover that we are facing not one problem but three. The first of these, as I have said before, is the immediate transportation crisis; this is the creation of government, Big Oil and the automotive industry, and it could have been avoided for a few more years. But it is nevertheless something for which we should be thankful, for it shows us the reality of the long-term energy shortage, which is the second problem. The third problem is that we have no national priorities; as a consequence we are making conflicting demands upon our government, our economy and ultimately upon our energy reserves themselves.

THE PROBLEMS created by the immediate transportation crisis could be solved by fuel rationing and a crash program for building adequate rapid transit systems. The problems of the long-term energy shortage, however, force that would subsequently can be solved only by making of living - which is the point where we encounter the third problem of conflicting demands.

Essentially what we are doing is demanding that our economy give us everything our hearts desire and give us a clean environment at the same time. Ideally the two goals are identical; pollution, of course, is wasted energy, and it accounts for a substantial proportion of the 50 percent of our energy supplies that we squander. But in practicality, many of the methods we use to keep the air reasonably breathable and the water fit to drink ultimately add to the astonishing quantity of waste. Thus the only long-term solution is the development of a wholly new industrial technology, one that provides us with a reasonable standard of living at a minimum of loss, whether to the energy supply or to the

BUT TO accomplish this, we are going to have to decide how we are to allocate our national wealth, which may be the most difficult task of all. The problem is that our conflicting demands - they have already kept Congress from agreeing on a fuel rationing program - extend to every aspect of our society. It is as if we have become so dedicated to our own particular points of view that we have forgotten how to cooperate in the interest of the common good whether the issue is energy, national health care, abortion. gun control, the fishing industry or even the construction of local bicycle paths.

I am not suggesting that we abandon our differences and

By the year 2000, ty of opinion is one of the corly what we cannot do as inlearn to compromise with one than foolish fantasy. another, to value our national interests as much as we value our own, and to recognize that under our form of government it is possible to shape policy so that national and individual goals are mutually attainable.

IF WE FAIL at this task, we will continue for a time to live in relative affluence, but eventually we will begin to experience on a much broader scale the kind of national paralysis that has already brought near anarchy to our transportation system. The gas lines will get longer, the electrical outages will become more frequent, food shortages will be a constant threat and civil disorder a fact of every-

The alternative, however, will be no bed of roses. If we succeed in formulating the kind of national policy we so desperately need, we will have to tighten our belts considerably. But choosing to live with less would not be synonymous with opting to live barren lives; it would merely mean that we had chosen to rediscover the notso-simple pleasures that our parents knew, among them the knack of relating to one another instead of to the television set, the motorcar and the latest styles in clothing. More importantly, it would guarantee that we would have something left to pass on to our children.

as difficult as it sounds. The details of the long-term energy shortage are vividly displayed in a federal document entitled "Understanding the National Energy Dilemma," a booklet that should be in every high school and college classroom and in every public library across the land. Prepared by the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, a congressional agency, it was completed in 1973 and has been available since then, both in printed form and as a slide-and-lecture presentation. Tacoma hospitals set merger plans

by Nathalie Weber

Three of Tacoma's hospitals last week announced a plan to merge within six months, forming the largest hospital to serve the Tacoma-South King County

The hospital boards of directors of Doctors Hospital, Mary Bridge Children's Health Center and Tacoma General Hospital last week agreed to the consolidation, creating the potential for a more than 400-bed facility.

ADMINISTRATORS FOR the three merging hospitals said the merger is a culmination of studies that were taken as long as five years ago. They cite consolidation of resources to provide more effective services as a major reason for merger. Such effectiveness could prevent prices from rising as rapidly, administrators contend, but that

THE THREE hospitals predict they will save some $5.2 million in construction costs and about $150,000 in shared automated data services through merger. The medical staffs in each hospital are anticipated to remain the same.

The next step toward merger is coordinating accounting and legal paperwork, Pritchard said. A certificate of need which officially OK's the consolidation also must be obtained. The merger is expected to be complete by six months at the longest.

I acoma man jailed after crash, assault

A 21-year-old Tacoma man, apparently angry after a fight with his girl friend, is accused of going on a rampage Thursday that left three vehicles damaged and a Federal Way man slightly injured.

King County Police said the man, whose girlfriend also lives in Tacoma, started tailgateing the Federal Way man and became involved in a dispute with him at a Tacoma stoplight.

Shortly after the dispute the suspect is said to have rammed the Federal Way man's vehicle and then struck the victim on the head with a rock after he attempted to obtain the suspect's license number.

As the suspect was fleeing the scene of the ramming - it occurred in aTacoma shopping center - his vehicle struck two

New officer hired

THE DES MOINES Police Department hired John O'Leary as their new police officer, it was recently announced. O'Leary, who started on July 1, has been a reserve officer with the Department for about a year. The 21-year-old officer has attended the first Des Moines Police Academy and a seminar at the FBI academy as a member of the Marine Corps Reserves. O'Leary said he plans to make law enforcement his career.

Peterbilt wins 2, WS drops 2 in NorWest Lg.

Peterbilt kept on Truckin' Tuesday night with a breezy double-header killing of Tacoma B and I.

The Truckers used a 13-hit attack to take a 13-4 rout in the opener and relied on Graham Arnold's one-hit pitching to take a 4-0 nightcap sweeper. The wins extended Peterbilt's win streak to 29 straight, tying the Northwest majorcaliber fastpitch record. Peterbilt will go after a new record Tuesday in a doubleheader against Westside Federal on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Westside had its NorWest League record slip to 3-27 with a pair of losses to Woodinville Lumber, 12-1, 3-2, Thursday night.

Peterbilt, which upped its overall record to 52-3 and NorWest tab to 23-3, began Tuesday's surge with a 10-run second inning in the opener.

The rally, which included 14 Peterbilt batters, featured two singles by Larry Seabaugh, solo hits by Roger Miller, Rich Fredrickson, Mike Bishop, George Bettineski, Greg Van Gaver, plus walks issued to Jeff Borror and Fredrickson.

Borror's 13th homer of season gave Peterbilt another two runs in the third, and Bishop's triple added another in the fourth.

Glen Davis' single in the third inning was Tacoma's only hit off Arnold in the nightcap. Moments later, catcher Van Gaver threw out Davis on a steal attempt. No other Tacoman reached base as Arnold only delivered to a possible low of 21 batters over his seven-inning stint. He ended the contest with six strikeouts.

Singles by Bledsoe and Fredrickson gave Peterbilt a 1-0 lead in
