2nd busing vote sought

by Loren Bliss

A number of irate parents will ask the Federal Way School Board Monday to reconsider its controversial 3-1 decision to continue denying bus service to students who live within two miles of local schools.

But what the board might do in response remained unclear late last week.

Board President John Hickman, who had originally indicated he supported the majority, said on Friday that he was now unsure how he might vote if the question is reconsidered. Hickman was absent when the matter was decided two weeks ago.

"I'm studying the question," he said. "I understand there are a lot of people who want the transportation back, but there are also a lot of others who couldn't care less."

He said if the board did vote to restore bus service to its pre-1976 limits — these are 1.5 miles for secondary school students and one mile for elementary pupils — the administration would face a number of difficulties with state bureaucrats. "And there's no guarantee we could get the fuel," he said.

PRIOR TO 1976, when the district's transport budget was slashed by repeatedly failed tax levy proposals, the schools provided bus service for all students who lived beyond the one and 1.5 mile limits.

To operate bus routes that pick up students within two miles of their schools the district must first obtain state approval, Hickman said — and officials in Olympia have yet to clarify how the approval procedure would work.

He said that "in theory, the state would pay for 90 percent of all local school district transportation costs. But this year the Legislature enacted a $70 million ceiling on the transportation money."

"So what are we going to run the buses on when the money runs out," he asked.

He said that the soaring price of fuel, even if the fuel is available, might create a situation in which the transport funds are exhausted long before the end of the 1979-1981 state budgetary period.

BUT RICHARD Schoon, the one board member who voted in favor of the district administration's recommendation that the one and 1.5 mile service be restored, said that he was certain there would be adequate funds for the 1979-1980 school year.

"The question," he said, "is what funds might be available for the next school year."

Schoon said he believes the district should go ahead and restore the service, adding that with the new state and federal concern about conserving energy, additional funds might well be available by 1980.

"I think the board underestimated the feeling of the public and where on the priority list busing should fall," he said. "I want to see the question reconsidered."

Some 5,000 children, said Schoon, would be served by the expanded program — "and $28,000 is really a relatively small investment."

"WHEN YOU consider the safety factor," he said, "I know that (expanding the service) would alleviate a lot of parental concern."

"We have a lot of situations in this district where there are single-parent families," School said. "And the parents leave home to go to work, so the kids have to walk."

He said that board rules prevent him from introducing a motion to reconsider the question, but that he could move to have it put on an amended agenda.

Only those who voted with the majority, he said, could move for actual reconsideration.

"What happens will depend on what sort of mood the board is in," he said.

Acting Superintendent Ron Johnson said that he had no idea how the board will respond to the protests either.

He said that the district administration has received about five letters protesting the board's decision, and that the letters have been copied and forwarded to board members.

The members who voted to deny the expanded service were Nancy Ise, Larry Van Sickle and William Miller.

Ugly dog deadline extended

If you forgot to enter your dog in Robinson Newspapers Ugliest Dog Contest, don't worry. The deadline has been extended one week to this Friday, July 27.

To enter the contest, send or bring a picture of your dog. Color photos are adequate, but we prefer black and white.

If you don't have a good picture of your pooch, call us and set up an appointment for one of our photographers to take the picture.

The winner of this year's contest will be awarded 25 pounds of dog food and a $10 gift certificate. All entries will receive an official 1979 Ugliest Dog Contest certificate.

Fatherless family now homeless too

A woman and her four children were left homeless Thursday morning when fire caused an estimated $60,000 damage to their Village Park home.

The house rented by Merrigon Somerville and her family at 2709 S.W. 331st St. caught fire at about 7:30 a.m. when materials stored next to a natural gas heater ignited, according to Federal Way Fire Marshal Dave Crossen. Apparently the furnace was turned on that morning, causing the combustibles to burst into flame.

The fire was further aggravated when one of the five family members opened the main door to the garage and attempted to douse the blaze with a garden hose, Crossen said. The fire then was pushed into the house.

No one was injured. Two engines and an aid car responded to the fire, bringing it under control in about 10 minutes.

Crossen also said the family's father was killed in a motorcycle accident several weeks ago.

'If it weren't for her, I wouldn't be here.'

By Barbara Butts

Being three years old can be quite frustrating at times. Adults often don't listen to what you have to say; sometimes they are downright condescending.

Capi Sommer, who will be 3 next month, has a lot to say. One afternoon recently she kept saying it until she could get some of the big people to listen.

And her grandmother, Mrs. Martha Sommer, is especially thankful now that she has such a talkative, persistent granddaughter.

Before Capi started going to a pre-school day-care center recently, her grandmother had taken care of her while her parents, Jeffrey and Capitola Sommer, worked.

Mrs. Sommer and her husband, Herbert, own the Sea-Coma Trailer Park at 1831 S. 268th St., and both the older and younger Sommers live at the park.

While preparing lunch several weeks ago, the grandmother began to feel dizzy. She called out to her granddaughter, who was playing in the back bedroom.

When she came running out, she found her grandmother unconscious on the floor.

Rather than sitting down on the floor and crying as some children would do, the little girl acted. She ran out to the front of the house where Loraine Shetz was talking to a friend. Mrs. (Ed) Shetz also lives in the trailer park.

"Loraine, listen to me, listen to me," Capi said as she tried to get help for her grandmother. But Mrs. Shetz could not understand what she was saying, Mrs. Sommer explained.

"So little Capi ran out the gate to get Helen Sheets, another neighbor in the park," the grandmother said. "She told her, 'Grammie is sick.'"

Mrs. (Norman) Sheets knew that her neighbor had not been feeling up to par, and was not alarmed by Capi's statement.

But the child would not give up.

"She said, 'No, Grammie fell down,'" Mrs. Sommer added.

This time, Mrs. Sheets took notice. As she and Capi came into the kitchen, Mrs. Sommer was in a daze. She called the fire station, and before long paramedics from Medic I were giving oxygen and administering an electrocardiogram to Mrs. Sommer.

Mrs. Martha Sommer and her granddaughter, Capi

She was rushed to Highline Community Hospital. But her granddaughter's vigilance did not end there.

Capi's mother said that when they arrived at the hospital, her child would not leave until she went in to see if her grandmother was alright.

"She leaned on the cart in the emergency room," the mother said, "and said, 'Grammie, I will take care of you.'"

At the hospital, the doctors found nothing wrong with Mrs. Sommer. But that did not diminish her gratitude to her granddaughter.

"I don't know what would have happened if Capi hadn't done what she did," she said. "I couldn't breathe, and my vision was so blurred that I couldn't see."

"And I have thought many times that if it weren't for her, I wouldn't be here."

Reaction positive to president's speech

Mel Carlson

The speech was very forceful and something that should have been said a long time ago. I really think that the American people will get behind the president and conserve energy.

Jim Critcher

It made a lot of sense. At least it was positive, something that we seem to be real short of these days. It is quite encouraging to me, and I am a hard-nosed Republican.

Barbara Burn

I personally do not think it was near enough soon enough. I realize that it's at least an action, and that is more than has been done before. But it was not as strong as I had hoped it would be.

Larry Smith

I liked the energy program, but I agreed with the newscasters that his speech was too much of a sermon and not necessary. His energy program as outlined was satisfactory, however.

by Darlene Himmelspach

Dale Buggins was not mechanically inclined as a tot.

So his construction business father bought him a small motor bike and put a "Pull up bar like a mower machine" on it and, next thing Ken Buggins knew, sonny was putting together a wheelbarrow and spade obstacle course in the out-back yard in Australia and making his first daredevil jumps.

Since then, "I'm a worry for Mum," the 18-year old admitted this week.

"A bloody lot of worry to his Mum" chimes Dad.

When the uninsurable youth leaves the home turf for a contest, Ken Buggins, who is also the father of a 14-year-old girl and a 10-week old daughter, is implored by his worried wife to "bring my baby back safely," he said.

Do you love your son, Mr. Buggins?

"Yes and Dale's not come over here (the United States) to lose. We wouldn't like to see Gary get hurt but, if he is gonna win this one, he's gonna hafta go like hell" the elder Buggins said.

Gary Wells is the current North American record holder in long distance cycle jumping and has been up on the bikes for 12 of his 22 years. The former Seattleite has literally flown through the air with the greatest of ease. He will try against Friday night in the Kingdome to best Buggins in a leap of more than 138.7 feet, the world record now held by Buggins.

Wells, fairly practical, if not smart, about his future, claims he isn't worried about the death-defying stunt. "If I'm going to get killed, I'd rather be doing something I love" said the man who wants to retire as a 25-year old millionaire. "I make money to spend it."

The promoter of the June 27 jump is a Phoenix shopping center industrialist who has known Wells for eight years and claims feelings similar to Mr. Buggins'. "I've ridden with Gary and I would hate to see him hurt." Tom Baker said he has $100,000 tied up in the promotion, now under challenge in superior court here by the old man of daredevilhng, Evel Knievel.

The veteran of such stunts as jumping buses in the Kingdome, jumping the Snake River and the Grand Canyon and who knows what else claims the younger jumpers have no right to challenge each other for the title of world's best motorcycle jumper.

Knievel swears in a court affidavit that he "knows for a fact that, when it comes to motorcycle jumping, there are only four other men somewhere in God's world that have more expertise." He claims to be one and "the other four are dead."

While his concern for the safety of the two younger jumpers may be touching, it is not to be viewed without skepticism. There is $50,000 at stake and Evel doesn't get any or it. He also claims in the lawsuit that his fame and fortune will suffer from the publicity of the Kingdome jump, whichever lad wins. He further contends that serious injuries or death could await one or both of the jumpers in what amounts to a "chicken match."

Ken Buggins disagrees. "Dale's not some wild kid out to bloody kill himself." The man who has watched it for 10 years and who is painfully aware of the fate precursors in his son's "business" have met, woefully admits that "guitar lessons might have been preferable to the little motorbike. But, when we told him a couple of years ago he couldn't do this anymore, he ran away from home. On his own, it is much more dangerous than with me," said the father who travels with the young biker.

Dale, who has had two high-speed jumping accidents, (one of which should have proved fatal as he and the cycle somersaulted and the bike smashed against his face) is not worried. "I don't really think about fear. You can't, you know." His "Mum" made her position clear while still the mother of two. "She said if Emma (the new baby) was a boy, she would have to stay at home."

For the construction-oriented father, with the lilt of his native Wales in his voice, it is simple enough. "Everyone has a mountain to climb. They come in many different shapes."

Dale's next mountain will be a series of jumps over increasing numbers of cars until the 140 foot mark is hit, surpassed or claims a victim.

Me? Watching the cycles scream across the scorched parking lot of the Kingdome with Gary and Dale performing wheelies and handstands for flabbergasted reporters, I realized I'm with "Mum." It's not bloody worth it.

What do you think of President Carter's recent energy speech?

Michael Carver

I agreed with his points wholeheartedly, especially on the use of oil by utilities. And I think it is bad that people make a scapegoat of the president when it is the Congress that is more responsible (for the problems).

Jacque Magner

It's excellent if we can make it work — if the people and Congress get behind him. I thought it was great that he suggested a committee to get through the red tape. That would be a real breakthrough.

Bob Meenahan

I think he is starting to back away from his advisors and is getting down to what the people want to do. I am more in agreement with the way he has been doing things in the last week or so.

Doris Shea

It was well done. It makes sense and will work if they carry through with it. I hope that the program, especially the mass transportation part, is enacted.

Under the Capitol Dome

by Robert C. Cummings

Despite restrictions imposed by the House Rules Committee, one committee wants to hold interim sessions clear through December.

The Rules Committee has voted to hold just three full weekends of committee meetings, to be scheduled in August, October and December.

Individual committees are to be restricted to just two additional meetings during the same three months. The schedule will be approved at a July 9 session.

Ambitious Schedule
But the House Energy and Utilities Committee is seeking permission to 11 meetings, with two this month, and additional sessions in each of the following months through the balance of the year.

It already has held one in Spokane, and proposes others for Olympia, Richland, SeaTac, Port Angeles and Ferndale.

In support of its request, it has submitted a five-page, single-spaced typewritten proposed agenda listing 11 separate items.

Purpose
The committee presumes there will be a legislative session next year, which could be contingent upon voter approval of the annual session amendment which will be on this November's general election ballot.

But regardless, it wants to focus committee activities during the interim on areas of greatest energy need, and prepare the most necessary legislation for submission to the next session, whenever.

Additionally, it wants to maintain oversight functions activities of such agencies as the Washington Public Power Supply System and the State Energy Office of the Governor.

Goals and Objectives
As might be expected, the petroleum crunch, and the possibility of an electricity shortage this winter, are the committee's major concerns.

It wants to develop enough energy conservation measures, and brings about enough renewable energy resources, to bring both the petroleum and electrical demand and supply into balance.

The committee intends to identify and evaluate existing barriers and constraints and develop incentives which would promote more widespread installation and practice of conservation.

All Inclusive
Renewable resources to be explored include geothermal, solar, hydro (such as low head dams and pumped storage), wind, wood, other biomass, gasohol and municipal waste.

Barriers and constraints include seasonal variations in the water supply and reservoir management, current oil transshipment regulations, radioactive waste management and delays in bringing additional nuclear facilities on line.

Tax Break for Survivors
Legislation reducing inheritance taxes was the first tax relief measure to pass the 1979 Legislature.

By increasing the exemptions, it is estimated that 60 percent of the estates passing to members of the immediate family will be tax-free.

For a surviving spouse, the exemption was boosted from $5,000 to $100,000, and for each child, to $10,000. In addition, the insurance exemption was raised from $40,000 to $60,000.

Action is Speedy

As an example, an average community estate consisting of surviving spouse and two children, with as much as $60,000 insurance, wouldn't pay any inheritance taxes unless the value of the estate exceeded $340,000.

Passed during the regular session, the act carried an emergency clause and became effective immediately upon being signed by Gov. Dixy Lee Ray on May 30. But it isn't retroactive.

Meanwhile, the tax on community property passing to the surviving spouse will be phased out entirely over a four-year period beginning in 1981.

A Long Time Coming

It took her nearly two and a half years to do it, but Gov. Dixy Lee Ray finally got rid of Charles Odegaard as State Parks Director. She tried to get the law changed so she could fire him when she first took office, but was blocked by fellow Democrat Peter vonReichbauer of Burton, who heads the Senate Parks and Recreation Committee.

So she had to wait until she got a majority of her own appointees on the Parks and Recreation Committee. But the issue isn't closed yet.

Watch for Next Move

If the Senate follows its usual procedure, when the name of Odegaard's successor is referred to it for confirmation, it will be referred first to vonReichbauer's committee.

He already has been articulate in his criticism of Ray's action, and may try to withhold confirmation, which could provoke a battle on the floor of the Senate.

Meanwhile, vonReichbauer plans an investigation to determine if the Parks Committee met in secret prior to the public meeting where the firing took place.

If so, he says, it would be a "clear violation" of the state's open meeting laws.

Sea-Tac meetings to cover land-use issues

Two Port of Seattle officials are expected to attend a Tuesday meeting concerning Port operations at Sea-Tac Airport.

Ed Parks, planner, and Dave Warmuth, director of public information, will attend the 7:30 p.m. meeting at Highline School District's administrative building at 15675 Ambaum Blvd. S.W.

Dave Baugh, a county planner, is also expected to attend.

Sponsor of the meeting is the Zone 3 Steering Committee.

Topics for discussion include noise-remedy programs and land use for the airport's north clear zone. Airport area residents are welcome to attend.

News tip hotline

The Federal Way and Des Moines News will award $15 for the best news tip of the month. That could buy 20 gallons of gas, a couple of nice lunches or maybe even pay the phone bill for the month.

So if you know of a news maker, call the Federal Way News at 839-0700 or the Des Moines News at 824-4470 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Best news tip will be awarded on the first of each month.

King County Fair Winding up 116th year

WHAT WOULD a fair be without ferris wheels and milling crowds? This year's carnival rides — 21 of them — are being supplied by Rainier Rides of Tacoma.

FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD Amy Allmann of Federal Way and her rabbit, Foxy, took second place in one of the fair's competitions on Wednesday. Foxy was entered in the Chinchilla Rex, Junior Doe Division.

STOMACH-DEFYING rides were obviously a joy to these young fairgoers. Nan Wagner (left) and Scott Wadrick went to the fair on Wednesday.

The King County Fair at Enumclaw ends its 116th year today, the last day for fairgoers to take advantage of the fun.

And it is square dance day on this fair Sunday. All square dancers in costume will be admitted free.

The fair, according to Maynard Ackerson, president of the King County Fair board, will be saluting the designation of square dancing by the Washington Legislature as the official state dance.

Fairgoers will be able to watch, learn the basic steps and join in the fun with some of the top square dancers in the Northwest.

Gene Alex of Renton will call for about 50 dancers, beginning at 4 p.m. Among the square dancers who rescheduled to attend the festival are the Kent clubs, Dyn-A-Mite Kickers, Twirl-N-Teens and Kent Country Kickers.

The do-si-do events during the fair have been coordinated by the Central Puget Sound Square Dance Council of the Square and Folk Dance Federation of Washington.

Seattle radio station KMPS-AM is a co-sponsor of the square dancing activities.

Fair officials said that there are more than 4,000 square dancers in King County and that interest in the activity is growing rapidly with many new clubs for all ages being formed.

In addition to the dancing and regular exhibits and displays, today's activities include the Loggers' Rodeo from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., the annual Youth-a-rama from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in the rodeo arena and performances by The Whistling Midgets at noon, 2 p.m. and 3:45 p.m.

David Round, assistant manager of the fair, said that attendance on opening day of the fair was the second best opening day in its history.

According to fair officials, the event began in Seattle, then moved to Redmond; Enumclaw became its home in 1949.

The fairground, rides and midway are open from 10 a.m. to midnight today. Exhibits and displays open at 10 a.m. and close a 10 p.m.

Single parents

They aren't alone in their struggles

by Pat Jenkins

Unmarried parents aren't alone in their sometimes difficult task of coping with day-to-day living and raising children without a spouse.

"They are certainly not alone if they belong to Chapter 66 of Parents Without Partners, which has as members 528 men and women in South King County.

Whether they join the group mainly for its social functions or to benefit from its indirect psychological therapy, members of PWP all have something in common—namely, their place in society, said Dave Chavez, president of the group's local branch.

That, said Chavez, means they all have the same difficulties in providing for themselves and their children an equivalent of normal family life.

"There are good things and bad things about being a single parent," Chavez observed. "The objective of Parents Without Partners is to bring these people together and interact them and their children with other single parents and their children."

SOCIAL EVENTS like dances, dinners, and outdoor activities, and informal gatherings for "rap sessions" are the catalysts for that interaction.

Except for a handful of adult outings, the parents' children are included "in whatever we do," Chavez said. "We are concerned about the welfare of our children."

Chavez, 42, divorced from his wife of 14 years, was looking for something his three offspring could do on weekends when they visited him at his Tukwila apartment. He chose PWP for its monthly calendar loaded with parent-child activities, and now, after one year as a member, is an ardent supporter of the organization and the mediator of discussion groups he says are, in a way, therapeutic.

"There is therapy in grouping together with other people like yourself," he said. "But it's not really intended to be therapy. Some people are there to learn and help themselves, and others are there to socialize. I'd say the discussions are more educational than therapeutic."

CHAVEZ hosts a men-only rap session in his apartment once a month. Each participant brings a bottle of wine to loosen the discussion, and so far, Chavez reported, the result has been good.

"We talk about a lot of things," he said. "Male sexuality was one subject. That's a pretty heavy topic, and most men wouldn't discuss it as openly if there were women around."

Most of the time, both sexes and their children mingle in social events.

Part of PWP's PACE program (Parent And Child Endeavors), the excursions to air shows, sporting events, trout farms, dances, and dinners "help kids and their parents meet their counterparts," Chavez said.

PWP also has a separate club for its members' teenagers. They have their own officers and activities when not joining in with their mothers and fathers.

Despite all the socializing and sharing of experiences, the problems of being a single parent remain. Chavez, while he professes to enjoy the single life, knows of the travails.

"THE PRIMARY problem is they don't have the help of a partner in raising a child," he said. "A single parent can only be a father or mother, not both. It's difficult enough raising kids for two people, let alone for one."

Loneliness is another obstacle "for some," Chavez added. "It isn't for me. I'm alone, but not lonely."

"I would say it's more difficult for women. For security reasons alone, it's tougher for them to go out. They want and need an escort."

PWP members, most of whom are divorcees, are evenly divided along the loneliness battle line, Chavez said.

"People either get remarried right away as sort of a reflex action, or they're like me," he said. "For me, it's not hard to live without a wife. I'm scared to death of marriage. I don't want to get 'burned.'"

EVEN FOR SOMEONE with that attitude, PWP can help. For Chavez, the group provides a family atmosphere.

"The other officers, directors, and committee chairmen are my surrogate family," he smiled.

Two single parents got PWP ball rolling

Two single parents decided in the mid-1950s that persons like themselves needed an organization that would provide them regular social outlets, while at the same time serving as an advocate for people who must raise children without a spouse.

They came up with Parents Without Partners, from which has grown a myriad of chapters, including South King County's Chapter 66.

With 525 members from Burien, Des Moines, Federal Way, Tukwila, Renton, Kent, and Auburn, the local branch is one of the largest in the Puget Sound region.

And new members are always welcome, said president Dave Chavez, whether they are divorcees, widows, widowers, or unwed mothers.

They can begin participating in regularly-scheduled activities by telephoning Parents Without Partners at 854-2780. A recorded message will give them the names of three PWP representatives and their phone numbers for more information.

Annual dues of $15 include a monthly bulletin and schedule of events.

Orientation sessions for new members are conducted at least once a month.

Among the group's outings are discussions in the homes of members, dances, and formal and potluck dinners. Excursions are also made to sporting and outdoor events.

Multiservice center asking for donations

The Emergency Service Component of the South King County Multiservice Center has sent letters to about 600 local business and service organizations asking them to donate money to support its various activities.

Signed by Fred Allingham, the center's emergency services coordinator, the letter asks for "a small monthly contribution to help us maintain an effective, needed program."

"In the past 12 months," it says, "we have assisted over 5,500 people in need. In addition, we are initiating a self-help project that will assist low income residents and others to obtain the skills that will enable them to better deal with their financial situations."

The letter adds that "a $25 monthly contribution, for example, could provide an emergency three-day supply of food for two needy families, or provide a displaced family with two nights in a low-cost motel."

Noting that inflation has adversely affected both the flow of contributions and the plight of the poor, Allingham wrote that "there are more people in greater need" as a result of spiraling prices.

THE CONTRIBUTIONS, the letter continues, are tax deductible, and the center will give the donors who desire it public recognition.

Recipients of the letter are offered both an opportunity to take a first-hand look at the center's operation and to participate in the activities of the emergency service unit's advisory committee.

Center staff members say that the unit has served 93 families in the last month.

About 40 percent of these persons are elderly and live on fixed incomes. The remainder are unemployed, or are welfare recipients, or have just moved here.

Recent cutbacks in the federal food stamp program, the staff members say, have complicated the problems faced by the poor significantly.

Those interested in donating should contact the multiservice center at 839-8150. Its address is 2450 Star Lake Road, in the old Mark Twain Elementary School building.

County council explores massive park bond issue

by Darlene Himmelspach

A massive park bond that would pump millions of dollars into recreational facilities in unincorporated King County is being considered by the county council.

Some of the projects that could get the most money locally include Redondo Beach and Seahurst Beach at $1 million each and Lakota Beach at $900,000. Des Moines Creek is tentatively listed at $800,000 for passive development of trails and picnic areas.

According to Joe Jennings, aide to the county council, a $100 million general obligation bond would cost the owner of a $75,000 home $23 a year over the next 30 years if that is chosen as the life of the bond.

Councilman Gary Grant asked Jennings to provide the council with similar figures for a $200 million bond.

Statistics provided by the county planning department indicate there is a need for about $16,035,000 to fund parks projects in the Highline area and $10,505,000 for the unincorporated part of Council District 8 which includes White Center.

Some of the countywide projects that could profit from the sale of bonds include a regional zoo which Councilman Bob Dunn has sought for several years and a major swimming pool facility.

Councilman Bill Reams said he would like to see the county purchase some land in the Sammamish Valley that would enhance the combination of Lake Sammamish State Park and the proposed agricultural preservation lands in the valley.

Some of the projects listed include:

*White Center Park, $1.2 million for improvements, landscaping, play court resurfacing and rehabilitation of the activity building.

*Earlington, $500,000 to develop picnic area, trails and a parking lot.

*Des Moines Creek, $800,000 for passive development.

*Lakota Beach, $900,000 to develop access, parking lot, shoreline improvements, picnic areas and a comfort station.

*Lakota Park, $400,000 to pave the parking lot, provide bleachers, pathways and drainage.

*Redondo Beach, $1 million for phase 2 development including a fishing pier, breakwater and additional lighting.

*Seahurst Beach, $1 million to improve access and the north portion of the park.

*Dumas Bay, $250,000 for phase 2 development.

These projects were all listed as unfunded capital improvement project needs.

It is not clear yet whether the council will approve a major bond issue without going to the voters or an unlimited general obligation bond to the voters for approval next year.

PLACE TWO

No room at the inns

by Brad Broberg
If your Uncle Fred and Aunt Esther are flying in from the farm to spend a few days in the big city, they'd better have reservations. Otherwise, expect a couple of unexpected houseguests because there is virtually no room in the Seattle area's inns. On the Sea-Tac Strip, hotels and motels are booked solid, according to a desk clerk at Red Lion Inn, the strip's largest lodging with 700 rooms. She said the Red Lion is full until the end of the month. Her assessment was echoed by innkeepers at the nearby Airport Hilton and Sandstone Motel as well as the Doubletree Inn at Southcenter. "This is true throughout the city," a representative of the Seattle-King County Visitors and Convention Bureau said Thursday. "We did have a few rooms after the all-star game, but they're already filling up."

had to refer people all the way to Bellingham. The aid office has phone banks at the airport with direct connections to area accommodations. Those phones draw desperate passengers off their planes like magnets. Entire families can be seen making a beeline for the phones and frantically calling every inn around hoping for a room. Chances are, they'd have to settle for one north of Everett or south of Federal Way, according to an innkeeper at the Eastwind Motel in Federal Way. She said her place has been booked up virtually all week and one customer told her he left Everett and couldn't find a room until he arrived at the Eastwind. LOOKING for a vacancy is not dissimilar to searching for an open gas station. Once one of those infrequent items is unearthed, it doesn't take long for a line to form. It reminds one of circling sharks waiting to catch a scent of blood. The Eastwind innkeeper recalled an incident last week when a late cancellation resulted in a vacancy. But it was only a temporary opening because minutes after she dimmed the no vacancy sign, the room was being walked across the driveway to turn it on again, two more cars had swooped into the parking lot. WANTED American or United Airline Coupons will pay $25 call 941-2915

SUCH A CRUNCH is normal in July during the height of the tourist and convention seasons when, "Seattle just goes crazy, insane," according to one source, who estimated there are 10,000 rooms in the Seattle-King County area. The woman at the visitors bureau said, "I would say it's usual. It was last year. It is this year. And we don't expect any letup until September." Nevertheless, unprepared travelers continue to pour into the Seattle area without reservations, she said. "We have quite a few people come right up to our door who haven't any reservations. What happens to them, we don't know." The staff at the Traveler's Aid Office at Sea-Tac Airport is well acquainted with visitors who neglect to plan ahead. "So many people are ill-informed about everything. You'd be surprised at the way they travel," said a worker there. THE VISITORS BUREAU, the aid office and the booked up inns all try to direct roomless out-of-towners to a vacancy sign, but that in itself often results in quite a trip. "We're sending people as far away as Tacoma," said a desk clerk at the Sandstone. The visitors bureau representative said her agency last year

Local van pool running

THE WEYERHAEUSER Company has been operating since 1977 an expanding fleet of vans for transporting employees from Seattle, Tacoma, Bellevue and other outlying areas to the corporation's Federal Way headquarters and research center. At present, 16 vans — they carry from eight to 15 persons — are in operation and eight more have been ordered. Passengers pay a monthly fee that is based on operating costs and, executives say, enjoy a substantial savings by leaving their personal automobiles at home. The vans, as shown above, also return the passengers to their communities at the end of the day.

Health center hosts exhibit

A wide variety of paintings in oil, watercolor and acrylic by artist Mrs. William (Vera) Turner is being displayed in an exhibit at the Caldwell Health Center, 23620 Marine View Drive South.

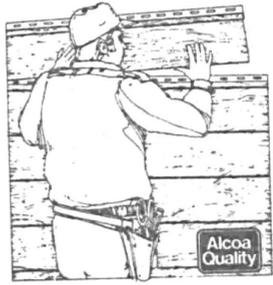

Mrs. Turner, who teaches art at Wesley Gardens, is a charter member of the Quad A Art Club, and a member of the Southwest Art Museum Guild and Burien Arts Association, where she is also a trustee. She has exhibited in many shows in the area, including the Frye Art Museum, the Seattle Art Pavilion, the Museum of History and Industry, the Campus Gallery, Burien Arts Gallery, Vashon Art Gallery and several others. Her paintings are in collections from Japan to Boston. The show at the Center is open seven days a week through August 11.

Unsung Heroes

Delores Stead

...can you help?

by Aggie Webb

"If you really need somebody to help out, there's a list of people you can rely on" - that's what Delores Stead when I interviewed her as my "Unsung Hero" - a person who responds to community needs whenever someone asks "can you help?"

Delores has been doing it for years - in every role you can imagine - from a helper in a Brownie Group - to volunteer assistant in school libraries - to her latest undertaking, counselor to troubled young people who come to the Federal Way Youth Service for help.

Delores is the gentle person who works with these young people, some of whom are in trouble with the law and some who could get in deep trouble if they weren't referred to the center by concerned people from schools, hospitals and other agencies.

She also works with their parents - sometimes in joint counseling sessions, sometimes with the teenager in one session and his or her parents in another. At other times, parents and their children have separate counselors who collaborate their efforts. But, all in all, the whole effort is to help a young person get back on track - to become somebody who respects himself or herself as a person and becomes a valuable part of the community.

Mrs. Stead is a trained counselor and goes back to the University of Washington for frequent "brush-up" seminars to keep in touch with the latest information. She devotes a minimum of four to six hours one afternoon and evening a week - more in an emergency - to her chosen volunteer project.

She more or less retired from her profession several years ago to devote her time to her family, including husband, Bob, and two daughters, Susan, who is 16 and attends Decatur High School, and Betty, 13, who has been attending Annie Wright, but who will enroll in Lakota Junior High next fall. (The girls were out doing the family grocery shopping while mother was being interviewed.)

Because of the girls, she got involved in PTA, spent a couple of years assisting the seriously ill librarian at Lakota, helped staff the Adelaide library and devoted herself and her time to "the little things that needed doing from time to time." She was a room mother for Betty last year and for a couple of years was a member of the board of Seattle Junior Programs in charge of ticket sales in Federal Way a task she describes as "totally out of my field."

"During the Nixon election," she recalls, "Bob was at election headquarters, where he was told we don't have enough election workers - would you call around.?" Being a smart man, Bob called home.

Now Delores is mainly concentrating on what she can do for youth, but it's our bet that if anyone needs volunteers she is right at the top of their lists.

And, like all the volunteers we have talked to, Delores stresses the need of all services and organizations for volunteers - there never is as much help as is needed.

Motorcyclist burned in collision with car

A Normandy Park man suffered first and second degree burns on his upper body when the motorcycle he was operating burst into flames after colliding with the rear of a vehicle on Pacific Highway South Thursday.

Calvin J. Hargreaves, 20, of 3631 S. 186th St., was listed in satisfactory condition Friday morning at Harborview Medical Center.

According to the State Patrol,

Hargreaves was riding northbound on Pacific Highway when a car in front of him driven by Mary E. Weber, 54, of Federal Way, slowed for traffic.

The Patrol said

Hargreaves was unable to slow himself in time to avoid Weber's car and struck it. The collision punctured the gas tank on Hargreaves' motorcycle, and the gasoline ignited.

Our Saviour's to hold school

Our Saviour's Baptist Church, 701 S. 320th St., will hold Vacation Bible School from 9:15 a.m. until noon on July 23 through 27. The theme is: "God's Word; Your Door to Adventure!"

Children age 4 through sixth grade are invited. Special activities will include Bible and missionary stories, crafts, recreation, singing and a visit from Don and JoAnn Wright, missionaries from Japan.

For further information, call the church office at 839-6822 or 927-3030.

C.P.R. class offered

The American Heart Association and the Federal Way Emergency Medical Center will sponsor a cardiopulmonary resuscitation (C.P.R.) class on Wednesday, July 25, in the Federal Way School District Administration Center, 31455 28th

Ave. S., from 6 to 9 p.m.

Interested Federal Way residents may make reservations for the free class by calling 838-0805. Participants who successfully complete the class will be certified by the American Heart Association.

Torres to speak

Ben Torres, a drug addict and gang member before becoming a reborn Christian, will discuss his life story tonight at 7:30 at the Resurrection Lutheran Church.

Torres, who lives in Seattle and teaches at the Monroe Reformatory, was addicted to heroin for 11 years while roaming the streets of New York City as a member of a gang.

Torres cured his addiction in 1966 by working with Teen Challenge in Brooklyn, N.Y., and went on to become a minister.

He pastored churches in New York State and Florida before coming to Seattle, where he is a bible teacher.

He will share some of the horrors of heroin addiction and the totally changed life he has experienced since his cure.

Torres' conversion to Christianity is documented in the book and movie of the same name, "The Cross and the Switchblade."

Waskowitz fees upped

The Highline School Board recently voted to raise student fees for Camp Waskowitz from $17 to $19 because of a 10 per cent increase in costs.

Camp Waskowitz is a district-owned environmental education facility near North Bend where Highline sixth graders spend a week.

Clownin' around

POPPY AND Gordo are two of the clowns which will appear in Waterland '79's presentation of the Seattle Puppetry Theatre on Saturday, August 4, from 2 to 2:30 p.m. at the Des Moines Marina. The Theatre, a professional puppet company, was formed in 1973 and has been performing in the Northwest ever since. They research and produce their own plays, with their special interest being to write old folk tales and customs in order to develop dramatizations reflecting the culture of various countries and ethnic groups as well as entertain.

DM Boys' Club sets photo contest

The Des Moines Boys' Club is sponsoring a photography contest through July 27.

Local boys and girls under age 17 are eligible for the contest. Prizes will be awarded in four categories: best picture, best portrait, best animal picture and best outdoor picture. Winners will be announced on Super Friday, Aug. 3, in conjunction with the Waterland Festival.

Entries can be brought to the Des Moines Club at 22202 8th Ave. S. between 1 and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday on or before July 27. All entries are property of the Boys' Club and will not be returned.

Library exchange

In an effort to aid consumers in fighting ever increasing grocery prices, Federal Way Library has initiated a coupon exchange box.

When visiting the library, residents of the Federal Way area may help themselves to coupons clipped from magazines and newspapers and kept in a specially marked box near the library entrance. In return, donations to the coupon exchange box are sought from the community.

"Many of us receive more coupons than we can use and the library exchange box is a good way to make them available to someone else who can use them," Louise Puua, assistant head librarian, said.

Family night features film

Humor, suspense and tragedy are seen in the film, "Nite Song" to be presented at the family film night at Church Alive, 10847 - 1st Avenue South, on Friday, August 3, at 7:30 p.m. The film is set in an urban ghetto and deals with finding solutions to life's problems. For more information, call 242-6600.

Clark will describe mission in Buckley

Guest speaker for the Sunday evening service July 22 at First Baptist Church of Federal Way will be Rick Clark, missionary with the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. In the service beginning at 7 p.m., Clark will share with the congregation some of his experiences in helping to establish a new church-type mission in the city of Buckley.

Clark and David Upshaw have served as a team during the past six weeks in contacting people, arranging places to meet, and beginning Sunday services in the starting of a new church. Clark, who is also attending Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, is committed to the gospel ministry and has a background in relating to people in spiritual matters having grown up in a baptist pastor's home. In the morning worship service, Pastor Gordon Green will speak on the subject, "Jesus' Blood Cleanses All Sin." He will explain why it was necessary for Jesus to die on the cross and that his blood be shed to provide forgiveness for sin. Music for the Sunday morning worship hour at 11 a.m., will be led by Jerry Travis the church's new assistant pastor in charge of music and youth ministries. Music will include a medley by the adult choir, "The Cross" for the morning service, and special music for the evening service utilizing some of the especially talented soloists in the church.

Upshaw to present slides on Kenya

A colored slide presentation of mission work in the African nation of Kenya will be presented by David Upshaw on Wednesday, July 25, at 7:45 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Federal Way, 30029 16th Ave. S. Upshaw will discuss the different aspects of mission work in the country and the rapid growth of Baptist work there where more than 100 new churches were started in a one-year period recently.

Upshaw served as a Missionary Journeyman in Kenya where he taught in a Baptist high school. The Journeyman program is sponsored by the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention providing college graduates opportunity to be involved in overseas missions for two years.

Upshaw has been in the Northwest and Federal Way area this summer where he and Rick Clark have worked as a team in beginning a new church-type mission in the city of Buckley. The mission has had a good beginning with Sunday services being conducted since July 1, by the two missionaries.

With the Buckley mission begun, Upshaw will return to North Carolina Aug. 6, to complete his studies in Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary. Following seminary training, Upshaw will enter the full-time gospel ministry which will, no doubt, include involvement in some type of missions.

St. Luke's to hold second Bible school

St. Luke's Lutheran Church, 515 S. 312th St., will conduct its second session of Vacation Bible School from July 23 through Aug. 3. The time is 9 to 11:45 a.m. Children ages three and one-half through junior high are welcome to attend. The theme will be

"I Love to Tell the Story." It will include refreshments and a part of each day's activities.

The school is under the direction of Hub Firnhaber, Christian Education Director. Please call the church office, 839-0172, to pre-enroll.

Spirit filled life is sermon topic

Sunday services July 22 of Pioneer Bible Church, meeting in the Federal Way Elks Club, 31405 18th Ave. S., include morning worship at 11 a.m., Sunday School at 9:45 a.m., and evening service at 6 p.m. Pastor Ery Estruth, a graduate of Dallas Theological Seminary, will speak. The sermon topic of

Rev. Estruth for the 11 a.m. service will be "The Characteristics of a Spirit-filled Person's Life." Music will be provided by Paul and Millie Gervais. Geroge Taylor will lead the congregational singing. Evening service will offer an informal time of testimony and singing. Pastor

Estruth's sermon continues the exposition of the epistle to the Hebrews with, "Living a Balanced Life Between Time and Eternity." Wednesday evening a mid-week prayer and Bible study is held at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Clark and Jeri Lee, 25331 33rd Place S.

Christian Life to hear Clement

Rev. John Clement, Everett, will give a recently returned from England and Wales, will be the guest minister in the 10:45 a.m. Worship Service Sunday, July 29 at Christian Life Assembly. Rev. Clement is a noted Bible Expositor with a background of training and experience. The Gospelaire of Christian Life Assembly is located at Sixth Avenue South and South 320th in Federal Way. Rev. Ben Dickson is pastor.

Baptist school now registering

Palisades Baptist Academy is now accepting applications for full term with openings for students in kindergarten through 12th grade. The program is considered unusual in that kindergarten to first grade students are reading after only nine weeks of school. Students are allowed to work at their own pace and are not expected to keep up with a class, but if a student has difficulty with English while math comes easy, he is allowed to spend more time on English until he catches up. The academy is a ministry of Palisades Baptist Church located at 5015 Dash Point Road S.W. For further information or to make an appointment call 927-0826.

The Modern Mom

by Betty Woolley

If there's one character on the American scene whose favor it is well advised to gain, it's the paper boy. He can make or break your day. No congressman wields more clout amongst his constituents than the paper boy exerts along his route.

The paper boy sets the tempo of the day. If, for some reason beyond his control, the paper is late, there is a chain reaction through-out the community. Patients deliver babies without doctors, courts await arrival of judges, and the Egg McMuffin business drops off at the local fast food stand. Everybody's sitting at home waiting for the paper.

You can yell and scream at your own children, but never, NEVER raise your voice to the paper boy. Through sleet and storm and sometimes dead of night the paper boy endeavors, like the Pony Express rider of old, to make his appointed rounds.

The ill tempered individual who sees fit to unfairly raise his voice to the paper boy lives to regret it. The daily edition, which has been neatly rolled and hand delivered to the front door, suddenly may be found in the path of the sprinkler or in the jaws of the neighbor's Doberman pinscher. If the delivery boy has been truly insulted the paper may be found on the roof, where the colorful sales section has plastered itself against the fireplace chimney and given the house the character of an outdoor billboard.

Make friends with your paper boy. Court his favor. If he's young and impressionable compliment him on his sterling performance and paste a gold star on his forehead for each day's delivery. If he's more basic in his approach to life, a handful of fresh cookies or a piece of fudge cake will probably do the trick. If he's somewhat more sophisticated make him a gift of cold cash. If he's truly enmeshed in the concepts of the business world you might offer him a few shares of Tel and Tel, or at least five gallons of gas.

Behind every successful paper boy is a mother with a station wagon. During his absence for football practice, ski season and basketball camp she finds herself in the car at 5 a.m., foot on the accelerator, wondering how in the world she got herself into this position.

Looking back at the list of regrets in my life I am faced with an inescapable sobering fact. I blew my chances to be honored by posterity: I never raised a paper boy.

Obituary Wilbert Naff

Wilbert "Shorty" Naff, 63, died July 17 in a Tacoma hospital after a lengthy illness. He was born Aug. 12, 1915 in Addy, Wash., and had lived in Kent since 1942.

Mr. Naff operated a service station in Auburn for many years. When it closed he opened a station at 288th St. S. and Military Road which he operated until 1976 when he went to work for the Port of Seattle at Sea-Tac Airport.

He is survived by a son, Monte Naff of Billings, Mont.; three daughters, Mrs. T. (Anita) Gudmundson of Kent, Christie Hiede of Springfield, Ore., and Mrs. Ron (Marilyn) Gould of Santa Barbara, Calif.; four brothers, Leslie Naff of Kenai, Alaska and Garland, Roy and Clarence Naff, all of Colville, Wash.; three sisters, Mrs. Pearl Stevenson of Bend, Ore., Mrs. Iva Macready of Kent and Mrs. Lennie Hester of Port Angeles.

Private family graveside services were held Friday at Hillcrest Cemetery in Kent under the direction of Edline-Yahn Funeral Chapel. The family suggests memorials to the Tacoma General Hospital Cancer Center.

Grass Roots Gardening

by Ginna Koontz

plantings keep the condenser cooler so it doesn't have to work as hard.

Plant large deciduous shade trees on south, southwest and west perimeters of outdoor summer activity areas. These trees lend a leafy roof for these areas as well as providing shade.

On the north and northwest edge of the home put out evergreen trees to west or south sides of an air conditioning condenser. These provide wind breaks from harsh winter winds. If the trees are planted five to seven times their height from the leeward side, winter energy consumption has been reduced up to 30 percent.

Dense plantings of evergreen shrubs on the north, west and northwest sides of the house give additional insulation. Also using evergreen vines on or near these walls as explained earlier helps reduce cold air infiltration into the building.

Trees and shrubs can be spaced and planted as wind tunnels to guide southwesterly summer breezes into and through the house.

To promote air circulation in the summer and to avoid winter cold air pockets near your house be sure to plant trees and shrubs to allow a natural downhill flow of air.

Remember, darker colors more efficiently absorb winter sun's heat so stick with medium to dark tones for both color of the house and the plant material. Their heat retaining qualities can be modified during warm summer days by shading with large deciduous shade trees.

If possible deflect air from exhaust vents, clothes dryer, air conditioner, etc., away from used activity spaces with plantings. It is best if these hot air sources are exhausted into northern areas where heat excesses are not as severe.

And we are all energy saving conscious, gardeners who are planning new landscapes should heed these basic suggestions and established gardens can sometimes be renovated or altered to meet the heat saving suggestions. The labor and money spent would ultimately save not only energy power but money from the use of less fuels.

Are you planning to install a new garden this fall or in Spring? Do you know it is possible to evolve a landscaping plan incorporating energy conservation? So whether your garden design is done by a professional or by you, analyze your site and take advantage of these suggestions emanating from research by the Maryland County extension service.

Plant large deciduous shade or fruit trees on the west, south or southwest side of the house. Set the trees about 15 feet apart and 15 feet from the house. Do not intermingle evergreen trees that block winter sun.

Deciduous trees block summer sun but after losing leaves in the fall allow maximum penetration of winter sun. A study revealed that an eight-degree difference between shaded and unshaded wall surfaces was equal to a 30 percent increase in insulation for the shaded wall.

Deciduous vines should be planted to climb on south and western brick or masonry walls to block summer sun but permit winter sun. If your house is wood, erect a trellis next to the walls of the building for vine growth. This

Day camp deadline July 25

Deadline for registering for the Federal Way summer day camp for mentally and physically disabled youngsters is July 25. State tourney begins Thursday

Boys' Club Ponies win Valley Lg. race

by Harry Brooks
It's off to state for the Federal Way Boys' and Girls' Club sponsored Pony League baseball team.

The local Ponies won a berth in the double-elimination, eight-team state tourney by taking the Valley Pony League title with a 5-4, comeback win over Kent Fairwood Greens, Thursday.

The State Pony League Tournament, played at Kent-Memorial Park, will begin next Thursday and will end Sunday. The tourney draw had not been decided by press time.

Federal Way coach Lee Eilertson wants his club to be at a mental peak for the tournament opener. After the game, he instructed his players "don't even think about baseball this weekend; we'll get back to it Monday."

Federal Way finished its Valley League campaign with a 13-1 record. Eilertson pinned his team's success on "good pitching, good fielding and aggressive base running."

All were key elements in Thursday's win over Kent, a team that came into the game only a game in back of locals and could have forced a Friday championship playoff by beating the Feds.

FEDERAL Way pitcher Scott Eilertson rolled through the first nine Kent batters. He struck out two during that stretch and was backed by five infield putouts.

Miscues struck the FW infield in the fifth and sixth innings. The blunders allowed Kent to tie the score at 3-3 in the fifth and move ahead 4-3 in the top of the sixth.

However, a loss of accuracy by Kent starting hurler Mark Kemp and Dale Pac's high bouncer to third put Federal Way on top to stay in the home part of the sixth inning.

The Feds' successful comeback surge started when Mark Roberts took first on an error at second. Todd McDonald followed with a bloop single to center, and John Bowman loaded the bases by taking ball-four.

Then, Pac topped his big bouncer to third. Kent third-baseman Brent Anardi charged and threw for a force on Roberts at the plate, but the FW runner touched home with the tying run a split second before the peg arrived. Wayne Lewis brought home the go-ahead run by finishing Kemp's mound performance with a walk.

THE FEDS nearly inflicted further damage when Dan Lippman smacked the hardest hit of the night. Unfortunately for the locals, the zipping line drive landed in Anardi's glove at third. Bowman was caught helplessly off third by the crack-splat liner and was doubled off to end the inning.

Eilertson made sure Kent didn't retaliate. He struck out the first two hitters in the seventh and ended the game by completing a play on a grounder.

Seven Federal Way hitters took the batter's box in the first inning, but the Feds only tallied one run. Dan Lippman opened the home first by taking first base on a second-base error. Eilertson then beat out a slow roller to third. Jason Dutt's grounder back to the mound forced Lippman at third. A shortstop bobble of Clay Marrs' hard grounder loaded the bases. The Feds' finally cashed in when Dutt trotted home on Chuck Woods' base-on-balls.

Federal Way

moved to a 3-0 lead in the second by banging three of its game-total five hits. Pac opened the rally with a single but was forced at second when Benji Mogenson bounced to short. Mogenson stole second and third and came in on Eilertson's fungo base hit to left. Dutt followed by smacking a hit deep in the shortstop hole.

Kent's Pat Jochem ranged to his right, fielded the hopped but made a belated throw to first. Eilertson took second on the hit and took off for third when Jochem went after Dutt at first. Kent first-baseman Tom Peterson zoomed a cross-diamond throw for a play on Eilertson at third. The ball skipped in front of Anardi and took a hop over the backstop. Eilertson received a free trip home when the ball left the playing area.

KENT'S bats suddenly awoke just as the Federal Way gloves momentarily lapsed during the sixth inning.

Anardi started Kent's three-run burst by taking advantage of a Federal Way third-base bobble. He stole second and scored on Dan Norman's hit to right. A flubbed grounder at second put Mike Carey at first, and Norman sprinted all the way to third. Norman came in on Kevin McCarthy's sacrifice fly, and Carey scampered to second when Federal Way elected to make a play at the plate. Carey scored on Kemp's single between second and third.

Kent jumped on top in the sixth when Steve Newman made first on another second-base error, stole second and came home on Tom Peterson's single to center. However, base-running blunders resulted in two putouts at third base and kept Kent from moving further ahead.

The lead was short-lived as the Federal Way philosophy of letting each individual on the roster play at least three innings' paid off. Substitutes McDonald, Bowman and Lewis figured in the Feds' two-run, sixth-inning drive to victory.

The win was Federal Way's sixth straight. If the Feds extend that streak to 10, they will be state champs.

TRANSMISSION PARTS

Let our specialist give you TIPS ON AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSIONS

There are no instrument panel lights or gauges to warn the vehicle owner of developing transmission trouble. Here are some signs of possible trouble:

Fluid signs-If the transmission fluid is dark brown, foamy, or milky your transmission is slipping. Healthy fluid is clear and has a pink or reddish tint. Also, fluid leaks are sure signs of trouble.

Driving symptoms-Slipping, harsh or rough shifting of the transmission, rapid shifting, and no passing gear are the most common signs. Have them checked.

taking an 8-1 lead into the sixth inning Friday, but field lights, which clicked off promptly at 10:45 p.m., halted the game.

WIL frontrunner Adair's had turned the lights off on Concrete Pacific two nights earlier, taking a 7-1 win. Pacific pitcher Larry Menday had his hand on the switch until the seventh inning, when three walks, three hits and four runs darkened the locals' chances.

games were in the balance for Concrete Pacific yesterday, a situation stemming from another lights-out incident early in the season. Pacific hosted Redmond at Sacajawea yesterday for a regular game plus two or more innings of a game which ended in a 2-2 tie when the Sac field lights called it quits.

South County for a 2 p.m. game today. Sacajawea will again be the game sight. Pacific does not see action again until next Sunday against the same South County team in Edmonds.

Federal Way did not appear lax in the first inning, as shortstop Jerry Bendorf singled past Adair's second-bagger Buz Johnson. Bendorf scored the game's first run as Doug McCracken powered a shot down the left field line, good enough for a double and a RBI.

ing Dugan to take home without a CP throw. Matters were compounded when a rundown throw bounced off Olsen and into right field, allowing Olsen to score the go-ahead run.

Although the loss ballgames," the CP put Pacific's record at coach said. "We 4-17, the first-year haven't been completely in some of them, but we haven't been blown out, with the exception of two or three games."

Federal Way Legion zaps Auburn to hold second

by Bart Potter
The Federal Way American Legion team secured a firmer grip on second place in the District 11 Southern Division standings with a 6-1 win over Auburn Thursday at Lakota Field.

come than the last time the two teams met, when Kent swept a doubleheader while allowing only three FW hits.

Theiss' only shaky inning was the first, when Auburn picked up its run on a Bob Knudtson walk and Toby Lang's single.

ing. A Bob Bolam single and Jeff McCauley's double accounted for the final FW run.

Winebrenner was pleased with his team's play of late, in particular pointing out that the Legionnaires have played errorless defense in the last three games.

While Menday pitched to Johnson, Olsen attempted to steal second but stopped halfway, pickling himself but allowing Dugan to take home without a CP throw.

Seventh-inning woes began with two walks, as Menday lost control on his breaking pitches.

"We haven't really been out of that many three games."

Federal Way now shows an 11-5 record, one and one-half games ahead of Burien in the battle for the second double-elimination spot to the district playoffs.

"Our hitting is starting to come around," he said. "Werth pitched really well last time, and we lost 2-0. I think we'll get him some runs this time."

Federal Way came back with four tallies in the second inning. Bob Bolam led off with a walk, and after two had been retired, Brent Hoene tripled him home. Werth singled in Hoene, and Pete Weymiller socked another triple to score Werth. Jim Bendorf's single chased Weymiller home with the last run of the frame.

They seem to be playing really together," he said. "Looks like they're getting tuned up for the playoffs."

While Menday pitched to Johnson, Olsen attempted to steal second but stopped halfway, pickling himself but allowing Dugan to take home without a CP throw.

Seventh-inning woes began with two walks, as Menday lost control on his breaking pitches.

FW soccer referees clinic set

The Federal Way Soccer Referees Association will hold its annual Referees' Clinic Aug. 13, 14, 15 and 16 at the Federal Way School Administration Building. The time will be 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

There is a $4 charge for the clinic and a $2 charge for the test, which will be on Aug. 20 at 7 p.m., also at the Administration building. Everyone, who is going to do any soccer refereeing this year, is urged to attend the clinic. This will be the only referee clinic this year that will be presented in Federal Way by the Washington State Soccer Referee Association. For questions or further information phone Wayne Triplett at 927-3590.

Whales and history part of Island tour

by Ann Hagen
If you haven't toured through the San Juan Islands, north of Anacortes in the Straits of Juan de Fuca, you've missed some of the most beautiful scenery in the Pacific Northwest.

Recently, we packed up our bicycles for the third time and toured two of the flat-topped islands, Lopez and San Juan Island, part of a chain of six islands available by ferry.

The islands are ideal for bicycling. They have quiet wandering paved roads that meander around the country side, very little traffic and scenic parks for camping. The two islands mentioned can be easily biked in one or two days with a circular route of approximately 30 miles for each.

If you are not bikers, don't let that stop you. Except for the additional fees on the ferry very little gas will be used.

However, if taking an automobile, be sure and get to the ferry early. Cars are allowed passage on a first come, first basis and it is often several hours between ferries. Bicycles and walkers are always allowed on first so there is no need to hurry.

Arriving at Lopez, we decided to stay at Spencer Spit Park, one of the only two parks several miles from the ferry landing. The park, small but adequate has campsites on a sandy beach. Campers can watch the ferries go by in the distance, jump logs on the beach and roast their dinner over driftwood.

On the tip of the spit that juts out to within throwing distance of tiny Frost Island, a picnic shelter has been rebuilt. It is a replica of one built in the early 1900's complete with hand hewn logs.

THE SPIT IS A favorite spot for boaters who tie up in the sheltered bay at night. Biking around the island, we stopped at MacKaye Harbor for lunch. Near Iceberg Point, that is closed to visitors, the harbor is bustling with the activity of inhabitants of summer and permanent homes, commercial boaters tied up at one of two long piers and the activities of a recently built commercial cannery.

However, most of Lopez's activity center's around Fisherman Bay that is protected by a peninsula. There, the island's commercial enterprise includes several restaurants, a market, gas station, liquor store and drug store. A small western shopping center has been recently built to house several small craft and clothing shops.

Before boarding the ferry for an early morning start to San Juan Island, we spent the night at Odlin Park. The park offers many nice waterfront campsites and provides space for a baseball field and club activities.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST is the recently open Friday Harbor Whale Museum. The museum, that is housed upstairs in the old Island Gallery Building on First Street attempts to answer often-asked questions about whale intelligence and how they communicate. The museum's originators Ken Balcomb of the Orcas Survey and curator Mark Anderson move the visitor through the world of marine mammals by exposing them to an "underwater" room complete with sound. Additional exhibits explain whale evolution, migration and feeding patterns, skeletons and communication patterns.

The non-profit museum, that also operates 24 educational programs is run entirely by volunteer help and is funded through membership sales. Schools of whales, skirting the San Juan waterfront are not unusual. While we were camping at the San Juan County Park on the westward side of the island, several schools of killer whales playfully spouted and leaped as they headed north. If time permits, plan to stop at the University of Washington marine laboratories located just directly north of and within a few miles of Friday Harbor. Visitors can tour the facilities that teach research and related activities to more than 1,500 students per year from 2 to 4 p.m. on Wednesday and Saturday during the summer. Declared a biological preserve in 1921, marine life is diverse and abundant. Facilities for teaching include seven research buildings complete with labs equipped with photographic darkrooms and analytical instruments.

For a lighter touch, plan to stop at Roche Harbor, a lime quarry that has been converted to a resort for boaters. The area includes the Hotel De Haro with bricked walk and a garden of beautiful flowers, a grocery store, restaurant and swimming facilities. A short hike leads also to a unique mausoleum, built by John S. McMillin who eventually sold the 4,000-acre property to developer Rueben Tarte in 1956.

For bikers, it's a pleasant place to stop for lunch, rest up and watch the activity. Needless to say, it would be difficult to see all of this island in one day on a bicycle. Take at least two and take your time. The island is slightly more hilly than Lopez and the hills alone will slow you down if the tours do not.

If you have time, visit the English and American camps that are tucked on the western and south eastern tip of the island. Three structures used during the British occupation of 1860 still stand. At American camp, the remains of Pickett's Redoubt are well preserved, but no buildings survive.

Bicycles packed and waiting, this scene depicts the beginning of an inexpensive and uncomplicated tour of the San Juan islands.

Center opens art exhibit

About 220 anatomical, surgical and natural history illustrations will be presented in "The Artist in Science" exhibit at the Pacific Science Center through September 4. Their subjects and media are diverse. Their purpose, to give the viewer an opportunity to learn how scientific knowledge and art can merge to create an important visual communication that words and photographs alone cannot achieve. The exhibit was created especially for display at the Pacific Science Center. The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

U W opens observatory

"Space Ship Earth: Our Place in the Universe" will be the topic at a lecture on July 25 at the University of Washington. The lecture is one of the highlighted events scheduled in observance of Astronomy Week.

The lecture will be at 9 p.m. in the Sylvan Theater on the central campus or if there is rain, in 110 Kane Hall.

Another event scheduled for Astronomy Week is viewing time on the campus observatory telescope from 9 to 11 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, July 24 through 27. The observatory is located near the north campus entrance on 17th Avenue NE and NE 45th Street.

Variety available at festival

On Sunday, July 22, about 200 participants will be performing on three stages on the campus of Bellevue Community College between noon and dark. Included in the schedule of the Bellevue Jazz Festival are virtually all types of jazz—from gospel and spirituals sung by a 60-voice choir to contemporary experimental jazz being performed in public for the first time.

There will be no charge for admission to any of the festival events at Bellevue Community College.

An additional event has been added to the Bellevue Jazz Festival this year—a jazz cruise aboard the historic steam vessel, the Virginia V. The jazz cruise will take place the evening of Thursday, July 19, from 8 to 11, departing from Fishermen's Terminal near the South end of the Ballard Bridge in Seattle for a cruise through Lake Union, Portage Bay, Union Bay and around Lake Washington.

Tickets for this festival cruise are available from Jim Wilke by writing him at P.O. Box 1768, Bellevue, Wash. 98009. Tickets are $10 per person and include a light buffet during the cruise. At the festival itself on Sunday, highlights include the Total Experience Community Choir, a special High School Student Jazz Ensemble under the direction of Roy Cummings, recording jazz bassist Gary Peacock, four large orchestras including the Seattle Composers and Improvisors Orchestra, three traditional jazz (Dixieland) bands, several singers, and numerous small ensembles representing a variety of technique and styles.

Class teaches self-growth

An intensive two-day seminar on "Responsible Assertiveness: Self-growth and skill development, will be held on Saturday and Sunday, July 28 and 29 at the Seattle Hyatt House, 17001 Pacific Highway South.

The course, which costs $150 per person, $85 for students or per person for groups of six, is sponsored by the Proseminar Institute, San Francisco. For information, call Devon Schwarzbek toll free at 1-800-227-4200.

What women want... In a house of course

Four women, all married, three with children at home, had lunch together recently to discuss what they like to see in a house for sale, especially a new house. This story will introduce each of them, but then not distinguish among them for the conversation because there was no disagreement.

Debbie Ertel, the real estate editor of this paper, was one of the four. She is married and has one small daughter. Her husband is often gone on business. Debbie has seen a lot of houses in the course of choosing the House of the Month and of advising on real estate ads.

Sandy Babbitt, also with the real estate department of the paper, has no children. She's in the process of remodeling her home to make it suit her needs better.

Kay Crane, free lance writer, has been writing for the real estate section for about four years. She has three sons, a husband who often works at home.

As a professional in the field, we consulted over lunch with Jan Harris, builder. She has two children, a boy and a girl, and lives in an older home. Of the four of us, she's the only one who's had the chance to put her ideas to work.

We agreed instantly that there can never be too much storage space in a house. Leave the space under the stairs open, line it with shelves, and use it for something. Use the spaces above the kitchen cupboards for cupboard space by closing it in with sliding doors. That kind of flat kitchen space, well out of the way, is ideal for lovely cake platters, seasonal items, turkey roasters and other large flatish things used only occasionally.

If the plans can possibly allow for it, build a cool room with shelves from floor to ceiling for storage of home canned foods, large pots, and root vegetables. Allow room for a workbench, however small, for the inevitable repairs.

Interestingly enough, all four of us sew and want room for it, but only one of us has that room. We want daylight in the sewing room, a vinyl or hardwood floor so the pins don't get lost in the shag, storage space in the sewing room for the thousand small supplies used. All of us want that sewing area close enough to the laundry room so that the rips and hems can be mended as part of the wash-day process and not require a separate trip to another part of the house.

In the laundry room, we all agreed, we want enough room to hang drip-dries out of the way. Ideally, we'd like the laundry room on the same floor and in the same area as the bedrooms, but if that is not possible, how about a laundry chute?

Each of us had something to contribute about windows. We all like the daylight better than artificial light, so much so that one suggested skylights, especially in the kitchen. Jan Harris pointed out that code requirements must be met (that is, a skylight cannot replace a bedroom window) and a skylight may not interfere with the structural elements of the house, but with those exceptions, she thought skylights would be perfectly reasonable. We all like wooden windowsills, even with aluminum windows. We like windows to open, and in such a way that they catch the breeze in the summer.

Electricity also drew some fire. We want plenty of outlets, particularly in the kitchen. Jan likes to put some in back of a cupboard used to store small appliances so that they can be used with just the pull of a shelf. Dimmer switches for dining and living areas won't please. In bedrooms and the halls near them, we want quiet switches so turning off the light in one child's room doesn't waken the child asleep next door. To help conserve energy, we want to be able to switch each light off or on separately, especially in the kitchen. Outdoors, we want electrical outlets on each side of the house and in the carport or garage so overlong extension cords are not needed to use hedge clippers or special lights for car repairs.

Many of the comments centered on kitchens. For each of us the kitchen is more than a place to prepare food. It's where we spend a lot of our time at home, entertain friends, keep an eye on the children. We want our kitchens big enough for all those things and more. Jan is fond of building islands into her kitchens so noodles can be dried, cookies rolled and math homework supervised all at once. For all these purposes, we want lots of light in the kitchen, even lights of different kinds. What it boils down to is that we hate cooking in our own shadows, so we want light in the room itself and then specifically over the counters separately. And please, over the sink.

A window over the kitchen sink ranked high with all of us. Jan is tall and says she hits her head on the cabinets if there's no window over the sink. For the rest of us it's the dreary task to be done with no view that gets us. One quote: "Anyone who builds a house with no window over the sink deserves to be chained to the spot."

Bedrooms drew a few comments. It's wonderful to have a master bedroom big enough to rest in without being in bed. An alcove for a desk or armchair is much appreciated. Perhaps such an area is the perfect compromise between the house where the master bedroom is far enough away to suit parents with big children and the house where all the bedrooms are close enough for parents with babies. With an alcove, the new baby stays there until the parents are ready to feel secure with him a distance away.

Enough built-ins in a bedroom are clearly important, especially if the rods in the closets are high enough for hanging long dresses. It need not even be all the rods: just one will do!

For ease in cleaning, we like electronic air filters. Jan says that she hasn't seen a central vacuuming system she likes well enough to use in the houses she builds, but she is on the lookout for one. All of us like paint substantial enough to be washed when necessary, so Jan uses exterior latex on the walls inside.

While we all want the mechanical problems of housing solved with imagination by the builder, we recognize that our taste varies. Jan likes to use neutral enough colors for what she puts into a house so that no one is stuck with lots of something they hate and can't live with, something that clashes with his furniture. In the same way, people like to add something of themselves to a home, even if it's just a shelf for the detergent in the laundry room, so she tries to stop adding just before it's too much.

What do you like to see in a house, new or old? The Real Estate Editor, Debbie Ertel, would like to know. Write to her at the Federal Way News, 1634 S. 312th St. in Federal Way, Wash. 98003.

(Editor's note: Today's House of the Month offers a house with many of the features we all liked, and at a reasonable price!)

HOUSE OF THE MONTH

Find me a home where the family will fit...

Attractive, Colonial style house sits on a treed lot.

Sunlight from large window over sink and overhead lighting brighten the large kitchen. Pass through opens onto adjoining family room.

(Editor's note: This "House of the Month" feature has been selected on merits of design, decor, or other special features.)

Where can you find a new comfortable four-bedroom family home on a quiet street for under $85,000? A home, in fact, that an ordinary family with several children can enjoy and still have the money to enjoy it with? In Federal Way, at Conifer Construction's Evergreen Estates. Take a look this afternoon. The 9 and seven-eighths percent money is available only for closings by late August.

Come in from Dash Point Road. Turn left onto Fourth Avenue South, left on South 306th Street, right on Fourth Place South. The number of the model house is 30650 at the head of the cul de sac. Or just follow the signs from South 312th Street.

Walk up the aggregate path to the double front doors neatly tucked under a rain-proof overhang. Small glass panes in each door set off the Colonial look.

Step into the foyer on hardwood floors. This is the classic central hall Colonial, with the living and dining rooms in front, one on each side of the central hall. A large guest closet here allows for plenty of coats.

On your right a substantial livingroom with large leaded-look windows overlooking the street. The side panels open to catch the breeze. This room has no overhead light but plenty of sockets (five) for a selection of handsome lamps. Off-white walls and a textured ceiling will allow individuality in the decorating. The carpet is a soft warm brown in a short shag. A walnut stain on the baseboards sets off the carpets beautifully.

Across the hall, the dining room is ready for a table and chairs. The carpets, baseboards, wall and ceiling finishes correspond to the living room. Another leaded-look window overlooks the cul de sac. An early American style chandelier in the center of the ceiling is ready to warm an elegant dinner party. Think of a round oak colonial table in this room. There's still room for a hutch to display favorite china and glassware.

All paths lead to the kitchen in this family home. From the dining room go back onto the no-wax patterned floor. Turn left to a deep coat closet, entry from the double garage and oversize bathroom. In the bathroom open the wall of closet doors at the back to find connections for the washer and dryer. This becomes the mud room area as the family entrance. A door from the garage goes to the backyard, so the children can track their mud in that way, directly on to the brown and white patterned floor.

A short hall runs behind the front rooms, joining the mud room area to the kitchen and family room, and connecting with the hardwood floor of the central hall.

Two more closets here house the hot water heater (52 gallons) and cleaning supplies (shelves overhead, vacuum cleaner and brooms below).

Try on the kitchen for size. It is dominated by a huge window behind the double sink, so the kitchen overlooks the treed back yard. Supplementary light is provided by luminous ceiling panels set in a neat walnut recess.

The basic kitchen appliances form an L, with space for installing your own favorite refrigerator. The drop-in stove is a Whirlpool with oversize continuous cleaning oven and self-cleaning burners. A narrow, vertically-shelved cupboard permits convenient storage of cookie sheets and platters. An in-sink-erator disposer works from a wall switch, safely set away from small fingers. The built-in dishwasher is also a Whirlpool. In addition to all the cupboards and drawers, a pantry closet is ready to store supplies.

The kitchen L faces the eating area L, with one solid wall and one pass-through wall — and two outlets for the hot tray or waffle iron! That pass through is finished with a walnut shelf plenty wide enough for the popcorn bowl.

Through the pass through (or the open doorway), is the carpeted family room, warmed by a brick fireplace and dark overhead beams. Double sliding doors lead out to the yard.

Downstairs the coloring of the house is that of a handsome comfortable Siamese cat, the kind with chocolate paws and soft fur. All it lacks is the blue eyes!

Let's go upstairs now from the front hall. The stairs are carpeted and trimmed in walnut, as are the wide upstairs hall and all four bedrooms.

The master bedroom is large and comfortable, with two long windows overlooking the back yard trees, its own bathroom and a wall of closets with bi-fold doors.

Two hall closets allow for both linen and cleaning supply storage, but the doors slide from one to the other. Another leaded-type window overlooking the street lights the hall. The matching front bedrooms have again the large leaded-type windows, while the back bedroom on the left again overlooks the trees.

At the center back upstairs is another bathroom, with tiled tub enclosure, cupboard space and counter space. An easy-to-clean floor of a tile pattern completes the room.

So what does it all amount to? Evergreen Estates is three years old, while Conifer Construction is an established local firm. The trees alone show that this is a builder making room for a growing community and not just slapping up homes as fast as possible.

For $83,950, you get 2,096 square feet of finished living space plus a double garage for storage and workshop as well as car housing. The layout has a sensible traffic pattern which would actually allow a family of six or seven to enjoy their home.

How does the money stack up? That 9 and seven-eighths percent mortgage needs 20 percent down, or $16,790. The builder is paying $750 of the allowable closing costs. Think of 5 percent of the loan balance for approximate closing costs, or about $3,350, of which the builder pays $750. Monthly payment would be about $506 for principle and interest, taxes about $840 right now, and the fire district class is four, for a low homeowners' insurance rate.

Think about it. Where else can you do that well? Answer: Down the street where Conifer is building two others just like this one and in West Campus where there are three more. Take a look at this house from noon until dusk today. Call MacPherson's Federal Way office at 839-5282 or 927-7733 for information.

Floor to ceiling fireplace, sliding doors to patio, and pass through to kitchen make this family room a year-round activity area.

ENJOY YOUR INFLATION HEDGE

The best way to get people to talk about economics is to have prices skyrocket. People who worry about inflation aren't kidding; the problem is real and serious. But what can we do to protect ourselves?

If you are a homeowner, you are doing it unknowingly because one of the safest and surest hedges against inflation is the ownership of real estate. Your "shelter" expense will stay fairly steady even in times of rising prices. The monthly payments on a mortgage don't change at all.

If you decide to sell, you can be confident - except in a forced sale - of getting back more money than before inflation hit. And, if you're in need of cash, your rising equity in your home increases your potential borrowing power. So, if you're a homeowner, you've been an effective economist all along and didn't know it.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate please phone or drop in at your local DEL BIANCO REALTY INC. offices. We're here to help!
