STEVE WALLEMDA tightroped a portion of the cable span on the Tacoma Narrows Bridge Monday afternoon. No Narrows escape; jail for Wallenda

by Pat Jenkins
 Steve Wallenda took an afternoon stroll Monday — from more than one hundred feet above the Tacoma Narrows into jail. Wallenda, the last living member of the acrobatic Wallenda family and a McMicken Heights resident, became the first person to ever take a tightrope walk along the cables of the Narrows Bridge. The chunky 30-year-old climbed onto the west span shortly after 12:30 p.m. and, aided only by a heavy pole that he said later was more hindrance than help, spent approximately 15 minutes walking along a portion of the sturdy cables. Wallenda also thrilled patrons of a nearby restaurant and passing motorists by standing on his head and kneeling, while the waters of Puget Sound swirled 187 feet below. Two State Patrolmen and two Pierce County Sheriff's Deputies weren't as amused by the daredevilry. They arrived on the scene, sirens wailing, as Wallenda and an entourage of newsmen were walking off the bridge after Wallenda had completed his exhibition, and after the officers had questioned and scolded Wallenda for several minutes, the county deputies handcuffed the acrobat and took him to the county jail in Tacoma. A sheriff's department spokesman said Wallenda was booked on two prior petty offenses for which there were outstanding warrants. No bail had been set late Monday afternoon, the spokesman said. WALLEMDA, who announced before scaling the bridge that he plans to traverse the 5,979-foot long span in its entirety Nov. 7, used Monday's encounter as a warmup. He claimed it was the first time anyone has attempted the feat. Wallenda also chose the occasion to "pray for world peace" on the anniversary of the World War II atom bombing of Hiroshima, make an appeal for contributions to help cure muscular dystrophy, and to celebrate the seventh birthday of his daughter — all done while balancing on the narrow cable.

At one point during his stay on the precarious perch, Wallenda knelt on one knee to utter his prayer for peace. Wallenda did not attempt to climb the steepest portion of the cables that lead to the top of a tower 467 feet above the Narrows, but did stand on his head briefly. "That's the first time in history anyone has ever attempted a headstand on an inclined wire," he said breathlessly after completing his stunt. Seconds later, as he stood on a wider portion of the span and rested his pole in front of him, the top of a passing motorhome struck the pole, knocking it against his stomach and stunning him. But he kept his balance and left the bridge without further incident. Two newsmen carried the pole for him. The pole was a new one, he said, and was improperly balanced, giving him an extra problem to contend with. Winds that often gust forcefully through the Narrows passage were not bothersome, Wallenda said. "But this is a difficult bridge," he said. "There are no guy wires to keep it from swinging. And there is an optical illusion with the cars going by and the water below, and nothing to the side... I felt like I was falling."

WALLEMDA, who has tightroped across the Oakland (Calif.) Bay Bridge and is reassembling the famed seven-man pyramid, sat quietly with friends at a restaurant near the west end of the Narrows before taking his shot at the Narrows. He placed his pole on the bridge without being noticed, but delayed his ascension of the cables until men working on the bridge had gone out of sight. He feared the workers would try to detain him or call law enforcement officials. Hoping to remain undetected until beginning his feat, he changed into his tights in the back of a Times photographer's pickup and wore the outfit under his street clothes onto the bridge. Wallenda ate "a roll" for breakfast and had no lunch. But he drank from a bottle of soda pop at the restaurant, not putting the bottle down until walking onto the bridge to begin his exhibition. Wallenda's 73-year-old uncle, Karl, died last year when he fell from a wire suspended 120 feet above a San Juan, Puerto Rico street. Steve Wallenda said he feels the spirit of his uncle now when he walks any type of tightrope. "I perform for all the Wallendas," he added. Although patrons of a nearby restaurant and passing motorists thrilled to Steve Wallenda's tightrope act on the Tacoma Narrows Bridge Monday, law enforcement officers were vexed by the daredevilry. Pierce County Sheriff's Deputies jailed Wallenda for two petty offenses for which there were outstanding warrants for his arrest.

Late returns swell pro-busing ranks

by Loren Bliss
 Though the straw poll on the Federal Way School District's busing policy was officially over on Friday, 18 more ballots dribbled into the NEWS office during the weekend and Monday, underscoring the extent to which the controversy has captured the public's attention. If the late arrivals are counted into the results, a total of 384 persons will have participated in the poll, with only 11 indicating support for the school board's decision against restoring bus service to its pre-1976 limits. The response, in which 97.7 percent indicated that they want the service restored, has set an all-time record for participation in strawpolls conducted by the NEWS. The last poll, in 1978, asked whether or not residents favor incorporation and was answered by 146 responses. In addition, the ballots that arrived after the Friday deadline — many of them had been mailed on Thursday — pushed the number of responses beyond the total recorded in the last poll conducted by the school district. THE DISTRICT'S poll, which school board members Nancy Ise, Bill Miller and Larry Van Sickle have used to justify their 3-2 vote against restored bus service, was answered by 382 persons. It was conducted in 1978 by C. Montgomery Johnson, a $25,000-per-year public relations consultant. Johnson's method was to mail 18,000 questionnaires to community residents, asking them to fill in the blanks and mail the forms back to the school district's offices. The questionnaires were completed before the fuel shortage and before it was learned that Federal Way's schools would receive an additional $7.7 million in state funding. The responses to the school district poll showed that 30.2 percent felt that restoration of pre-1976 bus service was "very important," while 49.9 percent felt it was "somewhat important." Johnson argues that his method, by showing the sentiments of those who feel strongly enough to respond, permits analysts to deduce the middle-ground opinions. The NEWS poll was similarly conducted. A ballot soliciting residents' opinions was published in the edition of Friday, July 27, which reaches approximately 25,000 households. But editorial personnel do not claim that the poll is a scientifically valid device for measuring public opinion. PRIOR TO 1976, elementary pupils who lived beyond a mile of where they attended school were provided with school bus service. So were secondary students who lived at or beyond a 1.5 mile limit. But in 1976, with the district's budget suffering in the wake of a succession of failed school tax levy proposals, the board voted to cut back the limits to two miles in all categories. That's where the limits stand now. The district's administration, however, recommended that the pre-1976 limits be restored after school officials learned that the Legislature had approved the additional funding. But the board, once by 3-1 and two weeks later by 3-2, voted to deny the administration's request. The board's argument was that parents had given busing a relatively low priority on the 1978 and 1977 polls conducted by Johnson. They also argued that the $28,000 it would cost to restore the service could be better spent elsewhere. Johnson's 1977 poll netted 1,568 responses. A total of 787, or 53 percent of those who answered the question, indicated that the district's transport program should be reinstated, while 23.5 percent indicated that it should be permanently eliminated. The restored service is supported by the Federal Way Parent-Teacher-Student Association, by the bus drivers' union, by many teachers and by a number of loosely organized parents. Calling for a massive turnout at next Monday's school board meeting, the parents intend to try to convince the board to reverse its decision.

Trucker jailed in shooting of woman

A 28-year-old Portland, Ore., woman was in serious condition at Seattle's Harborview Hospital Monday and her 31-year-old male companion, a trucker who is also from Portland, was in King County Jail following a shooting at Evergreen Truck Stop Saturday morning. The woman, Melinda Hill, was hit in the lower back by a round fired from what King County Police officers said was a .38-caliber Colt automatic. Prior to Monday she had been listed in critical condition.

Police said they were summoned to the truck stop, at South 348th Street and 16th Avenue South, by another trucker who observed a man and a woman quarreling in a truck parking lot. When police arrived they found the woman huddled in the sleeping portion of the cab of a truck, already wounded. The woman's companion, who is being held for investigation in connection with the shooting, was arrested at the scene. Police said the incident occurred about 1 a.m.

Shelter sought for Sea Haven

by Ann Hagen
 The Federal Way Branch of the Seattle-based Sea Haven Hostel that is currently operating out of an office at the South King County Multi-Service Center is searching for a facility to serve as a low-cost housing unit by an Aug. 17 deadline. Staffers Tony Cooper and Lori Anaya, outreach workers, say they are looking in the area for a building, either privately or publicly owned that "ideally, has 12-13 rooms," or can be renovated to serve 40 people in private, semi-private or family quarters. "In a crisis, people don't want to have to go to Seattle for help," said Cooper who's spent his last six years counseling those with drug and mental health problems. "Many of them have their jobs, friends and main support here." The hostel is applying for King County Block Grant funds to finance the project. In order to apply for the grant, a facility must be available for immediate use. Appealing to South King County residents for help, Cooper said they are "eager to tackle those old buildings that are standing vacant that other people don't want to spend money on." Sea Haven, 1431 Minor, Seattle is housed in a 110-room converted hotel. Started in May, 1977 with 1,000 and 10,000 volunteer hours, they provided emergency housing for 12,000 clients last year. A member of American Youth Hostel Association that has 225 chapters nationwide, they provide emergency shelter for travelers, seventeen and over; displaced people who find themselves in a situation where they have no money and no place to sleep; battered women and those with family problems. THEIR IMMEDIATE SEARCH is due to a recent survey compiled by the South King County Emergency Housing Coalition of King County. Their survey showed that, during June, 167 children and 132 adults needed emergency housing in King County. People are renting field space for $40-50 a month, moving from one state park to another (there's a two-week limit) and living out of their cars, said Cooper. Most of the people, said Cooper, are young marrieds or families who have come to this area to "strike it rich" with a Boeing job. But, they are unskilled and Boeing is only hiring skilled labor. Housing, especially family housing, is at a premium. Vacancy rates are three times lower than the national average. Cooper estimates a 1.5 to 2 percent vacancy rate in King County and many of those facilities are not available because of remodeling or renovation problems. Rental rates, in the King-Snohomish area are on the rise. A family dwelling rents for $400 a month with a $200 deposit plus first and last months rent. "It takes them $1,000 to get their foot in the door." Cooper said that the problem will, undoubtedly, be worse in winter when people can no longer sleep outside. Their heaviest use is November through February.

SEA HAVEN DOES not provide long-term housing. Families are allowed to stay two weeks; single persons and married couples may stay longer to allow them time to save money to get into a house. Sea Haven also provides other services such as a mini-clothing bank, access to other agencies, and counseling. "Nine out of 10 times, if they need shelter, they also have other needs," said Cooper. Eventually, Cooper said they'd like to buy a second building in Federal Way that would be used exclusively for emergency shelter for battered women. According to a report recently compiled by Evergreen Legal Service Center, 5,000 women a year leave home. "With 400,000 people in South King County, they're here," said Cooper. Sea Haven, a non profit organization is supported through grants, private donations, rental revenue and private foundations.

Council studies plat

by Darlene Himmelspach
 A trio of ordinances that would revamp the land use hearing and appeals process, speed up the process and give some authority to the county executive in plat matters is being considered by the King County Council. A hearing on the three ordinances is set for Aug. 20 before the council. It was delayed from Monday at the request of Councilman Gary Grant who said some community groups, including the Highline Community Council, wanted more information about the changes the ordinances would effect. Two years ago, a Charter Amendment switched authority for appeals of decisions on unclassified use permits and short plats of four or fewer lots from the Board of Appeals to the county hearing examiner. One of the ordinances under consideration makes that action official and adds to the current language the examiner uses as criteria for considering a proposal. The language directs the examiner to heed community plans and sewer general plans when considering a land use matter. As the law now stands, an aggrieved party in a land use hearing can ask for reconsideration if the decision is being considered by the examiner is not favorable to them. With the new ordinance (79-428) that automatic reconsideration option would disappear and the party would have to appeal the decision. If unsure of whether an appeal might have merit or be in order, an aggrieved party could counsel with a hearing examiner, except the one who heard his case, to get a professional opinion of how an appeal might go. The county council appeal panel would be restricted, as it is now, to considering information already presented to the hearing examiner in a quasi-judicial forum. If any new information became available, the matter would have to be remanded to the hearing examiner.

Unsafe areas should be priority

Editor:
On the subject of local school busing, I don't believe that the results of your local poll represent a valid sample of the total popular view. I would guess that a small minority are in favor of additional busing, an even smaller minority are against it and a large majority are unconcerned or neutral. Only the two minority groups would take the time to answer your poll.

In the past too much public education money has been channeled into non-educational functions. The school board's position that money that might be available for extra busing is better spent for educational purposes is to be commended. However, the safety of students daily travel between home and school certainly warrants prime consideration. I would like to suggest that the school buses do not have to deliver or pick up students at the school door or home, but could be used to transport the students only through these areas considered unsafe for pedestrian traffic.

Derby donations lauded

Editor:
The members of the Green River Steelhead Trout Club and the children of South King County would like to take a few moments of your time to extend our thanks to you for your contribution to our annual Kids' Fishin' Derby, held at Five Mile Lake on May 12.

There were about 400 kids at the derby, and most all caught fish. Judging by the smiles and laughter heard throughout the derby, and the awards at the end of the day, it was again a high point in their lives. None of us at the derby are quite sure who had a better time, the kids or the club members!

Again, our very special thanks to you the merchants who support us each year with your generous donations. Without all of you, it would not be possible to make the derby such a success!

Sincerely yours,
Bill Kacenas

The other day a man yelled out his car window to the driver of a car that had caused him some fright. He said, "Listen lady, people don't drive like that in the real world."

It seems to be the thing to say these days, "real world". How you say it depends on the situation of course, and I have collected a number of "real world" comments that clearly show the versatility of the phrase.

To begin, the old standby, That isn't the way it is in the real world.

Sympathetic, It's really tough about those boat people, but in the real world people just can't play hero to every person in trouble.

As I waited to deposit my check at my bank, I heard, Maybe, but in the real world most people just don't ex- amine their money that closely and a lot of people are going to be giving away dollars when they think they are spending a quarter.

At a baseball game where the players were all under 12 years of age, This is the real world, you dumb brat, don't make another play like that again or you're off the team.

At a grocery store, while waiting in the check out line, a beautiful half dressed female was dazzling a number of the male shoppers. One man said, If this is the real world, I'm not leaving.

The man's companion, his wife, I assume, said It is the real world and you ARE leaving.

Over the years we have learned that TV and radio do not depict the real world. Generally, the real world has few things going for it. There is a great deal of pain in the real world. In the real world there are robberies and muggings. It rains during vacations in the real world.

Advertising advises consumers to shop carefully, this is the real world, you know and you must be prepared for emergencies.

During a televised sport event, Here we are, in the real world of football.

There are real worlds of baseball, soccer and basketball, too.

Overheard in my favorite lunch room, Marie, nobody cares about that sort of thing, any more. In the real world married men do go out with other women.

People act differently in the real world. And you can't be too careful in the real world. If you get confused about where you are at any given time, you can be sure that someone will catch you day dreaming and insist that you return to reality.

That's how it is, in the real world.

Laws make raffle's success a chancy deal

by Nathalie Weber
Raffle. It's a word you won't often see in this or any other newspaper.

You won't find fliers promoting raffles in your mailbox. And you won't receive raffle tickets through the U.S. Postal Service.

Despite the restrictions, there's nothing shady about sponsoring raffles in Washington State. Raffles are legal here. What prevents the residents of this state from exposure to unrestricted advertising about and access to those lotteries is an inequity between state and federal law.

The state says raffles are OK. The federal government respects the state's right to determine that legality, but concurrently restricts the advertising of lotteries by prohibiting the mailing of any related promotion through the postal service.

What that determines is that no publications that are sent through the post office may use the word "raffle," or any pseudonym to infer a lottery. No raffle advertisements may be sent. And even the tickets themselves must be delivered by some means other than mail.

THE FEDERAL WAY Chamber of Commerce felt the brunt of that law recently when it initiated a raffle to benefit the Chamber Building Fund. Tickets were to be distributed to many of the 39-member group, but the federal regulation dictated that the ticket books be hand delivered. The chamber said it could tolerate that—especially since it benefited a local group that was enlisted to distribute the chances.

But the members heading the raffle were less enthusiastic about not being allowed to advertise their fund raiser. One of those is Daryl Eidenger, who summed it up: "Ads are the key to the success of any sale. Without them, it's going to make the success of the event more difficult." He said the Chamber was primarily depending upon word-of-mouth, a form of publicity that appears to be having some positive effects. of absurdity when an activity that clearly is legitimate in this state is treated as if it is a vice.

That sentiment may be drifting back to Washington, D.C., as the House Judiciary Committee currently is considering an amendment to the current restrictions on lotteries. That amendment, if passed, would permit the "transportation, mailing and broadcasting of advertising, information and materials concerning lotteries authorized by law and conducted by a nonprofit organization, and for other purposes."

Analysis

As is not uncommon in legislation, however, the amendment does not appear to have a promising future. From indication on Capitol Hill, the bill, while it exists, lies dormant in committee, eliciting little attention from lawmakers. The office of Congressman Norm Dicks, Sixth District Democrat, reports that the bill doesn't appear to be a "priority item" and that it is expected to pend in committee for some months.

Dicks said, however, that he is in favor of an amendment not moving right now," he said, "but I intend to talk to Congressman Fish (the bill's initiator) and see if we can get this thing going."

WHILE UNWILLING to commit himself to new regulations, Ben Meserve, Auburn-Federal Way postmaster, said he would consider supporting such an amendment if safeguards are built into the law. "I'm not against raffles," he said, "but allowing raffle tickets to go through the mail opens the possibility of fraud."

Meserve explained that the prohibition of mailing lottery tickets forces the sponsors to meet face-to-face with the buyers, disallowing fraud that could be conducted through the mail.

That's probably true. But countless items already are sold through the mail, items that could be subject to fraud. If that's the prime reason to ban use of the postal service for lotteries—and that's the only reason we've heard—the federal law should be revamped to coordinate more distinctly with the state law. harbor laws that are in conflict with one another.

Bathtub races, JJ highlight annual festival

PULLING THEIR boat across the finish line for first place in the First Ever Bathtub Funnyboat Race were Ed Foote and John Vangolen. Their craft was designed like a giant toilet. It was a close finish with Angleo Hernandez piloting a craft designed by Jeff Milstead coming up close behind.

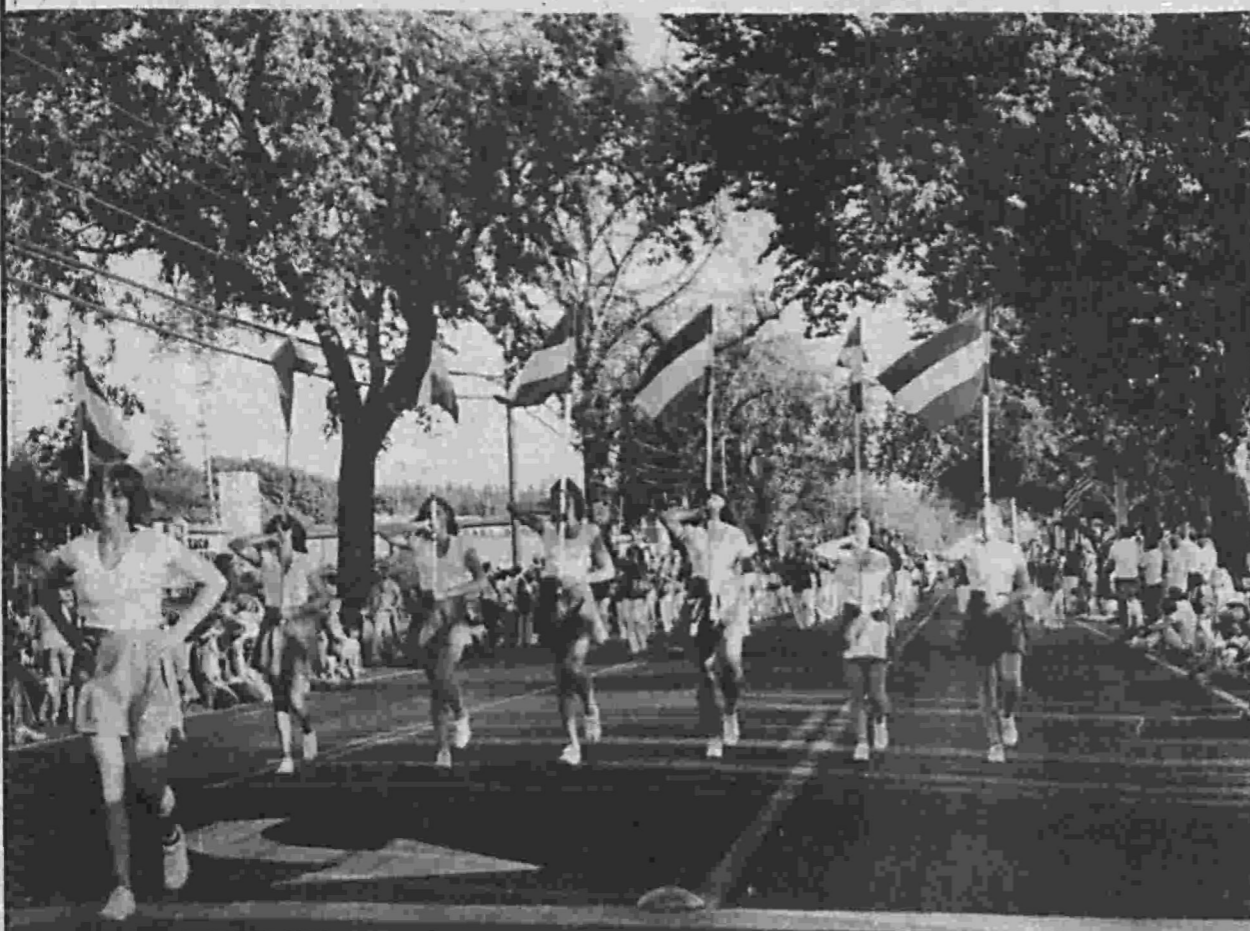

WHAT WOULD a festival be without a ferris wheel, cotton candy and bingo? Waterland's amusement rides are provided by Burback and Bollinger, who also provide rides for the Puyallup Fair.

THIS MULTI-COLORED head of hair has been seen at the SuperBowl, Sonics playoffs and just about anywhere if there's something of importance going on. He visited Waterland to stroll the parade route last Friday.

AWE AND laughter were inspired in Jene' Leonard, 7, of Federal Way as she watched the Waterland Festival Grand Parade last Friday evening. There was plenty for her to laugh about when famous clowns like J.P. Patches entertained as they went by.

DRILL TEAMS and bands from area schools were among the many entries which entertained parade spectators.

Music, ferris wheels, bathtub races and a parade were just a few of the many attractions at the 20th annual Waterland Festival last week in Des Moines.

Most of the competitors in the First-Ever Bathtub Funnyboat Races came dripping from the water, covered with seaweed, but laughing. It was a popular event on dry land, too, as spectators cheered their favorites on, even when the favorite was sinking.

The Grand Parade featured John Johnson as parade marshal, along with royalty from the area. Children responded with enthusiasm to clowns and drill teams alike.

In addition to the daily features as the Marina Fair, Bavarian Beer Garden, and Funtastic Amusement Rides, there were performances by professional and local groups throughout the day and evening. Among those performing were the Uptown Lowdown Jazz Band, Pete Lenonen Quartet and Miss Des Moines Carol Watson.

Various booths offered jewelry, psychic readings, food, and numerous other things in addition to the arts and crafts displayed over the weekend.

Police seek thugs who terrorized young girls

King County Police are looking for two young blacks — when last seen they were driving a white 1979 Datsun pickup truck — who have terrorized two 11-year-old girls who live in the vicinity of South 327th Street.

The men are said to be about 21 years old. The truck they used in the most recent incident, Friday at about 3:30 p.m., has black trim.

Police reports indicated that the two drove up to a yard in which the two girls were playing, and as the truck passed, one of the occupants aimed what appeared to be a heavy revolver of the single-action type at them.

Officers said that one of the two girls had been grabbed by the men a few days earlier. The girl broke away in that incident, police said, and the men fled.

AN 11-YEAR-OLD boy who was walking down Pacific Highway South Saturday at about 7:20 in the evening was beaten and robbed by two men who are in their late teens or early 20s, police records showed.

The boy, who lives in Federal Way, was near the intersection of South 287th Street when a car pulled onto the shoulder ahead of him and the two robbers leapt out.

Taken in the incident was a "whoopie cushion," a rubber pillow that is designed to make impolite noises when someone sits upon it. The boy told police he had been squeezing the cushion and causing it to emit sounds of flatulence just before the robbers struck.

DETECTIVES ARE seeking two teenaged boys in connection with a burglary early Friday morning in which the thieves cut themselves, apparently rather badly, on a plate glass window of the store they were looting.

The store, on Southwest 320th Street, was incident were several cartons of cigarettes, several cases of beer and a number of cigarette lighters. First aid items, apparently used by the burglars to bandage their cuts, were also stolen.

Most of the loot was recovered where it had been stashed nearby.

The robbers are believed to be from 15 to 17 years old.

IN OTHER incidents, burglars hit nine residences on Friday and during the weekend, and larcenists struck eleven times. Two acts of vandalism were also reported.

The largest burglary loss, some $1,000, came from a 37th Place South residence that was looted Saturday between 5 p.m. and midnight. The stolen items included a television set and stereo equipment.

None of the other individual losses equalled or exceeded $500.

Developer wants to abort County Group

by Carolyn Logan
"The County Group" fights for survival again, with this battleground in the courtroom. Developers seek to bar the citizenreform group from meeting, hence from rating county candidates on the fall ballot.

"The County Group is having a hard time finding its father, so an abortion is necessary," vowed Frank Ruano, who runs an apartment-investment firm.

He made the parliamentary move which led to the abrupt adjournment of the County Group's March 24 Burien meeting. That was the last public meeting held. But County Group "regrouped," calling a public meeting Monday to hammer out candidate-rating committee procedures and candidate criteria.

Ruano argued against the meeting, saying the Burien session "did not adjourn. When I put a motion on the floor to table it, the chairman interpreted it as a motion to adjourn."

The plaintiff who sought the restraining order on Friday was Bob Gamalielson, a real-estate salesman who was among developers who packed the Burien meeting.

IN HIS class-action suit, Gamalielson also asked for a preliminary injunction, according to his lawyer, Steve Tangen. Gamalielson contends he represents a "majority" of members.

But King County Superior Court Judge Robert Dixon, acting as a commissioner, refused to issue the injunction, according to Tangen. Dixon apparently felt this could infringe on free speech, Ruano admitted. However, Dixon permitted them to argue for the restraining order Monday in Superior Court.

Tangen insisted they aren't depriving the original organizers from exercising free speech. "Our position is that no one was granted the right to speak on behalf of the membership," he said. "The debate is over who has the authority to speak on behalf of County Group."

"What we're saying," Ruano added, "is that that meeting should not take place until The County Group adopts operating rules and elects board directors."

Both peppered the interim board members at the Burien meeting with procedural questions; little was accomplished when the meeting dissolved.

Named as defendants are 15 civic activists, including Marianne Craft Norton, former state Women's Council director, and Virginia Gunby, former state transportation commissioner.

AT STAKE are ratings on four County Council seats up this fall, including one held by Bob Greive, a White Center Democrat.

At stake, some say, is power over land use and how growth occurs in King County.

Tangen sees two factions. "One side perceives definite adverse impact from housing regulation," he said.

Advocacy of farmland preservation and growth management (channeling growth) characterizes many on the other side.

"If we had County Group before suburbia started, we might have a Green River Valley with some green left in it," said Elizabeth Springer, a county employee speaking as an individual.

Ms. Springer, active in River-ton, is one of 27 on the committee, which includes Sheila Ault, associate member of the Highline Community Council (HCC) and former HCC Zoning Committee chairperson. Another member is Ron Ritz, West Seattle.

They belong to a committee that is roughly split one-third between Democrats, Republicans and Independents, with Democrats outnumbering Republicans, according to Deanna Dicombe, chairperson.

The former chairperson of the Municipal League Candidate Rating Committee, she said she adhered to league guidelines for balanced composition in recruiting.

On the agenda this week are candidate interviews — if all goes according to the reformists' plan.

Fund-raiser planned at Enchanted Village

by Barbara Butts
A Festival-in-the-Forest fund-raiser scheduled for Aug. 22 at Enchanted Village may sharpen appetites for the proposed cultural center.

According to Jim Badgley, chairman of a local group committed to the realization of the regional arts festival in Federal Way, the atmosphere at the fund-raising event will give those who attend a preview of the festive aura planned for the center.

"The area near Panther Lake where the center will be located is surrounded by trees, and the grounds will be park-like when it is completed," Badgley said. "We want to have that same atmosphere at the celebration this month."

Creating that atmosphere from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the 12-acre family entertainment park will be strolling violinists, chamber music, floating candles in the pool and tiny white lights strung in the trees, if everything goes as planned. Champagne and hors d'oeuvres prepared by Cafe Patisserie will be served.

"In the center of the village we would like to have entertainment throughout the night, including performers from the Seattle Opera," Badgley said. "But the whole park has been reserved."

Scheduled to be there are 30th-District Reps. Frank Warnke and Bob Eberle; U.S. Rep. Norm Dicks, D-6th District; Glen Ross, general manager of the Seattle Opera; and Sandy Lorentzen, Seattle Opera festival administrator.

But the sponsors are hopeful that others invited, including Gov. Dixy Lee Ray and other members of the state's congressional delegation, will be there also.

Congressman Dicks recently introduced a bill in the House of Representatives that would approve the authorization of $20 million for construction of the proposed center. A $5 million capital fund appropriation was authorized by the Washington Legislature this spring. Land for the complex has been donated by Weyerhaeuser Company.

Some of the revenue coming from the $25-per-person evening at Enchanted Village will be used to finance lobbying efforts for the bill's passage, according to the association spokesman. But outstanding debts from the push to obtain state approval of the center need attention also, he said.

The spokesman said he and Faye Clerget, secretary-treasurer of the association, will discuss the fund-raiser on Coffee with KASY, hosted by Ed Garre, on Auburn radio station KASY this morning at 10:30.

Reservations for the event may be obtained by calling 838-0632.

Family wins developer battle

by Nathalie Weber

After more than a month of battling with King County bureaucracies, the Presnall family of Federal Way soon will be granted its promised land.

It's nothing on the magnitude of the milk-and-honey stories told in the Bible, but it does mark a minor triumph of resident's rights over developer's power.

The scenario began last spring when developers of Twin Lakes View, a single-family development under construction on Hoyt Road just south of South 320th Street, requested that Old Hoyt Road, a little-used unpaved right-of-way, be vacated to benefit the construction.

The Presnall's, living on a four-acre farm just north of the development, agreed to the vacation, being promised half the road that ran adjacent to their land. The developers received rights to the other half, creating noise and clouds of dust that disturbed the quiet farm next door. The Presnall's were not surprised. Although they bought their farm five years ago to come to the country, they already had become accustomed to the sounds of bulldozers with the construction of Twin Lakes Vista just to their north.

"WE REALLY fought that first IDA PRESNALL has spent the past month trying to convince King County that the developers building on land adjacent to her family's farm were illegal. Encountering very little success the first few weeks, the county finally has agreed to require the developers of Twin Lakes View to remove the dirt from half the road that runs between the farm and the development. That land rightfully belongs to the Presnall's.

one," Presnall said, "but after a while you just get tired."

But about a week after development of Twin Lakes View began, the Presnall's decided to stand up for their rights. Although they had been promised half the vacated road — a stipulation required by law — the developer apparently was clearing his land and dumping the extra dirt across the entire road.

"I called the county and all I found was red tape. I'd leave messages and no one would call back," Presnall said. Finally, she collected enough information to learn that the road vacation still was pending, therefore still belonging to the county. No further help was available, be obstructed, but that often a vacation — which could take up to a year to process — is granted before the actual paperwork is completed.

FINALLY THIS week, the County Plat Inspector Mike Sizemore said that because of the complaints against the developer's dumping, the county would require the dirt be removed from the Prasnell's side of the road. And the family could use the land, just as the developer is using his.

Presnall was relieved. Her four farm acres shaded by fruit trees soon will be sandwiched between two housing developments, but at least she will retain a little more of the land.

Chore services solves problems of elderly

by Ann Hagen
In her 80's, Rose is a frail woman who has problems with both her sight and her hearing. She wants, desperately to stay in her own home for the rest of her life.

She is the last remaining member of her family and worries about being sent away to see out her remaining days in a nursing home. Recently, she broke her leg and feared that her independence was over.

Rose is typical of those low-income elderly people who are helped to stay in their homes through a federal program that provides eligible clients chore service.

"They're so much better off if they can stay in their own environment," said Cindy Marsh who is coordinating a pilot program on a one-year contract at the South King County Multi-Service Center (MSC). "It's also a lot less expensive for the taxpayer," she said.

The MSC was one of five agencies selected out of 17 that applied to provide chore service for the elderly through June 30, 1980.

Under this new system, the MSC will be responsible for locating and hiring chore workers; filling out the forms necessary to withhold social security tax and other benefits for the worker; supervise the worker; provide chore service to clients; get documentation for service provided and pay the choreworker for service provided.

Under the previous system, the client was responsible for hiring his own choreworker, filling out the forms, and paying the employee after being reimbursed through the Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS).

"The program often caused stress for the choreworker and strain on the client," said Ms. Marsh, who heads up a staff of two supervisors and 40 employees. "If one thing was wrong, the payment could be held up for four to six weeks."

Clients, she said, are typically in poor health. Many are confused, struggling and physically unable to handle the problems involved with being an employer.

In addition, choreworkers are now given the benefits due them as an employee of the state. They receive mileage reimbursement, fulltime medical benefits and sick leave plus "the opportunity for personal growth." It's just a more professional situation, said Ms. Marsh.

If there are any problems of compatibility between the client and choreworker, they are encouraged to voice their complaints to the MSC. "Before, the elderly were afraid to complain in fear of losing the service," said Bob Fields, supervisor. "Now we can act as a mediator, if necessary."

In operation since mid-July, the MSC now has 60 clients with 40 still waiting review. Ms. Marsh said she expects to have 129 within the next two months and projects an eventual 200 clients.

The funding and administration of chore service is the responsibility of the DSHS, under Title XX of the Social Security Act. Services are provided, typically for several hours each day or week, if a person is unable to perform some or all of the tasks necessary in daily living.

The chore service client may be just out of the hospital, to advanced age. Services include meal preparation, household cleaning, laundry, shopping and personal grooming.

DSHS caseworkers will still be responsible for determining client eligibility and authorization for the type and amount of services needed. They will, in effect be working hand in hand with the MSC service.

An estimated 1,300 clients are now being served in King County. The target population is those 60 years of age or older who are not receiving services through the Division of Developmental Disabilities; who are not a family case; who do not need live-in care and who do not need medically-related personal care.

A choreworker for the past four years under the old program, Ida Nelson, 73, said she "just loves it."

Ida, a former nurse's aide who never married, works seven hours a day, five days a week with three clients. She has one patient who is a borderline diabetic with a bad heart; another who is very senile; and a third who is extremely organized but is suffering with a bad back.

She does housekeeping, cooking, provides transportation to the doctor and store and gives massages. "Each one is different," said

PROGRAM COORDINATOR Cindy Marsh and supervisor Bob Fields look over the background of a new client.

Ida referring to clients, some of whom are younger than she. "You need to adjust to each person. Sometimes it's bewildering at first, but you have to be flexible."

She mentioned one case where the client was very hard of hearing. She raised her voice to be sure she was heard and her client thought she was mad and started to cry. "I put my arm around her and told her it was a misunderstanding. Most of them are very sensitive, but you learn to love them. You have to have a feeling for them or you can't do for them"

Fall fashions in Waterland

Fashionwise, fall will be a beautiful season this year - if you use the Benson Apparel fashions shown at Wednesday's Waterland luncheon at the Red Lion Inn as a barometer.

There are cuddly "fun furs" that could fool anyone but a mink, leopard or raccoon. Suits, both tailored and feminine, are big fashion news in velvets, corduroys and wools, and coordinated and mix-and-match blazers, skirts and blouses continue to make wardrobe planning easier and less expensive.

Although wools are making a comeback in suits and more tailored wear, the long-time favorite, polyester, and other synthetic fabrics much loved by travelers for their stay-fresh and wrinkle-free characteristics still take the spotlight in blouses, tops and dresses, both formal and informal.

Skirt lengths for daytime and business wear are below the knee. Evening lengths vary from below the knee to floor-skimming, and some feature the uneven "handkerchief" line. But, as Mary Benson advised viewers of the show, "Don't cut off your long skirts - the long dress is still the best choice for a formal occasion."

Silhouettes have been slimmed down, but they are still soft and easy - smoothly graceful without cling.

The fall scene will be dominated by blacks, brown and burgundys with a sprinkling of navy, forest green and the neutrals, gray, camel and mauve. In contrast, blouses often glow in jewel tones of deep turquoise and garnet.

Inspired by the current trend toward suits, hats are definitely returning to the fashion picture in the form of brimmed sailors, perky berets, derbys and fedoras. Boots are still with us, although shoes are the preferred choice for wearing with most of the suits designed for work or travel. Other accessories that are dominating fashion this fall are soft scarves loosely knotted at the throat and narrow fabric stoles draped over the shoulders and flowing free.

As for the little ladies, they are still "sugar and spice" in ruffles and lace and tiny floral prints, with favorite colors still red and blue for playtime and school fashions, and lovely pastels in both short and long-skirted styles for dress-up.

Cozy quilted fabrics made dainty with tiny posies keep little misses both warm and pretty at play, and ruffles and lace add walking doll look to both school and party-time fashions.

In toto, this fall looks like the season for women to emerge from the "uni-sex" cocoon and proclaim their femininity, along with their equality.

PRINCESS ELAINE Tanaguchi wears a hooded and cozy jacket in leopard 'fun fur.' The jacket is teamed with black pants with a medium flare, and a long-sleeved black sweater.

MODELED BY Carol Stanley, this black suit has a short jacket with button trim. Carol accessorizes it with one of her favorite wide-brimmed hats and a mocha blouse with a tie neckline.

A CLASSIC example of coordinates is this combination of French blue solids and plaids worn by Ruby Duzsik. The free-flowing fabric stole promises to be a favorite for the fall season.

ASSISTED BY a grown-up model, Lori Price shows off a three-piece play outfit in a red print with tiny golden flowers. The sleeves and neckline are touches with lace, and the pants are quilted.

FUN FUR again, shown by Barbara Gregory, second runner-up to Miss Washington. The easy fitting jacket has a rounded collar. The wool pants and coordinated sweater are set off by a fall favorite - a soft scarf.

Children's programs continue in August

A series of summer programs planned especially for children is continuing at the Des Moines Library, 22815 24th Ave. S. "Skinny and Fatty," a story of friendship, will be shown to schoolage youngsters from 11 to noon Tuesday, Aug. 14.

At 10 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 21, there will be a "shadow puppet" workshop for children six years and up. This will have limited enrollment, so pre-registration is necessary. Call 824-6066.

On two Thursdays, Aug. 16 and 23, "Easy Crafts for four-to-seven-year-olds" is planned. These two sessions will feature different projects, so children may attend one or both days. Pre-registration is necessary. Call 824-6066.

grams will conclude with an International Finale Celebration for all "Supereaders" of school age from 10:30 a.m. to noon. Special recognition will be given to those wearing a hat or costume from another country.

It is not too late to participate in the Supereader program. Schoolage children may wear an iron-on for their own t-shirt. Details are available at the library.

Cake decorating contest planned at SeaTac Mall

As part of its fourth birthday celebration in September, SeaTac Mall is making plans for a cake decorating contest for both professionals and amateurs.

There will also be divisions for juniors, ages 13 to 17, who do not meet the professional requirements, and for any child 12 and under who completes a decorated item entirely by himself.

Participation is open to all cake decorating hobbyists and homemakers. Bakers, caterers, teachers and other professionals must enter only in the "professional" division. All cakes entered should have a birthday theme.

The professional division will include any individual who has attended one or more of the professional cake decorating schools; any individual who has taught cake decorating for pay, and anyone having a tax number for cake decorating purposes, including bakers.

Federal Way musicians participating in 38th Morrowstone Music Festival

by Barbara Butts
Three young musicians from Federal Way are attending the Morrowstone Music Festival, a prestigious musical event held annually at Fort Flagler State Park near Port Townsend.

Federal Way High School seniors Heidi Barnes, oboist, and tuba-player Gino Turrella, both 17, and 16-year-old Melody Marcelja, who will be a junior at Thomas Jefferson High School this fall, are among the 13- to 21-year-old musicians attending the festival.

The three-week affair (formerly the Pacific Northwest Music Camp) is held every summer on the Olympic Peninsula at the park. This is the festival's 38th year. Intensive rehearsal and performance in orchestra, chamber music and jazz are the staples of the event, sponsored by the Seattle Youth Symphony. The festival's musical director is Vilem Sokol, conductor of the Seattle Youth Symphony Orchestra and professor of music at the University of Washington. Faculty members at the festival include University of Washington professors Roy Cummings, Clyde Jussila and Felix Skowronek.

Gino Turrella

Melody Marcelja

Free Sunday afternoon concerts will be given by the festival orchestras at Chimacum High School near the park at 2 p.m. on Aug. 12, 19 and 26.

But Morrowstone, accredited by the American Camping Association, also provides swimming, group sports, dancing, hiking, movies and craft projects for the young musicians.

Gino, son of Eugene and Myrrah Turrella of 1719 S. 254th Place, says this combination of music and other activities is one of the festival's attractions.

But the music itself is the main attraction for the three Federal Way youth.

"Morrowstone more than anything else is musically inspiring," Gino said. "It gives kids a chance to realize their musical talents and to put those talents to use."

He and his Federal Way cohorts have been associated in the past with the Seattle youth symphonies. Students who have not been involved with the symphonies or who have not attended Morrowstone Music Festival must submit an audition tape for consideration.

French-horn player Melody, daughter of Walter and Greta Marcelja of 3709 S. 298th St., also has attended the festival for two previous years. But this year will be a first for Heidi, who is the daughter of David and Nancy Barnes of 31622 Eighth Ave. S.

"That's why I'm so nervous," explained Heidi last week. "I haven't gone before mainly because of the expenses."

The three-week session, which began Sunday, costs each student $365 or $340 for an additional participant from a family.

Money will also play a part in Heidi's musical future. "I

6th straight win moves Feds into Friday's divisionals

FW Legions take District 11 playoffs

BUTCH CRATSENBERG ripples a fastball toward home plate during his nine-inning mound performance against Burien last Saturday. The southpaw struck out 10 Burien batters on his way to a 5-1 decision. His was the second of three complete-game performances the FW hill staff notched during the Feds' sweep of the District 11 playoffs.

by Harry Brooks
The Federal Way Legions used the three major elements of baseball — hitting, pitching and fielding — to pave their way through the Division 2 Tournament.

Federal Way ended a three-game sweep in the District 11 playoffs with a 5-4 win over Bellevue Foster-Marshall Sunday night. The win was Federal Way's sixth straight, counting regular-season and playoff encounters, and upped the Feds' overall record to 18-6.

The locals used Dennis Werth's 16-strike-out mound performance and 15 hits to top Renton 9-4 in the playoff opener Friday night. Hurler Butch Cratsenberg went the distance in a 5-1 win over Burien Saturday, and Pete Weymiller's sprawling catch in left field saved Sunday's victory for FW.

Weymiller's fielding gem came in the bottom of the ninth with Federal Way protecting a one-run edge. Rick Wozniak opened Bellevue's last bid by swinging a third strike on a seven-foot high fastball from Ed Camden. The ball zipped over catcher Doug Springer, who retrieved the ball too late to catch a Wozniak scampering over first base.

THEN CAME what appeared to be the needed blast for the Bellevue comeback effort, but Weymiller's play made it backfire on the Bellevue-ites. The hit, a liner off the bat of Dan Dow, screamed down the left-field line. Weymiller sprinted to his right, dove parallel to the ground and made the snag with a maximum reach.

Wozniak was on the move during the ball's flight. He came to a sudden halt just past second when Weymiller hauled it in. During his mad dash back to first, Wozniak cut past second, failing to touch the bag, on his retreat to first. Federal Way made a successful appeal action to second for a double-play. Three pitches later, Cratsenberg clutched Tom Guhlke's fly in center to end the game.

"The ball was hooking, but I had a good jump on it," Weymiller, a team captain, modestly explained his critical defensive jewel moments after game's end.

A noticeably relieved Federal Way coach Jim Torina noted, "It was a tough ball game for both teams. There was a lot of pressure out there."

The pressure showed in periodic emotional outbursts on both sides. The umpires gave Bellevue coach Ernie Pastornicky an early exit from the field after the skipper objected to a balk call against his pitcher Tony Crowshaw. Jim Bendorf received the umpire's thumb after a questionable bat-throwing incident in the ninth which almost resulted in a bench-clearing confrontation.

TEMPERS cooled after the final out, and Torina's concern turned toward next weekend's Division 2 opener against Bremerton, which boasts a 20-8 record. Federal Way will meet Bremerton at 5:30 p.m. Friday at Bellevue's Hidden Valley Park.

"We're startin' to roll now," Torina said with an optimistic look to the next weekend's divisionals. "We've got three pitchers going well, and we have good relief support for them if we need it."

"Actually, the key thing (in the win streak) is the bottom of the batting order coming through. Everybody's getting the bat on the ball, and it seems like it's different hitters getting the key hits in each of our last few games."

Federal Way used complete-game pitching performances from Werth, Cratsenberg and Camden to rumble through the District 11 playoffs. Camden allowed a sparse seven hits during his nine-inning stint Sunday.

The Feds mustered just four hits against Bellevue but took advantage of eight walks and three critical Foster-Marshall fielding errors. Federal Way moved to a 3-0 lead by scoring in the game's

Burien Legion ousted in district playoffs

by Bart Potter
In baseball, you can go only as far as your pitching will take you. When your pitching staff numbers just two legitimate arms, the string is bound to run out.

For Burien's American Legion squad, the inevitable happened in last weekend's District 11 Tournament at Kent Memorial Park. After good performances by Kerry Boatwright in an exciting 8-7 win over Foster - Marshall Friday, and Bruce Rieker in a 5-1 loss to Federal Way Saturday, there were rested simply no pitchers left on the Burien team. Foster-Marshall slugged three Burien fill-ins for an 18-3 win Sunday to close Burien's season.

Federal Way, on the other hand, got complete-game pitching from three hurlers en route to the District 11 playoffs' victory.

Butch Cratsenberg struck out 10 Burienites and allowed just six hits in the Burien win. His teammates managed 10 hits off Rieker, but the contest was scoreless through four innings. Four FW runs in the fifth, aided by three Burien errors, broke the game open.

Second baseman Boatwright's throwing error after a nice fielding play on a Jeff McCauley grounder in the hole perched one man on base. Rieker got the next batter on a strikeout, and on the third strike pitch, McCauley stole second. Catcher Dale Fite's throw bounced off the bag into left field, and McCauley advanced to third. Brent Hoene knocked him home with a single.

After another out, Jim Bendorf singled, and Pat Buckholz came through with a two-run double down the left field line. On an ensuing pitch, Fite had Buckholz picked cleanly off second base, but his throw sailed into center field, allowing Buck to score from second.

Federal Way upped the margin to 5-0 in the sixth on Hoene's RBI single.

Meanwhile, Cratsenberg was making use of a good fastball and off-speed breaking pitches to keep Burien batters guessing. His shutout was ruined, however, in the ninth.

Dennis Fite led off with a walk, and advanced to third after Kelly Sutton's single was bobbled in the outfield. Mark Westbrook hit a grounder toward third, and Fite scored on the error.

The ninth inning also meant an early end to the season for Dale Fite. With a 3-2 count, he fouled the ball off his ankle, which had a pin in it from a previous injury. He was taken to Riverton

Stewart hospitalized with internal blockage

Federal Way High baseball coach Bob Stewart was readmitted to Virginia Mason Hospital last week. The 39-year-old history instructor is suffering from a blockage between the liver and small intestine.

He came back to Virginia

Mason after spending five weeks there starting June 9. During his earlier stay, Stewart was diagnosed to be afflicted with Retractable Mesenterites, a curable disorder a disease, entailing benign tumors.

Stewart began Predinonone treatments to take down the internal inflammation and was released from Virginia Mason June 13. However, a side effect of the drug caused a stomach ulcer to form and hastened his return to the hospital after just a one-week stay at his Sumner home.

Although he is unhappy about being back at Virginia Mason, "Stew" appears in good spirits.

"Here I thought I was on my way to recovery," he said with a victimized chuckle. "One of these days I'll get out of here. I've only been away from this place seven days all summer."

The baseball skipper may have to go through his third operation of the summer. This one, if performed, would inject a bypass of the blockage.

Viewing the situation, Stewart predicted that the chances of his return to Federal Way High for the fall opening are "slim."

"It's a waiting game now," he said.

PAT BUCKHOLZ of Federal Way is signaled safe by plate umpire Bob Clark during Saturday's American Legion District 11 playoff action. Dale Fite, Burien's catcher, mirrors the discouragement of a late tag. An errant pickoff throw allowed Buckholz to score the fifth-inning run. Burien eventually became Federal Way's second victim of last weekend's playoffs.

first three innings.

DAVE GREENING, possibly the most productive leadoff hitter in District 11, opened the game with a lined double to left-center. It marked the third straight game that Greening opened Federal Way's first-inning offense with a hit. Bellevue's Jerry Stubbs allowed Greening to take third when he bobbled the ball, and, one out later, Pat Buckholz brought Greening home with a sacrifice fly to center.

Bob Bolam and Jeff McCauley took back-to-back ball-fours at the onset of the second inning. Both advanced on a wild pitch, and Bolam swooped to the plate on Ed Camden's grounder to shortstop.

Bellevue's fortunes in the field hit a low in the third inning. Third baseman Wozniak booted Buckholz's hopper, and with one out, Weymiller and Bolam loaded the bases with successive walks. McCauley followed by smacking a grounder toward second baseman Hilton Mitchell. As Mitchell awaited the ball's arrival, it took a sudden high hop over his shoulder and into right field. Buckholz and Weymiller scored on the bad-hop single.

FEDERAL WAY added its final run of the game in the fifth. Butch Cratsenberg took the Fed's seventh free pass off of Crowshaw, received second on a balk (exit Bellevue coach Pastornicky) and advanced to third on a wild pitch. Cratsenberg came home on Bolam's medium-speed grounder to first.

Bellevue brought 6-4, 210-pound Jim McCarthy to the mound in the sixth. He kept the Fed's scoreless and allowed only two hits the rest of the way as Bellevue began chipping at the Federal Way lead.

Bellevue scored its initial run in the third when swift Kevin Baldwin zipped from third to home on a Camden wild pitch. Mitchell uncorked a two-run single in the sixth, and Dow — after singling, stealing second and taking third on an errant pickoff attempt — closed Bellevue's deficit to one by scoring on Keith Schwoppe's sacrifice fly to short center in the seventh.

However, Weymiller's glove in the ninth put an end to Bellevue's threat.

KENT and Bellevue R. C. Winter, which won the District 11 Southern and Northern Divisions respectively, finished a best-of-three game series Monday night (results unavailable). The winner of that series moves directly to the state tourney. Foster-Marshall meets the loser of the series in the first round of the Division 2 Tournament. One team advances out of the double-elimination Division 2 tourney in to state.

Hospital, leg immobilized, by ambulance.

"This has been the story of our season," Lou Bomber said, pointing to the injured Fite after the Federal Way loss. "He's a 150-percent."

Bomber praised the work of his team over the season, noting that the Burienites were thin at nearly every position, particularly pitcher.

"We've come a long way with what we had," he said. "The kids are super. They just don't quit."
Burien overcame the early-season loss of Dean Holmes, who could have been a dependable third starting pitcher, to post a 12-9 record and earn the third Southern Division spot in the district playoffs.

Westbrook led Burien with a .515 batting average in District 11 games. Boatwright posted a 6-3 pitching record, and Rieker was 4-3.

All but three of this season's contingent will be eligible to return next year, Bomber said.

Thompson third in demo points

Jim Thompson of Federal Way is holding third position in points standings as the Washington Association of Demolition Drivers has its next to last event Sunday at Spanaway Speedway. Daryll Rathke of Kent is in the top position in the battle to earn the number one plate for next season. Jerry Nonis of Seattle is second, Thompson third, Bob Muehlenbruch of Puyallup fourth and Terry Payment of Altona fifth.

Special events for the upcoming race will be the chain race, a roll-over attempted by rookie Don Braun of Tacoma and a Sponsor-Pitman race for novices only.

The regular program of trophy dashes, heat races and main event will begin with time trials at 1 p.m.

Women's softball all-stars in slugfest

by Steve Weber
Officials of the Women's Cascade B League labeled the double-header softball game an all-star contest. But, for the 300 spectators at Des Moines Park, last Sunday evening, the contest more accurately described an instructional batting session with the Division II All-Stars providing the instruction. The end result was a 19-11 win for the Division II All-Stars over the Division I All-Stars.

In the second game, the Division I All-Stars showed what they had learned in the first contest from Division II as they emerged with a 3-1 conquest and a split of the double-header.

The contest proved one thing to the coaches, players and fans in attendance and that being, while a team effort may be the key to success during the season in league play, it's the individual talent that surfaces to the top during an all-star game. And it was the consensus of those in attendance that the Division II All-Stars had just as many outstanding performers as the Division I club had.

The Division II All-Stars unleashed against Division I pitcher Aldene Duchscherer for nine runs in the first inning of the first game. The big blow was a bases loaded single by Marie Johnson that eluded the left fielder allowing all four runs to score.

Division I attempted to come back in their half of the first as they scored three runs on the strength of three hits, two Division II errors and two base on balls. But Division II bounced right back to score three more runs in the second and five in the third to put the game out of reach.

Trailing 19-4 going into the bottom of the seventh, Division I rallied for seven runs,

In between the two contests, Dee Ingram, women's director for King County Parks handed out awards and trophies for the Cascade League which closed out play last week. First place trophies were handed out to George's Produce, winner of the Division I, Comstock Realty, winner of Division II and Firedog, winner of Division III.

The second game more appropriately resembled an all-star game.

Division II shortstop, Toni Purdin, opened the second frame with a triple and later scored the first run of the contest on an RBI single by Debbie Flick.

The score remained in favor of Division II until the top of the fifth inning. Carol Steadman singled and advanced to second on a one bagger by Anita Herman. An infield single by Cecil Strom loaded the bases for Division I. Castagna bounced back to the pitcher, Kay Geroghy, who elected to throw to first instead of getting the force at the plate.

In the top of the sixth Lorie Beem singled to center for Division I and scored on a triple by Shelley Farrell. Farrell scored moments later as Division II shortstop Toni Purdin mishand-ed a ground ball off the bat of Gleanda McQuad.

Debbie Bilyeu came in to retire Division II in order in the bottom of the seventh to preserve the win for Division I.

In an all-star contest like this many individual efforts stand out but. The steady play of Mary Williams in left field was one key to Division II's success in the first game. Teammate Toni Purdin turned in some excellent play at shortstop in both contests.

Division I was led by the hard hitting trio of Herman, Strom and Castagna who all played for George's Produce during the regular season. Denise Brose turned in two outstanding plays at first base and shortstop. Carol Steadman went the distance on the mound for Division I and was credited with the win.

Pete Weymiller

Hershey, a 3-year-old male Labrador Retriever, recently won the State Fribee Catching Championship Tournament. Hershey finished fifth in the four-state Regional Championships held Sunday at Franklin Park in Tacoma. The dog is owned by Dan Pickering of Federal Way.

Pete Weymiller of the Federal Way American Legion baseball team made a diving, ninth-inning catch of a line drive in left field that saved Federal Way's District 11 playoff win over Bellevue Foster-Marshall last Sunday. Weymiller turned his dazzling snag into a double-play. Federal Way's 5-4 victory over Bellevue moved the Feds into next weekend's Division 2 Tournament.

Mark Westbrook, a 1979 Mt. Rainier High grad, took the American Legion District 11 batting title with a .515 average over the regular season.

Dennis Werth, a Federal Way Legion hurler, struck out 16 Renton hitters in Federal Way's 9-4 win over Renton last Friday.

Peterbilt whips slump, wins NW title

When you play 100 games, you're bound to have a slump somewhere along the way, Peterbilt Western manager Tom Wagner said.

"We've had ours now," Wagner said, referring to a recent spell of mediocre softball by his team, the defending regional fastpitch champions. Wagner said things are back on an even keel now after five wins in six NorWest League games last weekend.

The slump began, Wagner said, when Peterbilt played subpar ball in finishing third in the Longview Invitational. The team's play was still not up to snuff the following weekend in the Yakima Invitational, and immediately after that the team boarded a plane for the Midwest to face a grueling schedule against some of the top fastpitch talent in the country.

Peterbilt won one of three games against Midland, Mich., lost two straight at Decatur, Ill., split two games in Bloomington, Ill., and lost all four games against Aurora, Ill. The squad had played 21 games in 11 days in the heat and high humidity of the Midwest, to which Wagner said his team never really adjusted.

Though they did not manage a win against Aurora, Wagner was encouraged by the way his team matched up.

"I was pleased with the Aurora series," he said. "Man for man, I think we have the better ballclub."

Wagner said the Midwest swing will have positive benefits for Peterbilt, despite the mixed results.

Peterbilt clinched the NorWest League title last weekend against three Canadian opponents. Friday night, Vancouver Thrisk won the nightcap 2-0 after Peterbilt won the opener 5-1 behind Graham Arnold. Saturday, Arnold and Robin Cutting were the winning pitchers in a 4-3, 5-3 sweep of Victoria Budget.

Arnold tossed a six-hitter Sunday in the opener against Clearbrook Four Star, and Cutting came back with a seven-hitter in a 5-4 second game win.

Peterbilt closed NorWest play with a 32-6 record. The Truckers are 70-18 overall heading into the regionals, which will be held in Olympia Aug. 24, 25 and 26.

Wagner said the team, hurt somewhat by recent injuries, is nearly at full strength again. Butch Batt, who injured his back while competing in the Pan-American games, played five innings against Victoria and is now about 80 percent recovered, Wagner said.

Jeff Borrer and Jim Nokes, both down with ankle injuries, should be ready in a week, Wagner said his team is "thinking regionals." A few practice games are slated, along with much batting practice between now and Aug. 24, Wagner said.

The manager said the regionals will provide a real test for Pete, with Ray Bristow of Portland, Woodinville Lumber, Yakima Pepsi and Longview Boonox all capable of beating any team on a given day.

But Wagner feels his team has whipped the mid-season doldrums and is ready to make a strong bid for nationals. "Things look very good for us."

Outdoor tips and tales

Readers Write:

Dear Herb: I've heard others talk about "tuning up" a plug or dodger to get the best action. Is this possible, and how should you go about tuning up a salmon dodger to change its action? I love to troll.

Dear Troller: If you want to give a dodger more action at a slower speed, for instance, bend the front lip nearly flat and give a little more bend to the rear lip. This gives it a more snappy action, even though you are going slower.

Why go slower? Sometimes big chinook salmon like a slower moving bait, but you still need the flash of the dodger to attract them. Big mackinaw trout in our lakes often want a slower moving bait in the fall and winter.

To remember this particular change, a little alliterative slogan helps: Flat in the front, bend in the back.

If you're one of the growing number from this area who enjoy a winter Mexican trip, or would like such a vacation, a new book will be an invaluable help if you visit Mexico's exciting Baja California Peninsula.

It's "Angler's Guide to Baja California," by Tom Miller. From his 30 years of personal experience and on-the-spot research, Tom has put together a great book of places, species, techniques, maps and how-to hints.

The book pinpoints spots and gives details for the three areas of Baja fishing. Offshore are the blue waters outside the 100-fathom line, often within a mile of shore. This area can be worked with skiffs and cartop boats which we can carry easily that long distance from here. Dozens and dozens of these spots offer action for fish large and small.

The book tells about specific species and specific kinds of tackle along with ways to use the gear, from a fly outfit to the heavy stuff for the off-shore monsters. In one way this is a tough book to read, for it makes you want to get right up and head for this land of great winter climate, stark, beautiful scenery and fantastic fishing.

Skating rink to open

A 1.5 million skating center will open in September with a 90- by 180-foot maple wood skating rink and a $15,000 sound system.

The 26,000-square foot building is designed with a stucco facade, shake roof and covered walkways.

Architect is Ron Thompson of Federal Way and the general contractor is Starkovich Brothers Inc.

Open to the general public, the skate center will provide lessons and reserve time for speed clubs and private parties.

Pattison's West Skating Center, located at N.E. 34222 Pacific Hwy. S. is being developed by Pat Pattison, a Marine Hills resident and long-time skate enthusiast. His sons, Mike and Larry, will manage the new recreational center.

Your Money

by John Weaver, Jr.
Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc.

The recent state of the stock market has forced brokers to become psychological counselors to our clients and investors. Here is a partial list of some common neuroses.

— The "They" syndrome. This is perhaps the most common malady. The inflicted investor seeks a scapegoat in some collective personality when their stocks go down. It is "They" that cause the prices to decline as soon as we buy; it is "They" that cause the prices to rise as soon as we sell.

— The "It's-not-a-loss-until-I-take-it" syndrome. Investors with this illness cannot accept a loss and will not liquidate for less than the purchase price, causing their losses to run. The healthy practice is to let your profit run and limit your losses. Yet, contrary to this, thousands of otherwise rational investors fall prey to this disease.

— The "Legargy" syndrome. Suffers exhibit the same symptoms as Congress. That is, when things go wrong, do nothing — they will probably straighten themselves out eventually.

— The "Personality" syndrome. Legions subscribe to the belief that stocks are like people and have characters and personalities (IBM has been good to me). They demand a personal loyalty from their stocks.

— The "Story-stock" syndrome. Many people take a position in an investment on the basis of a story they hear. Often this story seems rational when first heard. Yet, it might even be more rational to check out the story.

— The "It's-too-cheap" syndrome. People with this symptom are reluctant to buy stocks because the price is too cheap! The rationale is, when prices are going up, they will continue to do so even though it should be clear their value often increases as prices decline.

Admittedly the cause of rationality is not helped by commentators and conceptualizers who fill up slow weeks and frustrating seasons in the market place with discussion of the "Super Bowl Predictor," rallies and declines unalterably linked to the calendar, ladies hemlines, political cycles and the like.

And how about the old "Religious-maniac" syndrome — buy at Rosh Hashana, sell at Yom-Kippur? Irrational perhaps, but you will have to excuse me, I must get back to my crystal ball.

It's first class with Orient Express Travel

Recall the exotic and luxurious days of the legendary Orient Express train that traveled from Istanbul to Paris.

That is the idea behind a new travel agency which opened in February. Orient Express Travel, 33130 Pacific Hwy. S. caters to people who want to travel with comfort and class, be it an expensive or economical vacation.

With plenty of traveling experience behind them, Mariko Matsumoto, owner, and Kaz Arai, general manager, have brought first hand knowledge of the Far East to the Federal Way area. Since they both have traveled extensively in their homeland of Japan and throughout the Orient, Mrs. Matsumoto and Arai are familiar with accommodations, transportation and scenic sites, that they recommend to their clients.

With bilingual capabilities, Mrs. Matsumoto and Arai can easily communicate with their foreign clients to make the American visit enjoyable and free problem Arai said.

Arai has "VIP" know-how gained from his work in Washington D.C. when he assisted with the tour arrangements for the 1976 visit of Japanese Prime Minister Fukuda.

Although the travel agency opened under stressing times: the DC-10 groundings, United Airline strikes and a fuel shortage, Mrs. Matsumoto said the business has done very well with about $50,000 in sales a month. She also is planning to expand with an office in Seattle in October.

With the help of three additional agents, Oriental Express Travel can provide business and vacation trips to cities all over the globe, as well as domestic. Arai said travelers can also book package tours for ski trips; sporting events, such as the Rose bowl; or Disneyland.

Highline Business and Professional Women (first Wednesday, 7:30 p.m.) Board meeting in homes; (second Wednesday, 6:30 p.m.) Dinner meeting at Black Angus in Burien.

Students attend Business week

Six Mount Rainier High School students traveled to Ellensburg last month to attend Business Week. The students ran their own corporation as a part of a detailed introduction to the private enterprise system.

week-long sessions, Business Week hosted almost 1500 high school students in a conference featuring face-to-face contact between the students and members of the Washington business community.

and seniors, recommended by their school principals, received scholarships to the Ellensburg conference, where they were taught by businessmen, bankers, retailers and industrialists from all over the state.

of an actual manufacturing-marketing venture, in which they had to make daily decisions about pricing, production, wages and expansion.

All of the faculty, as well as advisors for each of the "companies" were volunteers from the business community.

The students were sponsored locally by Holiday Foods, Inc.

In addition to lectures and discussion groups centering on the theory behind the private enterprise economic system, students were divided into "companies" of a dozen each, advised by a business person. These companies took part in a computerized simulation

Sound Celebrates

by Kay Crane

Tom Jorgensen was so busy last March going to South America that he hardly noticed that Sound Investments was having its 25th anniversary. For a quarter of a century the firm has been located at the same spot, 4054 California Ave. S.W., in West Seattle. It's in its third building, but all at the same place.

The Jorgensens took a month to visit Columbia, Peru, Argentina and Brazil. Their son lives in Buenos Aires, Argentina, with his wife and two children.

"We found a language barrier but no communication barrier," Jorgensen said. "Many people speak English and were very helpful. We may take Spanish lessons to prepare for our next trip."

Of particular interest to Jorgensen was the tremendous amount of new construction going on in the cities. High-rise condominiums are the cities' answer to the housing problem.

Jorgensen said he was surprised to find out that there seems to be no bank financing. Each builder carries his own paper. On his next trip Jorgensen hopes to have enough Spanish to explore this facet of the South American building boom with a real estate professional.

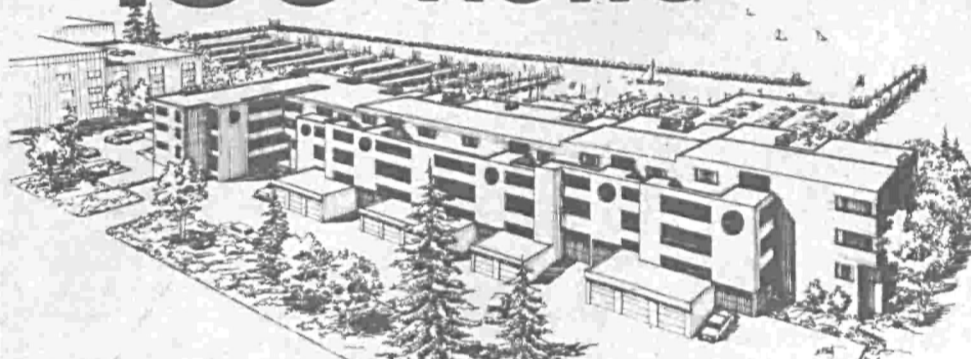

But there's no place like home, and Jorgensen is glad to be back. "West Seattle has been very generous to us," he said, "but it's an unusual area. I appraise real estate in many areas of the city, but none is closer knit than West Seattle."

"If there's something to be done they sure do it! Projects like the bridge and the marina are always backed wholeheartedly," Jorgensen said. "We live in one of the finest looking places in the world, with so many outstanding views. The ferry trip over from Vashon Island is one of the wonders of the world, even after seeing the Andes. We have lakes, mountains, the sound, islands - Rio de Janeiro gives it a run for its money, but come to think of it, Rio is similar in many ways, with its waterways and islands."

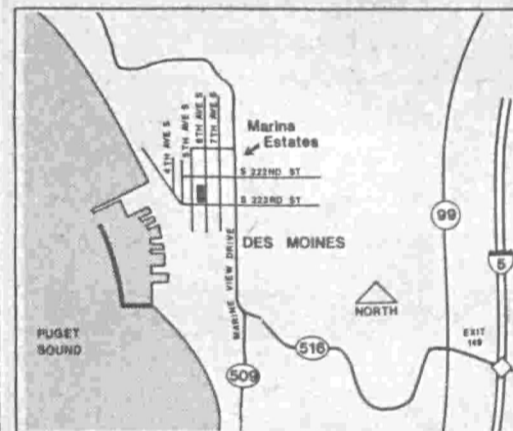

Jorgensen had to stop talking about the lovely city parks in the big South American cities to answer the phone several times, saying "Sound Investments!" in a vigorous tone of voice.

"The years go by quickly," he said, "and if you enjoy what you're doing and the people you work with, they go even faster. It doesn't seem 25 years since the firm opened!"

Real Estate

By Bob Del Bianco REALTOR GETTING STARTED

Although 76% of newly married couples start out by living in rental housing (primarily apartments), some thought should be given to the other side of the coin - home ownership. Sometimes the solution is buying low-cost income property, a duplex for example. The down payment requirement is usually comparable to a single-family residence, but half the property is supplying income from rental, which helps in making the payments. Upkeep is generally higher, and there are some added responsibilities of ownership.

In a few years, however, it may be possible to use both sides of the duplex for income and buy a single-family house. The income will probably pay for the duplex with some left over to apply against the house payments. At the same time, you will be building an estate for your family with no strain on the budget. Before making your first housing decision, why not consult with a Realtor and have him show you some possibilities?

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate please phone or drop in at your local DEL BIANCO REALTY INC. offices. We're here to help!

Christmas in August

On the first day of Christmas there was the Kennedy Mothers' Club cookbook, "Our Best To You," filled with tempting desserts, elegant entrees, special salads and intoxicating punches.

But wait a minute. Isn't August the wrong season for this holiday fare? Not for the Kennedy High School mothers.

"These recipes can be used all year around," said Sue Nelson, cookbook committee member. "These are family favorites that are good any season."

The Kennedy's Mothers' Club has gathered together more than 300 tried-and-true recipes beginning with appetizers and concluding with desserts. Keeping in mind the 12 days of Christmas, the cookbook is divided into sections and indexed "for easy reading."

"Sometimes cooks question the quality of the recipes found in new cookbooks," said Joyce Meredith, a Kennedy mother. "However, with this book all the recipes are good, because they are family favorites and have been tried beforehand." Mrs. Meredith submitted a cooling recipe for Frango Mint Pie.

Of all the recipes sent to the committee, one was chosen from each mother.

"We received many duplicates and variations of the same recipe," said Sharron McCullough and Marge Vranizan, members of the committee. "We had to choose the recipe that best represented the others. Many women sent in several recipes, so it worked out that everyone got a recipe in the book."

Accompanying the delicious recipes are charming drawings depicting the 12 days of Christmas. Cheri Ellis, a member of the 1979 Kennedy graduating class designed the art work and calligraphy. Ms. Ellis recently won a second place award and $500 in a national art contest sponsored by the Mary Knoll Missionaries.

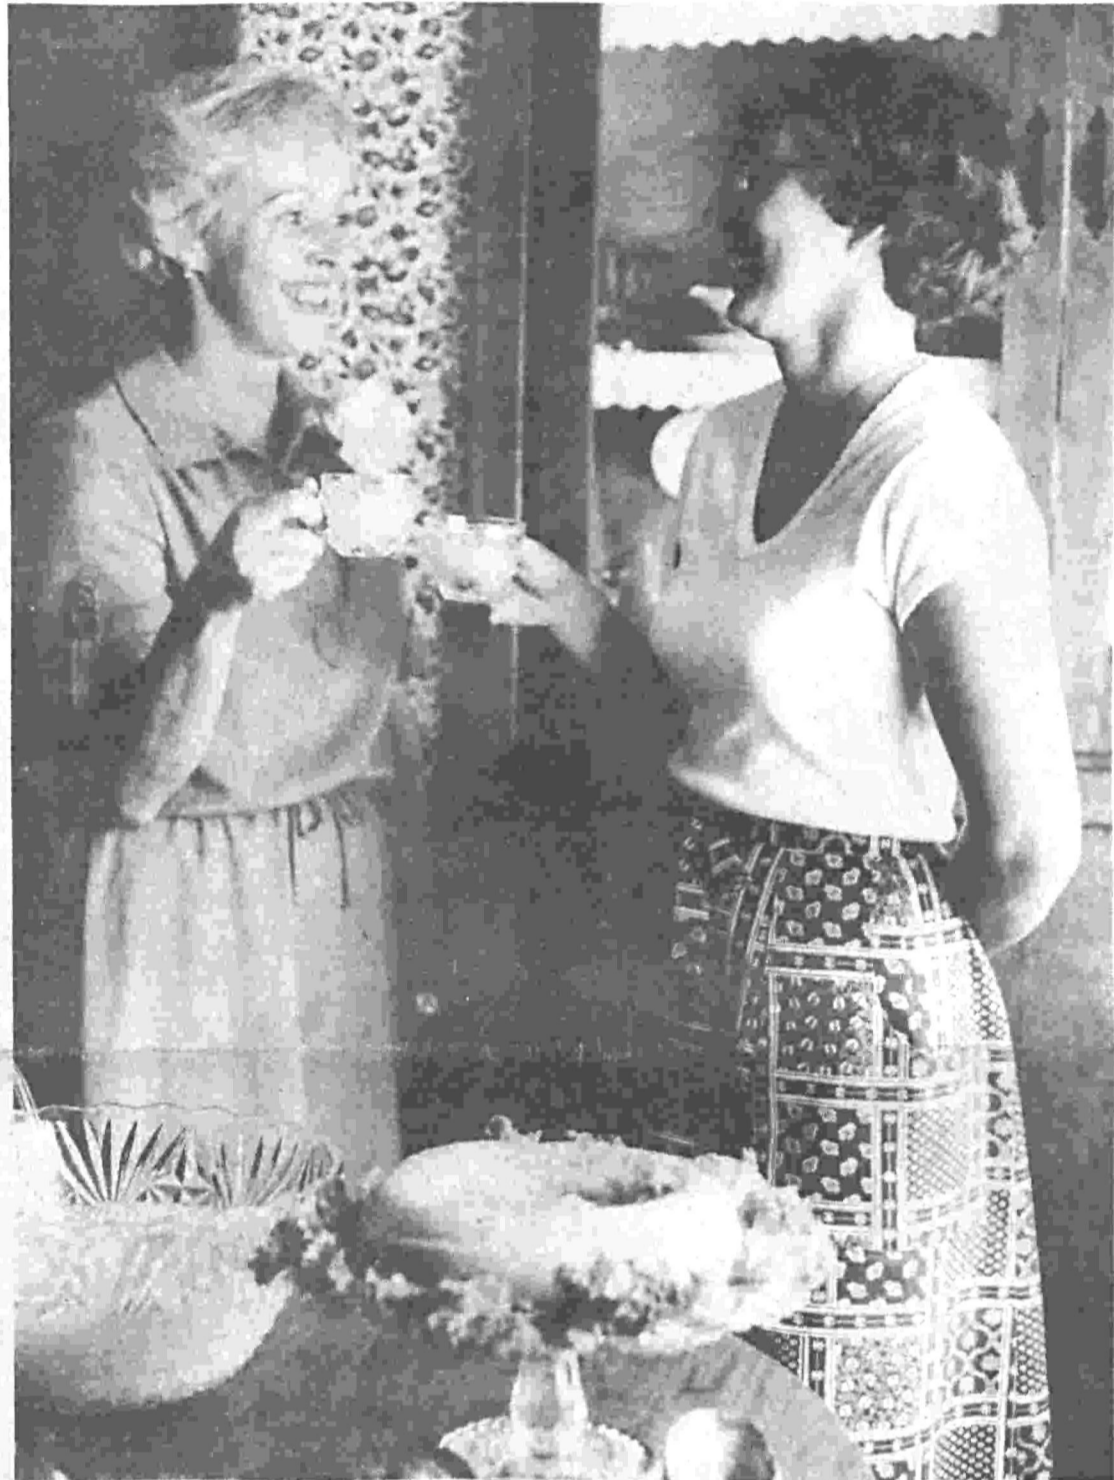

The mother's club had school support for the project, since the proceeds were to go to the library and counseling services. One faculty member offered students in her class an "A" for the day if they brought a recipe to class.

Sales for the book have spread by word-of-mouth from the East Coast down to Texas and California. In fact, Mrs. Nelson says, "The cookbook was a sell-out last Christmas and is now in its third printing. Through sales, the club has earned $8,500 for the school."

After receiving praises for their book, the Kennedy mothers submitted it to the Ladies Home Journal's community cookbook competition.

"However, we haven't heard the outcome yet," Mrs. Nelson added.

"Our Best To You," is available at Warren Drugs in Normandy Park and other local stores in Burien and Federal Way, or by sending a $5.75 check (includes postage) to Kennedy Mothers' Club, 21804 14th Ave. S., Des Moines, Wa., 98188.

TOASTING SUMMER entertaining, Mary Beth Shakerley (left) and Joyce Meredith sip glasses of Golden Champagne Punch, a favorite beverage found in the Kennedy Mothers' Club cookbook.

"Don't open until Christmas" shouldn't apply to holiday recipes. Many of these family favorites can be turned into summer dishes.

"Since August is the time when many gardens are overflowing with zucchini, what better way to use than up than with a delicious bread," Sue Nelson said. "In Our Best To You" there is a variety of bread recipes that includes an interesting Pineapple Zucchini Bread."

Also included in the Kennedy Mothers' Club cookbook is the popular Frango Mint Pie dessert. "Known elsewhere, the dessert derives its name from the candy sold at Frederick and Nelsons department store," said Joyce Meredith.

For an elegant summer salad that will make guests take notice, Daiquiri Fruit Salad blends fruit, limeade and gelatin together for a tempting dessert.

As a shortcut to summer fun, the Kennedy mothers have found that the No Peaky Roast allows the chef hours in the sun and yet have time to prepare an elegant dinner in the evening.

The cookbook also includes the women's favorite Golden Champagne Punch which is served at the Mothers' Club annual spring potluck dinner.

DAIQUIRI FRUIT SALAD

(Yield: 5 to 6 servings)
1-1/2 cups crushed pineapple (15-1/4 ounce can)
1 package lime gelatin (three ounces)
1/2 cup frozen limeade concentrate, thawed
One-third cup salad dressing
2 cups frozen whipped topping, thawed
2 medium bananas, mashed

Drain pineapple, reserving syrup. Add water to syrup to make one cup. Bring to boil; add gelatin and stir; dissolve.

Add thawed limeade concentrate and salad dressing; stir until well blended. Chill until slightly thickened but not set.

Fold in pineapple and remaining ingredients. Pour into oiled one and one-half quart ring mold or eight-inch square pan. Salad can be refrigerated as well as frozen. If desired, add one-half cup chopped nuts with pineapple.

Mary Beth Shakerley FRANGO MINT DESSERT

2 cups sifted powdered sugar
1 cup butter (could use one-half cup margarine and one-half cup butter)

4 large eggs, room temperature
4 squares melted chocolate, slightly cooled
1/2 teaspoon peppermint extract
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat sugar and butter very well. Add chocolate and beat. Add eggs one at a time, beating after each addition. Add flavorings. Spoon into paperlined muffin tins. Use cup cake papers. Freeze approximately four hours. Store in freezer section of refrigerator.

To serve: Remove from paper liner and place on a saucer or individual dessert dish. Almond slivers, chopped nutmeats or small amount of whipped cream can be used for garnish. Hint: thorough beating produces volume.

Joyce Meredith PINEAPPLE-ZUCCHINI BREAD

3 eggs
2 cups salad oil
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups coarsely shredded zucchini
1 can (8-3/4 ounces) well-drained pineapple
3 cups unsifted flour
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup raisins (optional)

Beat eggs. Add oil, sugar and vanilla. Beat mixture until light and foamy. Stir in zucchini and pineapple. Combine flour, soda, salt, baking powder, nuts, cinnamon and raisins. Stir gently into zucchini mixture.

Pour batter into two greased and floured 9x5-inch pans. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for one hour or until done. Cool in pans 10 minutes. Remove and let cool on racks.

Frances Luster NO-PEAKY ROAST

Roast should be at room temperature. Any time in middle of the day (1 p.m.) put 1 six-ounce can frozen roast in oven (not orange juice preheated) at 350 degrees for one hour. Turn oven off after one hour and leave door closed. This is the secret! Roast will continue to cook with oven door closed.

1 cup lemon juice
1 No. 2 can pineapple juice
1 cup white sugar
1 quart bottle Chablis wine
2 quarts champagne
8 ounces brandy

Mix fruit juices and sugar, stir to dissolve. Cover and chill in refrigerator several hours. Just before serving pour mixture over ice block in punch bowl. Remove ice block to avoid diluting. Just before serving add chilled wine, champagne, brandy.

Yvonne Miller GOLDEN CHAMPAGNE PUNCH
May be garnished with maraschino cherries with stems.
(Yield: 37 five-ounce servings)

Local farms are more than just berry markets

Local farms offer many products for sale in addition to fresh berries and vegetables, according to Curt Moulton of the King County Extension Service.

Several poultry farmers sell fresh eggs from their farms or from farmers' markets in town. They also will sell laying hens so eggs can be produced at home. Some producers will sell chicken manure for a garden soil supplement.

Ornamental trees, shrubs, and bedding plants are other products grown on local farms. Often money can be saved by purchasing landscaping plants directly from producers. House plants, cut flowers, and herbs are also sold by many farmers. In most areas of King County bottled pasteurized milk and other dairy products can be purchased at a farm. Beef cattle, lambs, and hogs are sold fully grown for slaughter or young to raise yourself. Wool for spinning is also sold from farms. Other products available locally include U-catch trout, many kinds of honey, cider, rabbits, worms, and holly. Farmers selling these products can be located by using a farm guide map. They are available at most libraries. For further information call the Extension Service at 344-2686.

Don't get picked over cucumbers

Pickling cucumbers are now available at local markets with larger slicing cucumbers to be ready in about a week.

Cucumbers are a perfect summer vegetable. "Cool as a cucumber" is more than a catchy phrase. On a hot day cucumbers will be as much as 20 degrees cooler than the air.

If eaten unpared, fresh cucumber are low in calories and a good source of iron, vitamin A, and fiber. A six or seven inch cucumber has approximately 25 calories.

Pickles, however, are high in sodium and should be avoided if watching salt intake.

Cucumbers for pickling should be firm and have a good green color. They should be well-shaped and well-developed. Avoid cukes with shriveled or withered ends, indicators of toughness or bitter flavor. Avoid cukes large in diameter and ones with a dull, yellowish color.

Cukes should be picked in the early hours of the day and processed very soon after picking. Cucumbers that float in the cleaning water will be hollow inside, use them in chunk pickles or relish.

Try a variety of pickles from sweet to hot and spicy. The ingredients are important in pickle making. Vinegar should be at least equal vinegar to water.

Salt is necessary in brined pickles because it acts as the preservative. Recipes for fresh-packed pickles without salt are available for people restricting their salt intake. When using salt use canning or pickling salt. It does not contain an anticaking agent or iodine. Purchase it at specialty spice shops or grocery stores. Kosher salt can also be used in pickles but because it's flaked the measurement will be different. The best procedure is to weigh it. One cup should be 10.2 ounces.

It's not necessary for the recipe to include alum or lime. Just use fresh cucumbers.

All pickles and relishes should be processed. This is to kill all the yeast and enzymes that will spoil your pickles. This processing will also guarantee a seal on your jars. Follow the USDA processing times but be sure to start counting the time as soon as the jar goes into the boiling water.

What's Cookin' in Ruth's Kitchen

by Ruth Jurich

With the possible exception of "gourmet" there isn't a word in culinary terminology that's kicked around any more than "natural".

So called natural foods include some of the most preposterous fabrications, but there are some wonderful foods that can truthfully be called "natural".

I've recently enjoyed some crab that was dipped from the waters of Puget Sound, boiled, chilled and cracked. We also had clams, soaked in changes of salt water long enough to make them spit their sand then steamed open and served with melted butter and minced garlic.

Now, those are genuine natural foods, especially when served with a salad of fresh garden greens. Making a good dip for cracked crab is easy, because our boat is never without a jar of sharp homemade mayonnaise mixed with a little sweet pickle relish. It's a good spread for hamburgers and other sandwiches, and with the addition of a spoonful of catsup you have a regular Crab Louis dressing.

A RECENT TRIP to San Juan Island has given me a chance to enjoy these heavenly morsels, which brings to mind one of my favorite topics: How to serve good meals on a boat without becoming a galley slave.

The key to it is simplicity, and meals on a boat or in a camper can be simply elegant, because they're elegantly simple.

So far this year we haven't been lucky enough to catch a rock cod or red snapper, but I'm still drooling in anticipation, because there's nothing better than these white meat bottom fish, cleaned and cooked right out of the water.

You can clean, scale, cut and fry them with a coating of whole wheat, corn-meal or pancake flour, or if you don't want to tend a hot skillet, you can bake them, and they are great.

Removing heads and tails is optional, but you'll probably want to cut them off to make room for a large fish in a small oven.

Lay the fish in an oiled pan, and rub it with salt and black pepper. Slice an onion, or use a bunch of green onions including toop. Put some in the fish and some on top, and too the fish with a small amount of olive oil, butter or margarine.

BAKE THE FISH in a moderate oven, 350 degrees if you have a heat control, and it will take 45 minutes to an hour depending on the size of the fish, before the meat will break into big white flakes when touched with a fork. Baste the fish with its own juice a time or two while baking.

If you want a meal-in-one dish, put some thick slices of raw potato under and around the fish before you put the pan in the oven. If you don't want pot toes have warm french bread to dip in the juices.

If you have leftover fish, it's fine cold in sandwiches with a spread of mayonnaise and relish and a thick leaf of lettuce or a thick slice of sweet onion.

WHICH REMINDS ME, Walla Walla

chowder, which you may want to make if you have steamed more clams than you can eat at one sitting.

A moderately well stocked boat or camper will probably have all the necessary ingredients to make a good chowder from scratch, and it's a fine dish for either lunch or supper. Here's a recipe:
Fish or Clam Chowder
4 strips bacon
1 large onion
2 large potatoes or 4 medium
1 15-ounce can tomato sauce

2 cups water
1 clove garlic, minced, or garlic powder
2 cups clams or other fish
1 cup clam nectar
salt and pepper to taste

Dice strips of bacon, and put in a large kettle. Fry until done but not crisp, and add sliced onion. Saute lightly, and add diced potatoes, then tomato sauce and water, using some of the water to rinse the tomato sauce can. Cover the kettle, and simmer 30 minutes or until the potatoes are tender but not mushy. Add clams or flakes of leftover fish.

If there was any fish broth in the pan add it. Add clam nectar, having drained it carefully to make sure there are no bits of shell or sand. Add finely minced garlic or a dash of garlic powder and salt and pepper to taste. When adding clam nectar you may not want to add any salt at all. Heat through That's a basic recipe, but there are other things you may want to add if you have them on hand.

IF YOU HAVE celery, chop a couple of stalks, and add at the same time as the onion. If you have a zucchini or a portion thereof, slice it add after you have added the potatoes. If you want to stretch the dish and have a small can of whole kernel corn among your supplies, it will go well. If you have a bit of parsley, chop it and add it last. If you have a green pepper or part of one, slice it and add after the potatoes.

A well stocked boat or camper may have some of these ingredients but probably won't have all of them. Creative imagination is one of the best things you can take along on an outing. Steaks are usually pan-fried on our boat, although at home we broil or barbecue them. If you're not in the habit of pan frying, here are a few tips: Don't crowd the skillet. It's better to do steaks one at a time, and let people wait. Have cast iron skillet hot, and wipe with a bit of fat before adding steak. Put a bit of salt in the pan before putting in meat. Lower heat or move pan to the back of the stove, and let it brown well on one side before turning. Don't flip back and forth. After turning, let it cook a few minutes, and cut into an edge with a sharp knife. If it's the desired shade of pink, it's done.

Turkey dinners that are a change of pace

Thanksgiving isn't the only time to serve turkey at dinner. For a change of pace, treat the family to the savory bird that has been flavored with a variety of herbs and sauces for a real summer treat.

An exotic glaze featuring condensed chicken broth highlights Glazed Turkey Thighs. Using turkey thighs and tangy spices, the recipe is another tempting idea for the barbecue.

Tomato soup provides the ideal base for Spicy Barbecued Turkey Wings. The tangy sauce is delicious when brushed on turkey wings during the last 30 minutes of grilling.

Turkey Hindquarters-Onion and Mushroom Gravy provides a flavorful variation of stroganoff, while Nutty Orange Turkey Steaks is quick and easy to prepare.

Reminiscent of Provincial French cook, Turkey Half Breast with Parslied Almond Rice is started on top of the range and completed in the oven.

Used planned-over turkey to prepare this Polynesian inspired Kona Coast Turkey Salad. There's plenty of flavor and crunch, combined with a creamy salad dressing that begins with soup.

For a delicious first course Sherried Turkey Asparagus Soup, combines cooked turkey, asparagus and sherry with elegant cream of shrimp soup.

GLAZED GRILLED TURKEY THIGHS (Yield: 4 servings) 1/4 cup chopped onion 2 tablespoons butter or margarine 4 teaspoons cornstarch 1 (10-3/4 ounce) can condensed chicken broth 1 teaspoon thyme leaves 1-1/2 teaspoons dry mustard 1 tablespoon lime juice 1/2 cup currant jelly 2 large turkey thighs, one to one and one-half pounds each, or four small turkey thighs, one-half to three-fourths pound each

To prepare barbecue sauce, saute onion in butter in small skillet. Stir in cornstarch; cook one minute, stirring constantly. Slowly add broth, thyme, dry mustard, lime juice and jelly, stirring to blend. Continue cooking over medium heat; stir occasionally until sauce thickens. Set aside. Rinse turkey thighs; pat dry. Loosely wrap each turkey thigh in heavy-duty aluminum foil, keeping dull side out. Grill over a single layer of slow cook one hour, turning once and adding more charcoal as needed to maintain temperature.

Remove thighs from foil and continue cooking an additional 30 minutes, or until tender and cooked through, turning once and basting every five minutes with barbecue sauce. Serve with any remaining barbecue sauce.

Salt Pepper 1/4 cup water 1 (10-3/4 ounce) can condensed cream of onion soup 1/2 cup sour cream 1/4 teaspoon paprika 1 (2 ounce) can mushrooms, drained

Rinse turkey hind-quarters, pat dry. Melt butter in large skillet. Add vegetable oil; brown turkey hind-quarters on all sides, about 10 minutes. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add water, cover, reduce heat and simmer until turkey hind-quarters are tender and cooked through, about two hours. Turn turkey hind-quarters every 30 minutes, adding more water if necessary. Remove turkey to serving platter.

To prepare Onion and Mushroom Gravy, drain off all but one-fourth cup drippings from skillet. Add soup, sour cream, paprika and mushrooms, heat through, stirring frequently. To serve, carve turkey hind-quarters and serve with Onion and Mushroom Gravy.

SHERRIED TURKEY ASPARAGUS SOUP (Yield: 6 servings) 2 tablespoons butter or margarine 1/4 cup chopped green onion 2 cans (10-3/4 ounces each) condensed cream of shrimp soup 2 soup cans water Dash of hot pepper sauce 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg 1/4 cup dry sherry 1 cup cubed, cooked turkey 1 (10 ounce) package frozen cut asparagus, thawed and drained

Melt butter in small Dutch oven or large saucepan; saute green onion until tender. Add soup, water, hot pepper sauce, nutmeg, sherry, turkey and asparagus; heat until asparagus is cooked. Serve hot.

TURKEY HALF BREAST WITH PARSLIED ALMOND RICE 2 to 2-1/2 pounds turkey half breast 2 tablespoons butter or margarine 2 cups chopped celery 1 (10-3/4 ounce) can condensed onion soup 1 cup water 1/2 cup dry vermouth 1/2 teaspoon rosemary, crushed 2 tablespoons chopped parsley 2 cups quick brown rice 1/4 cup sliced almonds

Rinse turkey half breast; pat dry. Brown turkey half breast on all sides in butter in large Dutch oven. Remove turkey half breast; mound celery in center of Dutch oven, place turkey half breast on top of celery.

Combine soup, water, dry vermouth, rosemary and parsley, pour around turkey half breast. Cover and bring to boil.

Transfer Dutch oven to preheated 325 degree oven and bake one and one-half hours, or until turkey half breast is tender and cooked through. Sprinkle rice evenly around turkey half breast 30 minutes before end of cooking time, adding more water if necessary to cover rice.

Remove turkey half breast to serving platter. Stir almonds into rice, spoon around turkey half breast.

Egg-citing and delicious meals for nutritious eaters

Good overall health is based on a proper exercise program and the selection of wholesome foods for the diet. Fresh eggs, cheese, yogurt and garden vegetables make "Natural Yogurt Omelet" the right choice for those interested in good nutrition.

"Sugarless Date Bars" are a dream come true for families watching their intake of sugar. This tasty snack is naturally flavored with a combination of chopped dates, oatmeal, wheat germ, walnuts and spices.

NATURAL YOGURT OMELET
(Yields: 2 servings)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons sliced green onion
¼ cup chopped bell pepper
¼ cup sliced almonds
4 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ cup plain yogurt
¼ cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon parsley flakes

In 9-inch glass pie plate, melt butter 45 seconds on full power. Cook onion, pepper and almonds in butter one and one-half to two minutes on full power.

In large glass bowl, beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. In separate bowl, combine beaten egg yolks and yogurt. Fold yogurt mixture into beaten egg whites. Pour egg mixture into pie plate and stir gently to combine with onion and pepper.

Cook, uncovered, four minutes on simmer-defrost (or 50 percent power). If your microwave does not have a carousel, rotate one-half turn after two minutes. Sprinkle with cheese and parsley and cook an additional 30 seconds on full power or until cheese is melted. Serve immediately.

Note: Cooking times given are based on the use of a 650 watt oven. For use in ovens of different wattages, consult your cookbook.

1 cup finely chopped walnuts

In glass measure, melt butter 45 seconds on full power. In medium bowl, combine eggs and vanilla. Add orange and lemon peel and chopped dates. Set aside. In separate bowl combine oatmeal, flour, wheat germ, baking powder, allspice, nutmeg, cinnamon and salt. Add dry ingredients to date mixture alternately with milk. Stir until well blended. Batter will be stiff. Spread batter evenly into well greased eight and one-half x 11 and one-half x two-inch glass casserole. Press firmly into mixture. Cook, uncovered, five and one half to six minutes on full power or until set. (If your microwave does not have a carousel, rotate one-half turn after three minutes.) Cool and cut into bars.

Note: A simmer defrost setting is equivalent to 50 percent power.

A chicken in every pot

If you have a family to feed, you're probably trying as hard as President Carter to hold down inflation — at least at the dinner table. One likely ally in kitchen economy and nutrition is that familiar fowl, the chicken.

According to an article in the August Reader's Digest, a whole chicken costs just over 70 cents a pound, compared to the $1.60 or more per pound that hamburger commands. And for nutrition's sake, a half chicken breast supplies 50 percent of our daily protein and amino acids requirements plus lots of essential vitamins, and weighs in at only about 160 calories.

Chicken is also highly digestible, and low in both cholesterol and salt. Small wonder, says the Digest article, that chicken consumption in the United States will reach some 17 birds per each man, woman, and child this year.

Keeping this huge national appetite satisfied is becoming an increasingly streamlined operation, writes author Jack Denton Scott. No longer a hit-or-miss "backyard" business, poultry breeding is now an efficient industry, with 90 percent of the country's 10.9 billion pounds of chicken bred this year coming from just five breeding companies. On mammoth farms, manned by scientists, geneticists, and computer-trained technicians, breeders have cut down the growth time of a marketable chicken from 13 weeks to seven and one-half in the last 25 years. That means lower feed costs and plenty of economical chicken coming across your table.

If all those facts sound a bit tiresome, just think of the varied poultry preparations you can try...from cacciatore to teriyaki, coq au vin to southern fried. And, adds Scott, don't forget who brought you the egg.

Potato chip history

Next time you reach for a handful of potato chips, give a nod to George Crum, an American Indian without whom the snack would not be melting in your mouth. It was Crum who in 1853 momentarily lost his temper and thereby added a chapter to America's food lore.

A chef at a posh resort in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Crum became annoyed when a fussy guest kept returning his french fries because they were too thick. The Indian grabbed a potato, scalped it into paper-thin pieces and plunged them into boiling fat. The resulting golden, curling chips were proclaimed delicious by the stubborn diner, and by untold millions after him.

The New York Aquarium boosted attendance markedly when it launched a search for a "bargain monster," reports the August Reader's Digest. The aquarium wanted a creature that was both unusual and economical to catch. The answer: A giant sea roach called Bathynomus giganteus, a common monster 60 million years ago at comparatively rare today. After a search team delivered six of the creatures to the Aquarium, admissions soared, even in the dead of winter.

Shop to Save

Today's prices don't leave any room for careless shopping, says Jan Grant, King County Extension agent.

There's a limit to the money that can be saved on a food budget and still get the necessary nutrition. Usually other parts of the family budget can be trimmed more easily; take a close look at what is being spent on transportation, clothing and utilities, for example.

Impulse buying, in any area, can destroy the budget. Most stores are set up to encourage buying on a whim, so plan well to resist these extra purchases. As much as possible, know what to buy before going to the store.

Always take a grocery list when shopping. Set up the list to correspond with the arrangement of foods within the store. Everything can be bought in one pass through the store with a minimum of wandering about.

Buy what is needed and leave, but don't rush. Take time to take advantage of all the information that's offered on labels. An informed, careful shopper uses nutritional labeling and unit pricing to get the best deal for the least money, Ms. Grant says.

Comparison shop. Know how to use mail order catalogs from reputable companies; sometimes they can save money on the products plus gas for driving around to compare prices. Thrift shops, rummage sales and classified ads offer bargains if you're careful.

Peanuts pair with dairy foods to give rewarding combinations

Peanuts plus dairy foods give rewarding combinations from soup to snacks. They're great for taste appeal and even better together nutritionally because they complement each other. Both groups of food are good sources of nutrients. No matter what dairy foods you select or what your choices are in the peanut family, reap the benefits of peanuts paired with dairy foods.

Cooling punch

Familiar friends, familiar foods and lots of thirst-quenching beverage all contribute toward the easy life in summer. A canister of lemonade flavor drink mix solves the beverage problem and provides the base for Lemony Pineapple Punch. In combination with sherbet and unsweetened pineapple juice, the lemonade flavor lends an old-fashioned taste of summer which just hits the spot. An assortment of cheeses, cold meats, fresh vegetables and relishes are light and tasty companions on a sweltering, humid day.

2 quarts water
1 pint orange or lime sherbet
Combine drink mix, pineapple juice and water in large pitcher or punch bowl; stir until mix is dissolved. Stir in sherbet. Garnish with orange or lime slices, if desired, and serve at once.

Entertaining appetizers

For appetizers that are a little more elegant than ordinary snacks, try cheese balls. Be it a tiny tidbit or a zesty cheese ball, these before-a-meal cheese recipes will please both your family and your special guests.

CHEESE TRAY
A simple cheese tray is one of the easiest of appetizers to create. Begin with a centerpiece of Club cheese in its attractive brown crock. Surround with slices of tangy Blue or smoky Provolone.

Add cubes of mild Brick, Jack or Muenster cheese. Slices or wedges of bright Cheddar and Colby cheese, along with nutlike Swiss, add to an interesting selection.

Garnish with crisp vegetables such as radishes, cucumber slices, celery and carrot sticks, and olives. Crackers and sesame sticks add sparkle and contrast to your appetizing offerings, too. For special occasions, make balls of Edam and serve in the cheese's own bright red shell.

CHILI RELLANOES
(Yield: 16 squares)
9x9x1-¾ inch pan
2 cans (4 ounces each) mild green chilies
3 cups (12 ounces) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
1-½ cups (6 ounces) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
2 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon flour

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Lightly grease pan. Cut chilies into thin strips; remove seeds if a milder flavor is desired. Alternately layer chilies with cheeses, starting and ending with the cheeses. Beat eggs, milk and flour together. Pour egg mixture over layered ingredients and bake for about one hour, or until firm. Cut into small squares, serve warm.

CREAMY CHEESE BALL
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
2 cups (8 ounces) crumbled Blue cheese
One-third cup flaked coconut
1 teaspoon finely grated onion
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup flaked coconut
¼ cup chopped pecans
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
Combine cream cheese and Blue cheese. Cream well. Blend in coconut, onion and Worcestershire sauce. Cover and chill for at least six hours or until ready to use.

Shortly before serving time, combine remaining ingredients on a piece of wax paper. Form cheese mixture into ball and roll in the coconut, pecan, parsley mixture until completely covered. Place on a platter; surround with crackers.

CHEESE AND OLIVE BALLS
(Yield: 4 dozen)
2 cups (one-half pound) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
¼ cup (one stick) butter, softened
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon paprika
48 large pimento stuffed olives
Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Blend together cheese and butter, using a mixer or blender. Add flour and paprika. Mix thoroughly and shape one tablespoon of this mixture around each olive, dipping hands in flour to prevent sticking. Arrange on baking sheet and bake for 15 minutes until golden.

If desired, prepared olive balls may be frozen until ready for baking.

GARLIC CHEESE LOG
2 cups (one-half pound) shredded

Cheddar cheese
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1 small clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon salt
Poppy seed
Combine cheeses until smooth, using a mixer or blender. Add garlic and salt; mix thoroughly. Divide into two parts; shape and roll in enough poppy seed to coat. Chill and serve.

cook-off at R.E.I.

Recreational Equipment, Inc. Co-op will hold its second annual Freeze-Dried Food Cook-off on Saturday, Aug. 18.

From 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., contestants will cook backpacking gourmet foods to tempt the nose and palate of a panel of judges, as well as appeal to the hiker-backpacker in them.

The recipe's ingredients must include 75 percent freeze-dried or dehydrated foods and the remaining ingredients should be backpackable. Criteria for judging include backpacking practicality; flavor; creativity; texture and appearance. Contestants will prepare and cook their dinner entree recipe on backpacking stoves at R.E.I.

There is no entry fee, although contestants must register before the event by visiting R.E.I. at 1525 11th Ave., Seattle or calling 323-8333. Prizes for the event will be $25 to $100 worth of freeze-dried foods.

The winning recipes from last year's Cook-off have just been published in "The Outdoor Epicure" An R.E.I. Cookbook, a collection of recipes, hints and tips compiled by R.E.I. Co-op members and employees.

Low-cholesterol hero inspired by 'Little Italy'

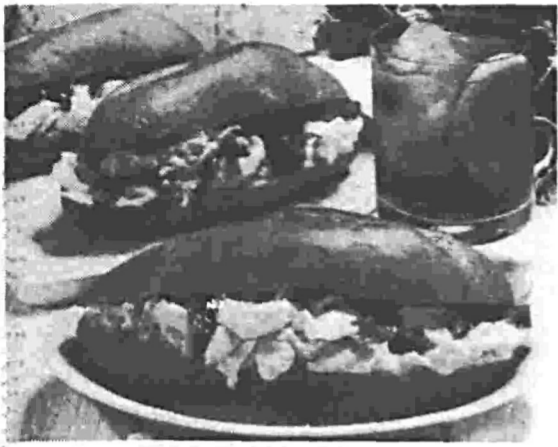

The Italians in New York City's Little Italy call it "a festa 'e tr'ite 'e ffeite," the Festival of all Festivals and it probably is. It is the 11-day festa called the Feast of San Gennaro. More than 300 stands offering food and games of chance line the curbs of Mulberry, Grand and Hester Streets in Little Italy and spill across Canal Street into Chinatown. Sept. 19 celebrates the day Gennaro, a third-century Italian bishop, led the people out of Naples when Mount Vesuvius erupted. Each year thousands of people come to visit the shrine of San Gennaro in New York City, pin a dollar bill to the statue and join in the open-air festival. Neapolitan love songs pierce the night air as a river of humanity good-naturedly pushes its way past booth after booth of Italian specialties.

Known for its hero sandwiches, the Feast offers a tasty variation — the pepper and egg hero. This recipe is made with a cholesterol-free egg substitute. It is a delicious version for those watching their dietary intake of saturated fats and cholesterol since an average egg contains 240 milligrams of cholesterol and doctors recommend a 300 milligram limit per day.

PEPPER AND "EGG" HERO
 (Yields: 3 servings)
 1 tablespoon margarine
 1 cup sliced green pepper
 1 cup cholesterol-free egg substitute
 ¼ teaspoon whole oregano
 ¼ teaspoon salt
 3 oblong hard rolls
 Melt margarine in a 9-inch skillet over medium heat. Add green pepper; saute until tender. Combine cholesterol-free egg substitute with whole oregano and salt. Reduce heat to medium-low; add egg beater mixture. Stir only occasionally until mixture is set. Serve in hard rolls.

Brioche braid bread

Surveys indicate that more people are baking bread at home than ever before.

Some bread recipes can go into the refrigerator or freezer to be baked at another time. This is a great convenience for the growing number of cooks who plan ahead for special occasions.

The growing interest in home baking has brought more powerful mixers and kneading devices to small electrical appliance lines. These are real labor savers for inexperienced cooks who don't know how to handle doughs and for handicapped persons with limited energy. These products of technology have helped considerably to reduce bread making failures and undoubtedly are among the reasons why breadmaking has become a hobby for men as well as women.

This recipe for Freezer Brioche Bread illustrates how modern labor savers combine to accommodate home bakers who are concerned about time. Yeast is mixed with the dry ingredients and the dough can be mixed in the electric mixer. Since the dough is to be frozen, the rising periods are eliminated; the bread is shaped and immediately transferred to the freezer to be baked some other time. (Not all bread recipes can go from mixer to freezer.) Thawing and rising will require around four hours, but the frozen loaves thaw and rise without requiring any attention from the cook.

FREEZER Brioche Braid
 (Yields: 2 cakes)
 5-¼ to 6-¾ cups unsifted flour
 ½ cup sugar
 ½ teaspoon salt
 2 packages active dry yeast
 ½ cup milk
 ½ cup water
 Two-thirds cup

margarine
 4 eggs (at room temperature)
 1 teaspoon lemon extract
 1 egg white
 1 tablespoon sugar
 In a large bowl thoroughly mix one cup flour, one-half cup sugar, salt and undissolved yeast. Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120 degrees-130 degrees). Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add dry ingredients and beat two minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs, lemon extract and one cup flour. Beat at high speed two minutes scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto heavily floured board; knead lightly to form a ball. Cover with a towel; let rest 15 minutes. Divide dough in half. Divide each half into three equal pieces. Form each piece into a roll, 12 inches long. Braid three rolls together; pinch ends to seal. Repeat with remaining three rolls. Place on large greased baking sheet. Cover tightly with plastic wrap; freeze until firm. Transfer to plastic bags. Keep frozen up to four weeks.

Remove from freezer; unwrap and place on ungreased baking sheets. Let stand covered loosely with plastic wrap at room temperature until fully thawed, about three hours. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about one hour and 15 minutes.

Combine egg white and remaining one tablespoon sugar; brush mixture on bread. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven about 25 minutes or until done. Remove from baking sheet and cool on wire rack.

Cereals and nutrition labeling

Current food labeling regulations require all food products containing added nutrients or making nutritional claims to show on package labels the number of calories, amount of protein, carbohydrate and fat in grams, and the percent of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances for protein and seven vitamins and minerals in a typical serving.

Every package of breakfast cereal, for instance, carries nutrition labeling that meets all government standards, a study by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) reports. In addition, cereal makers are voluntarily including a statement of sugar content on their labels, according to Cereal Institute, Inc. — even though sugar content labeling is not required.

"Cereal makers have taken this action in the absence of any sugar labeling requirement, because many consumers want this information now," said Dr. Eugene B. Hayden, the Institute's President. Breakfast cereals are the first food products to carry sugar content labels.

Sugar content labeling should be especially helpful to diabetics and others who carefully watch how much sugar they eat.

Cereal labels also break total carbohydrate content down into components of starch and sugar, measured in grams per typical serving.

This is the same as required by the FDA for label disclosure of major nutritional building blocks — protein, carbohydrate and fat.

Another recent study demonstrated that when the sugar content of foods was expressed in grams, percentage by weight, or both, consumers were best able to tell which food had the most sugar per serving when the sugar content was shown in grams.

Classic cheese entrees for those special parties

Some classic cheese entrees are perfect for special parties. Your favorite guests will love the savory blends of Chicken Cordon Bleu. Rave notices will follow a meal of MAIGNIA. Cheese deserves top billing on your next gourmet menu.

B RE A S T O F C H I C K E N C O R D O N B L E U (Yield: 4 servings)
 2 whole chicken breasts, (about one pound each)
 Salt
 White Pepper
 1/2 cup milk
 1 egg, slightly beaten
 2 slices (one and one-half ounces each) ham
 2 thick slices (two and one-half ounces each) medium aged Swiss cheese

 2 cups finely ground dried bread crumbs
 1/2 cup (one stick) butter
 While chicken is ice cold, remove all bones from each whole breast. Do not sever skin at any point. (You may wish to have your butcher do this for you.) Sprinkle both sides of chicken lightly with salt and pepper.
 Combine milk and egg wash. Brush each side of breasts completely with egg wash. Lay each whole breast, skin side down, on waxed paper. Lay one slice each of ham and cheese on half of each breast. Brush ham and cheese liberally with egg wash and fold the halves together, wrapping skin around all white meat.

 Place flour, remaining egg wash and bread crumbs in three separate shallow dishes. Dip raw breasts in each one. To assure heavy and uniform coating, be sure crumbs are solidly packed. Wrap the coated breasts in refrigerator for six hours or overnight to "firmup."

 Remove from refrigerator and brown in butter. Place browned breasts in 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Pour remaining butter over breasts. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until tender.
