Board O.K.'s budget; not grad requirements

A record high school district budget was approved Monday night by the Federal Way School Board, but upon the recommendation of Superintendent Milton Snyder, a policy stiffening the graduation requirements was withdrawn.

The budget is a record $28 million, approximately $6 million above that of a year ago. It will provide for the hiring of hundreds of new teachers, classified personnel and teacher aides, and will restore approximately 29 programs to the pre-levy failure years.

One of those programs to be restored is the six period day to the secondary schools. In recent years the number of periods has been limited to five, thus limiting the number of elective credits a student may take.

With the five period day, the number of credits required for graduation has been 37 out of a possible 40 over a four year period. With the six period day, the policy before the board would have increased those requirements to 44 over the four years.

SYNDER, the new superintendent of the district, requested that the policy be withdrawn until hearings involving the secondary students and staff could be held. "I want to be sure the students and parents know about it (the new requirements)," Snyder said.

Council gets new official

The Federal Way Community Council has hired a 32-year-old Seattle man as its coordinator, it was announced Monday.

Officially appointed last week, the new coordinator is Michael deVaughn, a graduate of the University of Southern California at Los Angeles (UCLA).

Council Vice-chairman Jim Mawson described deVaughn as a man with a "very interesting" background that includes work in a Los Angeles ghetto.

Mawson said that deVaughn's responsibilities will include coordination of the council's activities and administration of the group's emergency social service operation.

DeVaughn will be headquartered at the community council's office, 839-3453.

In other business, the board indicated it would get tough with book thefts from high school libraries by authorizing the installment of a theft detection system at Thomas Jefferson and Federal Way High. Decatur already has such a system. The award for the system went to 3M for $18,000.

The board also authorized the deeding of nearly one-half acre of school district property at Mark Twain Elementary for an on ramp at South 272nd and I-5. In exchange for the land, the state will reconstruct the playing field including a cutback surfacing amounting to $2,972.00. The school has been closed in recent years and has housed the South King County Community Center.

Police make two big drug busts

Members of the King County Police narcotics squad have arrested three Federal Way residents and confiscated a quantity of marijuana, amphetamine and cocaine in a pair of major but unrelated local drug busts.

Sgt. Craig Wilke, chief of the narcotics squad, said the suspects are believed to be among the major street-level dealers in Federal Way.

Two separate investigations were involved in cracking the cases, he said.

One, begun several weeks ago, culminated in the arrest of a 28-year-old man and his 40-year-old female companion at a residence near Federal Way High School last Thursday night.

The other, which resulted in the arrest of an 18-year-old Steel Lake area man, began with the serving of a search warrant by detectives in late July.

Wilke said the two suspects who live near the high school are accused of attempting to sell two pounds of marijuana to undercover agents.

HE SAID THAT the investigation leading up to the arrests took about three weeks.

The two, Wilke said, are suspected of selling mostly to junior high school and high school students.

Police confiscated the marijuana as evidence, he said.

The 18-year-old's residence yielded one pound of marijuana, a small amount of cocaine and 23,000 tablets of amphetamine or "speed," Wilke said.

Recovered several days after the July arrest, the speed has a street value of from $3,500 to $11,000, depending upon how it is packaged and sold.

"The two Federal Way investigations," said Wilke, "were somewhat unusual because we normally go after only those who are higher up on the drug-dealing chain."

MOST OF THE narcotics unit's time and resources, he said, are spent attempting to nail the higher-ups.

"But these two incidents should tell the street dealers that the police are interested in stopping them, too," Wilke said. "As far as resources allow, we will put undercover agents out to cut off street-level dealing too."

He said that in the vicinity of both arrests, neighbors had been complaining of heavy traffic on the streets and a constant coming and going of persons believed to be drug buyers.

Disclosure of the July arrest, he said, was withheld to facilitate the progress of the investigation.

All the suspects are free on bail.

Council aids developer faced with bankruptcy

The King County Council took action Monday that could save the developer of a small residential plat from financial ruin.

Paul Hardin was faced with foreclosure on the plat of Brooklake Heights at 1st Avenue South near Southwest 365th Street because he failed to get final county approval of the plat before the 30-month deadline to do so expired.

County Councilman Paul Barden asked the council Monday to extend the deadline although it expired last year. At that time, Barden told his fellow lawmakers, Hardin filed suit against the county but lost the case when it came to court. "He is now about to have all his vehicles and equipment repossessed, he has a loan of $400,000 and he is about to go bankrupt."

Barden asked that the council take the unusual action because "we really have this guy's life in our hands."

Granting the extension for one applicant would "create a real hardship" according to Deputy Prosecutor Bob Johns. Johns said the action would be precedent-setting and would open the door for discrimination lawsuits against the county by subsequent applicants who were not given the same benefit.

Johns said the problem is that applicants, by county ordinance, have 30 months from the time of preliminary plat approval to present plans to the county and get final approval. Barden's proposed action would have been "inconsistent with the ordinance. I am nervous about creating that situation. We've gotten ourselves in a real morass because of the 30 month rule," Johns allowed.

His suggestion that the council remand the entire matter back to the county hearing examiner and the building and land development division for another hearing and begin the process over again met with initial opposition from Barden who noted that the process is slow and Hardin is paying $4,000 a month interest on his loan for the 35-lot development.

Councilman Gary Grant countered "It's not this council's fault this applicant didn't come here and ask for an extension before the 30 months were up. We should do this in an orderly fashion," Grant said and agreed that the matter should be remanded for hearing.

Barden voted for the move after Hearing Examiner Robert

Eveleigh said his office would move the plat through the process as fast as possible possibly getting a recommendation to the council by mid-October.

Hardin has curbs, gutters, streets, sewers and other initial phases of the development completed. The lots are 9,600 square feet. A public hearing will be scheduled on the proposed plat. Hardin said there was no community opposition to his proposal when it was heard the first time.

Open burning still causing local brush fire threat

by Nathalie Weber

Despite recent showers that averted the summer's extensive dry period, brush fires continue to be a threat in the area, according to local fire districts.

Open burning, particularly illegal open burning, and carelessness in handling flammable materials have been the major reasons for the recent deluge of brush fires, and those factors continue to be fire-causing agents, the districts report.

"The woods are still dry," Fire

District 39 Chief Bud Thorson said Monday. "That little rain we had was enough to get the trees wet, but not the ground."

Open burning regulations vary from district to district. Fire District 39, which encompasses the area north of the Pierce County line, south of approximately South 288th Street, east of Puget Sound and west of Auburn and Pacific, prohibits any open burning from June 15 to Sept. 15.

Fire District 30, which abuts FD 39 on its south border, stretches north to South 252nd Street, east to the East Valley Highway and west to Puget Sound, allows open burning according to Puget Sound Air Control. No burning permit for residential use is required unless that agency prohibits burning, FD 30 reports.

Fire District 26, which abuts FD 30 on its south border, extends north to South 208th Street, east to approximately I-5 and west to Puget Sound, allows residential burning only by permit. Those permits, FD 26 officials said, are issued on a week-to-week basis.

WHILE BURNING REGULATIONS vary from district to district, guidelines for burning when permitted are fairly uniform throughout the area. Residential burning allows burning of natural vegetation only. No trash or other materials may be burned.

Fires should be maintained within four square feet, no higher than three feet. A water hose should always be on hand to prevent the fire from spreading.

No barrel burning is allowed in either fire districts 30 or 26. Burning may be done only between 10 a.m. and dusk in FD 26. FD 30 prohibits fires that would send cinders floating into neighbor's yards. Fires always should be away from any structure.

The three districts agree that the most common cause of uncontrolled brush fire is from burning that did not comply with the guidelines.

Another common cause is negligent handling of matches, fireworks and other flammable substances.

"If people just followed the guidelines for burning and were more careful, there wouldn't be as much of a problem," FD 26 Fire Marshal Bob Arnold said. "As it is now, we're watching it very carefully."

FD merger may be on Nov. ballot

The proposed merger of Fire District 30 into Federal Way's Fire District 39 will be on the November ballot if the procedure moves smoothly through King County channels, FD 39 Chief Bud Thorson said this week.

The merger, proposed last January by FD 30 officials, currently is before the King County Boundary Review Board. If that board OK's the move before mid-September, the question still can be put before the people on the November ballot.

"It's likely we'll make it by then," Thorson said. The proposal already has been before the review board for several weeks.

FD 30 officials requested the merger last winter for two reasons: the fire insurance rates are lower in FD 39, and FD 30 is beginning to feel the encroachment by surrounding fire districts on its territory.

Fire insurance rates are lower in FD 39 because that district employs more full-time, paid firefighters than does FD 30. Also, in recent years FD 30 has lost parts of its territory to surrounding Kent and Des Moines fire districts. So the FD 30 commissioners, who had been considering the merger for about a year prior to the formal request, opted to be assumed into FD 39.

WHAT THAT MEANS for the current FD 30 customers is that their district will be operated as FD 39 presently is operated. And Thorson said that will lend some advantages to those customers.

"Those people have a lot to gain," he said. "Not only will the insurance premiums be lower, but they'll have a full-time force more readily available to them."

Only the customers in FD 30, not FD 39, will vote on the merger issue. If it is approved in November, Thorson predicts the move will be effective around the first of the year.

Jeanne Sweeney

It was late in the afternoon last week when my friend Madeline dropped by my office.

"Jeannie, you are working too hard and you need to take a break," she said.

Always a person who listens to helpful suggestions, I said, "I agree, Madeline, what do you have in mind."

"Let's go to the race track," she said. "We can bet on the horses."

Taking a break from work seemed like a good idea but going to the races really wasn't what I had in mind. "I don't think so, Madeline, it isn't much fun to lose a person's lunch money betting on horses."

"You don't have to lose," she said.

"I always lose," I replied. "Nonsense," said Madeline. "I'll teach you how to be a winner."

She explained that betting was easy and paid off if one studied the racing forms, and used the information to bet on the horses. She said she knew how to read a racing form and would teach me to be a good handicapper. She was sure I would have a fine time.

"Besides," she added, "watching the horses and the people is just as much fun as winning every race."

At Longacres, we were admitted, for a fee, and Madeline quickly found a table for us to use as "homebase". We spread the racing forms and newspapers out on the table and the lessons began. I learned about a fast track, a slow track, a good track and a sloppy track. She explained the funny numbers and letters that indicated weight, odds, the horses' age, sex and record. Who the horse called father and mother was another important factor.

The jockey, his ability, his record his weight and age, were also things to consider, according to my teacher. There were many more things, but too many to repeat here.

We missed the first race, what with all our calculating, but we were ready for the second.

Armed with all the facts I made my way to the $2 window line. As I waited for my turn to give the man behind the bars my money, I read my program again. I saw that one of the horses in that race was going to be carrying a jockey by the name of Steve Austin. That name reminded me of the Bionic Man. How could I have overlooked this horse?

Madeline did not waver in her decision and she later collected a sizeable reward from another man behind other bars. She graciously ignored the results of my betting.

In the next race, the horse that appeared to be the winner would have brought less than a dollar back to me on my bet. It seemed pointless to bet on a horse and not get more money back, so I bet on a very pretty horse whose jockey looked good in a colorful outfit with the exciting odds of 23 to one.

Madeline's selection was the better choice and she collected once again.

The pretty horse and the colorfully dressed jockey were unaware that I had lost another $2.

Following Madeline's instructions I kept my winnings and losses about even. Occasionally, however, I would secretly risk an additional $2 on a long shot. A long shot is usually a horse that doesn't win-place or show. Most of my bets proved this to be true. Convinced that careful handicapping is the key to successful betting, I placed my last bet on one of the three horses expected to come in a winning slot.

A pretty horse whose jockey was colorfully dressed, listed as a 20 to one long shot, won that race. The jockey and the horse were unaware that I had lost another $2 or that I had sprained my ankle trying to kick myself.

A better educational system

The Legislature's decision to move ahead with full funding of basic education this year was probably the most important decision in the history of the Federal Way school district.

The 1979-80 district budget shows a whopping 35 percent increase in funds. That converts into $6 million and allows for the restoration of nearly $3 million in programs cut because of levy failures.

District administrators, while elated, warn that the increased funding won't cure all the district's ills. You don't erase five years of economic hardship in a single year.

But when the doors open next week there will be more teachers, more custodians, more aides, more bus runs, more elementary programs, more secondary periods and offerings, more elementary programs, and fewer students per room. The staff morale should be improved due to smaller work loads and increased pay.

The result of this should be a markedly improved educational system in Federal Way. The district will no longer be able to blame educational deficiencies on lost school levies and inadequate staffing. There's no longer any reason, other than socio-economic variations why Federal Way students shouldn't be academically competitive with districts such as, say, Bellevue.

Enough bridge jawboning

Washington, once famous for its beautiful, exciting bridges, now has a new claim to fame — bridges blown down (Hood Canal) or stuck up (West Seattle) that remain inoperative while the bureaucrats bungle.

Since the Hood Canal Bridge sank in a windstorm Feb. 13, the bureaucrats have promised: 1.) an $18 million temporary span; 2.) the reinstating of the Lofall to Southworth ferry; and 3.) a barge system of transporting vehicles.

Hearings have been held, there's been a plethora of rhetoric and very little accomplished. A walk-on ferry was installed and a new ferry line from Edmonds to Port Townsend bolstered the economy of those towns but did little to alleviate the problem of replacing a major link between Seattle and the Olympic Peninsula.

The state ferry system, largest in the nation, has been hard put to meet the demands of fuel-conscious motorists and there's a two-hour wait at the Edmonds and Port Townsend docks.

The temporary bridge proposal has been tied up in the courts by the trade unions and the ferry system isn't sure where it would get the boats for a Hood Canal run.

Meanwhile, resort owners at LaPush and Neah Bay are going broke, Port Angeles tourist businesses are suffering and its residents are stranded.

The West Seattle problem, while not as complex or acute as Hood Canal, is no less frustrating to residents who watch the bureaucratic machinery moving at a snail's pace while they are forced to travel highly congested alternative routes.

The West Seattle span has been pointing skyward for more than a year and the Hood Canal bridge has been resting on the bottom for more than six months. That's enough time for jawboning — what the taxpayer deserves now is some construction-type action.

Drunken driving crackdown welcome

At long last, Washington is going to crack down on drunken driving.

Beginning this Saturday, first-time drunken drivers will spend a mandatory day in jail. In addition, they will be put on two-year probation and required to take part in an alcohol treatment program.

Why the tough treatment for a drunk driver? Because statistics have shown that nearly half of this state's highway fatalities in any recent given year involved an inebriated driver.

An estimated 600 persons will die on the road this year as the result of a drunk driver. An additional 20,000 will be injured.

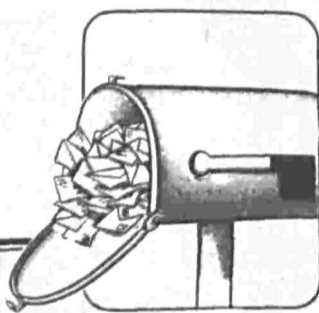

It's time to get tough, and we applaud the state for doing so.

Starting this Saturday — a day in jail, two years probation, an alcohol treatment program.

Think about it.

Center's fate should be up to stockholders

Editor: Thanks anyway, but...

Did you ever hear the story about Tom, Dick and Harry? They were neighbors for years. One day Tom said to Dick, "Now that your children are grown you really don't need that great big house and property anymore, why don't you donate it to the church as a good will gesture."

Sharp, Tom, good thinking of course. Tom figured that he could then donate his own house and property to the church, get an immediate tax write-off and include a provision for him and his children to live there tax-free for the rest of their lives.

Tom even asked Harry and others to tell Dick what a good idea it was. Harry was glad to endorse the project in concept. So did the chamber of commerce, the school board, the local newspaper and numerous politicians. They applauded Tom's generosity, but were they aware of the special provisions of Tom's proposal? If so, it was not mentioned in their endorsements.

Dick appreciated the views of all of these groups and individuals. After thinking it over, however, he said, "Thanks anyway, but I bought the house with my own money, paid taxes all these years and maintained it out of whatever money I could earn. I think I will make my own decision about what to do with the property—and in my own good time."

Change a few names and places, folks...you have the story of the Brooklake Community Center. It is owned by stockholders who, individually and-or as a part of a group, bought now own shares of stock. The clubhouse and adjoining property are no longer the important part of the community they once were, but they could still serve a very useful purpose. The stockholders are now considering how best to dispose of their interests. So far, no one has offered to buy them out but several people are willing to help them decide how to give it away.

It seems to me that the decision belongs to the stockholders who bought and paid for the property and now own it; the people who cared for it and maintained it all these years when the neighbors were content to remain at a distance.

As one of the long-time stockholders, I feel like Dick. Thanks anyway but...

Accident photos hurt

Editor: I would like to comment on a letter in your paper Sunday, Aug. 6, by Elsie Dillard. I too feel that some of your pictures are uncalled for.

A picture of an accident or fire is one thing, but pictures of people suffering from injuries is unkind. Not only is the victim and family hurt by these pictures, but others also.

For example, someone like me. My 11-year-old son was hit by a car March 12 - five days later, he passed away. Although there was nothing in your paper about it, the picture you printed on Aug. 3 of a 9-year-old who'd been hit by a car brought back all the pain I'm trying so hard to get over.

When I saw that picture, I was stunned; it was like seeing my son all over again, bleeding and in pain. Please, have a heart and some compassion for others — spare us the pictures. They don't help, but they sure do hurt.

Girls welcome at DM Boys' Club

Editor,

The SeaTac Des Moines Boys' Club views the closing of the Des Moines Girls Club with much regret. All youngsters need to find construction and educational things to do when out of school and when away from parental influence. The Boys' Clubs and Girls Clubs of our community provide a place for idle hands and minds to explore fun activities guided by people who care about them. The Club offers these structured, scheduled activities as well as being a place to drop in and play a game or just meet new friends.

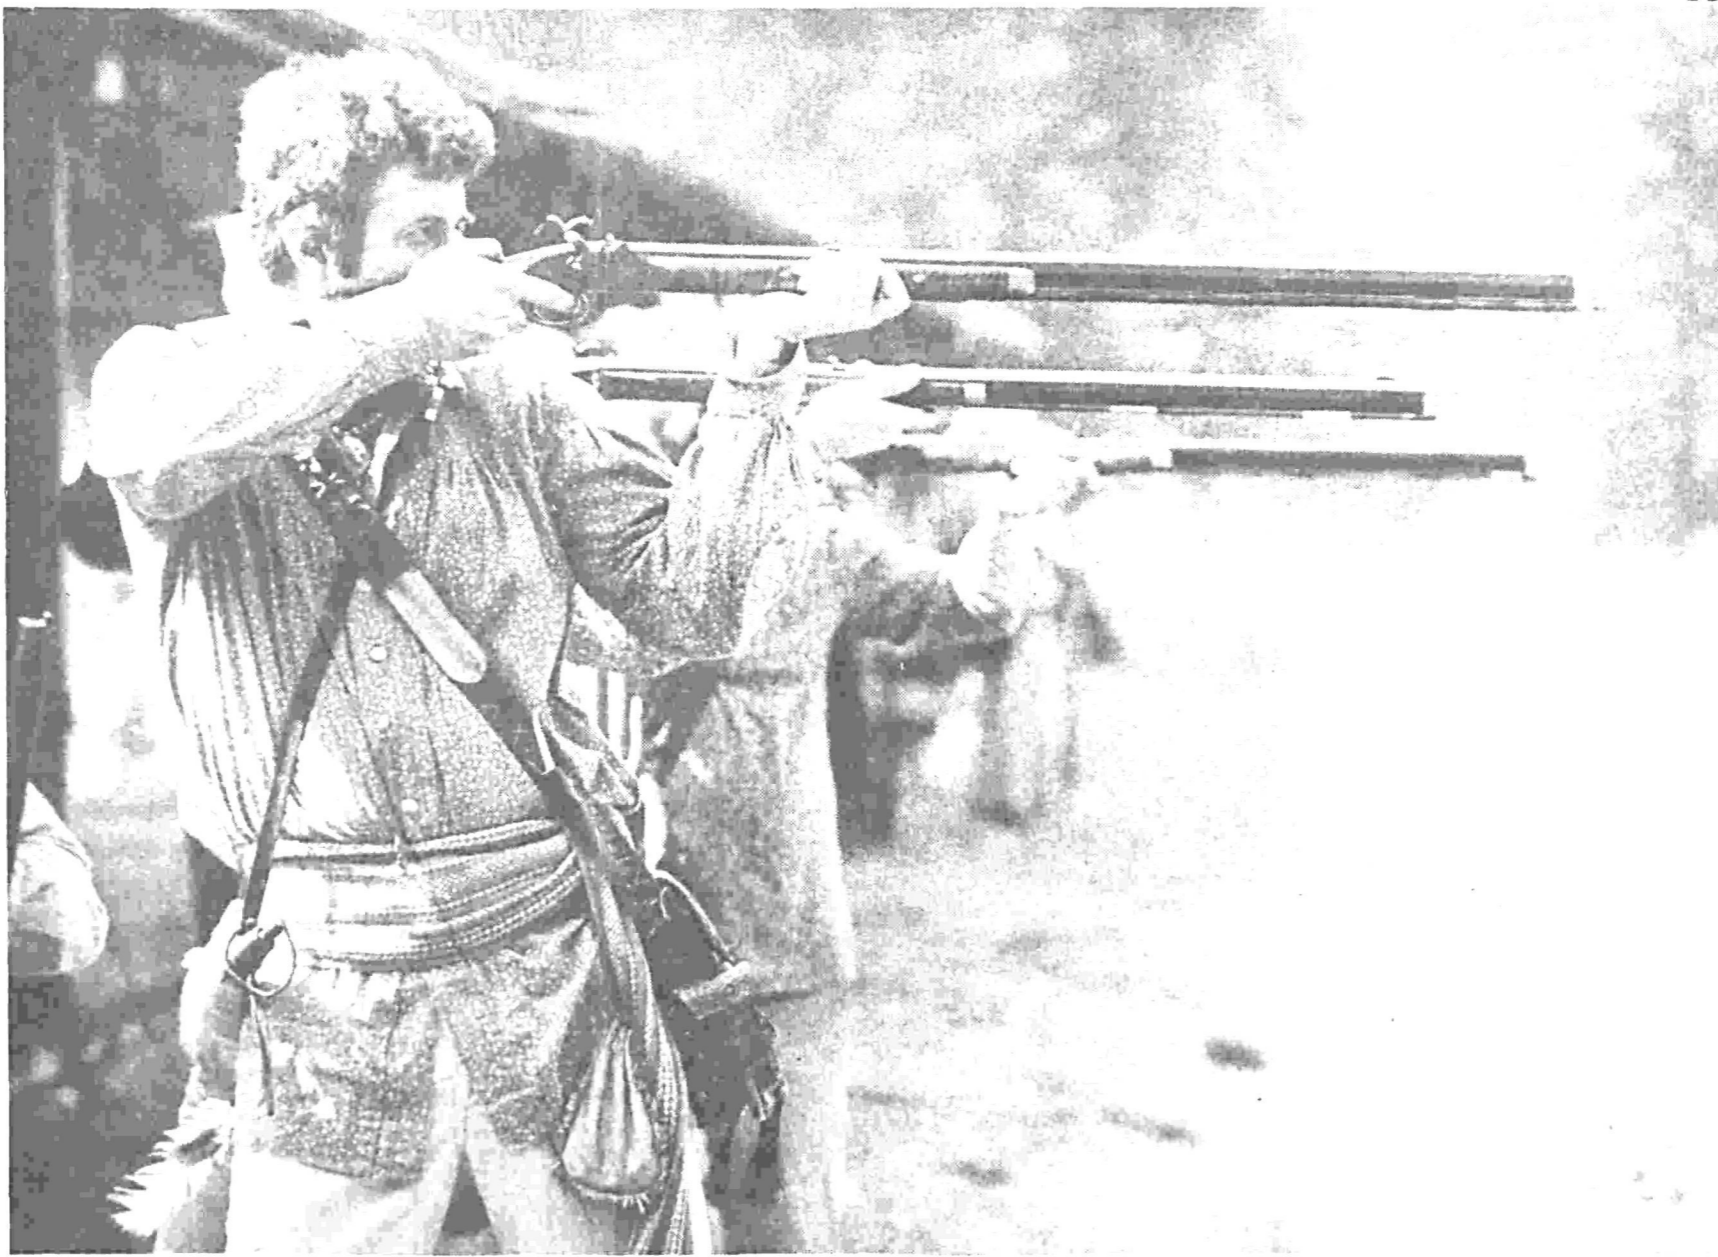

With the loss of the Girls' Club, the Boys' Club would like to invite all the girls in our community to visit us. For many years now, our programs have been for both boys and girls. Twenty percent of our members are girls. Last year, we honored a Girl of the Year as well as a boy. Most of our Dixie Dancers are girls. Our annual Little Miss Des Moines Pageant even proves we love girls. Upon approval of our local Board of Directors, we may soon formally change our title to Boys' and Girls' Club. So our Clubhouse, really offers something for everybody—boys and girls 6 to 18 years old.

The Club will honor any Girls' Club membership card from now until expiration, in the hopes that all local girls will think of us as their home-away-from-home as do hundreds of boys.

LINED UP FOR ACTION, men using old-fashioned muzzle loaders prepare for their first shot.

100 years too late

WITH A GRIMACE OF DISGUST, Charles Berg from Des Moines reloads his gun for another try.

If mountain man Jim Bridger was alive and kicking, he'd have little trouble relating to the group of muzzle-loading shooters assembled at the Paul Bunyan Rifle Range just south of Puyallup.

Called the Plainsmen, a subsidiary of the Paul Bunyan Rifle and Sportsmen Club, they look the part, know how to shoot black powder guns and rib each other after each shot like comrades involved in a springtime rendezvous.

Members of the group hail from Federal Way, Sumner, Tacoma, Milton, Puyallup and Bremerton. They meet once a month to sharpen their shooting skills and just have a good time.

They all shoot either flintlock or cap ignited black powder muzzle loaders that date back to the early 1800's. However, most of the guns are new and have been either made by experts or from kits.

A black powder enthusiast, Art Allen from Federal Way coordinates and conducts the shoots. He sets up a series of activities that include knife and tomahawk throws, 25, 50, and 100-yard target competitions and pistol shooting.

"It's just good entertainment for the whole family," said Allen whose wife, Jean took up the sport in January. "Everybody has a good time."

TO GET INTO the spirit of the adventurous and wild 1800's, many dress the part and try to be as authentic as possible. Some wear western hats with feathers and turquoise, others are dressed in the leather fringed shirt and pants that was a mainstay of trappers who often spent their winters with Indians.

Typical of the 50 shooters, Jim Beals from Roy travels the West Coast throughout the year visiting rendezvous in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. Born 100 years too late, he said, he especially enjoys "teepee creeping" where everyone gets together for tall tales, drinking, eating and dancing. He went to approximately 40 weekend rendezvous last year.

Still others, such as Federal Way resident, Ken Woerle enjoy the shooting "because it's fun and entertaining." A high-powered rifle competitor for the past 10 years, he said he enjoys the camaraderie of "a bunch of guys who try to look bad" but have a good time.

Laughing, he joked with a friend who was giving him a bad time over missing his last shot. "Hey guys," he said. "I think he needs a dry shave." Another guy quipped, "Let's make that with tweezers."

For others, it's a chance to sharpen the skills for hunting season which is just around the corner. Muzzle shooters are often given an extended season in particular designated areas. Otherwise, they say they shoot in the regular season.

Muzzle loaders admit that it's necessary to know what you're doing when hunting because each shot needs to be reloaded by hand and that takes time.

After each shot, it's necessary to measure the powder and pour it down the barrel; put a ball and patch of fabric in the barrel; and use a ram rod to "send it home" to the end of the barrel.

Members also become adept at throwing tomahawks and knives, generally hand made because some of them end "up in the trees, in ditches and lost in the woods."

For Martin Le Tourneau from Milton, it's a chance to really "put yourself into a sport" without having to worry about running to the hardware store all the time. "I love it," he said getting his next shot ready. "It's like a disease."

WHEN YOU GET a bulls-eye, it's time to brag and Ken Woerle takes the chance while reloading to let his friend know about it.

Victorian house turns into family project

by Ann Hagen

When 15-year-old Jim Conger took his first home-made dollhouse to the SeaTac Mall for a miniatures exhibit recently, he said he expected to get razzed by his friends.

But, his friends were impressed. "They just looked at it and said 'wow,'" said young Conger who will be starting high school at Decatur this fall. "I thought I was really going to get it."

However, Jim, who lives with his parents and brother, Rick at 30037 4th Ave. S.S. is quick to comment that "I don't play with them. I only build them."

It's no wonder that his pals were amazed. The undecorated Victorian houses are scaled down models of an actual home in Port Townsend. He's built four in the last few months.

Each house, 45 inches long and 42 inches wide has 12 rooms, two fireplaces, removable walls for ease in decorating or remodeling and many tiny windows.

They take approximately 40 hours to build, have 103 pieces and sell for $300.

A member of the Decatur football team, Jim said he expects to squeeze building time into his busy school schedule and Boy Scout activities and eventually earn enough money to put himself through college.

The working conditions are perfect, said Jim. "I'm only a few steps from the garage; I can work whenever I have the time; and my transportation costs are non-existent."

Though Jim is now the sole builder of the homes that were designed primarily for the adult collector, the production once involved the whole family.

A FEW YEARS AGO, Jim's mother, Joan developed an interest in miniatures. Always interested in crafts and keeping herself busy, she soon realized that there was a market for unusual and interesting doll houses, she said.

At the same time, her husband, Skip who has been confined to a wheelchair for the last seven years due to spinal cord damage following a fall, thought it would make an interesting hobby, said Joan.

To find an unusual but authentic house, Joan went to Port Townsend where she took 100 pictures of Victorian houses. "There's probably 200 in that area that are restored and being lived in," said Joan. Of these, two were for further research. "I wanted to be as factual as I could," she said.

She eventually selected the Frank Hastings house, originally built in the late 1800's. It was nick-named the "German Consulate" because it was said that a consulate member had roomed there in the early 1900's.

Next, she drew a rough draft and developed the house in cardboard, cutting down 14 to 15-foot ceilings to a workable 10 feet. Glad that her first house had been made with cardboard, she said it was too deep and she couldn't get it through a doorway. It was revamped from an awkward 36 inches deep to 27 inches.

Conger, a chemical engineer for Weyerhaeuser, drew up the final plans and made patterns for each of the three-quarter inch plywood pieces. Joan estimates his initial effort at roughly 500 hours.

Though the first house was built start to finish, the production has since been geared up to a production line ease. Now, Jim cuts out four at a time and puts them in pre-labeled locations to save time.

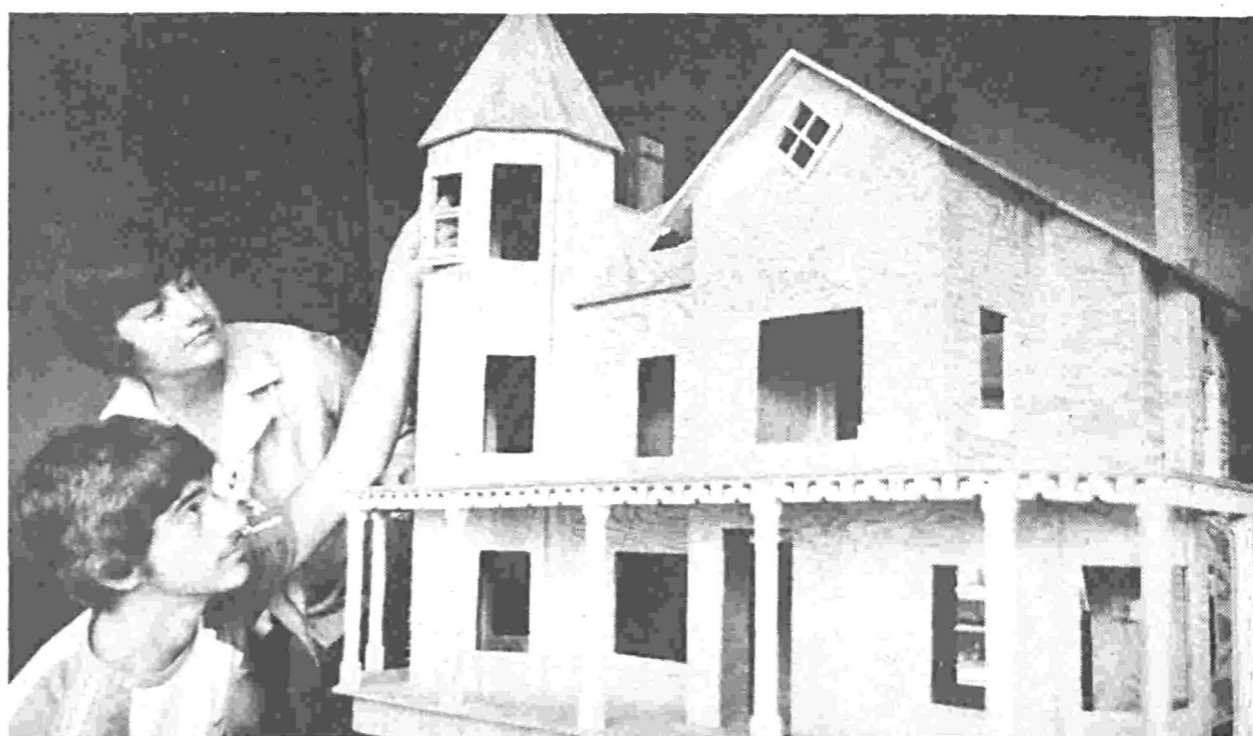

THE HOUSES ARE SOLD on consignment from the Miniature House in the Parkway Plaza near Southcenter. Though currently changing management, they've assured them that they'll have space for more in time for the Christmas rush. Four houses have so far been sold through that outlet.

Not worried about sales, Joan said they haven't really been looking for sales outlets. "They sell just about all we can handle from there."

Although prospects are bright for their undecorated house, "half the fun for the buyer is filling it up with treasures and decorating it," there have been calls for a less expensive, smaller model. Designer mom said she's thinking about it but she's not ready to rush into it just yet.

A heartwarming hobby, Jim and his mother commented about a recent purchaser who claimed that the house "probably saved her life."

While recovering from a severe heart problem, the woman said, she spent the time rearranging, decorating and purchasing Oriental furniture to fill her Victorian house. The family was invited over for dinner to see her accomplishment.

DECATUR SOPHOMORE Jim Conger and his mother, Joan look over a finished Victorian dollhouse before sending to its new owner.

"Sometimes it's expensive, but it's relaxing and entertaining. People enjoy the hobby as a pleasant way to spend their time," said Joan.

For Jim, who has his first $20 bill framed in his garage, it is "just neat to stand back and say 'this is what I did.'"

FW crime report:

Few lawbreakers busy on weekend

King County Police records showed that Federal Way enjoyed one of the more crime-free weekends between Friday and Sunday, with few incidents reported.

Among the crimes were eight burglaries. In none of these did the loot equal or exceed $500.

Police command staff members at the 3rd Precinct, the unit that serves Federal Way, said they thought the quiet weekend was the result of intense police work in the area recently.

Patrol officers, they said, have been stopping and questioning an unusually high number of suspicious persons lately.

Such efforts, called "field interrogations," often discourage criminals from committing burglaries and other sorts of crimes, merely because they know their presence in an area has been noted and recorded.

Sacajawea orients seventh graders

Sacajawea Junior High School will be holding their orientation for incoming seventh graders from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. on Sept. 4.

There will be a general meeting in the cafeteria at 9 a.m. where programs will be explained and students will have the opportunity to meet their teachers.

The students will then be provided with their schedules and a map of the building, so they can proceed, at 15 minute intervals, to each of their classes.

Students who live in the Woodmont, Lake Grove and Mirror Lake areas will be picked up by school buses at each of those schools if they lack transportation. Buses will stop for them between 8:30 and 8:45 a.m. and will return them following orientation.

This program has proved very helpful in easing the transition from elementary to junior high by enabling the students to feel comfortable on their first day in school.

Highline Business and Professional Women (first Wednesday, 7:30 p.m.) Board meeting in homes; (second Wednesday, 6:30 p.m.) Dinner meeting at Black Angus in Burien.

Local man cuts agricultural title

by Nathalie Weber
Federal Way's Ron Grabner is carving a reputation for himself across the United States.

A professional meat cutter and leisure-time raiser of Shetland ponies, 21-year-old Grabner recently was named the Western Regional Star Agribusinessman by Future Farmers of America.

That's quite a title, considering he and only three others in the nation were chosen from among 786 FFA members for the recognition. Now he will go on to compete for the national title in Kansas City, MO., in November.

Despite the notoriety, Grabner is taking the title in stride. "It's an honor and it's certainly not that I don't care," he said. "But I think when I'm at the convention I'll probably get more out of meeting the people there than competing for the title."

Grabner, who was awarded $500 for his regional position, became interested in the agribusiness of meat cutting while he was attending Fife High School. He had watched some of the local cutters operate and, after dabbling in the business, finally began working for K.K. Cattle and Meat Co. where he learned the cutting art.

SOON HE HAD earned enough money to invest in a 14-acre plot of land in Enumclaw, an investment that Grabner describes as a "hobby move." The land soon realized a healthy profit from the firewood it yielded.

Today Grabner owns nine Shetland ponies for a "hobby" and will this fall show them in the Puyallup-Fair Grandstand Show. He also builds the wagons the six-pony hitch will pull, and says he likes to do projects because they're "different." "I like bizarre types of businesses, things that everyone else isn't doing," he said.

And, although he has attained notable success in the meat cutting business, he's not ready to commit himself to a career in the field.

"Meat cutting... I'm not so sure," he said. "Half the guys that go into it at my age say it's their life ambition. But that's why I'm going to school. I want to make sure I find the right job."

SO GRABNER WILL continue studying for his Associate of Arts degree at Highline Community College this fall. He's aiming for a general studies degree with an emphasis on business, but what he will do after that is still to be decided. "I like to socialize. I wouldn't be surprised if I ended up in sales," he said. "But whatever it is, it will probably be agriculture-related."

Grabner said he already has written to the three other contenders for the national title of Star Agribusinessman, the most coveted FFA award. He's not interested in unfriendly competition. "I'll just do my best and have a good time. That's all I want to do," he said.

RON GRABNER, a Federal Way resident, recently achieved one of Future Farmers of America's highest awards when he was named Western Regional Star Agribusinessman. He now will compete with three other regional winners for the national title at the FFA national convention in November.

for the children, the program also includes transportation, medical and dental service, along with hot lunch and a breakfast snack. Special accommodations and help are available to handicapped children enrolled in the program.

The following family income scale is used to determine a child's eligibility for Operation Head Start: two persons in the family is available by calling (single parent and Rose Silva or Betty child) $375 per month; Hoskins at 941-0100.

DECATUR SENIORS Julie Schichtle and Maria Jones compare classes and discover they are registered for the ones they've chosen.

It's back to teachers, books and sour looks

"It's just what we asked for," said Decatur's Julie Schichtle to her friend, Maria Jones, as she looked over her recently acquired six-schedule form for next year. "I guess it's as good as it could be."

There was, perhaps, a feeling of "I wish summer could go on forever" in her voice. Her head down, she looked quietly around the room obviously hoping for a bit of cheer.

Federal Way and Des Moines high school students got a taste of what was coming recently when they were required to come in and pay their fees, get locker assignments and have their student body card picture taken.

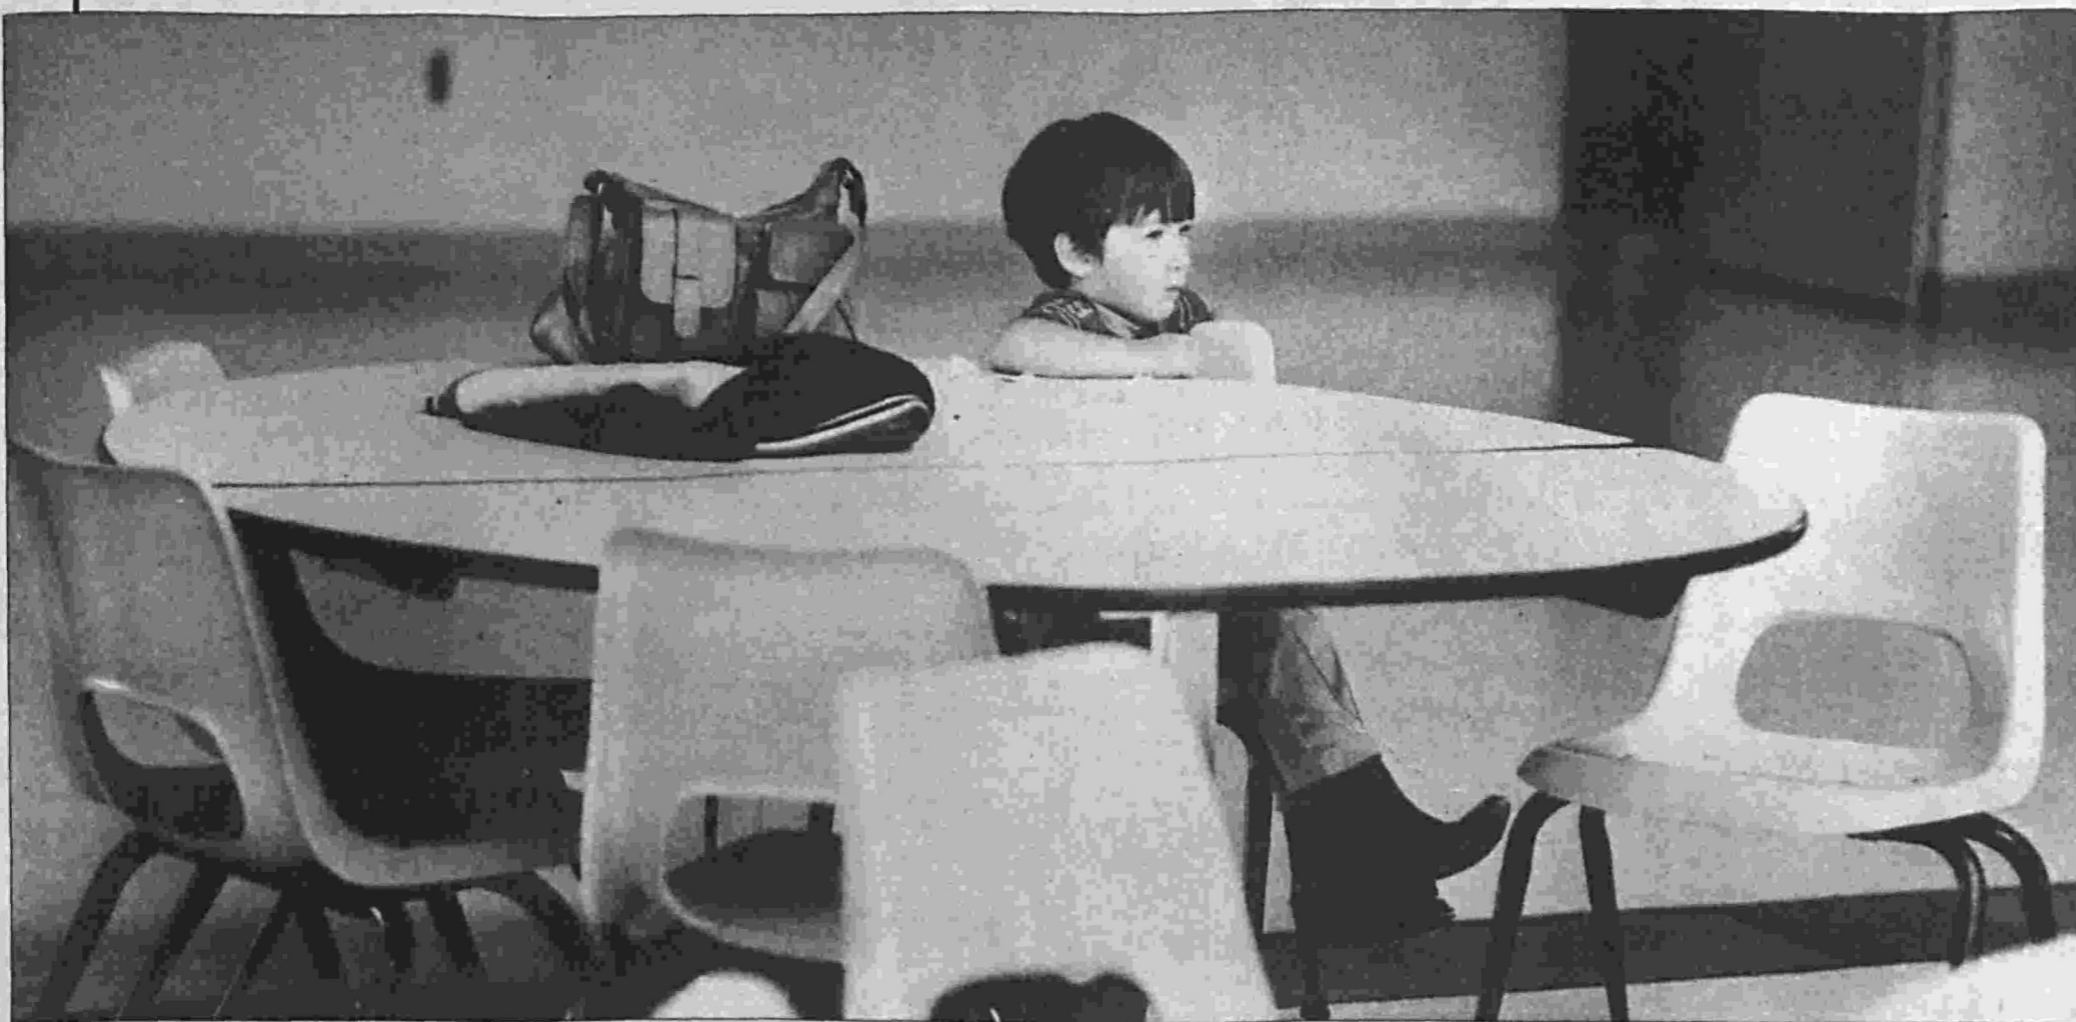

All the busy work is supposed to be taken care of prior to Sept. 7 when it's back to school for all area students.

As students drifted in, they waved toward friends they hadn't seen for a while, often settling in seats to compare classes.

Counselors joked with students, trying to perk up their spirits. "What locker do you want?," asked one registrar of a senior waiting in line. Though he said he really didn't want one, she assured him that seniors get pick of all top lockers. To that, he answered with a jubilant "way to go."

AFTER RECEIVING THEIR locker combinations, Terri St. John and Cathy Olson check them out to see if they work properly.

DEWAYNE "JR" Goldsmith finds a seat and puts his cowboy boots to rest for a while as his sister Sharon registers.

Kings celebrating 50th year

The Doctors Marchant and Grace King, a reception will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. on that date at their home, 34030 21st Ave. S.W., in honor of the occasion. Dr. Marchant King has lived with muscular dystrophy for 43 years, after being told he had only two years to live at the time it was diagnosed. He taught in colleges and theological seminaries throughout his career until his retirement two years ago. Dr. Grace King, who pursued her education and obtained her doctorate after learning of her husband's illness, has also made her career in teaching at the college level.

Harborview providing free shot updates

Harborview Medical Center is providing a free immunization update service to children who will be entering kindergarten through sixth grade this fall. This service is in response to the recently passed state law requiring that all children in this age group must show within 45 days of entering school that they have been adequately immunized or that there is a reason why they should not be immunized. As of Aug. 20, the children's clinic of the Harborview Primary Care Center is open from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday and from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday to provide the service. Parents or guardians should bring their child's immunization certification forms and any other immunization records that are available. If the child has previously received care at Harborview, calling in advance will make it possible for the child's medical record to be available at the time of the visit, thus reducing waiting time. If the child has received medical care elsewhere and the parent does not have the immunization record, the records from that source should be secured before visiting the children's clinic at Harborview. The visit should be postponed if the child has a bad cold, the flu or a fever. A member of the clinic medical staff will review records with the family to decide if additional immunizations are needed and to assist in completing certification forms. If additional immunizations are needed and the child is healthy, they will be given at this time. The immunization service will continue through Nov. 2. For additional information call the Harborview children's clinic at 223-3335.

Working women's commission formed

The Puget Sound Commission of Working Women, an action oriented commission to study the concerns of working women in the Puget Sound area, has been launched. Sponsored by Private Sector Initiatives, a private, non-profit organization, the commission will primarily focus on the 80 percent of all working women who occupy non-professional, non-administrative positions, with specific emphasis on young minority women. William S. Leckenby, chairman of the board of PSI, said, "The purpose of the working women commission will be to improve the social and economic position of women in low paid, low skilled, low prestige jobs; to make educational options more accessible to them, and to enhance their self-esteem." One of the first such organizations in the country, the commission grew out of a "Future of Work" conference sponsored by PSI last spring. Commission members are women and men drawn from business, the State Legislature, labor, media, education and female-oriented occupations. Roberta Barr, a prominent local educator who has been selected to chair the commission, says that a high priority of the group will be the topic of future young women workers. "As an educator, I feel it is important that we investigate the whole area of career education programs for girls of grade, middle and high school ages," Mrs. Barr said. "We must take a long-range view of their role in the work force if we are to successfully meet the challenges of the future." Among the south county members of the group is Jeanne Sweeney, editor of the West Seattle Herald.

Four major bills affect the abused

According to the government relations bulletin of Planning Affiliates, the legislature has approved four bills covering domestic violence that directly affect the concerns of women.

The "Victims of Sexual Assault Act" provides $350,000 for the establishment of an office within the Department of Social and Health Services to coordinate programs concerning sexual assault and to facilitate dissemination of information to personnel in fields relating to sexual assault.

It is the intent of the law that this centralized office will provide education, training and technical assistance to law enforcement, health care personnel and rape crisis centers.

Two bills were passed this session concerning domestic violence. The first, SHB 438, recognizes that there are laws on the books which, if enforced, would significantly mitigate the incidence of domestic violence.

But, it further recognizes that such laws are often not enforced when the people involved in the dispute are or were married, or are involved in a relationship. Therefore, the law underscores the importance of enforcement of existing laws, reporting of cases, advising victims of their right to press charges, etc.

The second bill, SHB 554, relates to domestic violence and appropriates one million dollars to establish shelters for victims — $700,000 to fund administrative costs and undertake specific statewide functions, such as the development of a statewide, toll-free telephone number to provide information and referral services to persons seeking emergency assistance and services.

HB 1207 instructs DSHS to contract with existing day care agencies to organize a two-year demonstration project that provides protection, care and treatment of children who are at risk of being abused or neglected. The children to be served may include ages from birth to 24 months old, and the total project population shall not exceed 30 children concurrently. The legislature approved $250,000 to fund this project.

Couple wed in home

With Bishop Frederick Kopeinig of the Seattle Church of Latter Day Saints officiating, Frances A. McKay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Warrent of 5004 S. 291st St., was married recently to Richard S. Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Gordon of Burton, in a simple ceremony performed at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride wore a gown of white batiste with a lace yoke and satin ribbon trim. Her flowers were white silk rosebuds and white silk and carnations with cascading satin streamers.

The bride's sisters, Rebecca and Kathleen McKay were her attendants. They wore street-length dresses of blue and white floral printed lawn with fitted bodices and flared skirts, along with wrist corsages of white silk roses and blue silk flowers.

Thane Mitchell attended the bridegroom as best man.

Assisting at the reception which followed the ceremony were Kristin Anderson, Pamela Smith, Holly Waters, Ruth Waters, Beth Harnish and Paty Thomas.

The bride attended the University of Washington and Brigham Young University. Her husband graduated from North Seattle Community College and attended the University of Washington.

The couple honeymooned at Mason Lake and are at home in Bothell.

Special guests at the wedding were Stella Smith, great-aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Harry Shaw, grandmother of the bridegroom.

Teen fashions shown are, from the left, prewashed denim bib by OshKosh B'Gosh and Levi's Western flannel shirt; straight leg jeans by Levi and terry top, and drill painter pant by OshKosh and oxford shirt.

Teens in jeans for fall

Teens continue to spell fashion "c-a-s-u-a-l" despite the current shift to dressier looks. And, except in the cushier suburbs, comfort and price are the primary indicators of teenagers' clothing preferences.

Casual is spelled out loud and clear in the "workwear or semi-grub" category. Because teens are into natural fibers and the slightly rumpled look of all-cotton fabrics, genuine painters' pants and bib overalls complete with hammer loop and pencil pocket are "must haves" for back-to-school. Natural drill cloth and blue denim predominate as favorites.

Levi's denim jeans are still number one in popularity for both fashionability and price. And, the boot cut silhouette with a 17-inch leg opening is tops among bottoms. The 14-ounce denim is the best-selling weight.

Sizing problems, once a real "Catch 22" for this in-between age, are now a part of the past. Clothing manufacturers offer a special size classification for the young teen shape. This "student" sizing features both waist and inseam measure beginning with a 25-inch waist and 26-inch inseam.

In tops for teens, terry cloth has really come out of the closet. Improved by poly-cotton blends, terry is a performance fabric whose primary forte is comfort. In the transition to dressy looks, it plays a significant role by conforming to any occasion — basic everyday or dressy sweater and shirt looks.

Plaid flannel shirts will be common in school corridors this fall in updated Western styling with pearl snap buttons. Another classic, the oxford shirt in tatters and other menswear patterns has received encores with its Fall '79 trademark, the new, rounded club collar.

Local girl will study in England

Pamela Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Freeman of 29322 11th Place S., will travel to England on a Bethel College study tour during the 1979 fall semester.

Nine weeks of intensive academic study will take place at Herne Bay Court, a conference center in Kent. Courses on British literature and drama will be taught by Dr. Dan Taylor, assistant professor of literature at Bethel.

In addition to study, the students will make weekend excursions to London and Paris, and will spend one week with a British family.

Students will conclude days of travel on their own. The semester with 12 own.

Rx Ask Your Pharmacist GARY HEFFNER R. Ph.

Question?
Is water from the Dead Sea good for psoriasis? - I.I.

Answer...
No, but the climate at the Dead Sea seems to help sufferers. The secret to success of this so-called climatotherapy involves ultraviolet (UV) skin radiation. In this area the UV radiation has a longer wavelength than that which normally causes sunburn. The characteristic mist over the Dead Sea's surface acts as a filter for burning rays. Other areas of the world which offer a similar benefit are the Canary Islands and Molin on the Yugoslavian island of Hvar.

Now you can get a No-Interest Conservation Loan from Puget Power to keep your electric heat where it belongs.

In the house.

"A loan with no interest? Wow! That should interest you."

Free Home Energy Analysis.

Once you request a loan, a specially trained energy analyst from Puget Power will come to your home, survey it for areas of energy waste, and recommend what improvements should be made. He'll also tell you which items are cost-effective and show you how much you may save on your electric bill by making the improvements.

If you have electric heat, here's an easy way to add insulation, weatherstripping, storm windows or doors and other improvements that will save energy—and reduce your heating costs for the entire life of your home.

Not only that, but your home will be more comfortable to live in. And worth more when you sell it.

You can do it all with a No-Interest Conservation Loan from Puget Power. You pay no interest on the loan. You don't even have to make monthly payments of any kind. Just agree to pay back the principal—without interest—in ten years, or when you sell the house, whichever comes first.

You can apply for a No-Interest Loan if you have electric heat that was installed prior to August 7, 1978. How do you apply? Easy. Just phone your local Puget Power office, or fill out the coupon and mail it to us. That's all it takes to start the ball rolling.

Then, from a list provided by Puget Power, you may select approved contractors to provide firm bids on the total cost of making the recommended improvements. That's the amount you can borrow.

If you agree to have the work done, Puget Power will arrange the financing, notify the contractor and take care of all the details.

Naturally, we can't get out to everyone's house all at once, so there could be a short waiting period for your Home Energy Analysis. But we'll get to you as soon as possible after we get your call or your coupon.

That does interest me!

I'd like to apply for a No-Interest Conservation Loan. Please phone me to set a time for my free Home Energy Analysis.

Succeeding in art the hard way

by Barbara Butts
There is a lot of talent in the Federal Way area that is either undeveloped or unrecognized.

Too often in this area, goes the oft repeated lament, artistic talent is left to flounder on the rocks of chance.

The story of two local artists, a mother and daughter, graphically illustrates the precarious path to success when institutions are not readily available to identify and support the artists among us.

Alix and Lorraine
Denzler, products of Federal Way, are doing well in the art world.
Among other things, they recently had an independent showing of their works in Seattle that netted them about $6,000.

Many talented artists never see that kind of monetary response to their work.

And how did they get to where they are?
They got there, it appears, through a combination of talent, determination and favorable winds — not via a well-organized establishment that encourages local artists.

Alix, a 1961 graduate of Federal Way High School, had to overcome outright discouragement from a junior high school teacher in order to become an artist.

"My teacher said that I just wasn't as good as the other students," she said.

The younger Denzler, who had always wanted to draw, finally learned how to through a strange combination of circumstances.

She had finished a master's degree in Spanish literature at Harvard University in Cambridge and was teaching English in Spain when it happened.

"I worked from 3:30
in the afternoon to 10:30 at night, and I had what I considered the biggest part of the day free," she said.

"And I wanted to learn how to draw."

She practiced frantically to pass a test so that she could be admitted to Escuela Massana, an art school in Barcelona.

"It was a Catch 22," she said. "I had to know how to draw in order to learn how to draw."

But just when she thought she had failed, she was offered a full scholarship to the prestigious school.

"They offered me that scholarship solely on the strength of my degree in Spanish literature from Harvard," she said. "It didn't make any sense."

Alix, who now lives in Seattle, has a respectable listing of shows behind her, including a one-woman exhibit at the Brooklyn Museum, and her share of artistic honors.

She was a resident artist in the artist-in-schools program sponsored by the Washington State Arts Commission from 1975 to 1978 and won first prize in 1975 for a painting entered in a Tacoma Art Museum competition.

Her mother, Lorraine, who has lived in Federal Way with her husband, Jesse, since 1941, discovered art in 1957 when an automobile accident forced her off her job

Succeeding in art ...

Continued from B10 as secretary. Shea master's degree in psychology in 1963.

And although she came late into her art and has worked full time as a psychologist since 1963 (the past 14 years for the Tacoma Public Schools), Lorraine is becoming recognized for her watercolors.

She recently was one of about 55 artists (out of 700 entries) who were selected to exhibit in the Eighth Annual Painting and Sculpture Exhibition '79 at the Tacoma Art Museum.

Their styles are different. The mother's paintings are as substantial as the e a r t h — a characteristic that is echoed in the natural subjects she tends to paint. She tries, she says, to capture freedom with a lot of structure.

Her daughter's works are delicate, whips of lines that are psychological studies, portraits of the soul. The Boeing Company graphic artist attempts to paint how someone feels, she says, not how they look on the surface.

But they are alike in their success.

Alix says her three years of teaching in the state's public schools has left her wondering how any young artists succeed. "Almost uniformly, the people that I thought were great artists were outcasts," she said. "And the students who were in favor with the teachers were the ones that could come with the perfectly drawn dogs, for example.

"Those with creativity, the great designers and artists, they were the problem children in the schools."

Wildlife art winner named

Keith E. Warrick, Lake Stevens, is the winning artist in the Upland Bird Stamp art competition conducted by the Washington Game Department.

Warrick's colorful acrylic of two California quail in eastern Washington habitat will be used as the 1980 Upland Bird Permit. This permit must be purchased by hunters to hunt upland birds, but will also be available to collectors.

The artist, Keith Warrick, and his family are long-term residents of Lake Stevens.

Actors wanted

Auditions for "Annie Get Your Gun" will be held at Seattle's Skid Road Theater from Sept. 10 to 12.

Call for an appointment at 622-0251.

Stevens. Warrick says, "We moved here 30 years ago while it was still pretty wild." His interest and knowledge of wildlife comes partly from his hunting and fishing experiences.

The art, from 46 artists, was judged this week by a jury selected for its artistic and biological knowledge. The Game Department sponsored the competition to stimulate interest in wildlife and wildlife habitat.

Judges in this first annual competition were Gloria Crouse, Olympia, designer/artisan; Tony Angell, Seattle, sculpture/artist and J. Burton Lauckhart, Olympia, biologist/taxidermist.

A number of state and national art competitions are held annually to develop stamps for various purposes. Winning artists have been able to market limited edition prints and signed stamps. These contests have "discovered" relatively unknown wildlife artists nationwide.

Legislators who attended included Sen. Eleanor Lee, Rep. Richard O. Barnes and King County Councilman Paul Barden.

Residents also made name tags, hung decorations and prepared special solos and a special skit to voice their appreciation to the legislators who recently voted to increase the state patient's incidental funds from $25 to $32.50 per month.

Dance class for deaf at SCC

Registration is now open for the new dance class for deaf men and women planned for fall quarter at Seattle Central Community College.

The non-credit course, which starts Sept. 26, will be held in the central campus auditorium from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on Wednesdays and will cost $20. Parking is available and Metro bus service is convenient.

Entitled "Get in Shape with Movement," the class will be taught by Debbie Gilbert, professional dancer who dances with "Whistle Stop," a company which emphasizes improvisational dance and hopes to make dance accessible to all people.

"Dance has the same benefits as traditional exercise, but is more fun than push-ups," Gilbert said. She has designed the course to improve body conditioning and will create dances based on sign language. No dance experience is necessary, and an interpreter will be provided. No tests will be given.

Interested students can contact SCC's registration office at 1701 Broadway, Seattle, 98122, or call 587-3800.

The four local high school football teams — Federal Way, Mt. Rainier, Decatur and Jefferson — are preparing for next week's official kickoff of the 1979 season.

Federal Way will begin its season by hosting Lakes Thursday, Sept. 6, in a 7:30 p.m. game. Jefferson visits highly-touted Puyallup Friday, Sept. 7, for an 8 p.m. contest. Decatur is at home against an always-strong Curtis squad. The Gators and Vikings will kickoff their seasons at Federal Way Stadium at 8 p.m. Mt. Rainier and Highline open their seasons in a game set for 7:30 p.m. Friday at Highline Stadium.

The four local squads will exhibit the knowledge they have learned through pre-season practice sessions during intra-squad games Saturday. Mt. Rainier will scrimmage at Highline Memorial Stadium beginning at 2 p.m. Federal Way, Jefferson and Decatur will be scheduled for two-and-a-half sessions at Federal Way Stadium.

Federal Way will open the day's action at 9 a.m. Jefferson will take the field at 11:30 a.m., and Decatur begins its dress rehearsal at 2 p.m. Spectators are welcome at all the scrimmages free of charge.

Peterbilt wins NW Regional Tournament

by Harry Brooks
The Peterbilt Trucker drove to a National American Softball Association Tournament berth by sweeping through the Northwest Regional Tournament last weekend in Olympia.

Peterbilt will be one of 20 regional winners to converge on Midland, Michigan Sept. 7 for the 1979 Nationals. The Trucker's enters national play for the third straight year, and their coach Tom Wagner is optimistic about his club's chances this round.

"The guys are playing super ball," he said. "All aspects of our game are going well. I think we've got a good shot at taking it this year."

The Trucker were solid in all departments while rumbling through five straight wins at the regionals. The victories upped Peterbilt's overall record to 79-18 and extended its win string to 15 in a row. In the five outings, the Trucker allowed just six total runs, committed only three fielding errors and outhit opponents 38 to 22.

Valuable Pitcher honor after hurling three consecutive shutouts in the Trucker's stretch drive to the title. He had four wins, including an 8-4 decision over Napa, Idaho, in Peterbilt's tournament opener.

Wagner admitted being a bit uneasy before the tourney started. The Trucker came in to Friday's opener after completing the most successful season in their history. Their previous play brought them five tournament championships and a Northwest Region win streak record of 30 straight.

"After a season like we had, you get wary of a possible flop in the regionals, but our players exhibited the same confidence that they had all year."

"I was worried about how we'd do after a three-week layoff, but we came through fine, especially our hitting."

The Trucker pounded 12 hits against Napa to set the tone for the rest of their outings.

They met Portland Ray Bristow in a best-of-three championship final, and Arnold, backed by strong play in the field, kept the Oregonians scoreless in 3-0 and 1-0 wins.

In the first match of the finals, Peterbilt exhibited its ability to jump in front quickly and bold on to the lead with solid defense.

Mike Bishop opened Peterbilt's first at-bat of the final round with a triple to deep left. George Nokes brought him home with a single and moved to second on a passed ball. Two outs later, Butch Batt smacked a hit through the middle scoring Nokes. Successive singles by Bishop, George Nokes and Bill Stewart in the second supplied the Trucker with their victory margin. Arnold spread seven Portland hits and struck out seven while going the distance.

A fifth-inning run proved decisive in the re-match. Portland's Dan Woodman held the Trucker hitless until the fifth frame, but, with one out, Jeff Borrer lined a double down the right-field line. An out later, Roger Bledsoe's single to center chased Borrer home.

PORTLAND had runners stationed and first and second with no outs in the first inning and again in the second. In each case, Arnold notched key strikeouts to escape damage. He put down nine Portland batters over his seven-inning stint.

"Arnold was just super," Wagner said. "He got stronger as the tournament went on, and I think that demoralized our opponents."

The New Zealand-born right-hander hurled his best performance in Peterbilt's 13-inning, 1-0 win over Yakima Pepsi in the third round. Arnold and Yakima Duane Kamphius locked in an awesome dual. Tim Adkinson's second-inning single was the only hit Arnold gave up over the entire 13 innings. He retaliated by stringing 13 straight outs. An infield error put Portland's second runner of the game on base, but Arnold, aided by his fielding mates, retired the next 23 batters. He ended the game with 16 strike outs.

Peterbilt, finally took the contest in the bottom of the 13th. George Bettineski, Batt and Borrer banged consecutive singles. Borrer's hit brought Bettineski home with the game-winner.

PETERBILT used a five-run outburst in the fifth inning to settle its tourney opener against Napa, Idaho. Napa held a 3-2 edge heading into the bottom of fifth. Bishop began Peterbilt's surge with a single and moved to second on Butch Batt's walk. Borrer tied the game by singling home Bishop. Rich Fredrickson took an intentional pass to load the bases, and Greg Van Gaver followed with a base-clearing triple to right-center. Van Gaver ended the rally by coming in on Larry Seabaugh's single.

Again, Peterbilt had to overcome an early deficit to take its second game of the tourney. The Boise Metros touched Peterbilt thrower Robin Cutting with two first-inning runs via a base-on-balls and Jeff Walters' home run. However, Cutting held the Metros scoreless the rest of the way.

The Trucker snatched the lead with three runs in the bottom of the first. Singles by Jim Nokes and Bill Stewart, plus a fielder's choice on Bettineski's grounder and four passed balls supplied the scoring.

THE TRUCKERS scored another trio in the second. Stewart and Jim Nokes each poked triples, and Bledsoe, George Nokes and Bettineski smacked singles during the spree.

Stewart's fourth-inning homer to center capped the game's scoring.

Stewart, a center fielder, and George Nokes, a first baseman, were named to the tournament All-Star team. Peterbilt will attempt to schedule practice games with Yakima Schlitz, which qualified for the National A-Division Tournament by winning the regional for that classification, in preparation for its national bid.

ROGER BLEDSOE, Peterbilt shortstop, evades Boise Metro while making a force play during Saturday's second round of the Northwest Regional Fastpitch Softball Tournament. Peterbilt won this contest 7-2 and went on to take the regional title, which gave the local team a spot in the National Tournament. Suggestions sought for off-road vehicle usage

The deadline for sending suggested changes for the Mt. Baker-Snoqualmie National Forest Off-Road Vehicle Plan to the Forest Supervisor will be extended a week to Friday, Sept. 7.

The current plan was approved in May 1977. Proposed changes are in response to a Presidential Executive Order dated Feb. 9, 1972 and amended May 25, 1977, directing the Forest Service to close trails or areas where ORV use causes considerable adverse environmental effects.

The proposed changes would prohibit winter vehicle use on some 26 miles of trails to provide for cross-country skiing and snowshoeing routes. Other changes would allow motorcycles on some trails after relocation or reconstruction.

Details of the proposed changes and copies of the current plan are available for review at national forest offices in Enumclaw, North Bend, Skykomish, Granite Falls, Darrington, Concrete and Glacier. Loan copies of the plan are available from the Forest Supervisor's office.

Suggested changes or comments about the plan should be sent to the Forest Supervisor, 1601 Mt. Building, Seattle, Washington 98101.

Hunting prospects improved this year

Hunters can look forward to improved prospects for big game in most areas of the state, despite a cold winter in some upland regions and generally poor range conditions prevailing east of the Cascades.

Upland bird production appears to be high in the usually good bird areas, but hunting will be affected by the lack of sugar beet cover in some areas. Waterfowl hunting prospects appear very good in eastern counties, but similar to last year elsewhere except for unfavorable conditions in the Yakima Valley.

Deer production appears good in all regions except where urban sprawl in the Everett-Seattle-Tacoma area continues to encroach on deer habitat. On the Olympic Peninsula and along coastal areas, deer hunting will be good, with many animals in low, brushy areas. Very good prospects are reported in eastern counties, with mule deer populations comparable to last year and excellent hunting for whitetails in the northeast. Deer populations are high in north central counties, but biologists are worried that poor winter range conditions could contribute to deer losses this winter.

As with deer hunting, much of the elk hunting success depends on favorable weather conditions. Elk populations are improved in all areas, with the Roosevelt elk population at an all-time high in most areas. The elk range is expanding in the southwest and hunters are urged to try new areas. Elk hunting on the westside should be better because of the later opening season. The Blue Mountains should be slightly improved. Waterfowl hunting success will depend much on the weather and migration patterns, particularly in the west. Low water levels in the sloughs and ponds of Thurston, Grays Harbor and Pacific counties hurt production, and the low water situation in the Yakima Valley has lessened production there. Despite low water, the Spokane area has one of the best duck populations in years, although goose numbers are down slightly. Duck hunting should be fair in the river bottoms of the southwest and average in duck areas from King County north. A good snow goose season is expected on Skagit and Port Susan Bays.

Until fall rains arrive, a high fire hazard exists over much of the state and hunters are warned to be careful with warming fires. Watch for signs on fire regulations on all huntable lands. Game Department workers are contacting landowners to make lands available under the "Feel Free To Hunt" program, and hunters should be sure to respect landowner's rights. A little courtesy and care now could help save lands for recreational use in the future.

Littering, off-road travel, careless shooting and poaching continue to be headaches for landowners and the Game Department. Lawful hunters can help insure their own future success by helping to catch violators. This season, as always, a great deal depends on weather conditions and we can only hope for a little more favorable weather than last year.

Grouse production appears similar to last year, although sage grouse numbers in the Columbia Basin have been hurt by the dry conditions. Forest grouse brood sightings have been better at higher elevations. Both ruffed and blue grouse hunting should be slightly improved. Grouse production appears similar to last year, although sage grouse numbers in the Columbia Basin have been hurt by the dry conditions. Forest grouse brood sightings have been better at higher elevations. Both ruffed and blue grouse hunting should be slightly im-

DNR logs record income

Land management practices of the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) resulted in a record income of $153,303,015 in fiscal year 1979, an increase of $36,128,106 over 1978.

"This is money that did not have to come from taxpayers' pockets," said Commissioner of Public Lands Bert L. Cole. "Yet it is being used to help build schools, fund colleges, support county governments, maintain the state capitol and enhance state owned lands for future use and enjoyment."

Cole pointed out that the DNR's management has resulted in increased annual income to the trusts at a steadily increasing rate. "But we are paying stricter attention to environmental concerns than ever before. This is a very significant increase. It shows that good business and protection of the environment can work hand in hand. This has always been the approach of the Department of Natural Resources, and I hope it always will be."

Cole said the increase was largely due to a stronger timber market, both foreign and domestic. Timber sales produced $141,402,519 of the annual income. That compares to $107,906,673 generated from timber harvest in FY 1978.

Leases, rents, permits and similar sources accounted for $7,229,812 this fiscal year.

25 YEARS NEW!
Our 25th Anniversary

Plan may save White R. salmon

The spawning run of White River spring chinook will be saved if a plan recently set into motion succeeds.

The White River spring chinook make up the last remaining wild-stock spring chinook run in southern Puget Sound. That run, which once boasted of several thousand fish, now includes only about 100 chinook each year.

In a recent meeting, officials from the Washington Department of Fisheries and Game, Army Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, as well as representatives of the Muckleshoot and Puyallup tribes discussed the White River spring chinook run. Bill Young, a Fisheries biologist who attended the meeting, said everyone agreed that the run has reached dangerously low levels and that something must be done immediately to protect the stock from further reduction.

As part of the resulting plan to save the run, biologists from the Washington Department of Fisheries collected most of this year's chinook from the White River to begin an egg bank. The hatched eggs will be reared at Minter Creek Salmon Hatchery and then released from Hupp Springs Salmon Hatchery in 1981.

Each new generation of White River spring chinook will return to Hupp Springs to spawn. Young said the egg bank should increase each year, eventually providing enough chinook to continue the run at Hupp Springs and reestablish the White River run.

In addition, the National Marine Fisheries Service is rearing about 900 White River spring chinook to maturity in salt-water pens at Manchester. The eggs of the mature chinook and those of their future generations will be taken and reared. If successful, this effort could greatly facilitate the rehabilitation of this valuable stock.

The dean of docs

When you have worked 46 years at a job and can count the days missed on the fingers of one hand, you've given your all.

Dr. Alex Grinstein, dean of race track physicians, was at Longacres Race Track the first day they started Thoroughbreds, Aug. 3, 1933. He has missed only three days since then.

He is a graduate of the University of Washington and Northwestern Medical Schools. He was practicing at age 23 with an office in the Cobb Building (Seattle) where he has had an office for 55 years, all on the same floor of the building. He was born in Denver, Colo.

Dr. Grinstein served as team physician for the University of Washington varsity teams and the Seattle Supersonics. He is an authority on the care and conditioning of race jockeys and has served on the Board of Directors of the Providence Hospital for many years.

Dr. Grinstein was one of the prime movers in establishing the new conditioning and rehabilitation center for jockeys at Longacres. It is the best of its kind in the United States (more later).

The Grinsteins have five children, three married daughters and two sons. One son, Gerald, a Harvard Law graduate is Assistant Secretary-Treasurer of the Washington Jockey Club. He was formerly an administrative assistant to Senator Warren G. Magnuson. The second son, William, is a feasibility advisor on economics in Seattle.

Thompson throws miscues

While it may have been true that two costly mistakes by Cincinnati Bengal rookie quarterback Jack Thompson cost the Bengals a victory against the Chicago Bears last weekend, what many of the local papers did not report was that head coach Homer Rice was still mighty impressed with Thompson's ability.

"Jack made mistakes," Rice said, "but he still impresses me with the way he comes back. He doesn't hesitate and comes fighting back everytime and that's what you have to do to be a good quarterback in this league."

Thompson, a graduate of Evergreen High School and Washington State University, fumbled deep in Bear territory early in the fourth quarter and later threw an interception that was returned for the winning touchdown.

"I did everything a rookie could possibly do wrong," Thompson said. "But I am learning a lot."

Thompson finished the contest 13-22 for 205 yards and two interceptions.

Outdoor tips and tales

C. Herb Williams 1320 Heatherwood E. Tacoma, Wash. 98406

A reader writes — Dear Herb: I'm confused about this steel shot-lead shot business. It isn't a problem where I hunt, but I can see it coming. What are the differences in the two kinds? Wondering about Steel

Dear Wondering: I'm with you. This is a highly confusing subject. And as you point out, the use of steel shot instead of lead will continue to grow until lead is almost forgotten. The first thing to understand is that the steel shot on the market today is far different from that made several years ago when the first lead shot ban appeared. They've improved both the shot and the shells so there isn't the terrible barrel damage to recent model guns that there was at first. Older guns and especially some of the fine doubles still can't handle steel.

To see how steel shot performs in the field, we need to take a look at some technical tests, then translate them into hitting birds.

One of the most important technical bits is that a load of steel shot weighing an ounce and an eighth leaves your barrel at a speed well over 100 feet per second faster than the speed of a standard lead load of about the same volume, or an ounce and a half. (I won't try to convert these figures to metric. They were done with ounces, feet, etc.)

This velocity evens out at about 40 yards, so within that range, which is the range at which most birds are shot, the steel has a higher velocity.

Along with this greater velocity is our second technical fact, that the steel has a tighter pattern. The steel will put 10 percent more pellets in a 30-inch circle at 40 yards than will the lead, and the tighter pattern continues on past 40 yards.

From the practical viewpoint this means that with steel you have to change your habits of how far to lead birds. Since the steel is traveling faster, your old habits would tend to send your shot string in front of a bird in ranges under 40 yards. But since the speed of the steel drops off compared to lead beyond 40 yards, your old habits would make your shot tend to fall behind the bird.

The tighter pattern means either you have to shoot better or shift your choke to more wide open from what you've used.

One final bit of practical advice is that hunters get better results with steel if they go to a larger size. Thus, if you liked to shoot size six in lead, go to size four in steel. These are some of the practical applications. I hope they help.

Meet a Hawk

By Terry M. Sell
By the time you read this, Larry Polowski may be a trivia question answer. On the other hand, he may not.

Polowski, a hefty young man, was at this writing a Seattle Seahawk linebacker, a seventh round draft-choice out of Boise State in Idaho. But he was also one of eight linebackers in the Seahawks' preseason camp, which ended last Friday night with a 55-20 trouncing of the San Francisco 49'ers in the Kingdome. The Seahawks drafted two other linebackers with bigger names - Michael Jackson of the University of Washington and Joe Norman of Indiana, in the third and second rounds, respectively.

Polowski enjoys 'Hawk tryout -- win or lose

The 'Hawks already returned their starting trio of 'backers, plus two reserves proven in battle. Which put Polowski in perhaps the tightest situation in camp. "It's been pretty good, there hasn't been any bickering," said Polowski, who added he expected worse. "I think I've done the best I can do," added the 6-3, 235 three-time all-Pick Sky conference pick. "I put my talents out on the line." Polowski saw plenty of action at left linebacker during the Seahawks' stomping of the Californian visitors. He got in on one tackle. "It's gone pretty good. It's a pretty good situation. More enthusiastic then I thought it would be." Polowski is 15 hours away from a degree in criminal justice at Boise State, where his wife and young son, two-week old Robert James, await him. "It was pretty competitive," he said of playing in the NCAA Division I-AA Big Sky conference. "It's a lot tougher than a lot of people think. I got a lot more playing time at Boise than I would have anywhere else."

Polowski was smiling and philosophical about everything. A quarterback and fullback in high school in Yucca, Calif., he wasn't heavily recruited. Two other schools besides Boise recruited him. One of them wanted him for football and baseball, but the student body voted football out of existence, which sent Polowski to Idaho. There he became a linebacker, since he wasn't quick enough to be a running back and his arm was too slow to be a quarterback.

Training camp, which makes even leathered-veterans cringe just a little, didn't bother him either. "You know you're going to go twice a

Friday night there

The pro game, he says, is faster. "Everything's just a grade higher." Special teams, he says, are crazy. "It takes a different breed of person. But it's better than sitting on the bench." Seahawks' coach Jack Patera admits that the linebacking corp is tough this year, but a trade for the one or two hopefuls that don't make it "depends on what other people think of them."

Most speculation by the press has been that one or two linebackers will be among those to go. Sometimes, a promising player will be picked up by another team, but Polowski says "It's a little late for that."

But Larry Polowski said he had a good time with the Seahawks, whether or not that time continues to expand. If he doesn't make the final cut, "I'll be disappointed, but not shattered," he concluded.

'Cinderella' Westside third in region

By Terry M. Sell
"A bunch of guys named Joe," as Westside Federal manager Bob Beyers puts it, came through with aplomb and finished third in the Northwest Regional Major League fastpitch softball tournament last weekend in Olympia.

Westside entered the tournament the darkest of dar horses, with a 4-32 record to its credit in the Norwest League. But the Feds had been a tournament team all year long, and the sputtering Westside machine belched nearly stealing the whole show out from under everyone's noses.

Second on Hanson's ground ball error, Sewell singled to score Melton, and Fred Witham walked to load the bases. Tiroux reached first on an error to score Hanson, Sewell came home on a wild pitch, Abel singled to score Witham, and Jones bled in the final two runs for a 6-2 win. Bristow finally knocked plucky

Westside out of the 26-team, double elimination affair, before succumbing themselves to Peterbilt Western in the finale. The Feds took a 1-0 lead in the top of the fourth. Sullivan reached first on an error, advanced on Nokes' single to center, and scored on Tiroux's two-strike single. But Bristow got one run in the bottom of the fifth, and bunched three hits and two errors in the sixth to win. "Both times against Portland we let them get away," lamented Beyers, though he didn't sound too terribly displeased. "We were hoping for an all-Seattle final," said Nokes, "but Portland had a little bit more than we could take. "We've always been a tournament team," he continued. "The team just played good defense, hit the ball well. It was just a super weekend." "It just proves that with all that adversity we had the team never gave up," Beyers concluded. "We had a real happy family this year. A real happy ending."

"Everybody's saying 'who's that?'" laughed tournament Most Valuable Player Jerry Nokes, who led his mates on rampage through the ranks before finally succumbing to Ray Bristow of Portland in a semi-final game, 4-1.

Tim Sullivan singled and scored to tie it in the fifth, and singles by Rod Melton, Sewell, Bob Abel, a passed ball, Lee Jones double and Nokes' single produced a 10-6 victory. Saturday ended with a game against season-long nemesis Woodinville Lumber, who dug out a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the third.

That was the Lumberman's mistake, and with a lead to chase after, singles by Tiroux and Melton tied it up. Sullivan doubled in the top of the fifth, and Lee Jones laced an inside-the-park homer into the rightfield corner to give the Feds a 4-2 decision.

Lee shut out Boise, Idaho Coors 2-0 on five hits, o the strength of Nokes' single, Hanson's double and Vaughn Jensen's single in the second inning.

Another longview tough nut, Longview Boondox, was Westside's final victim of the tournament. The Feds rapped out a 6-2 victory after trailing 2-0 after four 1/2 innings.

Nokes singled to start the sixth-inning rally, with Melton coming in to run for him. Melton went to

Needless to say, he was named to the all-tournament team and was awarded the coveted Ralph Gynes inspirational award. John Hanson made the all-star lineup for the second straight year, as a utility infielder. Hanson had a .368 batting average, with three RBIs and a home run. Nokes batted an even .500, with four RBIs and five runs scored.

Scored even more impressive was Westside's team effort, coming from behind in four of their five wins. In both of Westside's losses (twice to Ray

Flyers fall on late game runback and field goal

A 20-yard field goal by Bob Puhek, with less than a minute to play, enabled the Spokane Goldenhawks to eke out a 16-14 win over the Burien Flyers in a contest played last Saturday night at Joe Albi Stadium in Spokane.

The Flyers scored what seemed to be the winning points late in the contest, but a 79-yard kickoff return by Spokane's Jim Fisk set up the winning field goal by Puhek.

The game, witnessed by 10,066 spectators, the largest in Northwest International League history, started out as a defensive battle with the Goldenhawks picking up the only score in the first half.

Flyer quarterback Duane Akina was intercepted, at his own 27-yard line, on the second play of the game by cornerback Jeff Sheffield. Sheffield returned the interception down to the 10-yard line. Three plays later, fullback Robert Crow scored from seven yards out. The conversion by Chuck Diedrick was good.

The Spokane ballclub continued to dominate the contest until the Flyers made some adjustments in the second quarter.

"Both teams played some fine defense in the first half," Flyer General Manager Phil Pompeo said. "There was some excellent tackling and just some good all-around execution by both clubs."

The Goldenhawks took the opening kickoff to start the second half, but an excellent hit by Don Curley jarred the ball loose from the Spokane ball carrier and Bob Green pounced on the loose ball at the Goldenhawk 17 yard line.

The play of the game came when, with the Flyers faced with a fourth and one on the eight yard line, Akina faked the handoff in the backfield and rolled left hitting a wide open Larry Stewart in the left corner of the end zone. The extra point by Buddy Patnode knotted the score at 7-7.

Late in the third quarter, the Goldenhawks put together a drive that resulted in a 30-yard pass from quarterback Mike Wells to wide receiver Randy Cameron for the touchdown. The score was made possible mainly on the mix-up of the Flyer defense.

"We gave them the score," Pompeo said. "We had two mistakes and only 10 men on the field."

The conversion was unsuccessful and the Flyers went into the final quarter trailing 13-7.

With five minutes left in the contest, the Flyers started a drive at their own 30-yard line. Led by the passing and running of Akina, the Flyers moved the ball all the way down to the Spokane 35. Faced with a third and ten, Akina went to split end Ron Wold in the end zone. The pass was incomplete, but a pass interference call on the defense gave the Flyers a first and goal at the one. On the very next play, running back Mark Lovett took the handoff from Akina but fumbled. In a mad scramble for the loose ball, center Chuck Hairell recovered for the touchdown and, according to Pompeo, no one knew who had the ball.

"There was a scramble for the ball and a pileup," Pompeo said. "Then as the referees were unfolding the bodies looking for the football, there was Hairell standing in the end zone with the ball. There was a lot of confusion at first and a question of whether or not they were going to allow the score, but they finally did." The extra point by Patnode was good and the Flyers seemed well on their way to their second win in three tries since there was only 1:58 remaining in the contest and they were leading 14-13.

Then disaster struck. Jim Fisk took the ensuing kickoff at his 11-yard line and proceeded to ramble 79 yards to the Flyers 10 yard line. Three plays later Puhek was successful from 20 yards out with the winning points. The play came with only 24 seconds left in the contest. "Spokane's a good ballclub, take nothing away from them," Pompeo said. "In the first half their passing game wasn't hurting us but their rushing game was and that forced us to change from an odd front to an even front early in the second quarter. But even in defeat, we played better than in the past and you have to remember that we have five starters that are out with injuries and that has to hurt."

The contest was highlighted by the return to action of player coach Mike Croty. The second year Flyer coach played one series of downs early in the contest at safety and had an interception.

The Flyers will return to Highline Stadium this Saturday night to tangle with the Kitsap County Chiefs. Game time is scheduled for 7:30.

FLYER LINEBACKER Rob Gehring literally flew himself airborne as he closed in on Spokane quarterback Mike Wells in last Saturday's contest in Spokane. Gehring's efforts were only second best as tackle Tim McCullough was credited with the tackle. A 79-yard kickoff return by Jim Fisk, late in the game, resulted in a 20-yard field goal by Bob Puhek and a 16-14 win over the Flyers, who are now 1-2 in league play. — photo by Sandy Burrill

Dan Doornink, the newest member of the Seattle Seahawks, could prove to be one of the best acquisitions made by the Seahawks via the trade route in their short four year existence. The former Washington State Cougar was drafted in the seventh round by the New York Giants last year.

In his rookie year he piled up 306 yards in 60 carries and caught 12 passes for 66 yards. On his very first carry as a professional, Doornink scored a touchdown against the Dallas Cowboys.

Many people who observed Doornink during his college days at WSU felt he was not pro material. There was talk that he was not overpowering enough as a fullback, was not blessed with great speed and had a tendency to get injured quite easily.

But his performance in New York dispelled that idea. All indications from the Giant camp were that Doornink would be the starting fullback. The Seahawks never thought Doornink would be made available and they were definitely excited when the opportunity came knocking.

According to Seahawk coach Jack Patera, Doornink has excellent body control and excels at catching the football coming out of the backfield. His 105 receptions for 968 yards at WSU attest to that. Patera summed up Doornink as "a quality football player." And for a man that seems to cherish his draft picks like Patera does, Doornink may be a blessing in disguise for the Seahawks.

Four area athletes currently man the roster of the University of Washington football team. Former Glacier standout Randy Bartelt, now in his sophomore year, is working out at the split end position while another Glacier graduate, Bret Gagliardi, has been tabbed as the number one strong side linebacker. Paul Wagner, formerly of Tye, is now in his second year as a member of the Purple and Gold and is holding down the fullback position behind Tyler. Chris Pallis, a junior out of Kennedy High School, is the fourth area athlete and he is currently occupying the the split end position with Bartelt.

The Highline Soccer Association, which covers the area between Federal Way and West Seattle on the west side of Interstate 5, will involve about 3,000 kids in its fall soccer program. The program will have approximately 200 teams available to all boys and girls between the ages of 7 and 18.

The West Highline Club, which represents the immediate Burien area, will have 32 teams which will take in 520 youngsters. The entire Highline Soccer Association will open its season with a jamboree at Valley Ridge on Sept. 8-9. They will occupy four or five fields from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. for the two day jamboree which will allow some 180 teams to participate.

In summer, an oyster's thoughts turn to...

As the waters of the Puget Sound begin to warm in the summer sun, an oyster's thoughts naturally turn to romance. It's nearly time to spawn.

Almost like eavesdroppers, biologists from the Washington Department of Fisheries watch the proceedings each day, looking for signs that the oysters are about to spawn.

While the scenario may not be as romantic as candlelight and soft music, oysters do have their favorite conditions under which they will spawn.

Chris Jones, one of the Fisheries biologists keeping track of those conditions, said oysters seem to spawn when the water is warm (about 68 degrees). Of course, the success of the spawning season depends on the abundance of food present as well.

Jones said the biologists don't yet have a way to predict exactly the time of spawning. The best they can do is determine if the oysters are in "spawning condition." That is, when all the conditions necessary for spawning seem to be present.

"The rest is up to the oysters themselves," Jones said.

Each day, Jones and other biologists go out on Hood Canal to measure water temperature and the amounts of the oysters' food, and plankton that is present.

formation temperature in two ways. First, he takes the surface temperature of the water with a simple thermometer. Then he lowers a "bathythermograph" (BT) into the water. This device measures temperature in relation to depth. As the BT goes deeper, it records the degree of temperature change. The deeper the warm water, the more likely the oysters' setting season will be successful.

Fisheries biologists use a very simple method of determining the level of food for oyster larvae present in the water. They lower a white, metal disc, attached to a rope, into the water until it can no longer be seen. They then measure the length of rope needed to lower the disc to that depth. The less rope needed, the more abundant the plankton and, therefore, the more likely the oysters will spawn successfully.

Commercially, oyster growers are the major recipients of the oyster spawning information, Jones said. As soon as the growers are alerted to the possibility of a spawning period, they begin preparations for the time known as the "oyster set."

During this period, usually three or four weeks after being released, free-swimming oyster larvae settle down, or "set," and permanently attach themselves to hard, clean surfaces.

The commercial harvest of oysters in Washington accounts for about 10 percent of total U.S. oyster production. The annual harvest in the state is valued at over $15 million.

TOM WAGNER, a Federal Way resident, has piloted the Peterbilt Western fastpitch softball team to a 79-18 record this season, including the Pacific Northwest Regional title last weekend.

Wagner, a former All-American third baseman, managed the Truckers to five tournament championships this year. Peterbilt broke a Northwest record with its 30 straight wins in one stretch.

Peterbilt and Wagner will advance to the national fastpitch tournament in Midland, Mich., Sept. 7-9.

Other noteworthy achievements:

TREVOR CHALCRAFT and LARRY REYNOLDS recently put their athletic skills to use for a good cause. The two 12-year olds played catch with a baseball for 24 consecutive hours to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The pair, both of whom will be seventh-graders at Lakota Junior High this fall, secured pledges from neighbors and friends, mostly from the Twin Lakes area, and then went to work. The youths took 10-minute breaks on the hour and five-minute breaks on the half hour. Near the end, according to Trevor, "The hours seemed like five hours."

The pair finished their marathon early Thursday morning, and then tried to catch up on their sleep until 4 p.m. At that time, the boys joined their Southwest United Cobra teammates for a soccer game.

The project, which Trevor and Larry organized entirely themselves, raised $130.80 for muscular dystrophy.

Fisheries working to save lingcod

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. Such has been the case for two biologists from the Washington Department of Fisheries.

Ray Buckley and Jim Walton have experimented twice to save the lingcod population in Puget Sound since 1978, but the lingcod haven't been cooperating. This summer, they made a third attempt.

The lingcod population in Puget Sound plunged to a dangerously low level a few years ago. Walton speculated that most of the decline was due to overfishing of the species by both commercial and sport fishermen.

Alarmed by the decline, the Fisheries Department enacted a moratorium on all lingcod fishing in Puget Sound and Hood Canal, to be evaluated at the end of two years. The moratorium began in April of 1978.

The Department also reduced the daily recreational bag-limit on lingcod taken from the Strait of Juan de Fuca from three fish to two, and closed that area to all lingcod fishing during spawning season.

Since that moratorium was enacted, Buckley and Walton have tried several experiments to determine what can be done to bring the population back up to a level that can support sport and commercial fishing. Their efforts have been met with mixed success.

In the winter of 1978, Buckley and Walton tried transplanting adult lingcod and their eggs from the Strait of Juan de Fuca, where they are abundant, to dwindling spawning grounds on Hood Canal. The lingcod survived the transfer with no problems. Local residents noticed some SCUBA divers at the transfer site the next day, however.

Further investigation of the site revealed that the transplanted lingcod egg clusters had been removed from the rocks, leaving them as open targets for predators. The adult lingcod were not present.

So Buckley and Walton went back up to the Strait of Juan de Fuca the following winter. They brought back more lingcod to Hood Canal; but again, the lingcod disappeared. Buckley said this time the loss was apparently due to the intense territorial response of adult lingcod. Initial tag return information shows a migration of the lingcod back to where they were originally taken.

This summer, the biologists returned to the Strait of Juan de Fuca for the third time, fishing for more lingcod. This time they took juvenile lingcod instead of adults. Buckley said it's easier to capture large numbers of young lingcod than it is to take adults, and the territorial response is not nearly as strong in the juveniles.

The 500 lingcod they captured this time are now being raised in pens at Fox Island in Puget Sound for about five or six weeks to provide protected growth and increased survival. The biologists will later release the fish near known lingcod spawning grounds which are presently depleted.

According to Walton, nothing is known about the process except what he and Buckley have been learning. Most of their knowledge about lingcod enhancement must, therefore, come through experimental trial and error.

"Everything is experimental right now," Buckley said. "The lingcod enhancement program will still depend on an abundant supply of lingcod from areas outside of Puget Sound and on the transplanted lingcod's reproduction in Puget Sound. The program will also depend on proper management of the stocks when they reach fishable levels.

Walton said they determine the relative abundance of the lingcod spawning population levels by taking egg-mass counts at known lingcod spawning grounds and by capturing juveniles. Because not all of the grounds are known, it is difficult to estimate exactly the number of fish in the spawning population.

At the end of two years, the Washington Department of Fisheries will evaluate the lingcod enhancement program. The moratorium may have to be extended to that the transplanted fish as well as lingcod native to Puget Sound have time to reach maturity and spawn.

Seniors win fight for their mini-bus

by Carolyn Logan

When county funds were cut for the Highline Senior Center minibus last year, the elderly embarked on a fundraising drive to pay for the van themselves.

Penny by penny, they finally collected the $4,600 necessary to buy the leased van, Senior Citizen Center Director Nancy Copeland announced this week.

The 14-passenger van gives the elderly the gift of mobility. Drivers pick up senior citizens at their homes, giving them a ride to the grocery store, to the dentist and doctor, to the bank for cashing Social Security checks, and to the senior center for meals and recreation.

It's easy to see why they were reluctant to part with their "wheels to the world."

Riders on a shopping trip recently told why they found the van invaluable.

Bill Davis, an 84-year-old Burien man who "The van ride is the only way I can get groceries. It's too far to walk to the store."

DAVIS and others apparently can't rely on taxis for trips. Several riders scoffed at taxi drivers, saying they refuse to transport the elderly home from grocery stores.

"We have a definite day to go shopping with the van," added Lillian Waterman, 72, Burien. "so we don't have to depend on our neighbors to pinch-hit (a ride)."

Don't forget the benefit of having enjoyable company on the rides, chimed in Effie Smith, 73, Burien.

Another van enthusiast, senior aide Pat Sweeney, added that the van is also used for outings, perhaps to collect rocks or driftwood.

"Don't forget the most important thing about having the van," reminded Doyle Davis, 72, West Seattle. "Some senior citizens can't even get out of their homes without rides from the van."

Helping the homebound even more is the next fundraising goal. "Our next goal is to raise money for a lift for the handicapped so we can lift wheelchairs into the van. Then fragile, homebound wheelchair seniors can come to the center," Ms. Copeland explained.

BUT RAISING money isn't easy.

Van proceeds from the center's Easter sale represented lot of $1.25 sales of a knitted bunnies, knitted chicks and $1.50

"Our biggest fundraiser was the sale of handmade Easter chicks and bunnies," Ms. Copeland reported. "We also held rummage sales, swap meets and the Christmas bazaar."

"I'm very proud that fellow seniors, who use private transportation instead of the van, wanted to help raise money, too."

She especially praised Alfred Trucks, a Burien man in his 70s who buys small appliances from thrift stores, rejuvenates the appliances, then sells them, donating the profit to the van fund.

Efforts by Trucks and others also helped pay for $183 per month lease payments since last December (when funds were cut) and for gas bills of about $110 per month.

That gas fuels the van from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays. Those who want a free ride should call 244-3686, 24 hours in advance for reservations.

Riders must live within these boundaries: Roxbury Street on the north; South 160th Street on the south; Highway 99 on the east; and Puget Sound on the west.

Lessons we should not forget

With the 50th anniversary of the 1929 stock market crash coming up, the following are my observations of the darkest investment economic era of the century to date.

In many respects the late 1970s have been a reversal of the late 1920s. A few examples serve to illustrate this point. In the late 1920s foreign countries were asking the United States to support their currencies by inflating the dollar. Today, it's the United States dollar that's in trouble and the foreign countries are being asked to provide the support.

In the 1920s more than 40 percent of all families lived on farms and the world had huge agricultural surpluses. Wages were low, labor unions were weak, and the middle class had no idea of the wonders of installment debt. Compared to today most Americans lacked both the desire and the means to go deeply into debt. So in 1927 the government made a "costly error." Credit was expanded to increase the demand for imports (when it should have been restricted). There was little impact on wholesale prices (due to huge surpluses) and there was little impact on consumers. Consequently, much of the excess money flowed into stock speculation creating the largest debt financed stock market boom in history. As a result, when the credit expansion stopped in 1929 we found ourselves with an over-valued stock market, and a surplus of productive capacity that only satisfied itself 10 years later by the demands of World War II.

Today, we're a "consumer" society. Practically everyone desires a high standard of living. We're almost completely dependent upon imports of oil and other raw materials. Our use of debt has endured longer than ever before. The result is a severe impact on wages and prices as the government expands credit, and this excess purchasing power flows primarily to the consumer sector of the economy rather than to the production sector.

Because of the massive diversion of funds to consumption, the stock market, which represents the ownership of productive assets, could now be as greatly under-valued today as it was over-valued in 1929.

Recently, the Federal Reserve has been tightening interest rates, and trying to slow the rate of growth of the money supply. When this was done in late 1929, the result was a halt in runaway speculation, collapse of the banking system and collapse of the stock market.

However, we don't expect a dramatic crash in stocks this time. The stock market today bears little resemblance to the house of cards Wall Street erected in the 1920s. This time if there is a bad recession it will severely impact the consumer sector of the economy.

In non-industrial areas of the country this could affect the consumer most in residential real estate. I don't see this as a threat to us in Federal Way because of our industrial base (i.e. Weyerhaeuser, Boeing, PACCAR, Heath Tecna, and a number of small manufacturers).

As we move toward 1980, our shortage of energy dominates our thoughts. This acute problem has been building for many years. Now we recognize it as chronic. One of the major causes of this problem is our encouragement of consumerism (to have it now) at the expense of saving and investing for the future.

BOB DAVENPORT, manager of the new Twin Lakes Straw Hat will be on hand at the restaurant's grand Thursday. Proceeds from the first day will go to Festival in the Forest fund.

New restaurant active in community affairs

The new Straw Hat Pizza restaurant, opening tomorrow in the Twin Lakes shopping center, has a commitment to community involvement and will demonstrate it by donating its first-day proceeds to the Festival in the Forest fund.

The restaurant's management said it believes in taking an active part in the growth and development of the community to which it belongs as a member. Contributing to the performing arts center is just one example of the business' interest. The Straw Hat also sponsors sports activities and provides community clubs and groups with tours of the restaurant's operations, while offering group discounts on food and beverages.

The interior is decorated with natural wood, plants, macrame wall-hangings and a garden patio. There are two separate dining areas for adults and families with children. Old-time movies and electronic games are provided for entertainment.

Food Horizon's, Inc. is the franchise of Straw Hat Pizza restaurants in Western Washington and Oregon which has plans to build 40 to 50 restaurants in the next five years. Two Straw Hat restaurants are already located in Overlake and Bellevue. Owners are Woody Iqbal and Stan McKee. Bob Davenport is manager of the "Twin Lakes Straw Hat."

Job for one?

NP police chief finalists applauded

by Pat Jenkins

Four finalists for the job of Normandy Park police chief received rave reviews after a meeting with city council members and city officials last Thursday.

The four, all from out of state, visited the city for formal interviews with an oral review board and, later in the day, informal rap sessions with the council and City Manager Doug Schmitz at the latter's home.

As a result, one of the finalists almost surely will be named Normandy Park's top law enforcement officer next week, thereby filling a position that has not had a permanent occupant since William McSeveney retired in January.

Schmitz said the five-person oral review board and council members Kelly Bernard, Vincent Yeager, Robin Little, Vincent Dawson, and Jack Bender picked the same men as their top two candidates.

Councilmen George Meyer and Lowell Eldrenkamp were unable to attend the session.

SCHMITZ WILL SPEND this week conducting background checks on all of the finalists. Following the Labor Day holiday next Monday, he will "tender an offer and hopefully announce our new chief Wednesday," he said.

Although two frontrunners haven't been determined, the others aren't out of the running, Schmitz added.

(Hypothetically), "the background check could eliminate one and the other could turn us down. In that case, we would have to extend an offer to the third or fourth candidate," he noted.

Schmitz, who will make the final decision on a new chief, and the other city officials hope one of the finalists will fit the bill for Normandy Park.

Another hiring process for a chief was abandoned in May when Schmitz determined none of the three finalists met certain requirements for the post.

The second search has been underway for nearly four months. YEAGER, WHILE "impressed" with all four finalists, admitted he "wouldn't feel as comfortable" with one of them as chief as he would with the others. "The top two would be excellent choices," he added.

The two foremost candidates,

Yeager said, "are fairly young and have a lot on the ball. They like to work with people in instructing them in property protection, they promote youth groups, and they are interested in promoting the morale among our officers. Those are all objectives we need in Normandy Park."

Little cited the "supervisory experience, ability to handle men, and public relations with the community" of all four finalists.

"I'm very, very pleased with what (Schmitz) has to choose from," Little said. "It's an excellent group. The men are very well-trained, educated, and have good police experience. They're all applicable to our situation. Whichever one gets the job would be fine with me."

Land use revamp gets council OK

A trio of land use ordinances was adopted Monday by the county council with two major amendments and the promise of another one in three weeks.

The ordinances were designed to revamp and speed up the land use hearing and appeals process. One of the three would have revolutionized the manner in which plats are approved by changing from simple motion to ordinance giving the county executive the power of veto those subdivisions to which he objected.

The council stripped him of that potential power Monday, however, by amending the ordinance to require that plats will be approved by motion over which the executive has no veto power. Another amendment, sponsored by Councilman Paul Barden, mandates that five members of the council must vote for preliminary approval of a plat.

That will mean the council will need the same number of votes as an ordinance would require for passage but will not relinquish an authority to the executive through veto power.

Barden was also successful in getting an ordinance relating to notification of land use earnings amended to insure that property owners within 500 feet of a proposed rezone or plat will be notified of the hearing. The request for the change had come from a member of the Highline Community Council who told the county council last week she spoke for the community in seeking broader notification.

In addition to the ordinances and amendments approved Monday by the council, one important amendment to the appeals ordinance was suggested by Councilman Tracy Owen and will be considered by the council Sept. 17.

Owen essentially wants to make preliminary approval of a plat the equivalent of final approval to "provide a firm basis for the developer" to continue with the project subject to the regulations and laws that were in effect when first approval was granted.

Owen indicated that developers have complained in the past that once they have received preliminary approval and begun work on a plat, the county had revised regulations and then made final approval subject to the new regulations. That causes a financial burden and delays for the developer.

"Using Resources Creatively"

by Kay Crane

A degree in business management has given A.O. Hogenson, called Hogie by one and all, a solid background for advising homeowners on how to use their own equity to meet their needs. Hogie is branch manager of Benton's at 31811 Pacific Highway S. in Federal Way.

"The creativity comes in when it's time to convince people to use their own equity to secure their needs. After all, you need something to be creative with," Hogie says.

He suggests thinking of creative financing as a way to secure financing not necessarily through normal channels. For instance, if a buyer lacks 10 to 20 percent of the down payment, the seller can take back that much of the down payment as a second mortgage.

People often don't know what their own real estate resources are. Supposing they bought a home 16 years ago. They still owe $8,000 on the mortgage. They know what they paid on the house, and they subtract the $8,000, and then think that the remainder is their equity. What they don't always realize is that the home has increased tremendously in value during their 16 years ownership. Their equity may well be over $50,000.

That equity can be taken out of the house. The cash can then be used to invest in real estate, which has been appreciating lately faster than bank interest.

To do this without one's Scottish ancestors turning over in their graves, Hogie suggests not looking at the interest rates, but only at the amounts of money involved.

Let's take an example. A professional family has an equity of $65,000 in their home. Their mortgage payment is $315 per month now. By taking out 80 percent of their equity, they add $650 per month to their costs to repay the loan on the 80 percent of their equity.

They now have the cash to buy, say, an elegant fourplex using the cash as the downpayment. The fourplexes rent for $500 per month each, giving them an income of $2,000. They use this to cover the rest of the mortgage payment each month on the fourplex, to pay its taxes, insurance, and maintenance.

If the wraith of your Scottish ancestor is pointing in agony at the $650 additional bill on the family home, you tell the wraith you now have the income from professional work and other sources to meet the mortgage payment each month without any problems. You plan to make your profit by selling the fourplex in a couple of years for far more than you paid for it.

Obviously this kind of creative financing is not for those who can barely meet their mortgage payments as is, nor for those whose heart quails at the thought of debts. Hogie feels that one of the best services a real estate agent can offer the public is to keep up with the market's developments of opportunities for investment. He and the rest of Benton's staff will be glad to answer questions at 839-5300.

By Bob Del Bianco REALTOR
HOW LARGE A DEPOSIT

Rather frequently the question arises as to how large a deposit a buyer should put down or, to put it another way, how much deposit should the seller reasonably require.

The deposit should be sufficient to make sure the buyer will have good reason to see the transaction through and to reimburse the seller for taking the property off the market and other incidental expenses in case the buyer defaults. The length of time from signing the agreement to the date of transfer may have a bearing on the amount of deposit, i.e., an agreement calling for performance in 90 days, for example, should require a substantial deposit; a 30 day agreement might call for less. Even in the latter case, however, a 30 day agreement due to unforeseen circumstances may have to be extended and actually result in a 60 or 90 day agreement. The term "deposit" as used above is to be distinguished from "earnest money" which is a relatively small payment intended to bind a sale until a formal agreement can be written.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate please phone or drop in at your local DEL BIANCO REALTY INC., offices. We're here to help!

CAROLYN MARTIN, prepares buffet meals and promotes food products for Luncheon Is Served.

Luncheon Is Served a package deal

A luncheon for 125 guests may send some hostesses screaming from the kitchen and running in the opposite direction, but not for unflappable Carolyn Martin, consultant for Luncheon Is Served, a catering service designed for fund-raising organizations.

She relishes the idea of creating tempting meals for large non-profit groups, while explaining the food products that have been used in the meals.

"Luncheon Is Served has a two-prong approach," the perky blonde said. "Women's groups and other non-profit groups can hold charity banquets very inexpensively, while the food manufacturers who supply the food can advertise their products."

While guests dine on a three course meal, they see how the products are utilized in a meal. After dining, Ms.

Martin gives a short presentation on the food items and hands out door prizes.

This approach is a direct sell to those who buy foods in grocery stores, but also puts a new twist into the ordinary club meeting.

"Groups are always looking for a different idea for their fund raisers, and I think this fits the bill," Ms. Martin said. "Food fund-raisers manufacturers, on the other hand, want to reach the buyers, especially those with families, who will use these products."

The two groups are brought together by the catering service. The clubs book a day and time with Ms. Martin. The buffets are held on weekdays and Saturdays for lunches and dinners. Luncheon Is Served charges the clubs $65 or $80 (depending on the day and time) to serve 80 - 125. There is an extra fee of $25 for each additional 25 guests. The manufacturers, such as Darigold, Gai's Baking Co. and Golden Grain Macaroni Co. donate the food supplies.

"Clubs can establish their own price for the tickets," Ms. Martin said. "Some groups have made over $300 on their meals."

Eliminating the club's responsibility for food planning, shopping and cooking, Ms. Martin takes care of all these time-consuming details with deftness.

Before the meal, the energetic consultant shops early in the morning for extra grocery items at a local store. Once a month the food companies deliver the non-perishable products to her Federal Way home.

"My cupboards, freezer and refrigerator are loaded with food," she said.

Ms. Martin and her staff of three cooks arrive at the dining hall two hours before the time scheduled for serving the meal. They bring with them their own pots, pans, utensils, decorations and tablecloths. The club supplies their member's dishes, silverware and decorations. The Luncheon Is Served crew takes care of preparing the meal, and when they are finished cooking they clean the kitchen until it sparkles.

Creating a meal for a large group can have its frantic moments, Ms. Martin says, recalling some humorous incidents. She says she never knows what to expect from the cooking facilities provided for her.

Once in South Prairie, she found only one small oven in the kitchen, "I wondered how we were going to bake the bread, ham and fish," she said.

However, the undaunted hostess sent all the club women home for their roasters and used those for heating up the food.

A graduate in some economics and skilled in food preparation, recipe development and product testing, Ms. Martin began as a Luncheon Is Served consultant in April. Since the spring, she has prepared 20 group meals a month. "I would like to do more than that," she added.

The vivacious woman enjoys creating tempting foods for luncheons that will utilize the products she advertises. Although the basic menus are created by the home office in Tucson, Ariz., Ms. Martin enjoys taking small liberties by concocting various dishes using the same products.

The catering service was created in 1945 by a home economist from Philadelphia who wanted to help women's clubs raise money. Since that time, the organization claims to have raised over $30 million for club groups.

Luncheon Is Served has consultants throughout the country. Ms. Martin is one of two representatives in the Puget Sound area; she plans and prepares the meals for groups in Tacoma and surrounding towns.

SPICY COCKTAIL FRANKS

(Yield: 3 dozen)
 3/4 cup prepared mustard
 1-1/4 cup blackberry, strawberry or red currant jelly
 1 pound turkey franks, cut in one-inch pieces

Mix together mustard and jelly in a two-quart saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring, until jelly melts. Add frankfurters and cook, stirring until meat is heated throughout.

Transfer to chafing dish and keep hot. Offer wooden picks to spear meat.

SPARKLING FRUIT SALAD

(Yield: 4 servings)
 1 can (17 ounces) fruit cocktail
 1 package (3 ounces) strawberry gelatin
 1 cup lemon-lime soda, chilled

Drain fruit cocktail and reserve syrup. Measure syrup and add water if necessary to make one cup. Heat to boiling. Dissolve gelatin using hot syrup. Add chilled lemon-lime soda, chilled. If desired, place halved maraschino cherries in bottom of mold, then carefully fill with thickened gelatin. Chill until firm.

Unmold by running a sharp knife around the edge of mold; quickly dip mold in hot water; shake to loosen edges and unmold. Serve accompanied by a bowl of mayonnaise.

TWO-LAYER FRUIT MOLD (not pictured)

(Yield: 6 to 8 servings)
 1 can (17 ounces) fruit cocktail
 1 package (3 ounces) raspberry or strawberry gelatin
 1 cup lemon-lime soda, chilled
 1 package (3 ounces) lemon gelatin
 1 cup boiling liquid
 1 can (6 ounces) frozen lemonade concentrate
 1/2 cup mayonnaise

Drain fruit cocktail and reserve syrup. Measure syrup and add water to make two cups. Heat one cup syrup to boiling; add to raspberry gelatin and stir to dissolve. Add one cup chilled lemon-lime soda. Pour mixture into a six cup mold or individual molds. Chill until firm.

Dissolve lemon gelatin in remaining one cup boiling syrup. Add lemonade concentrate; blend in mayonnaise. Chill mixture only until it is a thick syrup. Stir in fruit cocktail. Pour over first layer and chill until firm. Unmold by running sharp knife around the edge of mold; quickly dip mold in hot water; shake to loosen edges and unmold. Serve garnished with fresh fruit.

(Yield: 1-1/2 cups)
 Finely shred enough zucchini to make one cup, firmly packed. Place zucchini in a wire strainer and press out excess moisture. Mix zucchini with one cup thick Italian garlic dressing (12-3/4 ounce jar). Cover and chill at least one hour to blend flavors. Stir before serving.

Sandwich partners have new disguise

Ham and lettuce, traditionally associated as sandwich partners, appear in a new and delicious guise for Spicy Ham and Iceberg - a main dish that can't help being the main attraction on a menu.

The ham is a fully cooked smoked ham cut into slices and heated and basted with a piquant sauce made with wine, butter, catsup, Worcestershire, garlic and refreshing spices. The sauce is then thickened with cornstarch and ladled over ham slices nestled on beds of crackling-crisp shredded iceberg lettuce on individual serving plates.

Don't discard the outer leaves when coring, rinsing and draining the head of iceberg lettuce. Strip off any leaves which may seem coarse and use them to add subtle flavor and moisture when cooking fresh vegetables such as green peas, green beans or carrots. These leaves are excellent, too, in that perennial favorite, wilted lettuce salad.

SPICY HAM AND ICEBERG

(Yield: 8 to 10 servings)
1 fully cooked boned, smoked half ham (4 to 5 pounds)

1 head iceberg lettuce
¼ cup butter or margarine

1 clove garlic
1 stick cinnamon
6 whole cloves

½ teaspoon chopped crystallized ginger
2 tablespoons sugar
Dash salt

1-¼ cups sauterne wine or one cup water and one-fourth cup vinegar
¼ cup catsup

1 teaspoon Worcestershire
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Have meat cutter slice ham into one-third inch slices and tie together. Core, rinse and thoroughly drain lettuce; chill in plastic bag or plastic crisper. Melt butter; add garlic, spices, sugar, salt, wine, catsup and Worcestershire. Bring to boil to blend flavors.

Place ham on rack in shallow open pan. Bake in preheated 325-degree oven for one

GRAPE-APPLE COOLER

(Yield: 18 servings)
6 scoops (1-½ cups minus two tablespoons) lemonade flavor drink mix

6 cups white grape juice
2¼ cups apple juice
1 bottle (12 ounces)

club soda, chilled
Lemon, lime and orange slices and one-half to two hours brushing occasionally with spiced sauce during last 30 minutes. When ham is nearly ready, strain sauce.

Blend water with cornstarch; add to sauce and cook, stirring, until mixture comes to boil and is thickened.

Cut lettuce lengthwise into halves; place cut-sides down on board and shred across heart. Arrange lettuce on serving plates; top with ham slices. Ladle sauce over all.

Combine drink mix, grape juice and apple juice in a larger pitcher. Stir to dissolve drink mix and chill well. Just before serving, add soda and fruit. Serve over ice.

Summer squash available

Although summer squash is available now in local grocery stores, the term "summer" squash is deceptive. Many types of summer squash (like zucchini) are on the market all year. Locally the peak season for zucchini will continue through September.

Summer squash is low in sodium, so is well suited to a low-salt diet. Low in calories: three and one-half ounces cooked equals 14. Nutrients include some vitamin C and A.

Buy summer squash that is young, fresh, firm, fairly heavy for its size and free from blemishes. The rind should be tender enough to puncture with a fingernail. Seeds should be soft and fully edible. Allow one pound summer squash for two to three servings.

Choose from several varieties of summer squash. Zucchini is long, straight, black-green on the outside and greenish-white on the inside. Straight-necked is club shaped, sparsely warted and a delicate creamy color when ready. Yellow crooknecked is a curved version of the yellow straight-necked. White also called crystal bell, patty pan or bush scallop is dish-shaped and has prominent ribbing on the edges. Pale green when young, white later.

Best when three to four inches across. Cocozelle resembles zucchini but with skin light green yellow and white.

A variety of preparation methods are possible with fresh zucchini: raw in salads or with vegetable dips, boil in a small amount of water, partially boil then bake with a stuffing, saute in butter, or french fry by breading and cooking in hot oil.

Dehydrated zucchini slices sprinkled with garlic powder so great with dips or in soups or casseroles. Dry shredded zucchini can be reconstituted to go in breads and cookies.

When freezing zucchini, blanch one-fourth inch slices: three minutes; one and one-fourth slices: six minutes. Cool in icy water the same length of time.

Can squash only by processing in a pressure canner. This also includes a combination of tomatoes and zucchini. This high temperature is needed to kill any botulism spores. When combining any ingredients, process for the vegetable with the longest time.

The food shopper's blues

Are you plagued with a common malady known as "the food shopper's blues"—trying to get good nutrition, with good taste, low cost and ease of preparation rolled into a complete package?

One way to remedy the situation and improve your diet is to include enriched grain products, such as breakfast cereals, breads, rice and pasta in your daily menu.

Served as part of a well-balanced diet, enriched grain products can help safeguard against some of the factors contributing to poor nutrition.

Approximately 30 to 50 percent of families have one or more members who regularly skip breakfast.

Lunch is often eaten away from home for social, business or school reasons, and supper at home may be eaten as seldom as two to three times per week.

For many Americans, consumption of soft drinks and desserts has increased markedly, while consumption of dairy products, vegetables, fruits and grain products has tapered off.

Fad diets emphasize one or two food groups to the exclusion of others, bypassing nutrients needed for a well-balanced diet.

Increasingly, due to employment outside the home, mothers, who usually prepare most of the family's meals, are often absent from home at mealtime.

Good nutrition is often sacrificed for ease of preparation.

Vitamin and mineral content of foods can be diminished greatly in storage, preparation and processing.

What's Cookin' in Ruth's Kitchen

by Ruth Jurich

Several years ago Northwest author, Bea Cook, wrote a book entitled, "Till Fish us do Part, Confessions of a Fisherman's Wife" in which she documented her attempts to come to rms with her husband's other love, namely sport fishing.

It's a delightful account of the fishing forays of the Cook family and their friends over the years, but there was one item that I took exception to.

Somebody in their party caught a huge ling cod which they gave away, because they were interested in cooking only salmon. I'm an old fishwife too, and I consider the various cods, the bottom fish with their flaky white meat, the best eating of all.

The big one that got away from us a few weeks ago may have been a ling cod, but it was probably a large rock cod. Ling cod are caught mostly by commercial fishermen who know how.

FISH AND CHIPS served in restaurants or packaged as convenience foods, are usually ling cod, and so are most of the packaged so-called red snapper filets that we buy in the markets.

If you're lucky enough to catch any of these fish, ling cod, rock cod or red snapper, and cook them fresh from the water, they are great baked, broiled or fried.

We baked some fresh red snappers on our boat recently, and it was a simple meal but simply delicious. Cleaned, scaled and with heads and tails removed, the whole fish were laid in a baking pan with a little olive oil to keep them from sticking. We put a few slices of potato in the bottom of the pan so that we'd have a one-dish meal.

The only seasoning was salt and black pepper and sliced onion. We used a large Walla Walla Sweet Onion, cut in thick slices, and if you haven't started using Walla Walla Sweets, you're missing something awfully good.

The fish were baked approximately an hour in a moderate oven with an occasional basting of olive oil and the juices in the pan. If I were doing it at home I'd set the oven at 350 degrees. The fish is done whenever a light touch with a fork will break it into big white flakes.

If you should catch any big cod, be sure to save the cheeks. Dipped in batter, egg and crumbs or just in whole wheat flour and fried, they're a delicacy.

THERE'S BEEN A CHANGE in the weather and that may have changed some of your cooking plans. During the hot

It's called Cantaloupe Lime Pie and it tastes as luscious as it looks. Though it appears it took hours to prepare, it is in fact an easy make-it-early, serve-it-later dessert that is sure to please everyone.

Whipped topping is folded into a mixture of thawed limeade concentrate and sweetened condensed milk. Add diced melon and spoon part of the filling into a graham cracker crust; add a layer of blueberries, the remaining topping mixture, additional fruit and chill.

weather I looked forward to a large crop of vine ripened tomatoes. We're getting some, but it looks like we'll have a bumper crop of green ones, and I'm now planning to make a big batch of Picalilli or sweet pickle relish. We use lots of it, and since we have both green tomatoes and cabbage in the garden, we might as well make relish. Just for fun I looked in "Joy of Cooking", "Good Housekeeping Cookbook" and Fannie Merritt Farmer's "Boston Cooking School Cookbook", all old favorites, and found considerable variation in recipes for Picalilli. There's a lot of difference in vegetables, in pickling solution and in spice.

The recipe I like best is one that was published in government bulletin entitled "Making Pickles and Relishes at Home" and is distributed by the Cooperative Extension Service. I've made it, printed it in my column a year ago and intend to use it again. Here it is:

Picalilli
1 quart finely chopped green tomatoes, approximately 16 medium ones
1 cup chopped sweet red peppers, 2 or 3 medium ones
1 cup chopped green

peppers, 2 or 3 medium
1½ cups chopped onion, 2 or 3 large ones
5 cups chopped cabbage, approximately 2 pounds
½ cup salt
3 cups vinegar
2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons whole mixed pickling spice

Combine vegetables, mix with salt and let stand overnight. Drain and press in a clean, thin white cloth to remove all liquid possible. Combine vinegar and sugar. Place spices in a clean white cloth and tie with a string. Add to vinegar and sugar and bring to a boil.

Add vegetables, bring to a boil and simmer approximately 30 minutes or until there is just enough liquid to cover vegetables. Remove spice bag, and pack hot relish in clean hot pint jars. Fill jars to a half inch of the top, and adjust some turmeric, that you usually find in fresh sliced pickles or so called bread and butter pickles. I like the flavor, and I think I'll also add some whole mustard seed.

You can vary the spice and use a different combination of vegetables so long as they add up to the same quantity. Above all don't dilute or change the amount of vinegar. It's essential to preservation.

Process jars 5 minutes in boiling water. Start counting time when water in the canner comes to a boil. Remove jars, and complete seals if necessary. If rings were screwed on tight before processing, it's best not to touch them. They'll form a vacuum as they cool. Set jars upright on wire rack or on a cloth on kitchen counter to cool.

Rafts come to the rescue when stretching a budget

Keeping the budget in line these days takes a lot of stretching, so every trick you add to your repertoire, the better. Most markets, and many clever cooks, are making ground beef go a lot farther by adding soy protein meat extender. An extra stretching there, too, is the nutritional boost the vegetable protein supplies. And, while you're thinking of nutrition, consider the problems of the dieter. A sizzling hamburger comes off the grill, lands on a bun and just looking at it makes you feel fat. What to slip under that patty? Float it on a "raft" - a pale green, crisp and crunchy raft of iceberg lettuce that fills in the gaps in your mineral requirements for good health. A raft is not only delicious and satisfying, it is a dollar saver, too. With lettuce an excellent buy in the summer market, you can cut four generous inch-thick rafts from a single head of iceberg for less than the cost of a bag of hamburger buns. Take time to protect your valuable lettuce heads by giving them prompt attention when you carry them home from market. As soon as you unload the groceries, core the head, rinse under running water and drain thoroughly then store in a plastic bag in your refrigerator. There's a trick to coring without a knife. Hold the head core-down. Whack it against the kitchen counter; lift and twist out the core with your fingers. That core-end, along with the rounded top of the head will be left-overs when you cut your

"rafts," so store them in a plastic bag to use another time, chunked into salads, shredded to dress tacos or for sandwiches. Treat "Hamburger Iceberg Rafts" just as you would a regular hamburger sandwich. Spread mayonnaise and mustard on the lettuce, lay on the hamburger patty and dress the top with a spicy catsup dressing. Add onions, green or chopped, and serve with cold or hot drinks. Try the "raft" with sloppy joes and chili con carne, too. The contrast between the chilled, delicately-flavored lettuce and the brightly seasoned and sauced beef is an always startling and delicious surprise!

H A M B U R G E R ICEBERG RAFTS
(Yield: 4 servings)
1 large head iceberg lettuce
Mustard Spread
Tomato Dressing
½ cup textured soy protein meat extender
¾ cup water
½ pound ground beef
1 teaspoon salt

½ teaspoon onion powder
Sliced green onion for garnish
Mustard Spread:
Mix together one-fourth cup real mayonnaise, one tablespoon prepared mustard and two tablespoons chopped dill pickle.
Tomato Dressing: In a small jar, combine one-half cup catsup, one-fourth cup garlic flavored red wine vinegar, three tablespoons corn oil, and one-half teaspoon celery seed. Cover and shake well to blend. Shake again just before using. Yield about one cup dressing.
Core, rinse and thoroughly drain lettuce; refrigerate in disposable plastic bag or plastic crisper. Prepare Mustard Spread and Tomato Dressing.
Combine textured soy protein and water and allow to stand five minutes. Add ground beef, salt and onion powder, and mix well. Shape into four patties four-inches diameter. Broil, pan-fry or barbecue to desired degree of doneness.
Cut lettuce head crosswise into inch-thick slices to make four "rafts." Cover with Mustard Spread. Top with a hot meat patty. Garnish with sliced green onion and serve with Tomato Dressing.

Guests coming by for an afternoon outdoors? Cool, quenching beverages and snacks with substance will do just fine. Try this Sour Cream Dip, an unusual variation of a popular appetizer; orange flavor sugar-sweetened soft drink mix is blended right into the sour cream. Serve it with crackers and an assortment of fresh raw vegetables such as zucchini, cucumbers, carrots, and celery sticks.

2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 container (4-½ ounces) frozen whipped topping, thawed
1 baked nine-inch pie shell, cooled

Combine soft drink mix, gelatin and salt in saucepan; add water and egg yolks. Cook and stir over medium heat until gelatin is dissolved. Chill until slightly thickened.

Place bowl of gelatin mixture in larger bowl of ice and water. Beat with hand beater or with electric mixer until fluffy and thick and about double in volume. Fold in whipped topping. Spoon into pie shell. Chill until firm, about three hours.

Garnish with fresh strawberries, if desired.

SOUR CREAM DIP
2 tablespoons orange flavor sugar-sweetened soft drink mix
1 cup (one-half pint) sour cream

Blend soft drink mix into sour cream. Chill at least one hour; stir. Serve as a dip for fresh vegetables or crackers.

Reuben pie made with favorite sandwich ingredients

The flavorful ingredients of one of the country's favorite sandwiches go into the making of this main dish. The "crust" is a mixture of the ground meats and quick-cooking rolled oats. Reuben Pie 1 lb. ground beef ¼ lb ground pork or additional ground beef

½ cup quick-cooking rolled oats ¼ cup Worcestershire 1 egg ¼ tsp each pepper and garlic powder 1 can (16 oz) sauerkraut, well drained 2 cups shredded Swiss cheese 1½ tps caraway seed 1 can(3 oz.) French fried onions

Chili sauce or catsup In a bowl, combine the ground beef, pork and oats, Worcestershire, egg, pepper and garlic powder. Turn mixture into a 9-inch pie pan, about 1¼ inches deep and pat evenly over the bottom and sides. Bake, uncovered, in a 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. Remove from oven and drain off accumulated liquid. Meanwhile, combine the sauerkraut, cheese, caraway and about ¼ of the onions.

Evenly fill drained meat crust and return pie to a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes, or until cheese is thoroughly melted. Sprinkle remaining onions over top and bake until onions are warmed, 3 to 5 minutes longer. Cut into wedges to serve; pass chili sauce to spoon over portions.

Beef Tartare- Scandinavian favorite

Want to get away from it all - leave the car pool and lunch boxes far behind and take off for exotic places?
Daydreaming

aside, would you settle for Beef Tartare on a Raft, an unusual meat and salad combination that tastes as off-beat as it sounds? This he-man raw meat dish is an old Scandinavian favorite and you'll find something similar in Russian cuisine. This version takes its name from the raft's (crosswise slice) of iceberg lettuce that is the base for the ground raw steak patty. A tangy horseradish-mayonnaise dressing on the lettuce, chopped onion and pickled beets and, for a final authentic touch, an uncooked egg yolk, complete the raft's cargo. Crisp rye crackers or dark rye bread and mugs of beer perfectly complement "Beef Tartare on a Raft."

BEEF TARTARE ON A RAFT
(Yield: 4 servings)
1 pound raw sirloin or top round steak
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon coarsely

ground black pepper
1 head iceberg lettuce
1/2 cup real mayonnaise
1 tablespoon pickle relish
1 to 2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
2 tablespoons bottled capers, drained
One-third cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped pickled beets

4 raw egg yolks, in half egg shells
Trim all fat from steak; grind meat very fine or scrape off with a serrated knife, discarding membrane. Toss meat with one-half teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper; shape into four patties.

Slice lettuce head crosswise into four one-inch thick rafts. Blend mayonnaise with relish and horseradish; spread onto rafts. Place rafts on individual serving plates; top each with raw meat patty. Group or circle capers, onion and beets around patties. Make an indentation in the middle of each patty and place in it an egg shell half holding a raw egg yolk. Let guests help themselves to salt and freshly ground black pepper. Serve with rye crisp or dark bread and mugs of beer if you wish.

Chocolate lovers can't refuse these

When you ask people what's their favorite ice cream flavor, many of them will unhesitatingly answer, "Chocolate!" But even chocolate sometimes needs the contrast or accent of another flavor to appeal to an even greater number. That contrast is deliciously provided by mint, especially when combined with chocolate cookies or cake. And the mint is not always the same kind of mint. In one case, it's peppermint stick ice cream; in the other, it's chocolate mint chip.

Peppermint Chocolate Cookie Cups are made with a refrigerator-type butter cookie. Yes, it's the old-fashioned kind shaped in rolls and chilled. To bake, cut the cookie roll in slices, placing one slice on the bottom of a muffin cup. Then cut two slices in half and place those, cut side down, to make the edges of the cup. After baking and cooling, fill the cups with peppermint stick ice cream, garnishing each one with a chocolate candy mint.

Chocolate Mint Torte starts from two small packages of devil's food cake mix baked in a loaf pan. After baking and cooling, split the cake into three layers, to be returned to the loaf pan with ice cream spread on two of them. Freeze the whole panful of both cake and ice cream. When ready to serve, whip and sweeten the cream and frost cake. Decorate with crushed green mints.

PEPPERMINT CHOCOLATE COOKIE CUPS
(Yield: 20 cups)
¼ cup butter
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups all-purpose flour
One-third cup cocoa
½ teaspoon salt
Peppermint stick ice cream
Chocolate candy mints

Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg and vanilla; beat until smooth. Combine dry ingredients. Add to creamed mixture; mix until well combined. (Dough will be very stiff and dry.) Divide dough in half; shape into two rolls, each two inches in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper; chill several hours until firm.

Cut dough into slices about one-eighth-inch thick. Place one slice in bottom of muffin cup. Cut two slices in half. Place them cut side down, on sides of muffin cup; press all edges to seal. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven until crisp, about 12 to 15 minutes. Let cool in cups 10 minutes.

Carefully remove from cups; cool completely on wire racks.

To serve, fill chocolate cookie cups with scoops of peppermint stick ice cream. Garnish each with a chocolate candy mint. Serve immediately.

CHOCOLATE MINT TORTE
(Yield: 10 servings)
2 packages (nine ounce each) devil's food cake mix
2 eggs
1 cup water
2 pints chocolate mint chip ice cream, softened
1-½ cups whipping cream

3 tablespoons confectioner's sugar
Crushed green mint hard candy

Combine both packages of cake mix and prepare according to package directions using eggs and water. Pour batter into well-buttered 9x5-inch loaf pan. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean, about 40 minutes.

Cool cake in pan on wire rack 15 minutes. Remove from pan, and cool completely on wire rack. Wash and dry loaf pan. To remove cake easily from pan, fit two long folded strips of foil in the pan allowing a few inches overhang on each side of pan.

Split cake horizontally into thirds. Place bottom third of cake in prepared pan. Spread one pint of ice cream evenly over cake; cover with second layer of cake and second pint of ice cream. Place top layer of cake over ice cream. Freeze several hours or overnight.

To serve, loosen torte around edges with a spatula; lift out of pan using foil strips; place on serving plate. Remove foil and discard. Return cake to freezer while preparing frosting.

Whip cream and sugar until stiff peaks form. Spread over top and sides of cake reserving some to pipe through a fluted pastry tube around bottom and top edges of cake. Sprinkle top with crushed candy. Return to freezer until 15 minutes before serving time.

Vary brown-bag meals

Most people love surprises, and this may be more true for the person who carries the same lunchbox day after day than for anyone else. To keep lunch time exciting, send a sandwich one day, then something else the next, such as a casserole, hot soups, cold soups, mixed soups; or include fruit salads, vegetable salads, sweet or sour salads.

Vary sandwich combinations by cutting the bread in geometrics, checkerboards or in cookie cutter shapes. Offer a variety of breads, spreads and fillings.

Tuck a snack of raisins, peanuts, popcorn, potato chips, sunflower seeds or pepperoni sticks in the lunchbox.

For a little afternoon entertainment, slip notes, poems, puzzles, comics clippings or news articles in the lunch. Make up fortunes or funnies. Celebrate holidays with special napkins, color schemes or appropriate foods.

Lettuce is popular salad ingredient

So familiar a salad ingredient, iceberg lettuce, difficult to tell whether salads became popular because lettuce was available, or whether the increase in lettuce acreage is necessary because salads are so popular. And it doesn't really matter when you can put together such crisp and zesty combinations as Spring Chicken Salad.

Salad sticks to the ribs

For this stick-to-the-ribs salad, meatballs are chilled with sliced zucchini in a garlic-touched marinade. Just before it's time to serve, you add coarsely chopped iceberg lettuce and toss gently with the meatball mixture, tomato wedges and onion rings. This party-size recipe may easily be cut in half for a family meal.

VEGETABLE SALAD
(Yield: 10 to 12 servings)
1 head iceberg lettuce
¼ pound ground beef
½ teaspoon garlic salt
½ teaspoon seasoned pepper
¼ cup corn oil
½ pound thinly sliced zucchini or crookneck squash (about one and one-half cups)
¼ cup cider vinegar
1 clove garlic, minced
1 large tomato, cut into wedges

¼ cup onion rings
Core, rinse and thoroughly drain lettuce; chill in disposable plastic bag or crispener.

Combine beef, garlic salt and seasoned pepper; form into 24 small balls. Heat oil in skillet; add meatballs and cook until browned and done as you like them. Carefully transfer meatballs to bowl. Add zucchini, vinegar and garlic to skillet, mixing with drippings from bottom of pan; heat slightly, then pour over meatballs.

Chill, turning occasionally to coat. Just before serving, coarsely chop enough lettuce to measure six cups, refrigerate remainder for use another time. Add chopped lettuce to meatball mixture along with tomato and onion. Toss gently.

Meatball-Vegetable Salad

Breads with a hearty flavor

The extra flavors of molasses and ginger make the dark bread, Gingers Oatmeal Molasses fun to serve with sandwiches or with hearty meals.

CHEESE AND BEER WHEAT BREAD has a hearty robust flavor thanks to the unusual combination of beer and cheese.

GINGERY OATMEAL MOLASSES BREAD (Yield: 2 loaves)

2 cups milk
½ cup water
½ cup molasses
¼ cup margarine or butter
5-½ to 6 cups all-purpose or unbleached flour
1 cup whole wheat flour
1 cup rolled oats
2 tablespoons firmly packed brown sugar
3 teaspoons salt
½ to 1 teaspoon ginger
2 packages active dry yeast

In medium saucepan, heat first four ingredients until very warm (120 degrees to 130 degrees F.)

In large bowl, combine warm liquid, two cups all-purpose flour, whole wheat flour and remaining ingredients; beat two minutes at medium speed. Stir in remaining all-purpose flour. On well floured surface, knead dough until smooth and elastic, about five minutes. Place in greased bowl. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes.

Grease two 9x5 or 8x4-inch loaf pans. Punch down dough; divide and shape into two loaves. Place in greased pans. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes.

Bake loaf pans in preheated 350-degree oven for 35 to 45 minutes or until deep golden brown and loaf sounds hollow when lightly tapped. Immediately remove from pans. If desired, brush with margarine or butter.

CHEESE AND BEER WHEAT BREAD (Yield: 2 loaves)

1-½ cups (12 ounces) beer
Two-third cup water
½ cup cooking oil
1-½ cups whole wheat flour
4-½ to 5 cups all-purpose or unbleached flour
½ cup sugar
½ cup wheat germ
2 teaspoons salt
2 packages active dry yeast
1 egg
2 cups cheddar or American cheese, cut into one-half-inch cubes

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 40 to 50 minutes or until loaf sounds hollow when lightly tapped. Immediately remove from pans.

In saucepan, heat first three ingredients until very warm (120 degrees to 130 degrees F.).

In large bowl, combine warm liquid, whole wheat flour, one cup all-purpose flour, sugar, wheat germ, salt, yeast and egg; beat two minutes at medium speed. By hand, stir in remaining all-purpose flour.

On well floured surface, knead dough until smooth and elastic, about five minutes. Place in greased bowl.

Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, one to one hour and 15 minutes.

Line two one-quart casseroles or 9x5-inch loaf pans with foil; grease well. Punch down dough. On well floured surface, work cheese cubes into dough one-half at a time, until evenly distributed. Shape into two loaves, covering cheese cubes. Place in greased casseroles. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 40 to 50 minutes or until loaf sounds hollow when lightly tapped. Immediately remove from pans.

feels slightly "springy" when you squeeze it gently. If you plan to use it right away, core, rinse and drain it thoroughly; then refrigerate in a tightly-closed plastic bag until you ready to tear it into bite-sized pieces for the salad. Save the large, more highly colored outer leaves to line individual salad bowls, or to use in soups or when cooking other vegetables. They contain the highest amounts of vitamins and minerals. Toss your light-calories Spring Chicken Salad with a cheese and basil flavored dressing just before serving and serve with crackers or hot rolls.

SPRING CHICKEN SALAD

(Yield: 4 servings)
1 head iceberg lettuce
1-½ cups cooked chicken strips
1 red-skinned apple, cut in thin wedges
¼ cup thin slices green pepper
½ cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
2 tablespoons grated

Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons corn oil
¼ teaspoon onion salt
¼ teaspoon basil, crushed
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
Dash pepper

Shortly before serving, tear lettuce leaves into bite-size pieces to measure one and one-half quarts and place in chilled salad bowl. Arrange chicken, apple and green pepper on lettuce. Blend together all remaining ingredients, pour over salad, and toss lightly. Serve at once.
