New DWI law: impact still unclear

by Loren Bliss

South King County justice and municipal court judges say its too early to predict whether Washington's tough new drunken driving law will actually keep the boozers off the roads.

But they agree that the law, which includes a strict definition of the offense and mandatory jail sentences, will probably make it easier for prosecutors to win convictions. And they generally like the way the measure emphasizes rehabilitation.

Theodore E. Sampson

The judges, Theodore E. Sampson, Elwood T. Leverette, Gary N. Utigard and Richard Thompson of King County Justice Court, and Paul Codd of Des Moines Municipal Court, have yet to try a case under the 1979 law.

That's because of the length of time it takes for the courts to process a case. Part of the statute went into effect on Sept. 1, but citations written since then won't start showing up on the trial dockets for at least two more weeks.

PASSED BY the Legislature at its most recent session, the law states flatly that any motorist whose blood contains 0.10 percent alcohol — or more — is guilty of drunken driving.

By contrast, the old measure merely regarded breathalyzer or blood test results as guidelines, thereby allowing suspects to argue that they weren't really drunk regardless of what they might have scored.

That defense, the judges agree, won't work anymore. Instead, they say, defendants will probably attempt to challenge the accuracy of the tests themselves.

But the Legislature also revised the physical control statute, thereby leaving motorists with an out.

Formerly, the law said that a drunk who was sleeping it off in his car was guilty of being in physical control of a vehicle while intoxicated.

The new measure states that no person "who has moved the vehicle safely off the roadway" is guilty.

BUT JUDGES Sampson and Leverette, both of the Federal Way District of the county justice court system, say that the measure also clearly bans the practice of reducing DWI charges to physical control.

"The one problem with the new physical control section," Sampson said, "is that it doesn't define 'roadway,' so there'll probably be some state Supreme Court cases to sort that out." Leverette agrees.

While the new definition of DWI has applied since the first of the month, the penalty clauses of the law, which include the mandatory jail sentences, won't be effective until Jan. 1.

This section sets the penalty for a first drunken driving conviction at not less than one day nor more than one year in jail and provides for a maximum fine of $500.

"One day of the jail term," it says, "shall not be suspended nor deferred unless the judge finds that the imposition of the jail sentence will pose a risk to the defendant's physical or mental well-being."

IT ALSO requires judges to set out in writing the facts upon which deferrals or suspensions

are based.

Thompson, of the Roxbury district of the county court, says that the requirement will probably force those who seek to escape jail to submit medical or psychiatric documentation.

"Merely not wanting to go to jail," he said, "won't cut it."

For second and subsequent offenses within five years of the first, the law invokes a jail sentence of not less than seven days nor more than a year, and a fine of not more than $1,000.

And seven days of the sentence are mandatory — unless the defendant can produce compelling data proving physical or mental hazard.

But that isn't all. The law also stipulates that "in addition to any...jail sentence required by (the second and subsequent conviction measure)...the court shall sentence a person to a term of imprisonment not exceeding 180 days and shall suspend but not defer the sentence for a period not exceeding two years."

WHAT THIS means, Sampson says, is that if a motorist is convicted more than once within five years, he or she could end up spending a long time in jail.

And if there's a third conviction within the five year period, the judge could activate all or part of the deferred sentence—resulting in a possible total of up to three years behind bars.

"The sentence," the law says, "may be imposed in whole or in part upon violation of a condition of suspension during the suspension period."

The idea behind the additional jail term, some of the judges say, is that it can be used to compel hard-core boozers to seek treatment for alcoholism.

And the law provides for such treatment. It requires first-time offenders to attend alcohol information courses and instructs the state to improve its facilities for treating alcoholics.

IN ADDITION, the measure mandates the suspension of offenders' drivers licenses. On first conviction, the suspension would be for 30 days. On the second within five years, for 60 days, and on the third within the same period, it would be revoked altogether.

Thompson says he believes the new law is "the result of the public feeling that drunken drivers have to be dealt with more severely," and adds that eventually, it will probably have a deterrent effect.

"But it won't work overnight," he said. "Though after a few of the more respectable members of the community spend time behind bars, people will definitely think twice about driving when drunk."

Codd, however, doubts that the mandatory jail terms will solve the problem. "Getting treatment is the best way to handle it," he said, "and the jails are already overcrowded."

"Besides, if you're going to send somebody to jail, it would seem that 30 days would be more reasonable than one or seven. But it could be a step in the right direction."

UTIGARD SAYS that the deterrent value of the new law depends upon the ability of state and local police agencies to enforce it.

"If people think they stand a good chance of getting caught," he said, "they won't drive. But if they think they can make it home without getting caught, they'll probably take a chance."

And all of the judges anticipate that the law will engender an outpouring of appeals to higher courts.

"It will probably take several years for the higher courts to hand down the rulings that will determine how the law is really to be applied," Sampson said.

Leverette, however, believes that if the public is aware of the law, it will act as an immediate deterrent regardless of how long the appeals cases go on.

Drunk driving: a gamble most people don't win

If you're looking for attention, one sure way to get it is by being arrested for DWI.

When an individual is arrested for DWI, he becomes someone of great interest to a number of different agencies. It's an offense which isn't easily forgotten by the drinking driver because the Department of Licensing, the Department of Social and Health Services and the courts won't let him forget it.

An almost immediate communication begins between the three agencies, with each one making recommendations to the others which could have a profound effect on the life of that individual.

He could lose his license, he could be required to attend alcohol information school or submit to more intensive treatment, and he could go to jail.

Whether the decision is to impose one or all of these sanctions, it is one which is not made lightly. Despite the fact there were over 31,000 alcohol-related driving charges filed in the State of Washington last year, each case is looked at individually.

When making a decision on these cases, officials look at the extenuating circumstances, said Chuck Stansbury, assistant administrator of the Driver Improvement Division, Department of Licensing.

He related the story of one man who would have lost his license had the circumstances surrounding his drunk driving charge been ignored.

Two traumatic events had recently occurred in his life, Stansbury said. His wife committed suicide and his child was killed in an accident. In addition, the man had grown up in a family environment where alcohol was a daily part of life.

He was under a tremendous strain, Stansbury said, and he sought relief through the bottle.

He's now under the care of a psychiatrist, Stansbury said, and has been making remarkable progress over the last five or six months.

"It's my belief there would be no value in suspending his driving privilege at this point because he has made every conceivable effort to take care of his problem."

When the man was first found guilty of DWI, he faced a number of possible penalties.

On a first conviction, his license may be suspended for at least 30 days. He could also be fined up to $500 and be sentenced to jail for up to a year.

Anytime a driver is involved in an alcohol-related driving offense, whether it's his first time or his tenth, he has to receive some kind of alcohol counseling. Often the fine or jail time is suspended only on the condition he gets the treatment.

For an in-depth report on drinking and driving and the new DWI law, see page A-3.

Prior to sentencing, the court orders the defendant to have an interview with an alcohol counselor who then prepares a pre-sentence report. If it's a first offense, the counselor may recommend to the court that the driver's license not be suspended. The court, in turn, usually makes the same recommendation to the Department of Licensing which has the final say.

Assuming the individual is allowed to keep his driving privilege, he is placed on a 24-month probationary basis with the Department of Licensing. If

Barden urges crackdown on unpaid traffic tickets

A person who gets a misdemeanor ticket for a traffic violation or a similar offense has a "ten to one chance" of not having to pay for the ticket because the sheriff's office, which now collects warrants for the local district courts, gives priority to felony warrants.

King County Councilman Paul Barden said Monday a proposal to establish a warrant service unit for the district court system could "increase our revenue." Barden wants a nine member unit included in the district court budget for the coming year.

Airport District Court Judge Gary Utigard told the council the chief reason warrants are not being collected now is a "manpower problem." He said county police collect warrants with priority given to felonies. "It would be cheaper to hire people to issue warrants than to provide the number of police to do the job," Utigard said.

John Rose, budget manager for the county, said he does not know if the proposal will be included in the executive budget presentation to the county council next month. "The question is, is there enough money to be made to cover the costs. If there is, then it ought to be done."

Rose estimated the warrant service unit proposed by the district court judges would cost the county "roughly $250,000." He said there are many unanswered questions about the proposed unit because the judges did not include the proposal in the 1980 budget they forwarded to the county budget office.

He said in talks with judges and the district court administrator since the proposal was unveiled he got "the impression that they cared less about where it was done than that it be done."

A similar warrant service unit for the City of Seattle costs the city about $339,000 a year to operate but the revenue returned by the unit is $4.6 million, according to Barden.

Rose said a key question is how decriminalization of traffic offenses in July, 1980 will affect the anticipated revenue from the warrant collection.

Renton Judge George Mattson said people who do not pay would have a hold placed on their driver's license renewal and no new license could be issued until all the outstanding warrants were paid. Judge Mattson said, in addition to paying the warrants, the driver would also have to forfeit a $25 penalty on each warrant before a driver's license could be renewed.

Chrysler's problems shouldn't be ours

The Chrysler Corp. last week finally submitted the figure — $1.2 billion — it will need from the federal government to ward off corporate disaster.

Chrysler is asking for that amount in immediate and standby federal loan guarantees to offset a projected 1979 loss of $1.073 billion.

The U.S. Treasury Secretary called the request "way out of line," and said that any federal commitment to the ailing corporation would have to be below $1 billion.

We agree the federal aid should be below $1 billion...more like about $0.

It would be sad to see an American institution and 300,000 jobs disappear, but under this country's free enterprise system a company that has failed should be allowed to do just that — fail.

It's no one's fault but Chrysler's that the company is foundering, yet the taxpayers are being asked to come to its rescue. That's not the way it's supposed to work. And indeed, it's not the way it works for other businesses, big and small, which can't make ends meet.

Chrysler would have the public believe its problem, in part, is due to government regulations. "Government mandated costs are destroying the equity of the competitive system," Chrysler said in a recent newspaper ad.

More believable is the fact that Chrysler, for the past several years, has manufactured vehicles not yet sold or committed to a dealer. The other big auto makers only built vehicles which were already sold or committed.

Chrysler's practice, which incidentally was ended this year, created a huge surplus of unsold cars and trucks most of which are big gas-guzzlers, hard to unload these days at nearly any cost.

Chrysler wants the American people to consider this their problem. Nonsense.

Chrysler made the bed. Now they should sleep in it.

Publish it first

The line between freedom of the press, the freedom of speech and expression, and the interests of national security is a thin one indeed.

The freedom of speech, obviously, does not give one the right to falsely yell "fire" in a crowded theater. Nor does freedom of the press give publishers carte blanche to maliciously print untruths that damage a person's reputation — there are libel laws for that.

But when the First Amendment was penned nearly two centuries ago its authors could not envision the complexities of the conflicts between the publishers and those government officials vested with protecting national security.

Or, perhaps they could. The United States Constitution and Bill of Rights has withstood the test of time and the clairvoyancy of its authors has astounded historians for generations.

It can be logically argued that our forefathers knew exactly what they were doing when they said that the government shall make "no law" abridging the freedom of the press. There are no exceptions, no qualifications, no loopholes.

Yet the government has gone to court recently to block publication of a letter it says contains secret information about the hydrogen bomb. Such information, the government has contended, could help other nations develop such a weapon.

The government's efforts, which had met with some success in the courts, went for naught Sunday when a newspaper in Wisconsin, not under court restraints, published the controversial letter.

The letter was written by an amateur expert on the bomb — a computer programmer with two years of college-level engineering. Given the complexities of the hydrogen bomb and the years of scientific effort it took to produce it, the possibility of foreign countries obtaining any useful information seems remote. Nor are domestic terrorists likely to derive much useful information.

Traditionally, government cries of "national security" have had more emotion than substance. Publication of the "Pentagon Papers" had virtually no impact on national security and the public found them dry and boring. The most important aspect of the Pentagon Papers was the government's attempt to censor them.

And, we must not forget that former President Richard Nixon raised the "national security" issue in an attempt to withhold his presidential tapes from the Watergate investigation. National security, in that case, translated into "Nixon security."

A legitimate, conscientious and free press has, and recognizes, its responsibility to protect national security. It also is aware of "the right to know" and its responsibility as a disseminator of information.

As with the Pentagon Papers, the most important aspect of the H-bomb letter is its publication over the government's attempt to censor it. The press, apparently, has more respect for the intelligence of its audience than does "Big Brother."

A first for Sea-First

Seattle First National Bank, whose advertisements often lay claim to initiating innovative banking services, was indeed "first" last week with a program more significant than a talking cash machine.

Sea-First is perhaps the first firm in the country to foot the entire bill for its employees who use public transportation.

The bank, with branches statewide, will spend half a million dollars a year to provide annual public transit passes to all employees working in areas where such services exist.

In King County, Sea-First will spend $395,000 with Metro Transit and estimates that 65 percent of its 5,000 employees will make use of the benefit.

The energy savings could be as much as 750,000 gallons of gas a year.

Metro currently has 50 firms and institutions participating in a subsidy program, but Sea-First is the first to pick up the total tab for all its employees.

Dexter Horton would be proud.

Reflections

by Jim Shahan

My financial advisors, "Fly-by-Night Magazine Sales and Swampland Investors Inc.," always tell me to use my vacation to check on my out-of-state investments. It's a good tax write-off so I decided to visit my money in Nevada.

See I've got substantial investments in slot machines in Reno, a couple of blackjack tables in Winnemucka, a Keno game in Elko, and three crap tables in Las Vegas.

Since it'd been about three years since I'd checked on my Reno holdings, I decided that would be my destination.

Armed with Del Webb's famous book, "69 ways to make me rich," and his sequel, "69 ways to blow your wad," I hopped on the "friendly skies" and headed for the biggest little dump of an airport in the world.

Pockets stuffed with rolls of quarters and nickels, I made a bee line for my two favorite investments — a four quarter "progressive" slot and a three nickel "Lucky 7" one-armed bandit. I'd invested heavily in these machines three years ago and figured that with interest, inflation and appreciation I'd get a healthy return.

Such was not the case. The market had apparently taken a noticeable downturn and was looking for heavy investments to re-coup the losses.

After about $60 in quarters and $10 in nickels (that's a lot of nickels), the quarter machine had failed to produce anything more than $1 and the nickel machine had spit back 20 cents.

In a fit of rage I began pounding "my machines" with my fists and muttering obscenities. Out of nowhere three guys who could have easily handled the front four of the Pittsburg Steelers appeared and gently suggested that I have a cup of tea with the Casino manager. A squeeze on the arm that made my eyes water convinced me that indeed it was time for a cup of tea.

"Look, Mr Shahan," the manager said, "we simply can't have guests going around throwing tantrums and beating up on our slots — it's bad for business."

"My machine," I corrected him.

"Ah, yes," the manager said. "You are not unknown to us. We have a complete file on you."

"Oh, yeah," I said. "What does it say?"

"It says you're the same kook who threw a brick through the Keno board in Elko last year. It says you were told never to return to Nevada again," he said, his voice becoming menacing.

"Gee, you're just one big happy Family down here, aren't you?" I said.

"In a manner of speaking," the manager replied.

"Well, you can't keep me out of here," I said, getting hot once again. "I've got my investments and besides, I'm not without my political

"See if they have a brochure," I called out as he knocked on the door.

Less than two of Willy Nelson's songs were completed when I saw Spouse, and a few steps behind him, a short woman with dark hair. She was wearing a short baggie kind of dress and had very high heeled shoes on her feet. As Spouse got into the car, she stood near the drive way, staring at me.

I smiled at her as my silent partner backed the car out of the drive way, away from the sedate-looking house.

"Wellllll," I said, as wives often do. "Wellllllll?"

"It's a no."

"What does that mean?"

"I mean that the place is not a real honest to goodness massage place. Husbands and wives don't go to places like that, usually."

He said that he had asked to see the premises, and was shown the portable steam bath, and a small hot tub that was the whirlpool bath they had advertised on the sign influence."

"Oh, yeah," he yawned, "how's that?"

"I'll bring the Big Four down here," I said.

The manager turned pale and began to quiver. "Noooo, not the dreaded Big Four," he gasped.

"Yep. I'll bring in the King County planners, the Washington State Liquor Control Board, the State Gambling Commission and our very own Councilman who singlehandedly closed the Kozy Kitty."

"Can't we negotiate?" he whined.

"Nope. The Big Four will downzone all of Reno back to a desert, tear down that ugly eight story neon clown down the street, padlock the Mustang Ranch, outlaw booze at the tables or after 2 a.m., and limit card games to Crazy 8's and Go Fish."

That did it. He broke under the pressure and that's how I got clear title to a couple of slot machines, a Keno game, two blackjack tables and about three crap tables.

The manager promised "to hit" me, but I said I'd stand. He promised the contract would be out in a couple of days.

outside. The woman was the masseuse and he saw a couple of dimly lit rooms that could be curtained off. Nobody was visible, he said. Maybe business was bad.

When the woman implied that she had time to wait on a customer, right now, Spouse said thanks, but that his wife was out in the car and we were on our way home.

"Your wife is in the car?" He said that she seemed surprised, then doubtful. "Oh, come on," she said. Spouse said he asked if she had a brochure as he was leaving, and she said "brochure?"

As she followed him out to the car she told him, "We stay open very late." She had probably come out to make sure that he wasn't using the "old wife out in the car" to get out of making a purchase.

"Boy, am I glad you were in the car," he said.

"So am I." And I made a mental note to check the library for some self teaching books about the fine art of massage.

The massage message

"My shoulders hurt," complained Spouse the other day. "I've got that ache all over feeling. What I need is a good massage."

"We'll, okay," I said, "but dinner will be late."

"No, said Spouse, "what I need is a really professional massage like athletes get. I just don't know where to find a good masseur or masseuse."

"There sure seems to be a lot of "massage parlors" advertised in the newspapers," I said.

"Trouble is, in most of those places, a guy could get arrested without getting a decent massage."

"You know, massages have real therapeutic value," Spouse explained. "A good massage, properly done, can make you healthier, live longer and make your muscles stop aching."

"That a fact?"

"You'd probably like a good massage too," he said. "Just think of it, a steam bath or a sauna and a good massage."

"Nifty."

"I think you mean that."

Spouse said that he certainly did mean it, and that when and if we could find a suitable place we would share in the benefits of massage. We agreed to begin our search.

Last night, as we were driving home from a dinner date, I saw a very sedate-looking house, near a junior high school, in a quiet residential area. A small, discreet sign carried the message that whirlpool baths, saunas and massage were available.

The typical "massage parlor" as advertised in the personal columns of some daily newspapers is usually decorated with neon signs, describing the services available as "sexsational, tingling, and so on." Champagne baths, or pretty girls or "for your pleasure" signs were absent from this location.

"Maybe this is a good place," I said.

We pulled into the driveway, and I told Spouse to just run in, check the place out and if it was okay, to sign us up. I said I'd stay in the car, to listen to my Willy Nelson tape.

Drinking and driving: No. 1 Killer on the road

by Nathalie Weber
Each time a drunk gets behind the wheel, every other motorist's chances of dying swell.
Drunk driving is the number one killer on the roads in Washington State. Of all fatal accidents in the state last year, the State Patrol reports that 45 percent occurring in rural areas are attributed to drunk driving; 34 percent in the urban areas were caused by the intoxicated motorists.
Last year in King County alone some 336 persons were killed on the road as a result of drunk driving. Of that total, 122 had been drinking, 85 of them heavily, the State Traffic Safety Commission reports.
Eight months ago this state was travelled by at least 258 more motorists than today drive its roads. Now dead are 141 drivers, 60 passengers, 29 motorcycleists, five motorcycle passengers, 19 pedestrians and four bicyclists, all as a result of persons driving under the influence of alcohol.

REAMS OF PAPER stored in government offices in Olympia attest to the fact that drunk driving is a major problem in our state. The statistics go on and on, a result of endless hours of study that may hold the key to saving more motorists who fall victim to uncontrolled drivers.
Driving while intoxicated — DWI — may be part of the answer. But of the 19,617 drunk driving arrests made last year, some 25 percent of those arrested were charged with the same violation within 12 months following the first arrest, according to the State Department of Licensing. Thirty percent of those arrests were made in King County, although Pierce, Snohomish and Kitsap counties have worse drunk driving records in relation to the number of miles driven by motorists in those counties.

Of that 25 percent that will return to court on a second violation, another 25 percent will again return for a third time. Return to 10 but, while the law is partially effective, it is not a fool-proof deterrent.
ACCORDING TO C. Lynn Klingberg, research supervisor for the Department of Licensing, there will not be a "solution" to drunk driving until those who drink and drive are educated on the causes, effects and risks of driving under the influence of alcohol. Klingberg doesn't lend much hope for that.
"I don't think it's going to be solved in our generation," he said. "If you see the part alcoholism plays in our society, you'd know that it won't change until society's attitude changes.

We've become apathetic toward drunk behavior."
He explained that in studies conducted by his department where "placebos" — drinks containing no alcohol — were used, those who did not know they were not drinking alcohol began acting nearly as intoxicated as those who were consuming alcohol.
"There are some physical detrimental manifestations, but psychologically they may be even greater," Klingberg theorized. "People are allowed to do things when they're drunk that they would be allowed to do when sober and it's a contagious atmosphere."
AND, WHILE SOCIETY is allowing great numbers to drink, it also is tolerating drinking by those of which it is previously did not approve. About 54 percent of those who drink and drive are men, but the gap between that and the 46 percent of females is closing, Lindberg said. Most of the drinking also is done by the middle-age group — about 40 — but each year that age is younger and younger.

"With Equal Rights, things are more similar than before, and more women drink," Lindberg explained. "With the kids, liquor is more available — they can just reach in the liquor cabinet at home. There's also some indication that younger people are returning to alcohol from the softer drugs like marijuana. Alcohol is the big drug abused by all age groups."
Meanwhile, the number of fatal accidents caused by drunk drivers continues to climb by about one to two percent per year. The new law is intended to curb that increase, but that will have to be seen. The challenge is to find the solution.

Is education the answer?

by Cathy Stone
The message at the Southwest Community Alcohol Center is abundantly clear. If you're going to drink, don't drive.
The Burien facility, headed by executive director Lloyd Bair, counsels persons convicted of alcohol-related driving offenses from Des Moines, Federal Way, Normandy Park, Burien, White Center, West Seattle and Vashon Island.

Perhaps if everyone did, the Center would not give alcohol treatment to over 8,000 persons a year. The Center receives about 150 to 200 new clients a month and counsels a total of about 600 a month.

Of those, 50 percent have had two or more DWI convictions, Bair said.

Most of the persons coming to the Center start their treatment with the four-session alcohol information school, which is usually the only treatment for the first-time offender who does not appear to have a drinking problem. The program gives assistance to individuals in evaluating their development with alcohol and encourages persons who may have a problem to seek additional help.

For those who may have a more serious problem, the six-session alcohol depth education program emphasizes education and recovery. The curriculum includes information on the symptoms of alcoholism, recognitions of its impact on life, the identification of the aids and barriers to recovery and the recognition of the alcoholics anonymous program in the recovery process. Persons with a severe problem may be referred to another facility for in-patient treatment, Bair said, which may last from three to 28 days, sometimes longer.

The Center also has two follow-up programs.

The supervised treatment follow-up program requires the alcohol-related offender to meet weekly with other probationers. Discussion centers around the necessary personality changes and behavior modifications, the essentials for alcoholism recovery and the need for modification in persons who are beginning to have an alcohol problem.

The recovery and resocialization program is for persons who have reached sobriety. It acquaints the person with the danger signals involved in recovering from alcoholism and provides information on community activities that do not involve alcohol as part of their function.

Regardless of the program an individual is in, he is required to report to the Center for re-evaluation at intervals set by the Counselor. Reports on the person's progress are sent monthly to the Department of Licensing and if there is no progress, the person's license is suspended.

The individual is responsible for paying the cost of the program, which varies from $10 per session for the recovery and resocialization program to $340 for a two-year treatment plan.

However, Bair stressed, "No person is refused services because of money here."

Lloyd Bair

The type of counseling varies depending upon the seriousness of each individual's drinking problem.

Some people who show up for counseling at the Center don't have a drinking problem — yet — and it's the hope of the Center counselors that they prevent one from developing.

"Not all the individuals we deal with are alcoholics," Bair said. "Anyone who drinks and also drives a car can get a DWI."

The first contact the Center has with an individual convicted of DWI is in their pre-sentence report interview. The counselor gets background information on the incident and the person's drinking pattern. They try to learn if it was an isolated incident or if the person is developing a drinking problem, Bair said. Depending on what they find out, they will determine what is needed for the individual's treatment, ranging from a four-session alcohol information school to an extended in-patient treatment.

"We feel our contribution to the community is to instruct people about the other side of the picture," he said. "Hopefully, a number of these individuals will not appear in court again on a DWI because of the information they've learned."

The other side of the picture includes information on alcohol, alcohol abuse and alcoholism. Included in the sessions is information on alcohol and the law and on an individual's capacity.

"Everybody in the community could benefit from attending an alcohol information school," he said.

DWI: It's a gamble

he is involved in any alcohol-related traffic offense in which there is a .05 reading or greater, the license is immediately suspended for a minimum of 30 days. After the minimum period has passed, the license will be reinstated only after the individual has entered a state-approved alcohol program and has filed proof of financial responsibility.

Some good advice for anyone, Stansbury said, is "If you're going to drink and drive, know how much you can drink and drive safely."

For the person who has already had one repeat offense, some better advice is probably to "absolutely not drink and drive."

For the two-time loser, one more offense means the revocation of his license for five years. The revocation is made under the habitual traffic offenders law in which a license will be revoked if a person has 20 moving violations or three mandatory violations. The latter includes DWI, hit and run, negligent homicide, reckless driving and driving while the driving privilege is suspended or revoked.

With the exception of a fear of getting into an accident, perhaps the greatest deterrent to most persons from drinking and driving is the fear of losing their license.

For the three-time offender, the loss of a license could represent a five-year sentence to a prison without bars.

When you're drunk-- First you lose your reasoning...

by Nathalie Weber
If you're going to drink, drive and not get caught, take note.
Be sure to stay in your own lane. Don't drive with your windshield wipers on when it hasn't rained for weeks. Don't drive with all the windows rolled down. Be sure to turn your lights on at night. Don't drive at a crawling pace. And don't play your brakes while driving.
If you follow these rules, chances are you won't be noticed by the Washington State Patrol. But if you've had too much to drink, chances are you won't be in any condition to remember the rules, or to abide by them.
That's because the first faculty that are influenced by alcohol are logic and reasoning. "They're always the first impaired, Chuck Stansbury, assistant administrator for the Driver Improvement Division of the Department of Licensing, said. "When we ask someone who's been drinking how many drinks they've had and he says 'two,' we can't fault him. He usually really does think he's only had two."
Vision is the next faculty to go. Acuteness drops, objects blur and the eye becomes sensitive to light. That sensitivity also contributes to accidents because the intoxicated driver often is blinded by the glare from oncoming traffic, Stansbury said.

The third faculty lost is the ability to react. Combined with a lack of judgment and an inability to see, chances of an accident climb.
C. Lynn Klingberg, research analyst for the Department of Licensing, said that the attitude of the drinker often can influence the likelihood that he will be involved in an accident.
"It's the hostile, aggressive individual who often creates the problems on the road," Klingberg said. "Alcohol is a disinhibitor. If someone is angry, gets drunk and becomes outwardly angry with someone in a tavern, he may decide to take it out on his car rather than hit someone."
"We use our cars for more than to get from point a to b. That was obvious when there was all that aggression on the freeways in California during the gas crunch."
KLINGBERG SUGGESTS that if a program was developed to make angry people deal with their problems before they drink, they would be happy, not hostile drinkers. "The accident rate could drop," he said.
Those who are stopped for DWI, are given the breathalyzer test and categorized in one of three states: .00 to .05, an indication that little or no alcohol has been consumed; .05 to .09, an indication that an amount of alcohol has been consumed and arrest is determined by the officer; 1.0 or higher, an indication that the motorist is legally intoxicated.

There are a number of factors that can influence a person's intoxication aside from the ounces of liquor he has consumed. Intoxication will vary dependent upon how much a person has eaten prior to drinking, whether a person is physically or emotionally fatigued, how much a person weighs and whether a person is on any medication. The effect also will be influenced depending upon sex — a women's metabolism generally operates faster than a man's, thus affecting the women faster — and upon how quickly the alcohol is ingested.

THERE ARE, however, basic charts that aid in determining how much a person may consume before he reaches the "legally intoxicated" level. The chart, devised by the Department of Licensing, begins with a 90-pound body weight and determines a person of that weight, drinking fairly consistently, may consume a little more than three ounces of 86 proof liquor before he would blow a 1.0 on the breathalyzer.
The heaviest weight on the chart is 250 pounds, which allows a person of that weight to ingest about seven-and-one-half drinks before he is legally intoxicated.
Klingberg explained that the effect of alcohol will peak about an hour after it is consumed. About one-fourth of the alcohol ingested will dissipate from the system, but the remaining three-fourths will remain in the body. "And only time will get rid of that," he said.
Klingberg's advice to the drinking public is a statement of common sense, but nevertheless a statement that could save a life in the future. "If you're going to drink, and you're going to drive, know how much you can handle," he said. "The key is in knowing. We've got to be educated on drinking."

... then you can lose your freedom

by Cathy Stone
(Robinson Newspapers expresses its appreciation to Sgt. Ken Schnorr and the Des Moines Police Department for their cooperation in the preparation of this article. The officer took the already sober reporter through the steps of the equally sober experience of being arrested for DWI. While what occurred gives the basic idea of what may happen if stopped for DWI, Schnorr stressed policies vary among different police agencies.)
The blue lights flashed in my rear view mirror. As with most persons who don't have a lot of contact with law enforcement, I felt my heart beat quicken and my stomach churn.
The officer had stopped me for a defective headlight, but after looking at my license, he asked me to get out of my car. He walked with me to a safe area between our two cars, then informed me he believed I was under the influence of alcohol. Before taking me to the station, he said, he was going to conduct a series of tests.
We were standing in the illumination of his headlights, as if spotlighted on a stage for all the passing motorists to see. I asked if we couldn't do the tests somewhere, anywhere else but in the spotlight, but he explained both he and I would need sufficient light to successfully complete the tests.

I walked the line, head down, in hopes that no one would see and recognize me as they passed by. The next tests — touching my nose with the right and left index fingers and standing on oneleg — required I close my eyes and tilt my head back, providing a clear view of my face. I cringed each time I heard the sound of a passing car.
I was relieved to have the test over, but unknown to me at the time, the embarrassment was only beginning. He informed me I was under arrest for DWI and gave me my Miranda rights. He took my purse and car keys away from me, then did a pat down search. My humiliation was heightened when he handcuffed me behind my back and helped me into the back seat of his car.
After checking my car for valuables and locking it up, he asked me what I wanted done with my car. Did I want it towed or would I sign a waiver to leave it on the street? I opted for leaving it on the street.

He took me to the station where he parked in an enclosed garage and placed his weapon in a locker while I waited, still locked in the back seat of his car.
After removing me from the car, he did a thorough search for weapons before removing my handcuffs. He also took all my property — my rings, watch, jewelry and my belt. I was escorted to a tiny, locked, screened cubicle where I would spend what seemed like hours. The reams of paperwork started with a re-advisement of my rights and the inventorying of my valuables.
An endless list of questions started.
Where had I been? Who had I been with? How much sleep had I had? What had I eaten? Am I under the care of a doctor? Am I taking any medication? And on. And on.
Occasionally I would ask him a question, but apparently when you're under arrest for DWI, it's one-sided questioning only because he didn't respond.
When he had exhausted his list of questions, he allowed me out of the cage to repeat the tests I had performed on the streets. While there were no passing motorists, there was the eye of a video-camera which recorded each movement for posterity or more likely, my day in court.

This series of tests also included a rendition of the ABC's.
These completed, he administered the Breathalyzer test, in which I blew into a tube. I had already signed a form agreeing to do this. If I didn't, I could lose my license.
Satisfied with the results, he took my shoes, gave me a blanket and ushered me to a cell. It was about 8 by 10 feet, with a bunk and cold steel toilet and sink. The door clanged behind me.
And there I would have stayed until morning when I would have been fingerprinted and photographed for a mug shot, if this had been the real thing.
The experience of being arrested for DWI was unpleasant as an enactment. As a real thing, it would have been unbearable. And the arrest for DWI would have been only the start. There would be court, penalties, and with the new DWI law in effect, more jail time in a cell with a door that clangs shut with a sound more terrifying than any horror movie I've ever seen.

Jobs no barrier to good grades

True or false? High school students who work part-time while attending school are more likely to:

- (A) Get lower grades.
- (B) Participate in fewer student activities.
- (C) Spend fewer hours on school homework.

The answer to each question is false.

Vocational information counselors at Tye, Mt. Rainier and Evergreen high schools in the Highline School District conducted a survey of students at those schools last spring. Of the 2,279 students questioned, 71 percent (1,621) said they held paying jobs outside of school hours.

Working students earned slightly higher average grades than non-working students, according to William Cox, counselor at Tye. Based on a 4.0 grading system, the grade point average of working students was 2.6, for non-working students, 2.5. Both are the equivalent of a C-plus.

In the area of student activities, there was almost no difference in participation by working and non-working students except in athletics. While almost 35 percent of non-working students participated in school athletics, only 29 percent of working students did.

As to homework, there was no discernible difference in the amount of time spent on home study by working and non-working students. Both groups spend an average of four to five hours a week on home study of school work.

Working students averaged about 20 hours a week on their outside jobs. The average pay was $3.25 an hour. As sophomores, male and female working students earn about the same hourly pay.

By the time they are seniors, male students earn 50 cents an hour more than females.

"The study indicated that, as sophomores, many boys and girls work in fast food outlets at the minimum wage," Cox said. "More often than not, the boys advance to jobs as cooks while the girls stay in less skilled jobs such as order takers. As seniors, many girls are still working in the fast food industry while some of the boys are employed in service stations as assistant mechanics or at other semi-skilled and higher-paying jobs." The percentage of working high school students goes up as they get older. While 53 percent of sophomores at the measured high schools work at paying jobs outside of school, 76 percent of seniors do.

Students who work evenings have an average quitting time of 9:30 p.m., although some 38 percent of them work until 11 p.m. or later.

"The results of this survey were surprising to many teachers and, I'm sure, to many parents as well," said Cox. "The rather low number of hours students — both working and non-working — devote to homework makes it possible for the working student to compete with non-working students for grades."

Some teachers wondered, according to Cox, whether working students might not be signing up for more "soft" courses to ease the homework load. "That possibility was not measured in the survey," he said. "However, the fact that non-working students spend about the same amount of time on homework as working students would seem to make it unlikely."

Airwest strikers 'aren't striking'

Striking Air Lines Employees Association workers are not softening in their opposition to a contract offer by Hughes Airwest, the union's vice president said Monday.

Of more than 200 ALEA members who met in Seattle last weekend, 16 voted to accept the proposed pact, reported Robert Haskin.

"The result was the same in meetings of our members nationwide. That is not an indication to us that we are softening," Haskin said.

Haskin, speaking at a strike headquarters in the Vance Airport Inn near Sea-Tac International Airport, responded to statements made last week by Airwest spokesmen who said they believed ALEA members were reconsidering the airlines' proposal.

ALEA, without a contract with Airwest since Aug. 1, 1978, went on strike last Monday after negotiations involving federal mediators broke off in Washington, D.C.

All Airwest operations have been halted by the walkout by ALEA's 2,200 card-carriers, including 258 in Seattle. Flights will not resume until the strikers return to work, according to Airwest.

HASKIN said ALEA, which includes secretaries, mail clerks, typists, reservation agents, keyboard operators, and loading ramp and baggage-handling personnel, wants a contract that is comparable to industry standards.

He said a similar group of employees for Northwest Orient Airlines is in the process of ratifying a pact that would bring the salary for a reservations agent up to $2,000 a month. He said the contract Airwest's ALEA members are seeking is virtually identical to Northwest's, but is based "on a 10-year agent."

"We want the same increases. We don't feel we're being unfair," Haskin said.

Airwest has not met ALEA's demands on other key contract issues, Haskin said, but does seem to be leaning toward agreement on desired retroactive pay, Haskin said.

On that matter, Airwest has included a taped message on its company hot-line, saying it is willing to give ALEA members eight percent retroactive earnings based on gross income, including overtime.

"BUT THEY (Airwest) haven't said that to our negotiators directly. We're completely baffled why they are doing that," Haskin said.

That maneuver, plus another in which the airline last week sent in its pay envelopes to ALEA employees detailed explanations of its contract offer, has caused Haskin to fear 'Airwest "is circumventing our negotiating team."

"It's the old conquer-and-divide tactic," Haskin said. "But our members are standing by what we want."

Haskin was further concerned Monday by what he said was a resumption of contract negotiations between Airwest and the Air Line Pilots Association. He said the talks began Monday morning "in San Mateo, Calif., and it bothers us that the company has time to negotiate with another union while our dispute remains unsettled."

Airwest spokesman Larry Litchfield said it is "not true" negotiations with the pilots union began Monday.

"That is a union the airline will be negotiating with, but no (bargaining) dates have been set," he said.

Litchfield added, however, that those talks could resume before the ALEA strike is resolved.

Airwest, which is up for sale, is beset by labor problems with its employees, Haskin said. Of its five groups of employees represented by unions, four have no contract, he said.

DM fire totals car

About ten firefighters from Fire District No. 26 responded to a car fire at 7th Avenue South and South 223rd last Friday evening about 8:40 p.m.

The Volkswagon bug, owned by Kenneth Wilson, 608 South 293rd, was totally destroyed.

Eyewitnesses said a flaming liquid began dripping from the back of the vehicle before it burst into flames. The probable cause of the fire was a leak in the gas line, according to Fire Marshal Bob Arnold.

HERE'S A COZY WAY TO SUPPORT THE OLYMPICS.

Say hello to Misha the Bear. He's the official mascot of the 1980 Summer Olympic Games in Moscow. And he's all yours — free — when you invest in a $500 one-year Guaranteed Income Bond at Puget Sound National Bank. If you don't happen to have that much handy, you can still take Misha home for only $7. Either way, everyone wins. Because a part of the proceeds is donated to the U.S. Olympic Committee. You don't need an account with us to get Misha. But Puget Sound National Bank is the only place in town you'll find him. He stands 12 inches tall in his bear feet. So he really goes over big with little people. And you couldn't ask for a better guy to hibernate with. So come on in. Save some money. Help send an athlete to the Games. And go home with a new friend. From the hometown bank. With love.

White cell room boosts chances for recovery

by Ann Hagen

Just two months ago, 18-year-old Shiela Macdonald of Edmonton, Alberta was leading a happy, normal life. Out of school for a year, she was working in her family's business and was planning a February wedding to her fiancé.

But, the wedding may have to be postponed, perhaps indefinitely. Shiela contracted a rare cancer-related blood disorder, myelofibrosis where the bone marrow is invaded by fibroblastic cells. The invading cells interfere with the bone marrow that in normal circumstances produces healthy blood.

She is currently undergoing treatment at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center (FHCRC) in Seattle. The FHCRC staff are pioneers in the development and use of the bone marrow transplant procedure, a treatment method that has cured many afflicted with the once hopeless disease, leukemia.

"The doctors didn't know if she would live long enough to get here," said 21-year-old Sandy who has been at her sister's bedside throughout the ordeal. "They gave her a day, perhaps a month, or if she was lucky, a year. They just didn't know."

When the elder Macdonalds discovered the nature of their daughter's illness, they called all over the world in search of the best possible medical treatment. They were told that Seattle was their best bet.

AFTER A SERIES OF tests that involved the parents and three other children, it was found that Sandy was "as far as perfected" a perfect match. She would be the bone marrow donor as well as donate white blood cells necessary for her sister's fight against infection following surgery.

"It was a really lucky thing," said Sandy who is optimistic and involved in Shiela's illness. "Very lucky."

Sandy said that though she

WHITE BLOOD CELL donor Sandy Macdonald and lab technician, Christel Cone become well acquainted during Sandy's four-week stay at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center.

realized there would be some discomfort and strain, she would have helped no matter what the circumstances. "It's that important and something that just has to be done."

Both girls were rushed from Canada in an ambulance to the center where surgery was scheduled immediately. The bone marrow transplant was handled at Swedish Hospital after Shiela received massive doses of radiation to destroy the malignant cells.

For now, they are settled in second floor rooms at FHCRC with their parents close at hand. Shiela is coping with her illness and Sandy spends four hours daily for the next month in the white cell room that is equipped to handle as many as five donor donors per day.

Christel Cone, A Federal Way resident for the past 13 years works as a medical technician at FHCRC. She's been there for seven months.

A recent graduate of Shoreline Community College, she received extensive training at the center "because everything is so specialized." "It's a tension job," said she said emphatically. "You can't make mistakes."

HER DUTIES INCLUDE hooking donors to a continuous-flow blood machine that separates red and white blood cells and monitoring their vital signs.

The machine, that separates cells according to density works by centrifugal force. "We're not depleting the donor of white cells but merely using their extra ones," said Ms. Cone reassuringly.

There's really little danger to the donor other than that she may become extremely tired and worn out, she said. In that case, plasma is fed through the machine to replenish the donor's supply.

To guarantee a good collection rate, the technicians pay special attention to the donor's comfort, physical condition and their mental attitude. Spasms can be a problem if a patient is uptight. "We want the best possible collection rate," said Ms. Cone. "We need to be on our toes at all times."

Pleased over the casual approach to care at FHCRC, Sandy said that she and her sister have been encouraged to ask as many questions as is necessary. "There's no such thing as a dumb question," she said adding that the technicians are casually dressed to encourage a relaxed atmosphere.

In addition, the family is encouraged to be involved with the patient's immediate care and to become familiar with duties that make her more comfortable.

SANDY WAS WITH HER sister during a spinal tap and the connection of a life-sustaining tube that enabled Shiela to absorb food and medicine. She was also taught to understand the signals on a monitoring machine.

"They involve you physically and mentally. It's a big help toward helping the family cope," said Sandy. "You really feel like you're saving their life."

Both she and her sister are facing the problem by looking death straight in the eye. "We know what we have to do, and we're prepared to do it," said Sandy. "The time to be straight forward is now. There's no time to beat around the bush."

FHCRC is one of the few clinics nationwide where bone marrow transplants are performed. Their staff is responsible for approximately 700 of the 1,200 transplants that have been done since the procedure's development in the mid 60's.

Developed by Dr. E. Donnall Thomas who is currently head of the medical oncology department, the procedure is still in the experimental stages. However, statistics show that leukemia victims now have a 50 percent recovery and blood disorder, Aplastic anemia patients have a 75 percent recovery rate.

In Shiela's case, there are few statistics that either support or refute recovery. All that is known is that without the transplant, her chances would be nil.

Residents sue county, developer over plat

A lawsuit brought by residents of the Meredith Hills area against King County and the developers of a proposed plat known as Hillis Hills is scheduled to get underway tomorrow afternoon in King County Superior Court.

The West Hill Citizens for Controlled Development Density assert in a brief prepared for the case that development of the subdivision by Hillis Homes will cause injury to their properties, the character of the neighborhood and the loss or reduction of their property values.

The action is brought on behalf of the Meredith Hills group and "all persons in King County concerned with protecting and preserving... the character, liveability and beauty of unique neighborhoods."

Hillis Homes owns about 80.5 acres south of South 296th Street and east of 51st Avenue South. The intent of the proposed plat is to subdivide the land into 295 lots for single-family dwellings.

The Federal Way Community Plan adopted in 1975 limited development in the area to two units per acre. The proposed Hillis plan calls for 7,200 square foot lots. The community plan revision committee has recommended that the area be developed at no greater density than 9,600 square foot lots.

Superior Court Judge T. Patrick Corbett ruled Monday in pre-trial proceedings that the work of the revision committee will not be considered by the court because the work was subsequent to a county council motion of Nov. 6, 1978 approving the preliminary plat for Hillis Hills.

The plaintiffs allege that the plat is inconsistent with the FWCP which "supercedes inconsistent prior zoning."

The trial will resume Thursday at 1:30 p.m. before Judge Corbett.

Wednesday night is youth night at Olympic View Friends Church! Friends Youth meet at 7:30 p.m. at the church. All young people, junior high through high, are invited. Junior Friends also meet at 7:30 p.m. Juniors and fourth through sixth grades are also invited. SKAGGS OFFERS Budget-Boosting Values!

Is this what you think of most church people?

If you think there are phoney's and hypocrites in church, you're right. But they're also in factories, offices, and grocery stores. Or wherever there are people.

Our people don't come to church because they're perfect. They come to meet the One who is. We see them as people with problems, not problem people.

Maybe you, too, have some problems that are really bothering you. Why not get help in an atmosphere where people are seeking answers to life's biggest questions. Visit us this Sunday. And if you don't have any problems, come anyway. Because we could use a few perfect people.

Rainy day fun: things to choose to boot the blues

by Barbara Butts

Are you depressed, feeling run-down? There is no need to head for the latest "tired blood" remedy at the corner drugstore — or so says one of the instructors in Federal Way Recreation's fall program.

Holly Coates, who has a master's degree in social work, says her classes in aerobic dancercise can help pull one out of the drearies or the doldrums.

"Women have a high rate of depression — not of the clinical type — just ordinary depression," she said. "Aerobic dancercise can make you feel as if you're doing something good for yourself."

"Women tell me that it gives them a lot of energy and that their clothes begin to feel better. When it's a rainy, gray day, they come into the class, hear the music and feel real good."

What are the ingredients in this new-fashioned remedy?

Coates says her system gets the heart and lungs working better by a combination of warm-up exercises, choreographed dance movements to build to music with a strong beat, floor exercises for building up muscles yoga to increase flexibility.

She said the dancercise classes were designed for those who are 15 or older.

"The steps are real simple," she said. "It's not dance for people who want to go on to the Bill Evans Dance Company. It's a dance class for non-dancers."

Dancercise will be offered once a week for $20 or twice a week for $35 on Tuesday and Thursday. Babysitting will be available for daytime classes for a charge of 75 cents per child per class.

Daytime classes will be held at 9:15 a.m., 10:45 a.m. and 1:45 p.m. at the Federal Way Boys Club. Evening classes will be held at 5:30 and 7 at Lakota Junior High School. All classes are 1 1/4 hours long.

For those who may have dreams of performing with the Bill Evans Dance Company or other professional groups, Federal Way Recreation has an extended list of ballet and tap-dancing classes for 4- to 12-year-olds to be given at various locations around the Federal Way area.

Instructors Cher Bauer and Trish Berry will teach the approximately one-hour classes. Fees range from $12 to $15.

An adult ballet exercise class, which features classical ballet technique and is designed to achieve or maintain strength and flexibility, is also available.

Taught by Cher Bauer, the ballet exercise class will be held on Wednesday from 10:20 a.m. to 11:20 a.m. at the Federal Way Boys Club. The cost is $15.

And there is also something for those who are into disco-dancing, jazz-dancing or belly-dancing.

Shawn De Young and Sue Leverette will teach disco to fifth and sixth graders, teenagers, adult beginners and adults who are a little farther along in their foot work.

The cost ranges from $15 for the younger set to $20 for adult singles. Adult couples may take the classes for $35.

Belly-dancing will be taught by Jan Fantz on Wednesday from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Lakota Junior High School, and classes in jazz-dancing will be given by Trish Berry earlier on that morning at Lakota from 7 to 8. Fee for the classes is $15.

Needlepoint, taught by Aud Nielson, will be offered on Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Twenty dollars will get one in.

HOLLY COATES, instructor of aerobic dancercise for Federal Way Recreation, shows a bit of the flexibility that she says her system of exercise can accomplish. The teacher will have several classes in the center's fall schedule.

Nielson also will teach knitting on the same day. Knitters will pay $20 in tuition also and will be instructed from noon to 2 p.m. or from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Beginning and intermediate yoga classes will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday at Sacajawea Junior High School. The fee is $22. Class hours are from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Coates also will hold classes in weight control on Tuesday and Thursday from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. The cost is $35. Babysitting will be available.

Federal Way Recreation also will have a preschool this fall. It will be taught by Maxine Leavitt on Tuesday and Thursday (ages 4 and 5) and on Wednesday and Friday (ages 3 and 4) from 9 a.m. to noon. The fee is $40.

All classes will begin on Monday, Oct. 1, and will continue for 10 weeks.

But free dancercise classes will be given on Saturday, Sept. 27, to entice the reluctant. Call 941-0655 to sign up, shape up and chase those blues away.

Akers-Henderson

Cynthia Carol Akers, daughter of William and Carol Akers of Seattle, and Thomas Jeffrey Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. McEwan Henderson of Seattle, were united in marriage at an evening ceremony, August 25 at St. Paul's Catholic Church. Father Bayner Harrington officiated the rites.

The bride wore a white gown of organza with a deep ruffle of Chantilly lace at the bodice and Venice lace straps. More Chantilly lace trimmed the chapel-length train and veil, which attached to a lace hat. Her bouquet was a cascading arrangement of silk roses, forget-me-nots, white daisies and ivy, featuring her wedding colors of peach and orange.

Bridal attendants were Margie Lewis, a maid of honor; Julie Akers, Denise Bennett, Lisa Cuffe and Jeanette Rorvick, bridesmaids and Trina Cuffe, flowergirl.

Paul Ward served as best man and ushers were Ron Adkisson, Brian Aurelio, McEwan Henderson III and Stuart Henderson. The ringbearer was Leo Tandecki III.

The bride attended a reception in her honor at the church, where decorations carried over the peach and orange theme. They left later for a honeymoon in Hawaii.

The bride attended Renton High School and Highline Community College, where she received a degree in Transportation. Her husband is a 1975 graduate of Evergreen High School and is currently employed as a bricklayer. The couple will make their first home in Burien.

GRCC offers career information

Whether you are a student still undecided about a career field or an individual who is dissatisfied with your present employment, the Green River Community College Career Center has two courses and a variety of counseling and informational services to help put you on the track to a satisfying job. Located on the second floor of the Lindbloom Student Center on the college campus, the center is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Career Potentials and Career Exploration are courses designed to aid in establishing skills, interests, goals and abilities and working these factors into a feasible career choice. Career Potentials focuses on individuals seeking to enter or re-enter school or the labor market and also includes leisure skills clarification. Career Exploration studies the factors that influence occupational choice and the relationship of self-awareness to job selection.

The Career Center offers services including the Washington Occupation Computer. The computer asks questions pertaining to individual skills and interests and analyzes them and produces a list of possible careers the person may be interested in. A written test is used in conjunction with the computer to ensure the accuracy of results. Its file includes listings of more than 2,000 occupations, the job's employment prospects, educational requirements, salary, advancement potential, etc.

In addition to the computer, the Career Center offers specialized information to women, minorities and the elderly, as well as information on VISTA, the Peace Corps and the armed services. Resume preparation and interview techniques are taught also.

Ken Curtis

Curtis fills in for Anderson

Old "Festus" seems destined to play second gun. The faithful sidekick portrayed by Ken Curtis on television's popular series, "Gunsmoke," has been rushed in to the Western Washington Fair's all-pro rodeo to replace an ailing Lynn Anderson. Anderson canceled her Puyallup performance late Friday because of illness. Notice of her cancellation arrived too late for the Sunday edition of The News. A fair official said that refunds will be given to Lynn Anderson fans who do not wish to attend Curtis's shows. They may be obtained at the fair's grandstand office. During the rodeo, which runs through Friday, Curtis will perform twice daily at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Although Curtis is probably best-known for his role as Festus Haggen on "Gunsmoke" for 12 years, he also spent six years singing with the Sons of the Pioneers, the country-and-western group that brought out "Tumbling Tumbleweeds" and other popular songs.

Decatur strokes to impressive golf win

The Decatur Gators were the only local victors in the opening round of South Puget Sound League golf action Thursday, but Federal Way and Jefferson showed well.

Decatur scored the SPSL's highest point total in first-round place, 81, but Gator mentor Terry O'Donnell isn't jumping to lofty conclusions after the first official outing.

"Eighty-one is about where we started last year," he said. "We started off the year right, but now we have to continue progress to be a factor."

"I'm optimistic that we can finish in the league's top division. I think Lakes and Clover Park will be tops and Decatur and Federal Way should do pretty well."

Decatur, an 81-60 winner over Curtis Thursday, hosts Federal Way Monday in a 3:30 p.m. match at Twin Lakes Golf Club. Federal Way took a 76-59 defeat by Lakes Thursday at North Shore Golf Club. Decatur met Rogers Monday while Federal Way battled Sumner and Jefferson tangled with Bethel (match results unavailable at press time). Jefferson, which lost a 59-36 verdict to Puyallup Thursday, will play Decatur tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. at Twin Lakes. Federal Way hosts Curtis at North Shore Tomorrow at 3:30 p.m.

Dave Edwards, a senior, highlighted Decatur's win over Curtis by completing Twin Lakes' front nine with a one-under-par 35 good for 19 points. Seniors Mike O'DONNELL and Dave Utz contributed 13 each, and junior Mark Scuderi came through with 14. Mike Anderson, a senior, and junior Jim Price scored 11 each.

"Edwards is a much improved golfer," coach O'Donnell noted. "He should be among the top in the league throughout the season."

JEFFERSON had low point-production from the bottom of its lineup Thursday, but Mark Nygren took medalist honors with a one-over 37 at Lynden Golf Course. The low stroke-total gave TJ 17 points.

Brian Myers scored 10 points, and Terry Cash tallied six. Tim Griffith and Pat Garlan each scored two points. Pam Mayer, the first girl performer in Jefferson golf history, suffered a shutout in her first competition.

"We're a very young team, so we'll improve as the season goes on," predicted Jefferson golf skipper Ed Erikson. "We don't have a senior on the team, but we have some talent. With some experience, we should start producing better."

FEDERAL Way "will be good" with added experience, coach Dick Ternes confidently said after Thursday's league opener.

"We have good talent, but need more seasoning," he said, adding that expects victories against Sumner and Curtis this week.

The Eagles showed consistent scoring Thursday. Bart Turchin and Bill Eichholtz led the Eagle linksmen with 12 points apiece. Rick Hollingsworth tallied 10, John Tate nine, and Matt Mangio and Gavin Savage came in with eight each.

Mark Nygren

Dave Edwards, of Decatur, and Jefferson's Mark Nygren showed that they will be top golfers during the South Puget Sound League season.

Edwards headed Decatur's victory over with a one-under par 35 on the front nine at Twin Lakes Golf and Country Club. His score garnered 19 of Decatur's 81 points.

Nygren took medalist honors in Jefferson's Thursday match against Puyallup at Lynden Golf Club. He came through with a one-over 37 and 17 points.

Other top performances: Lauren Schlaeppli, Federal Way's nose guard, recovered a Summer fumble in the end zone to give the Eagles a 7-0 win over the Spartans Friday night. Schlaeppli's recovery came with 2:12 left to play in the contest.

Joey Nokes, a Midway resident, drove in the game-winning run in the 13th inning as Peterbilt beat Aurora, Illinois 1-0 last Wednesday in the Amateur Softball Association National Fastpitch Tournament at Midland, Michigan. Nokes ended the tourney with one hit in two at-bats and had two RBIs. Other local residents on the Peterbilt team, which finished fifth in the 22-team tournament, were Rich Fredrickson, Roger Miller, Greg Flynn and coach Tom Wagner.

Flyers flop 62-7 in 'one of those'

by Pat Jenkins

Is there life after losing by 55 points?

Burien's Flyers, their vital signs astonishingly weak in a 62-7 humiliation administered by the Pierce County Bengals last Saturday, will go to another state this weekend in search of resuscitation.

They'll encounter the Van-Port Thunderbirds Saturday night in Portland's Civic Stadium, a site the Flyers hope won't be another Waterloo like that they stumbled into in Sumner.

There, Pierce County, mindful of being dethroned by Burien last season as champions of the Northwest International Football League, made a shambles of the once-fearsome Flyers, now 2-3.

It was so bad, that: — The winners led 28-0 with more than 12 minutes left in the second quarter, and the margin was 42-0 at halftime.

— The Flyers feared they might surrender 100 points.

— Pierce County outgained Burien 392 yards to 120.

PLAYER-COACH Steve Harshman, who labors in the offensive line when not telling his fellow Bengals what to do and how to do it, was in no mood for apologizing for the trouncing.

But, he confessed, "There's no way this game should have turned out like this. We're definitely fired up when we play Burien, though, especially after they knocked us off last year.

"Burien isn't a bad team," he added. "We just had a little extra incentive."

Burien general manager Phil Pompeo, as shellshocked as anyone after the holocaust, is looking forward to a rematch with the Bengals.

That might be like whistling in the dark. Nevertheless, Pompeo expects a different outcome next time.

"We play them here (Highline Stadium) Oct. 6, and I guarantee they won't score 62 points again," Pompeo said.

"Pierce County is very, very tough," he continued. "But who knows what might happen between now and when we play again? They could have a few injuries, lose a few players."

BURIEN lost offensive guard Craig Lindstrom in the first half when he tore tendons in a knee, leaving the Flyers minus four regular offensive linemen. Dan Payne, Larry Farnam, and Bob Foster were already missing.

But felled and absent performers had nothing to do with the magnitude of the rout, Pompeo said.

"It was one of those games when you do nothing right, and the other team does everything right," he said. "We were trying to hold them under 100 points. That was our goal."

"No, we don't want to try to forget about this game. We always want to remember it. It's a pride thing."

The Flyers don't seem to be a proud bunch this year, Pompeo lamented.

"Last year's team had a lot of heart, but there isn't as much this year," he said. "I don't know why. This is just as good a team as last year's — maybe better."

Mike Crotty's one-yard run in the third quarter was the Flyers' only encouragement, although said Pompeo "our offense moved the ball better against Pierce County than anybody else has this year."

THE BENGALS, who have outscored their foes 198-14 in building a 5-0 record and climbing to fifth in Pro Football Weekly's national ranking of minor-league football teams, scored four touchdowns in their 29-point second quarter.

Quarterbacks Dan Graham (three) and Bill Donckers threw four TD passes for PC, including a 41-yarder from Graham to Harry Washington in the fourth quarter.

Tim Thomson returned a punt 41 yards for a PC tally in the second period.

Nevan hits 10 of 10 to win You Pick 'Em

Chris Nevan, a Federal Way High School student, is the winner of the first You Pick 'Em football forecast contest.

Chris picked all 10 contests correctly, including UCLA's upset win over Purdue. He had just the right mix of hometown favoritism (wisely going with Federal Way, Washington, Washington State and the Seahawks) and cold realism (picking against Mt. Rainier, Decatur, Jefferson and Oregon State.)

And he got the benefit of a late rally by the Bradshaw-less Pittsburgh Steelers as they edged St. Louis. Chris wins $15 of merchandise of his choice from Olivelli Deli for his forecasting acumen. Russell J. Hancock of Kent missed only one game — Jefferson versus Bethel — en route to second place in the contest for this week.

Eight other pickers came up with eight correct predictions: DeAnn Goddard, Kirk Warner, Joyce Stuber, Ron Smith, Todd Voth, Dan McGrath, Pat Hogan and David Gartner.

TODAY is the last day for this week's contest. Week number two's winner will receive $15 worth of goods at Fisher Drug. Entries postmarked or delivered to the Federal Way News or Des Moines News today will be eligible.

Ram linksmen fall to Kent-Meridian

The Mt. Rainier Rams opened the North Puget Sound League golf season last week on a sour note.

The Rams lost to Kent-Meridian 46-34 in a match in which no Rainier golfer played up to potential, coach

Mel Command said. "We had no golfers that shot their game," Command said. "It was very disappointing."

Mark Fickes led the Rams with eight points for his score of 46 on the Meridian Valley course. Ron Averill shot a 47, good for seven points, as did John Finnegan. Other scorers were Jeff Belvill (53), Steve Fickes (52) and Jerry Unser (51).

The Rams will "try to get it started" tomorrow against Hazen at Maplewood, Command said.

'Clown Prince' to entertain M's fans

Max Patkin, the unofficial "Clown Prince of Baseball," will entertain Seattle Mariner fans in the Kingdome Friday and Saturday, Sept. 21 and 22, as the M's host the Chicago White Sox for the final home series of 1979.

Patkin, a minor league pitcher in the 1940's, has been taking his act around the major and minor leagues since 1946. He even worked as a full-time coach-comic for Bill Veck with the Cleveland Indians (1946-48) and the St. Louis Browns (1951).

But now Max travels some 45,000 miles a year to fill engagements, including annual visits to Canada, Mexico and Puerto Rico as well as the United States.

His "act" is to appear as an absolute screwball, and includes a sequence mimicking players between innings.

Federal Way wins two from Des Moines juniors

Federal Way Junior Football teams traveled to Des Moines Saturday for the second confrontation of the season.

The 89ers once again rewarded fans with an action-packed game.

In the first half action the Hawks gained 98 yards to 18 for Des Moines' including a 70 yard off tackle sprint for a TD, but neither team could dominate the other and the score was tied 6-6 at the midway point.

On the plus side for the orange and black was an almost error-free game — only one penalty assessed for the second week in a row.

Although the Hawks would score and convert late in the third to gain a 13-6 edge, the game was no-where near over as the battle reached its peak in the fourth.

Both teams scored safeties to push the score to 15-8 but it would be a superb Hawk defensive effort that would be the difference.

With less than a minute to go the Rams found paydirt only to have the TD called back to the FW five on a clip. Three plays later with the ball on the one yard line time ran out and FW fans breathed a sigh of relief.

After holding a 7-0 lead through two quarters the Sweetpea Hawks lost momentum in the third quarter, allowing the Rams a TD at the midway point. The conversion attempt failed but the score fired up the Rams, and they were once again threatening as time ran out in the third.

Although FW would regain possession on its own four, Des Moines would allow no gain. The Hawks punt attempt was foiled as the ball was overhiked for an automatic safety putting the Rams in the lead 8-7.

After receiving the Hawk kick Des Moines made three quick first downs and punched in from the one yard line. The point after was no good, but the 14-7 score held to the buzzer. In what would be the highest scoring game of the day, the Bantam Rams took the Federal Way kickoff and scored quickly with a 45 yard aerial. The conversion failed. A somewhat miffed Hawk squad responded on the third play after the kickoff with their own 40 yard strike for the TD.

The kick for two was good putting the Hawks on top, 8-6.

Late in the second the Rams were once again threatening at the FW 20 when the Hawks recovered a Des Moines fumble.

Unable to move the pigskin Federal Way was forced to turn the ball over to the Rams on the one and one-half yard line as the half time gun sounded.

After receiving the Rams kick FW sustained a drive to the Rams 20 and with a fourth and 12 facing them, struck with an aerial for the TD. The kick attempt missed but the 14-6 lead held through the quarter.

The Rams came back early in the fourth to narrow the margin to 14-12 which only seemed to inspire the FW gridders.

After covering the DM kick at the 47 Federal Way masterminded an off tackle surge on the first play to earn six. The kick attempt missed the uprights.

In the next series FW forced a turnover on downs at the Rams 20 but were unable to move the ball. Facing a fourth and 10, the Hawks struck again with a quick pass play for the TD. The kick was good and the 28-12 score held, as time ran out one play after the kickoff.

Sunday the Bantams met their match against an aggressive Rainier Beach squad in a 30 minute exhibition game in the Kingdome. Trailing 8-12 with little over a minute to play the Hawks put together a 40 yard pass play for six. The kick attempt fell short but the FW defense would not buckle o, the Vikings next possession and a jubilant Hawk squad left the field vic-

Moines 6; Peewees, Other Federal Way FW 0, Des Moines 12; Sunday score were: Juniors - FW 0, Des Midgets, FW 12, Des Moines 19.

Eagles seek revved-up offense against Curtis

The Federal Way Eagles will be seeking to pick up the offense when they meet the Curtis Vikings tomorrow at Federal Way Stadium at 7:30 p.m.

The Eagle attack corps mustered only 83 yards in a 7-0 win over Sumner last week, and the lone touchdown was scored by the defense. But Federal Way coach Doug Adkins retains confidence in his team's ability to move the ball.

Sumner. "It was just a matter of individual breakdowns."

Adkins noted that the Eagles got to the locker room at Sumner too early, and furnace-like heat in the room sapped his kids' strength. He said he was satisfied with the win.

"We played poorly and still won," he said. "That's the mark of a good team."

The Vikings stopped Decatur in their first outing, 28-0. Adkins had scouts at that game and the Clover Park game charting every Viking play.

CURTIS fell 13-3 to a Clover Park team that Adkins predicts will be a definite power this season.

Curtis, Adkins said, has a very good defense, led by linebacker Andre Stevens.

On offense, the Vikings are passing more this season than in past years, Adkins said. Doing the throwing is senior quarterback Steve Ellis. Glenn Davis is a top-notch receiver, and brother Johnny Davis returns this season after finishing second in South Puget Sound League rushing last year.

Adkins said Curtis uses a multiple-set offense with lots of motion. "They play little games with your mind," Adkins said of the Vikings' offensive movement.

Adkins has been pleased with his team's defensive work in the two early season wins. He noted that the only touchdown scored against the Eagles was not the result of any team breakdown, but rather a single missed assignment.

The defense will be shorthanded this week due to the loss of defensive tackle Mike Bruner to a knee injury. The senior leterman re-injured his knee in the Sumner game and is out for an indeterminate time.

Adkins said the Eagles' offense will be trying for crisper execution, particularly in blocking on the line. After Curtis, there are no breathers for the Eagles, Adkins said. Federal Way plays Clover Park and Puyallup in successive weeks.

New rehab center

For many years it has been the dream and in the planning of Morrie Alhadeff, Washington Jockey Club president, and of Dr. Alex Grinstein, Chief Medical Officer at Longacres, to have the best possible rehabilitation center for helping injured jockeys.

Now they have it at hand! And operating at full capacity. It is one of the busiest and most used places at the track. Our research shows that it is the first such program to be operated at any Thoroughbred track in the world.

Experts in the field of physical rehabilitation who visited the center have acclaimed it the best possible an ave marveled at the results of the operation. It really does the job for injured or hunting jockeys and returns them to their profession in the very best of physical condition.

No expense has been spared in providing the best and most modern equipment available. To operate the equipment and provide the best corrective care possible they have Jim Richards in charge. (More on this next week.)

Jim is a nationally certified rehabilitation expert with specialized training that took two years to complete. He expertly operates all of the equipment and gives his best in massage as a supplement to the machines.

This is a real step forward which is in keeping with the philosophy of always being progressive and having the best possible operation.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 22: The 5th

renewal of the Mt. Rainier Claiming Stakes at a mile and a quarter for $20,000 added. Brings to the race Thoroughbreds of almost every classification. Assigned weights are determined by claiming price scaled from $20,000 to $30,000. Won in '78 by Coneja's Con Man in a come-from-behind effort.

Raiders and Eagles look for cross-country success

The Federal Way Eagles and the Jefferson Raiders begin their cross-country seasons Friday with tri-meet races. The Decatur Gators open their South Puget Sound League campaign the following Friday against Sumner.

Jefferson coach Bill Hansen expects improvement over last season's effort. The Raider boys finished the 1978 campaign with a 2-8 record, and TJ often did not field enough girl harriers to meet the minimum meet limit of five runners.

This season, seven girls and 18 boys are on the Jefferson roster.

"We'll be able to have a girls' team going each race," Hansen said. "Our boys' team is very young, mostly sophomores. How our sophomores progress will tell how we do this year."

"We'll be better than last year," the coach continued. "We won't be quite as fast, but we have more medium-fast people. We should be able to run as a pack this year."

On the girls' side, Tracy Honsinger and Linnea Puaa should be way out in front," Hansen noted. The two juniors will combine with senior

5 Peterbilt players are All-America

Five members of the Peterbilt open fastpitch team were voted to the Amateur Softball Association All-America teams last weekend. The voting was based on performances in the recent National Tournament.

George Nokes, a first baseman, and center fielder Bill Stewart were selected on the first team. Nokes had eight hits in 17 at-bats in tourney play. Stewart had two homers and eight RBIs.

outfielder Jim Nokes, catcher Butch Batt and pitcher Graham Arnold were voted to the second-team All-America unit.

Midland, Michigan, the host team, upset defending champion York Barbell of Reading, Pa. to take the national title. The hosts beat Reading pitcher Ty Stofflet in 10 innings, 1-0, and took the championship game by a 3-1 count. Peterbilt, which fell to comeback effort in a 4-3 loss to Midland, finished fifth in the 22-team tourney.

Robin Pallett and sophomore Lynn Cox to lead Jefferson's female fortunes. The final spot on the girls' team will be determined in workouts this week.

The Jefferson boys' squad will consist of seniors Bob Plummer and Tim Payne, juniors Doug Cox and Todd Peterson and sophomores Robert Frank, Peter Hauglum and Phil Edwards.

TJ will open its SPSL slate with Rogers and Clover Park on the Clover Park course. The meet will begin Friday at 3:30 p.m.

FEDERAL WAY will have a traditionally strong cross-country team this fall.

Bill Harris, entering his 14th year at the FWharrier helm, predicted that the 1979

Eagles "will be one of our better teams."

"But the other teams seem to get stronger every year," Harris added. "We have some strong individuals, but it's how our third, fourth and fifth runners do that will make the difference. If we get them crammed near the top each meet, we'll do all right."

Senior Michelle Ballentine will be one of the South Puget Sound League's best girl harriers this season. Harris also lauded the efforts of Chris Calhoon and Lisa Tyler. The pair finished among the leaders during last Saturday's Watermelon Relays at Tacoma's Wright Park. Harris has a solid base of 11 prospects to fill out the girls' contingent.

The Federal Way

coach complimented the performance of Darin McKeown at the Watermelon Relays. He finished the two-mile course with the event's second best time of 10 minutes flat. Harris will have little problem finding additional talent from a 22-member boys' team.

Friday's meet against Lakes and Bethel will mark the opening of Federal Way's new course, which runs the perimeter of the school grounds. The meet will begin at 3:30 p.m.

The Watermelon Relay standings were decided by combining boys' and girls' times. Lakes beat Federal Way's total by one minute, but Harris doesn't believe that is an indication of Friday's outcome.

"We were certainly slow (Saturday), but we're coming along," Harris said. "The scoring at the Relays is much different than our regular season scoring, so it's hard to tell how we line up against Lakes and Bethel."

A preview on Decatur's first meet will be printed in next Wednesday's sports section.

St. John was a member of the Federal Way Eagle team that finished second in the state in 1976.

Grizzly bear shot in E. Washington

State and federal authorities are investigating what is believed to be the first shooting of a grizzly bear in this state in 15 years. Grizzlies are officially listed as a "threatened" species and are protected by state and federal law. Two suspects have been charged in connection with the incident, which occurred last week in Pend Oreille County.

The weight of the animal was estimated at 500 to 600 pounds and the hide measured approximately eight feet from snout to tail. The grizzly was shot first in the left shoulder at a distance of about 30 feet in densely brush-covered terrain.

The Game Department's investigating officer, Wildlife agent Don Weatherman, recommended that charges be filed, based on evidence at the scene and conflicting testimony. Charges against the two were coordinated by the Game Department and the Pend Oreille County Prosecuting Attorney. The suspect who actually shot the bear, Steve Hart, was charged with possession of a protected animal, as was Jim Ray, the second individual.

Both men were also charged with meat wastage, since only the hide and head of the animal were removed from the scene. A federal investigation is also being made under provisions of the Rare and Endangered Species Act.

Grizzlies were declared a protected species in Washington in 1969, with the last legal kill in 1964. Grizzly bears are extremely rare in this state, with only about 10 animals thought to live here, ranging near the Idaho and British Columbia borders.

Outdoor tips and tales

Early fall is the time to check out the mooring and anchor lines on your boat, as well as taking a look at the cleats.

If you use synthetic lines, check for fading of the original color. That fading means ultra violet light has weakened the synthetic fibers. Run your hand, or better yet, the soft inner part of your forearm, along the lines. If there's a lot of scratchiness, it means individual fibers have broken.

Either of these situations can mean a broken line and a lost or damaged boat, with fall's changing weather pattern. Winds can come up a lot more quickly than they did in summer and they can blow a lot harder.

A boat that would ride snugly alongside a dock in summer might break away overnight as the constant chafing or strain of an all-night blow causes a weakened line to part.

Sometimes the line holds, but bits or cleats give way. Water has a way of working on wood or corroding metal fasteners that are used on a fiberglass hull. Often that deterioration is out of sight. Give a hard tug on them, if there is any give, or if a cleat comes loose under your tug, be thankful that it did just then and not in the middle of some blow which leaves you battling wind and waves to make your boat secure, or even worse, when you aren't around to save your boat.

Hunters in India a hundred years ago used to arm themselves with bullwhips and ride after chukars on ponies. They took advantage of a chukar habit of seldom flushing twice. Racing at breakneck speed over the rocky ground which chukars love, they would overtake the birds and round up most of a flock with their whips.

That method isn't quite legal here, and besides, most of us wouldn't want to risk our necks or that of a good horse racing over the rocky terrain where chukars live. Instead, we substitute a good dog for the pony and follow on foot.

Because of this rugged terrain, it's almost impossible to overhunt chukars. That's one reason seasons can be so long. Their scarcity or abundance is tied directly to the weather. They are a lot more susceptible to snow and ice than pheasants, for instance.

Despite this, they're tough customers. As far back as ancient Roman days they were used in cock fights. This pugnacious temperament along with a rugged willness to match, is one reason they're a good game bird.

District slashes prices

The Highline School District has lowered its price for half pints of milk and for its reduced price breakfast.

Milk prices have decreased from 10 cents to nine cents and reduced price breakfasts have shrunk from 20 cents to 10 cents.

The reductions are the result of a change in the state's school meal fund formula; however, the district will not suffer a loss, according to Highline officials.

Decatur volleys past Kennedy

The Decatur volleyball Gators gave their new coach, Toshiki Kamakura, a victory over Kennedy Friday in the team's first match of the season.

The Gators took the non-league contest in two games, 15-7 and 16-4.

"I was very happy with the game," Kamakura said. "We're a much shorter than Kennedy, so we had to be very aggressive. We showed good basic skills in the match."

The coach praised the serving and spiking work of senior Cindy Suss. He also was pleased with the spiking play of sophomore Anita Sus and junior Vicky Melin and added that setters Darla Williams and Karen Cornell performed well.

Decatur continued preseason play yesterday against Issaquah (results unavailable) and will host its last warmup match tomorrow at 3:30 p.m.

Politics and investing

"The Presidential Cycle Theory" has attracted a large number of followers. Very simply stated it is: During the first two years of any United States president's term, common stocks usually perform poorly.

Investors will usually tend to do relatively better by investing in short-term income securities, i.e. treasury bills, commercial paper, six month certificates of deposit or one of the high yielding money market funds, such as the our Intercapital Liquid Asset Fund, yielding 10.08 percent interest today. Conversely, during the second two years of a president's term, history shows us that stocks have performed better on a total return basis than short term money market instruments.

Backing up this theory are simply the practicalities of election politics. The administration and the Federal Reserve Board are most stringent during the first quarters of their terms. However, in preparation for reelection during the latter quarters of their terms, they become more accommodating and flexible.

It is very rare that a recession persists through an election year. A notable exception was the recession prior to the 1960 election, which resulted in the Republican "Ins" being turned out of the White House that year. Since that Kennedy - Nixon upset, the "Presidential Cycle Theory" has held true, as shown by the following statistics:

Note that it has been profitable to transfer assets from stocks (the Standard and Poor's 500 in this example) into risk-free fixed income securities (treasury bonds in this example) just after the election and holding them for roughly the first half of the presidential term. Then note how the reverse move has been most profitable during the last two years of the president's term.

So far, in the current two year cycle preceding another election, the Standard and Poor's 500 has not fared as well as in previous pre-election cycles. To date the Standard and Poors has earned only about 7.5 percent as compared to an 8.5 percent return for Treasury Bonds in the resulting political upset. It is a possibility. This has never been an easy business for sure predictions.

| 4-Year-Cycle Pre Election Dates | 4-Year-Cycle Post Election Dates | 2-Year Standard and Poors 500 Total Return | 2 - Year Risk-Free Treasury Bonds |
|---------------------------------------|--|---|--|
| 11-30-62 to 11-30-64 | | 44.0 percent | 6.7 percent |
| | 11-30-64 to 11-30-66 | 1.6 percent | 8.9 percent |
| 11-30-66 to 11-30-68 | | 42.9 percent | 9.6 percent |
| | 11-30-68 to 11-30-70 | -13.8 percent | 13.5 percent |
| 11-30-70 to 11-30-72 | | 41.9 percent | 9.6 percent |
| | 11-30-72 to 11-30-74 | -34.7 percent | 15.6 percent |
| 11-30-74 to 11-30-76 | | 57.8 percent | 10.7 percent |

BUY OR SELL FIRST

Should you buy your new home or sell your present one first? This situation arises consistently when families move up into a larger home in the same general area. In this case, it makes sense to sell the present home first.

The secret; however, is to sell the house under the conditions that the papers will pass and title will be conveyed in, say, 90 to 120 days. This way, you avoid the possibility of owning two homes at the same time.

True, it puts you in a position of being forced to buy another home, but this was your original intention anyway. With a concerted effort, one should be able to buy the right property in the 90 or 120 days allotted.

Also, you avoid the possibility of panic-selling your original home (a good way to lose money), plus you'll know exactly how much money will be available for a down payment on the new house.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate please phone or drop in at your local DEL BIANCO REALTY INC., offices. We're here to help!

UP TO her cheeks in jam and jelly, Nikki Ertel, 4 years, gleefully eats her school lunch.

Brown bagging can be beautiful

The stigma of the old brown bag lunch has disappeared as more people have discovered the culinary and economic joys of preparing lunches at home.

If it seems like everyone is taking a lunch to work and school, it could very well be the case since the packable meal is no longer finding its way into executive's attache cases and designer Gucci bags.

The rank of lunch toters may include the dieter who prefers simple low-cal foods and hopes to avoid the fattening temptation of the restaurant near work. The economy-minded person may pack a lunch and then spend the time playing cards or backgammon with friends. For those tired of the mass produced hamburgers and tacos, they may seek refuge in a roast beef sandwich on homemade bread.

Contemporary luncheoners have an advantage over their ancestors who carried old tin dinner pails. Today's boxes come insulated against the heat or the cold helping the food to stay at the correct temperature. Also more companies and business are providing adequate cool storage facilities. Vacuum bottles, and plastic containers also help to vary the meal since salads, soups and fruits can be carried without spilling.

When packing lunches, consider the person who will be eating the meal. Everyone likes a variety whether they are young or old, male or female.

For the woman, pamper her with a variety of vegetable salads that are high in vitamins. If she is a teenager or is working while pregnant, she will need extra milk and milk products in the diet.

For the weight-watcher, a small lunchbox game will make dieting more fun. Instead of heavy casseroles, substitute with soups, or fruit for desserts and thin-sliced bread instead of thick open-faced sandwiches.

A hearty man-size noon meal will satisfy the hungriest worker if it includes a variety of meats in "Dagwood-style" sandwiches, heated soups, plenty of fruits and vegetables with a lip-smacking dessert.

Although lunches for youngsters, can prove a battle ground for both parent and child. The problem can be solved with exciting and different foods that are fun for to eat. Finger foods such as good lickin' chicken or cheese and meat are favorite lunch pals. Precut their fruits and vegetables into fancy shapes or make faces out of vegetables on the sandwiches.

Lunches can be a fun and relaxing time for everyone especially when the meal is packed with surprises. Vary the menu each day by using a variety of meats, leftovers and soups. Sandwiches can be cut into geometric or unusual shapes. A variety of breads such as pocket, bagels, dark ryes or rolls can change a plain sandwich into something fun. Tuck notes into the lunch box saying, "I love you" or "Have a nice day" to cheer the person up. Other inventive enclosures such as puzzles, comic strips or fortunes can break up the monotony.

When it comes time to opening up the surprise meal, don't stay in the stuffy office, if the weather is nice, go outside. Find a park or a grassy area and have a picnic. Take some friends along for company, or a book for a quiet escape from hectic mornings.

Lunches don't have to be boring, with a little imagination they can become a fun break in the middle of the day.

Peachy Persian Apples'

The original home of the peach is China, dating back more than 2,000 years. From there, it was probably transported into Persia, explaining the ancient name for peaches "Persian Apples."

If they are to be held before using, they are best stored one layer deep in a flat pan on the coldest shelf in the refrigerator. (31 degrees and 90 percent humidity are ideal).

The peach ranks high in its average content of vitamin A and contains a noticeable quantity of vitamin C. It is low in calories about 46 in a medium size peach, and when eaten raw, is helpful to dental health.

If you plan to preserve them, process as soon after harvest as possible. They can be easily peeled by dipping in boiling water for 20 to 30 seconds and then plunging immediately into ice water. Skins will slip off readily.

Buy peaches which are fairly firm with no soft or red-brown spots. Choose creamy white or yellow fruit with a red colored blush on the skin. Avoid green tinged fruits since it probably won't ripen well at home.

Canned or frozen, peaches can be preserved without sugar. A slight change in color and texture will occur, but the product will still be good to eat.

Peaches are good in a multitude of forms - fresh, canned, frozen, dried, pickled, spiced, and pureed to name a few. For drying, yellow fleshed freestone varieties are best. Dry up to six hours for slices, up to 14 hours for halves. Peaches are dry when pliable and leathery.

A Carrot and Cabbage Salad also makes another appealing salad prepared with gelatin and vitamin-rich vegetables.

CARROT AND CABBAGE SALAD (Yield: 6 servings) 1 package (3 ounces) lemon flavor gelatin 1 teaspoon salt 1 cup boiling water 1/4 cup cold water 2 tablespoons vinegar 1 cup grated carrots 1 cup finely shredded cabbage

SUNSET SALAD (Yield: 8 servings) 1 can (8 ounces) crushed pineapple in juice 1 package (3 ounces) lemon flavor gelatin 1/4 teaspoon salt 1 1/2 cups crushed ice 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar 1 cup grated carrots Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Add water to juice to make three-fourths cup and bring to a boil. Combine measured liquid, gelatin and salt in electric blender container. What's Cookin' in Ruth's Kitchen

by Ruth Jurich

You can sometimes learn a lot while waiting in your dentist's office. The other day I picked up a copy of "Vogue" magazine and learned that if I still had the fine collection of tailored suits that I wore to work 35 years ago they'd be right back in style, even with the shoulder pads.

But it's just as well that I gave them away, because I'd never be able to button the buttons or zip the zippers.

And I doubt if any of those svelte Vogue models could either if they ate any of the dishes cooked up in Vogue's strictly gourmet recipe section.

Every sauce had a large quantity of olive oil, butter or whipping cream or all three. Those are wonderful flavored ingredients but hardly a help to those of us who are built more like registered Herefords than like Vogue models in the first place.

ZUCCHINI WITH TRUFFLES was one of the simpler of the recipes. It called for two pounds of zucchini, sliced and sauteed in a quarter cup of olive oil and half a cube of butter, lightly seasoned and enhanced with a few ounces of truffles, which would cost a fortune.

I often saute sliced zucchini in either butter or olive oil and toss in some sliced fresh mushrooms if I have them on hand. Not as bizarre as with truffles but a good combination.

I also like the combination that my friend Audra Crosby told me about. The zucchini was coarsely shredded, something one could do with a peeler or with a food processor, and was sauteed in butter. It was then sprinkled generously with pine nuts. If you don't have pine nuts you can use toasted sunflower seeds. This is a great combination and easy to do.

Our favorite way of seasoning zucchini is strictly Slavonian. Cook sliced zucchini until barely tender in a small amount of water, drain it and season with olive oil, a large clove of garlic, sliced very thin, and salt and black pepper.

I hope that all of you have managed to keep up with your zucchini crops, using them while small and succulent instead of leaving them on the vines until they are good for nothing but hollowing out and stuffing.

WALLA WALLA sweet onions have been a passion of mine ever since they made their debut a few years ago, and last week I suggested that you want them you should ask for them by name. I did just that and learned that they are gone for this season. The produce man whom I talked with said that Walla Walla Sweets have a very short season and are gone for this year.

They don't grow in Western Washington at all; so next year I think I'll buy a huge bag of them, store it in a cool place and hope that they keep until we've eaten our fill. They are unusually mild and good flavored.

Fresh corn has been with us for sometime but is now at its peak. Home gardens are full of it, and we should forget about the calories in buttered corn and enjoy it.

Many people cook ears of corn in a large kettle of boiling water. It's good, but you lose some of the flavor that way. You get more flavor by steaming it.

REMOVE HUSKS and silks from ears of corn, and lay them in a large, shallow pan which has a fitted cover. I use my large stainless steel skillet. Sprinkle the ears with salt, and put a small amount of water in the bottom of the pan. A quarter inch of water is plenty. Turn heat on high until steam comes out of the pan. Then turn heat off, but leave the pan on the element and covered.

Five minutes of stored heat is enough to set the milk in the kernels. If corn is slightly past prime, sprinkle it with a half teaspoon sugar along with the salt.

If you're planning an oven meal, ears of corn may be baked and will retain their full flavor. If the husks are intact, peel them back carefully, remove the silks and any blemishes, and put the husks back to cover the kernels. Place on oven rack, and bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes.

If the husks have been partly removed and will not cover the kernels, trim the ears and wrap them in foil before baking. If you are barbecuing meat, fish or fowl, wrap ears of corn and lay them at the edge of hot coals. They should be heated through in 10 to 15 minutes, which is all the cooking that's necessary.

LEFTOVER CORN need never present a problem. There's probably not a casserole combination in existence that wouldn't benefit from the addition of a small amount of corn. This is especially true of seafood mixtures, whether crab, shrimp, clams, salmon or cod, and the same is true of chowder. Just shave leftover corn from the cob and add it.

Corn shaved from the cob can make its second appearance as a vegetable with a small amount of red or green pepper. Cut the pepper in strips, and saute it in butter or margarine before adding corn and a small amount of water to heat through. Succotash is usually a combination of corn and lima beans in any proportion that suits your fancy but can also be made with cooked green beans. If you have leftover green beans and leftover corn on the cob, shave the corn from the cob, and combine them.

Season with butter, margarine, cream or a strip of bacon, diced and fried. Then top while hot with shredded cheddar cheese.

No-hassle special diet cookery

The biggest problem when cooking for someone who is on a special diet is that you might want to try cooking two separate meals — one for the special dieter and one for the rest of the family. That's almost too much to cope with — especially in today's busy world! Instead, it's much easier to design meals that everyone can eat and enjoy. This means you have to learn a bit about the special diet foods and perhaps a few tricks of preparation.

For example, a low sodium or low salt diet is a fairly common one. The simplest solution is to cook without salt and let the non-dieters use salt at the table. But, on the other hand, once you realize how to season or enhance the flavor of foods without salt, even the non-dieters won't miss it.

Here's a recipe that's a good example: Pork Chop Casserole combines low sodium ingredients in a very distinctive way. The rice mixture includes a diced apple and orange (plenty of natural good flavor there) plus onion and pepper. Browned pork chops top the rice mixture and when baked together, further enhance and flavor the entire dish. Extra slices of orange look nice as a decoration — taste good, too. And here's the best news of all, each serving contains about 135 mg sodium — those on a low salt or low sodium diet will know that's a modest amount.

Generally, rice is a good food to use in a low sodium diet. When it's prepared as directed on the package, but without salt and butter, each two-thirds cup contains only 2 mg sodium. A pinch of herbs and a dash of seasonings easily provide a substitute for the missing salt. You can also prepare Minute rice with unsalted liquids other than water, such as unsalted chicken or beef broth, drained liquid from vegetables low in sodium or fruit juices like orange and pineapple.

As you can see, there's no need to cook two separate meals in a family where one person is on a low salt or sodium diet. And those special diet meals don't have to be dull either! Remember it's the pinch of herbs, a dash of pepper, grated orange or lemon rind that will provide the zesty flavor and enhance the appeal.

PORK CHOP CASSEROLE
(Yield: 6 servings)
8 loin pork chops, one-half inch thick (about 2 pounds)

1 tablespoon unsalted butter or margarine
½ cup chopped onion
1-½ cups packaged enriched pre-cooked rice
1½ cups water
1 cup diced peeled tart apple
1 cup diced orange sections
1½ teaspoons grated orange rind
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning

Trim excess fat from chops and brown quickly in butter in a large skillet. Remove chops from skillet; add onion and saute in pan drippings. Place in a lightly greased shallow 2-quart casserole. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Arrange pork chops on rice mixture. Cover and bake in preheated 350-degree oven for about 45 minutes, or until chops are tender.

(Always cook pork thoroughly.)

Note: A flameproof casserole may be used; brown chops and saute onion in the casserole, then continue as directed.

Wake-up breakfast sandwiches

What's breakfast like in your house — ho hum — the same old thing? Then it's time for a change and a wonderful opportunity to start the day feeling good, satisfied and ready to tackle whatever the day pr-mises. No question about it, the first meal of the day is vital and it should supply the proper nourishment for the entire morning's activities. But there is no rule that says it has to follow a rigid pattern. Variety is exciting and a change in menu is the perfect bait to lure healthy appetites to the table for the added pleasure that eating provides.

A sandwich for breakfast — and why not? Most children are peanut butter and jelly "fiends," and it is shown here in this breakfast menu that promises to be an eye opener for the adults as well. Hearty peanut butter (two tablespoons) and jelly sandwiches are prepared with homemade Nutty Cereal Bread, a moist, tender nutlike bread made with crunchy nut-like cereal nuggets.

A complete breakfast including the sandwich, one whole orange and one (8 ounce) glass of milk provides one-fourth to one-third of the recommended daily allowance of key nutrients for children aged 7 to 10 years. Substitute a four ounce serving of orange or grapefruit juice, in lieu of the whole orange, and you still have the day's quota for vitamin C.

NUTTY CEREAL BREAD
1¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
2½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup crunchy nutlike cereal nuggets
1 cup milk
1 egg, well beaten
2 tablespoons shortening, melted
Mix flour with sugar, baking powder and salt. Stir in cereal. Blend milk with egg and shortening. Add flour mixture, stirring just until all flour is moistened. Pour into greased 9-by-5-inch loaf pan. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for one hour, or until cake tester inserted into center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. Slice and fill with peanut butter and jelly, if desired.

Note: For easier slicing, store bread overnight wrapped in waxed paper, plastic wrap or aluminum foil.

Flavorful breads-- the joy of cooking

Many cooks will tell you that bread baking is one of the more enjoyable kitchen duties.

A good tasting example is Herb Monkey Bread, a pull apart that is flavored with a combination of popular herbs. Two other delightful flavors, almond and cinnamon, highlight Almond Brunch Cake.

For a different coffee break treat, Cream and Coffee Bread combines the popular breakfast duo with sweet currents.

Sugar and Spice Puffs are just as nice and delicious for snacktime snacks. The tender fluffy sweet rolls taste like raised doughnuts.

For lunchtime, cut One-Rise Oats 'N Onion Bun in wedges and serve warm with soup and salad. Or, split the giant loaf and layer with sandwich fillings.

Last, but not least, Cheese With Ease Loaf is so scumptious that after one taste the loaf will quickly disappear.

ONE-RISE OATS 'N ONION BUN
(Yield: 12 to 16 wedges)

1/2 cup rolled oats
1/2 cup boiling water
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
1 package hot roll mix
1/2 cup warm water (105 degrees to 115 degrees F.)
1 tablespoon instant minced onion or chopped onion
2 eggs

Topping
1 egg
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1 to 2 tablespoons instant minced onion or chopped onion
1 tablespoon poppy, sesame or caraway seed

Generously grease

12 or 14-inch pizza pan. In large bowl, combine first three ingredients. Dissolve yeast from hot roll mix in three-fourths cup water. Stir yeast, onion and two eggs into oatmeal mixture. Add hot roll flour mixture; blend well. Spread dough to 10-inch circle on greased pan. Beat egg and garlic salt until frothy; brush over dough. Sprinkle with onion and poppy seed. Let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 35 to 45 minutes.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until deep golden brown and bun sounds hollow when lightly tapped. Loosen edges; immediately remove from pan.

CHEESE WITH EASE LOAF
(Yield: 1 loaf)

1 package hot roll mix
1/2 cup warm water (105 degrees to 115 degrees F.)
1 jar (5-ounces) pasteurized process cheese spread with bacon, softened
1 egg

In large bowl, dissolve yeast from hot roll mix in water. Add cheese spread; stir until blended. Add hot roll flour mixture and egg; blend well. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes.

Grease 9-by-5 or 8-by-4-inch loaf pan. Punch down dough; on well floured surface, knead dough for two minutes. Shape into loaf; place in greased pan. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes.

Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 30 to 40 minutes or until deep golden brown and loaf sounds hollow when lightly tapped. Immediately remove from pan.

HOT ROLL HERB MONKEY BREAD
(Yield: 8 to 10 servings)

1 package hot roll mix
1/2 cup warm water (105 degrees to 115 degrees F.)
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
5 teaspoons parsley flakes
1 teaspoon whole thyme
1/2 teaspoon sweet basil leaves
1/2 teaspoon dill weed
1/2 teaspoon rosemary leaves
1 egg
1/4 cup margarine or butter, melted
Poppy seed, if desired

Grease 12-cup fluted tube pan or two and one-half quart ring mold. In large bowl, dissolve yeast from hot roll mix in water. Stir in cheese, herbs and egg. Add hot roll flour mixture; blend well. On well floured surface, knead dough until no longer sticky, one to two minutes.

Roll out dough to 12-inch square; brush with two tablespoons melted butter. Cut into 25 squares. Overlap each square in greased pan, buttered side down; brush with remaining butter. Sprinkle with poppy seed. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Immediately remove from pan.

Generously grease 13-by-9-inch pan. Punch down dough. On well floured surface, knead dough until no longer sticky, about one to two minutes. Press dough into greased pan. Sprinkle with mixture of brown sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle with almonds. Drizzle one-fourth cup melted margarine over top.

Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 30 to 45 minutes.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Blend cake.

Mushrooms

The High Holy Days, the first 10 days of the Jewish calendar New Year, begin this year on Sept. 22. Opening with Rosh Hashana and ending 10 days later with Yom Kippur, this solemn season is a time of penitence and prayer.

For all their seriousness the High Holy Days are not a time of sadness. In fact, after the evening service at the synagogue Jewish tables are festive and special foods are the order of the day.

Jewish cuisine includes relatively few cooked vegetables specialties. However, salads have become essential menu items in American homes. Salads usually are mixtures of fresh fruits or vegetables dressed simply with sour cream or oil and vinegar.

Suggested here is a delicious kosher fresh vegetable specialty which may be served as an appetizer or salad to accompany the meal. Fresh mushroom slices are marinated in a dressing of peanut oil, lemon juice, vinegar, salt, tarragon and pepper.

MARINATED MUSHROOMS
(Yield: 6 servings)
1/2 cup peanut oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons white vinegar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon tarragon leaves, crushed
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
Crisp salad greens

In jar with tight fitting lid, combine peanut oil, lemon juice, vinegar, salt, tarragon and pepper. Cover tightly and shake until well mixed. Pour over mushrooms in large bowl. Cover and chill one hour or overnight, stirring occasionally. Serve over salad greens.

It's apple season with fall desserts

With good cooking apples nearly always available, Crescent Brittle Apple Braid is the kind of pastry-like coffee cake that may be a winning treat with guests. The flaky crust is quick refrigerated crescent roll dough, and crushed peanut brittle and apple slices make the easy filling. So this attractive sweet bread has special appeal for the busy person who entertains at a weekend brunch or needs something out-of-the-ordinary but quick to serve at a committee meeting.

CRESCENT BRITTLE APPLE BRAID
Yield: 8 servings
1 can (8-ounce) refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
1-½ cups (2 medium) thinly sliced apples
½ cup crushed peanut brittle
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Glaze
½ cup powdered sugar
2 teaspoons margarine or butter, softened
2 to 3 teaspoons milk
2 tablespoons crushed peanut brittle

Unroll dough into two long rectangles on ungreased cookie sheet. Overlap long sides to form 13-by-7-inch rectangle; firmly press perforations and edges to seal. Combine apples, peanut brittle, flour and cinnamon. Spoon filling lengthwise down center third of dough to within one-inch of ends.

Make cuts one-half inch apart on one side of rectangle just to edge of filling. Fold ends of dough one inch over filling. Bring one-half-inch strips of dough together over apple mixture; braid dough and press strips together. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown.

Combine powdered sugar, margarine and milk; stir until smooth. Drizzle over warm coffee cake. Sprinkle with peanut brittle.

CARAMEL APPLE DUMPLINGS
(Yield: 6 servings)
1 package (11 ounces) pie crust mix or two pie crust sticks, crumbled
¼ cup cold water
6 small apples, peeled and cored
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

and nutmeg; sprinkle two teaspoons in cavity of each apple. Add a few raisins. Moisten edges of pastry. Bring up corners to top of apple and pinch together. Seal edges together; place in 13-by-9-inch pan.

In saucepan, heat brown sugar, water and margarine to boiling. Pour over dumplings.

Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 15 minutes; reduce temperature to 375 degrees F. and bake for 25 to 30 minutes or until dumplings are golden brown. Spoon caramel sauce over dumplings; serve immediately.

BAKED FUDGE CHEESECAKE
(Yield: 8 servings)
Crust
1-¼ cups graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup margarine or butter, melted

Filling
1 package (8 ounce) cream cheese, softened
2 eggs
1 can (16.5 ounces) ready-to-spread chocolate fudge frosting

In small bowl, combine crust ingredients until well blended. Press firmly in bottom of 9-inch pie plate. Set aside. In large bowl, blend filling ingredients until smooth and creamy. Pour into prepared pie crust.

Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 35 to 45 minutes or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Cool completely. Refrigerate one to two hours before serving. Store covered in refrigerator.

Brown bagging idea

Like some sandwich ideas for the brown baggers? Provolone (smoky flavor) cheese with hard salami is good on French or Vienna bread; Muenster cheese goes well with salami for beer on a buttered Kaiser roll, while Monterey Jack cheese teams nicely with olive loaf on egg twist bread.
