

Discipline: Kids shape up or stay after

by Ann Hagen
Discipline and responsibility. How soon should children be taught to mind their manners and learn to be responsible for following directions?

Many elementary school principals, Don Swanson from Brigadoon included, believe the time is now. "Some people say first graders are too young to learn, but when is it time to start?" said Swanson who has been employed by the district for 20 years. "Is it junior high? Highschool?"

A year ago, Swanson adapted an Assertive Discipline program in his school. The program, introduced to him at a principal's workshop at Central Washington University emphasizes positive reinforcement plus clearly stated rules to establish discipline. If the rules are ignored, students are given detention.

In essence, students are informed of rules that individual teachers find necessary to ensure an adequate teaching environment.

Students are given detention after one warning for problems such as not following directions, getting out of their seats, not having their homework in on time, being tardy or being disruptive in class.

Parents are notified that the child will be 15-minutes late for each action. If there is a problem, the detention can be made up the following day.

LAST YEAR, SWANSON said there was an average of 25-30 students per day detained, 75 percent there because of incomplete homework. At that time, Brigadoon had an enrollment of 775 students, 200 over capacity.

"We've almost eliminated disruptive behavior this year," said Swanson adding that there is now less than 18 students per day in detention. An average of three to five are kept after daily for behavior problems.

PRESENTED TO ELEMEN-TARY principals in August, the program has been adapted either fully or partially by Mirror Lake, Sunnycrest, Lakeland, Camelot and Adelaide Elementaries.

However, some parents say they are shocked over the strict methods used to control the students. Parent Diane Austin, who recently moved from Renton, "the best district in the state" said she is "adamantly opposed."

She has two sons, 9 and 10, at Valhalla Elementary. One son was recently kept after school when he forgot his assignment at home. Though she was not called, he was taken from the school bus bodily and detained, she said.

Another son was detained for losing two tickets that were to be returned to the teacher.

"Something like this can turn children off completely," she said. "Kids should enjoy school in the primary grades. If you use threats, you'll end up with a bigger problem when the children drop-out. It'll create a situation."

Another parent, with two children at Mirror Lake Elementary complained that the program was regimented for those children under the fourth grade. "They are far too strict," she said. "It's more like a military dictatorship."

She added that the "school gives the impression that a lot of parents are for it but I find that hard to believe."

However, both Brigadoon and Mirror Lake principals say that they've gotten good response from parents through surveys.

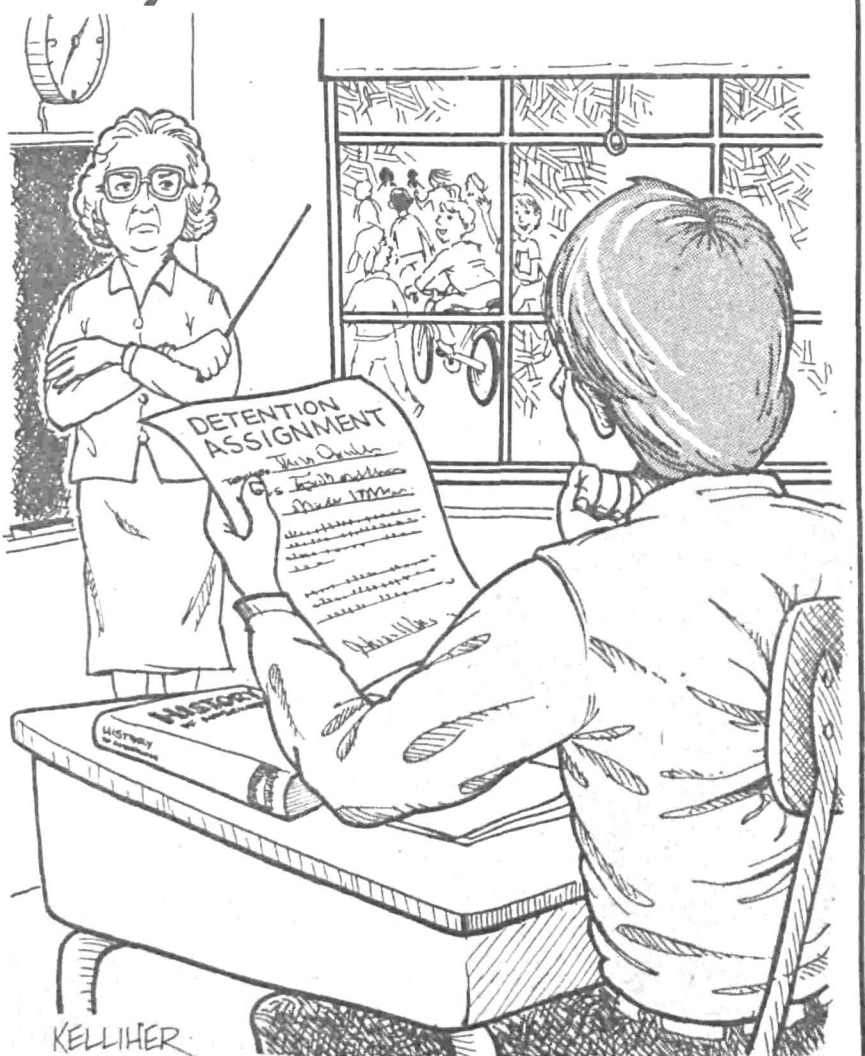

Last year, Brigadoon principal Swanson said he sent home two surveys, receiving 200 responses from the 775 parents. "They favored detention for classroom disruption at the 85-95 percent level," he said. A second survey in June had the same results though the turn-out was less.

At Mirror Lake, principal Carroll Bagby said he received a similar response from his initial survey.

He reported a 94 percent favorable response from 100 of 350 families responding. His program emphasizes behavior detention at the second grade level and above and detention for homework problems for those third grade and older.

"The entire climate of the school has changed," he said pleased with the way things were working out. "Kids' attitudes are changing to what they were 15 years ago before everything became so permissive," he said.

Though the program was ongoing before Milton Snyder, Federal Way superintendent took over this fall, he said it - that helps students falls in line with the Board's goal to develop a plan to establish student behavior standards.

Favoring a positive approach, Snyder said "It's the strong purpose of my profession to see that children are taught to be responsible both individually and in a group."

$2.00	$20

U.S. mail subscription rates will not be affected by these changes.

Mandatory shots deadline delayed

Area school children have been granted a few more days of grace as the deadline for mandatory immunization against communicable diseases recently was extended until Nov. 1.

Oct. 21 was the original deadline set for schools throughout the state to comply with the new law requiring immunization of elementary school children. However, organizational problems created by the reams of paper work involved delayed that deadline until the first of next month, the Federal Way School District reported last week.

That's good news for the students who have not yet been immunized. In Federal Way, that's about one-fifth of the students, Joyce Ray, the district head nurse, said.

The state law requires that all Washington students, grades kindergarten through sixth, show proof of proper immunization or face exclusion from school until they comply to the state Health Department's satisfaction.

THE REQUIRED immunizations include shots against diphtheria, tetanus (lockjaw), rubella (three day or German measles), measles (hard or seven day), poliomyelitis, pertussis (whooping cough) and mumps.

The law's intent, according to Ray, is to prevent an outbreak of the childhood diseases that can easily be transferred at school.

Students who fail to comply after Nov. 1 will be subject to dismissal. Ray said the list of those who have not received shots or whose immunizations are not adequate will be sent to the Health Department at that time. The school district then will be advised of which students must be dismissed until they comply with the law.

According to Dr. Paul Chaplik, school administrator in charge of health services, the only factor that can exempt a student from the immunization requirement is that if he or she has a written letter of objection from parents.

County jail Political scuffle threatens funding

by Darlene Himmelpach
With the fate of a proposed new jail at stake, King County Executive John Spellman and County Councilman Paul Barden exchanged charges this week that the other was "obscuring the issues."

The battle lines were drawn after Barden threatened to bury an ordinance, crucial to the county getting state money for the new jail, in his committee unless Spellman withdraws opposition to another ordinance that would open selection of the architect to everyone.

Spellman dubbed Barden's efforts "horsetrading" and said "the only way we can assure a poorly planned jail or one which would not be funded by the state is to do exactly what Mr. Barden is doing now."

The county needs "the appropriation ordinance to pay for work on the grant application to the State Jail Commission so we can qualify for state money to build the new jail," Spellman said. "That appropriation ($70,000) has been held up by Mr. Barden for almost three months" resulting in the county's inability to "obtain cost estimates of various options for the jail and we are facing a January deadline," Spellman emphasized.

He is not alone, Barden said Friday. "No one has pushed for it so it just sat there, I don't support it because I support open competition for selection of consultants."

Barden is peeved because the firm of Naramore, Bain, Brady and Johnason, chosen by the county design commission to help prepare the county's jail funding proposal to the state. Barden produced a list of various contracts the Naramore firm has had with the county since 1971 without being chosen for the work on a competitive basis. The total for the jobs is $2.78 million and includes design work on the dome stadium and a White Center Housing study.

Barden alleges that the State Jail Commission rules for granting funds require open bidding but Spellman maintains preliminary design work for the state application is separate from final jail design and is, therefore, not subject to the Commission regulations.

"We have written advice from the county prosecuting attorney verifying that fact. He, not Councilman Barden, is our legal advisor," Spellman huffed.

Spellman also displayed a letter from the state department of general administration showing that Spellman's consultant selection procedure "is substantially in compliance" with the procedure used by that state agency.

"He (Spellman) is simply trying to obscure the issue by claiming I am against the jail," Barden said. Of the "horsetrading" charge, Barden said, "I understand the use of cliches in the political arena. I am absolutely not against a new jail."

What he does oppose, Barden said, is "in a closed process, to just handing over a contract to a firm that seems to have gotten so much already." Barden has long objected to the position of the design commission in the contract award process which he claims "has resulted in favoritism in the awarding of contracts and I oppose that."

A process which includes a list of "approved" names compiled by the executive, maintained by the director of architecture and selected from by the design commission is a method that assure "hand-picked people would be awarded the contracts," Barden charged. "The executive now says that everybody can be on the list but three will be chosen for submission to the design commission.

That will never provide others with the opportunity to make bids."

Barden said his ordinance that would open the selection process to bids has "almost unanimous" council support and "when it comes up next Monday, the council will support the ordinance authorizing the jail consultant with the other one."

'It will probably help the hobos out.'

Bev Mustered

I can't take a stand until I know more about it. I really don't understand the thing. I haven't studied it that much.

Joan Schlagel

I really would have to read more about it before I made a comment. And I plan to, because I think it's important enough to look into.

Berni Cousins

Yes. It will probably help the hobos out. They can collect bottles and live off of that. On the other hand, people won't be throwing them away so much. But the price will go up.

Clay Tronson

Yes. It might bring up the price on the bottles a little bit, but I think it will be worthwhile. I'm for it.

Should the state require a five cents deposit on each bottle and can, as set forth in Initiative 61?

Chris Artman

Sure. I feel it would keep people from throwing them out the window. I get tired of seeing the junk along the highway. Maybe people will think twice before they do it.

Bob Kinney

I don't think so. They have a good program now for gathering up the stuff.

Ray Husted

I really don't have an opinion. I would like to see something done to help out the litter situation, but would hate to pay more for pop. I need to find out more about it.

C.A. Staley

I'm very, very much in favor of it. If one saw a bottle or can anywhere, he would pick it up. When I was a little girl, the hobos picked them all up because they were worth money.

Parties agree to UW mediation

by Darlene Himmelspach

An agreement reached behind closed doors this week has paved the way for a possible mediated settlement of the Boeing Company's move to locate its headquarters on the west side of Sea-Tac Airport.

Roger Leed, attorney for the West Side Hilltop Survival Committee, emerged from the session with Boeing and county attorneys in the chambers of Superior Court Judge Barbara Rothstein and reported he was "gratified" that mediation had been agreed to.

A mediated agreement could result in settlement of a lawsuit against the county and Boeing brought by westside neighbors of the airport who oppose the zoning change that will permit the headquarters building on 30 acres near the old Evergreen Tennis Club.

Leed said "we might reach an agreement without the Boeing Company agreeing to do anything" but said the community would like such things as sewer service for the area and the restoration of a five-acre viewing Park that would become the heliport if the existing Boeing plan is enacted.

Leed said a major point in favor of the mediation is that the Port of Seattle, which owns the land in question could be brought into the mediation process although it was not named in the lawsuit. The port owns the land, requested the rezoning that would permit the Boeing development and plans to sell the land to Boeing if county approval of the plan is received.

"This is something we have advocated for a long time," Leed said. "We met with the corporation lawyers at the headquarters and said we wanted to try to talk but they were not persuaded. I am gratified they have been persuaded now."

An "extreme" solution to the problem, according to Leed, would be that the "Port of Seattle could say they would buy the whole area." He conceded, however, that "the people aren't necessarily interested in leaving the area."

If no settlement can be reached through mediation, to be conducted by the University of Washington Mediation Services, trial of the lawsuit will proceed Dec. 3 before Judge Rothstein.

Meanwhile, the King County Council is scheduled to complete a land use appeals committee hearing on the requested rezoning and an unclassified use permit request that would allow the heliport if the office complex is built. That committee hearing, a continuance of one begun two weeks ago, may be delayed until either the mediation is completed or the case has been tried in court.

A spokesperson for the committee said Tom Goeltz, deputy county prosecutor who advises the council on land use matters, will tell the council tomorrow morning if the matter should be continued.

If there is no delay, at least four of the council members will not be allowed to participate in discussions of the rezoning appeal or the unclassified use permit and will not be able to vote on the final proposal before the council. Paul Barden, Tracy Owen, Bill Reams and Bob Greive, all of whom have received major campaign contributions from the Boeing Company, will be excluded from the quasi-judicial process because of a possible conflict with the state Appearance of Fairness Doctrine.

If the committee meeting is held, it will begin at 2 p.m. in Room 402, King County Courthouse. For information on the status of that appeal hearing, call Charlotte Jacobs, 344-3475.

Hearty Danish immigrant celebrates century of life

by Brad Broberg

Lured to this country 76 years ago, partially by outlandish get-rich-quick claims, Laura Thomsen found hard work instead of easy money.

Nevertheless, she stayed. And seven children, 13 grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren and 15 great-great-grandchildren later, she celebrated her 100th birthday Saturday at the Seattle Northwest Danish Home on Des Moines Way South.

More than 150 friends, relatives and dignitaries including the Danish consul and vice consul to Washington, attended the birthday bash.

Earlier in the week, Mrs. Thomsen seemed a trifle embarrassed over all the attention being focused on her.

"I'm going to crawl under the bed," she threatened with a shy smile.

MRS. THOMSEN was raised on a farm in Alborg, Denmark, where she met and married Jens Thomsen in 1900.

They worked a small plot of their own (a wedding gift from her parents), but soon felt the urge to come to America.

"They told us we could get $20 gold pieces off the trees, and we sort of believed them," recalled Mrs. Thomsen, a spry woman who retains a charming Danish accent.

She received a somewhat less sensational, but still optimistic, report from a friend who had already immigrated.

"He wrote me, 'Why don't you and your husband come over here? You don't have to work so hard.' He was sort of bragging up America. So we made up our minds to come over here."

Thomsen preceded his wife across the Atlantic to Wisconsin, then sent for her after six months of labor on a farm had enabled him to save enough money for her passage.

The first leg of Mrs. Thomsen's trip from Alborg to America wasn't very pleasant.

She travelled by cattle boat to Copenhagen and was billeted on the second deck below the animals and above the engine.

Between the cattle and the machinery, "It didn't smell very good down there," Mrs. Thomsen recalled, wrinkling her face into a quick grimace.

Horrified at the thought of another, even longer such voyage to America, Mrs. Thomsen was ready to catch the first train back to the farm when she discovered that the next ship would offer much more acceptable accommodations.

THE THOMSENS lived in Wisconsin from 1903 until 1905, when a generous minister offered them a home and $30 a month if they would cultivate his land in the Spokane area.

So the hard-working couple went west, eventually renting a 900-acre wheat farm before buying 160 acres of their own 16 miles outside Spokane.

At that time, Mrs. Thomsen was just getting his feet wet in the carpentry trade, so Mrs. Thomsen was in charge of the 160-acre wheat spread.

"I shucked wheat when it was in the shade 101 degrees," she said proudly.

Thomsen eventually prospered as a Spokane contractor and sold the farm. When he died in 1970, Mrs. Thomsen lived for two years on her own in Spokane before moving to the Danish home.

She raised seven children, Mrs. Anna Lindgren and Bob Thomsen of Spokane, Harold Thomsen of Hoodsport and from West Seattle Walter Thomsen, Mrs. Myrtle Swanbeck, Mrs. Mildred Killingsworth and Mrs. Betty Lindmark.

ALTHOUGH she wouldn't name one specifically, if there is a secret to Mrs. Thomsen's longevity, it's obviously hard work.

"I'm used to hard work. If only they would give me a piece of land here so I could grow some potatoes and stuff.

"I don't feel any different than when I was 50. I can't run quite so fast, but I can outrun all of them here," said Mrs. Thomsen, who keeps busy knitting stocking caps, socks and blankets to sell at the home's bazaars.

Friends say the mellow Mrs. Thomsen never gets mad at anyone, even the fellow Danish home resident who once asked her, "What do you want to be that old and ugly-looking for?"

"I could get mad at her, but there's no sense," explained Mrs. Thomsen.

"Maybe I'll be that way when I get old."

Mini-gymnasts —

Future Olympic stars?

There may be a few budding Olympic-calibre gymnastic stars in the classes of Marsha Morris at the Des Moines Fieldhouse.

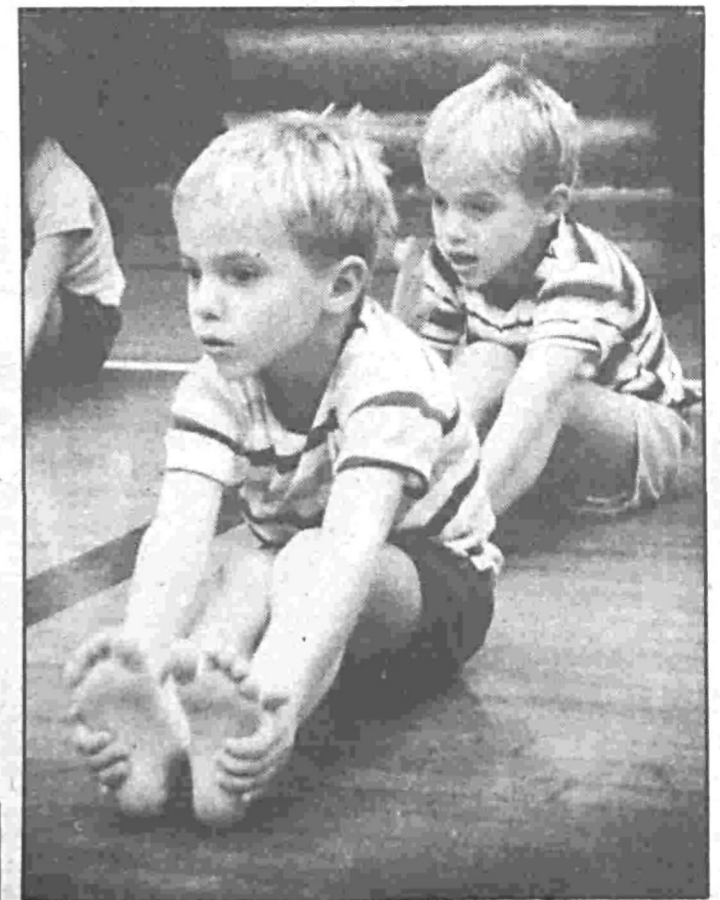

However, even if they don't make it quite that far, the students are developing basic strength and coordination, which Morris said, "is really good for their little bodies".

"The schools are developing their minds," she said, "but they're really not giving too much instruction in developing their bodies at younger ages."

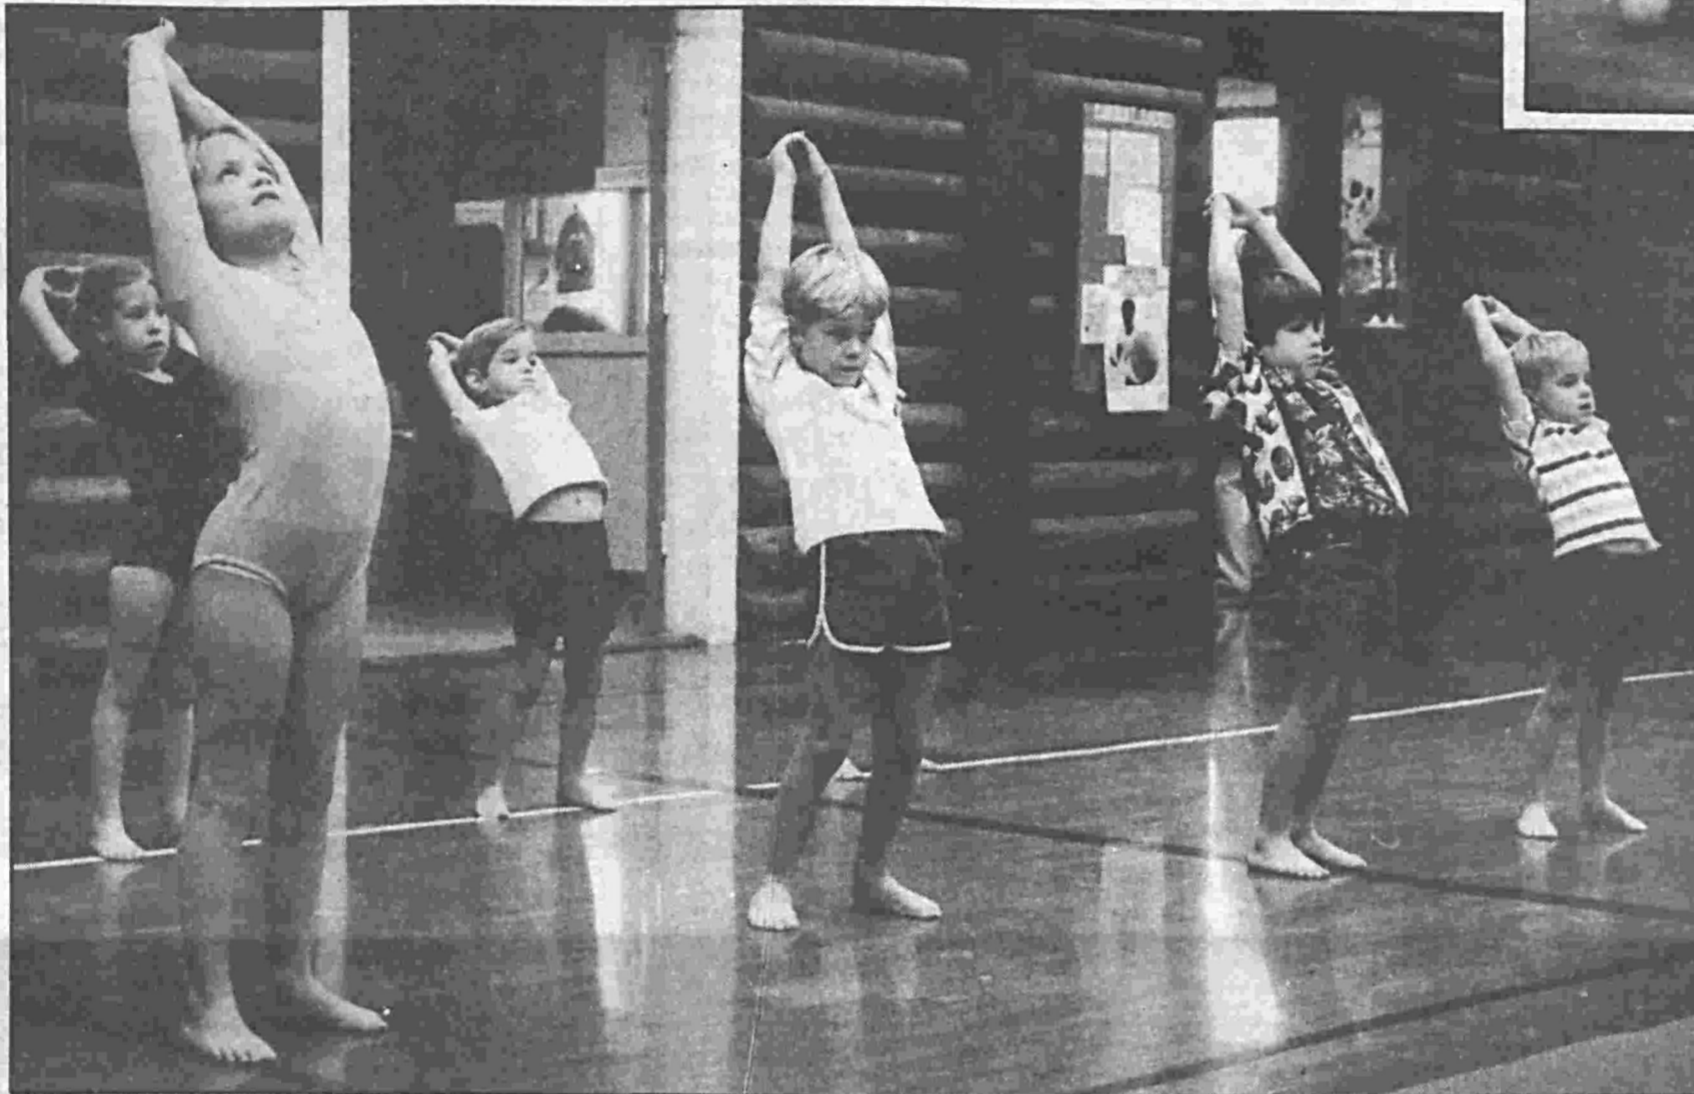

Ms. Morris, who was once the Pacific Northwest Trampoline Champion, said one of her main motivations for teaching the class is to honor the people who spent time helping her out.

One of the things she's teaching the children is to never work out on gym equipment or do strenuous exercise before first warming up.

Once warmed up, the children approach their acrobatics with energy and enthusiasm, which is only natural for budding Olympic stars.

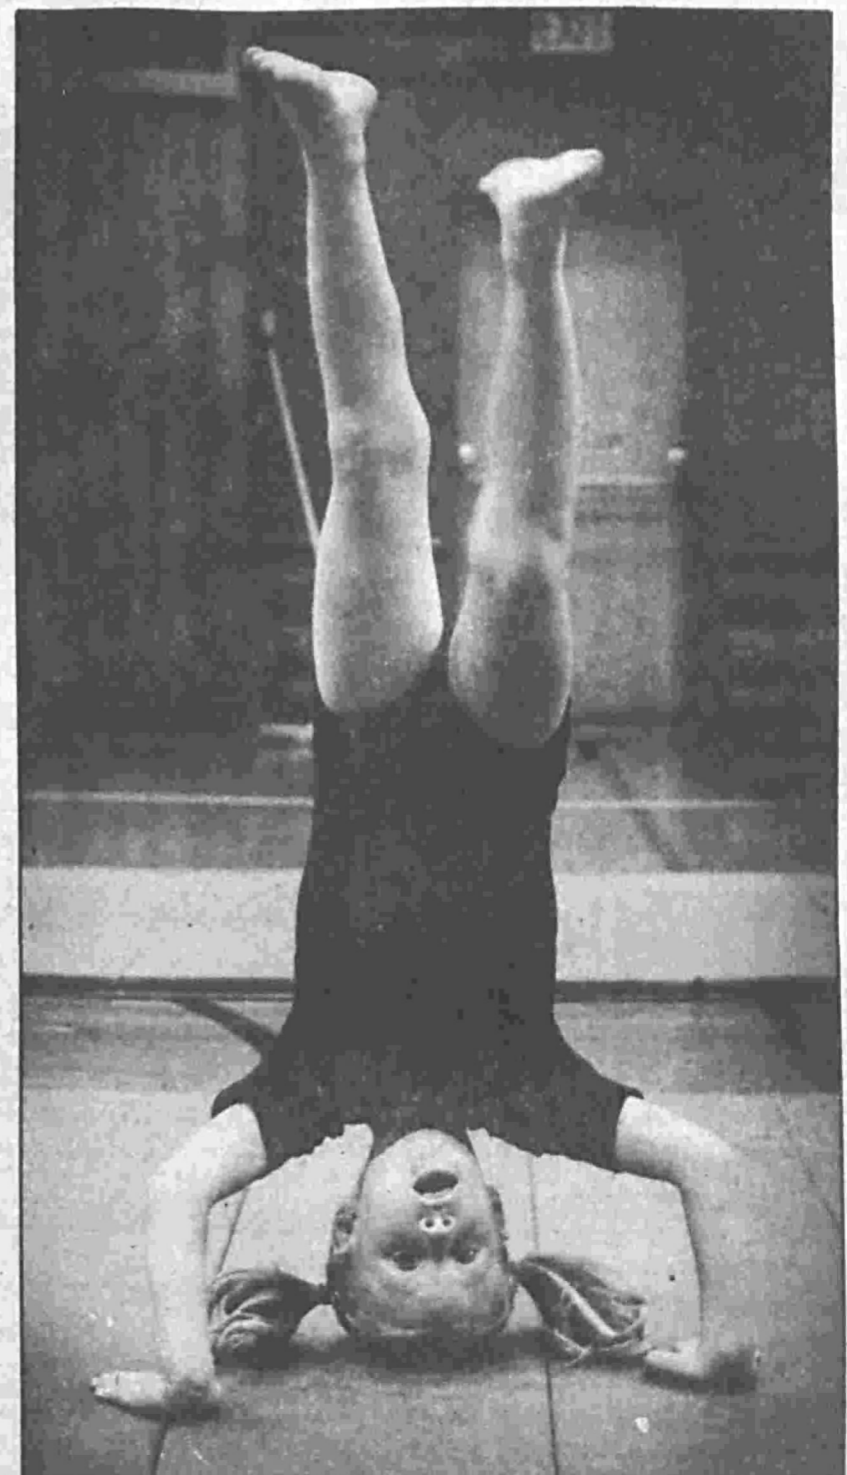

JERRY AND JEFFREY Rice double up while doing their warm up exercise.

INSTRUCTOR MARSHA MORRIS teaches her young students that warming up before tumbling is essential.

Heating with wood: a viable energy alternative

WOOD FIREPLACES recently have surfaced as an increasingly popular method of heating a home. Here Jim Walker, a local installer of those fireplaces, checks the temperature of his fireplace, which usually hovers around 195 degrees. When that heat is projected throughout the house, there is more than enough energy to keep the family warm.

by Nathalie Weber

While the future supplies of fossil fuels and electricity lend some uncertainty to home heating in the years to come, there's at least one form of energy that will likely be in hardy supply: wood.

Wood in itself may not seem to be energy, but when stoked in a wood fireplace, it can become the source of heat for nearly any household.

Jim Walker, a local wood fireplace installer, has heated his Dash Point home with wood for nearly a year. One visit to his home attests to the fact that the heat is even and clean, factors often noncharacteristic of fireplace heat.

So what's the difference? Heating a home with a wood fireplace requires installation of a fireplace specifically designed to disseminate heat. Basically, that requires that an air-flow system be included under the fireplace, that transparent doors enclose the fire to retain the heat, and that hot air ducts be installed to carry the heat throughout the house.

This is how it works. When the house temperature drops below the thermostat setting, the system begins to operate automatically. Air is propelled through the sides and back of the fireplace unit, heating the air that then is projected through the house.

The key, according to Walker, is the air flow that maximizes the heat use and minimizes the amount of smoke that in normal fireplaces often enters the home. "That's the biggest problem in most fireplaces, a lack of combustion air," Walker explained. "Ninety percent of smokey fires are caused by burning in a vacuum."

That vacuum is particularly prevalent in modern homes that are weatherized and insulated. Walker said that the inability of air to get into the house creates the vacuum and, as heat goes up the chimney, smoke is sucked back into the home. The ventilation system in the wood fireplace prevents that from occurring because it alleviates the vacuum.

THE FIREPLACE costs $2,000 to $2,500 to install, depending upon type of unit desired. It takes about four cords of wood to heat the average home throughout the winter.

So is wood burning a better way to heat. Walker said it depends upon two factors. The first is the availability of wood. If it cannot be obtained at less than the market price of $80 a cord, the wood-heated homeowner is looking at a bill of $320. There are, however, cheaper methods of obtaining wood, such as buying into scrap wood.

The second factor is whether the homeowner is willing to tend the fire. To keep the temperature up, the fire must be stoked three to six times a day, Walker said.

Walker, who services homes west of the Cascades, has installed 30 wood fireplaces for home heating in the past several months. "I've been going like crazy since early spring, but now that winter's coming on it's starting to drop off," he said. But, for those interest, the heating units still can be installed, a process that takes two to three days.

In this day of energy uncertainty, it could be time well spent.

School music program may profit from Seattle Symphony concert

The upcoming Federal Way performance by the Seattle Symphony Orchestra on Sunday, Nov. 4, could be a two-fold blessing. Those who attend the program, one of four "family concerts" planned by the symphony this fall, will be favored with the sweet strains of Rossini, Beethoven, Gottschalk, Gershwin and Rimsky-Korsakov. And, if attendance is high at the Thomas Jefferson High School performance, a special benefit may accrue to the Federal Way School District's music program. After the symphony's expenses of $3,200 are covered, the proceeds that are left will go to the district, to be used solely for music studies. This is not a far-fetched notion, says Jim Mawson, a Federal Way Community Council member and general chairman of the symphony's Family Concert Committee. "Last year we were $6 short of making money for the district," he said. "This year, we're hoping we can meet our requested share of expenses and make some money for the district, even if we can just buy some sheet music."

The students who were chosen are Heidi Barnes of Federal Way High School (oboe), Steve Kapp of Thomas Jefferson High School (trombone) and Alicia Taylor of Decatur High School (flute). Seattle Symphony associate conductor, Richard Buckley, will be on the podium, and Manu-Laureano, the symphony's principal trumpet player, will solo in Haydn's "Trumpet Concerto." Tickets are available locally at the Federal Way Chamber of Commerce, Holiday Music in SeaTac Mall, Book King in Sea-Tac Village, Poverty Bay Wine Company in the Federal Way

Shopping Center and Carousel Coiffures at South 288th Street and Military Road South. Sponsors for the event are the Federal Way Community Council, Federal Way Chamber of Commerce and the Federal Way Festival in the Forest Association.

Barden, Reams spar over Medic 1 levy

by Darlene Himmelpach
If a proposed property tax to help the financially troubled Medic One program in King County is dumped by the voters Nov. 6, the county may "take money from police" to help fund the program one county councilman said Friday.

Bill Reams, the chief proponent of the paramedic system for years, made the veiled threat in response to comments by Councilman Paul Barden who maintained that the county will not let the level of service for the six provider groups slip no matter what the voters do.

Council sparring on the ballot issue followed a progress report to the committee of the whole by Dr. Lawrence Bergner, director of the Seattle King Health Department. Bergner said the survival rate among heart attack victims has tripled since the county started its paramedic program in 1975.

"With paramedic services, 20 percent of cardiac arrest patients were resuscitated and discharged from the hospital. Without this type of service, only six percent survived," Bergner said. Basing statistics on a three-year study of the suburban King County program, Bergner said "we are saving lives at the rate of 65 per year" since the sixth provider group in Federal Way-Auburn joined the ranks this year.

Dr. Mickey Eisenber, director of the three year study, said "Paramedics are indeed miracle workers in their ability to bring clinically dead people back to life." First response to a cardiac emergency is the key, according to Judy Pierce, manager of the county's emergency medical services. First response is provided by fire department aid units and followed by a Medic One unit staffed with paramedics. "If we can make the first response in four minutes and get the paramedics there within eight, survival reaches forty percent," Pierce said.

Barden, who has opposed the $.21 per $1,000 assessed valuation levy, said later "it is unacceptable to me" that Bergner was "inferring that people would lose Medic One if the levy fails." He said he wasn't sure what Reams meant by his comments in the council chambers. "It was unclear to me what his message was. We have got a more than $200 million budget (pending council approval) and, of the new money raised if the levy passes, about $4 million would come to the county. That can be found somewhere in the budget."

Barden said that could be done without sacrificing any police funding and said he voted against placing the levy issue on the ballot "because holding ransom the highest priority is not good government."

The chairman of the operations, police and judiciary committee also predicted that "the public safety budget passed by the county council will be significantly higher than that requested by the executive."

The funds in question will come from individual tickets, priced at $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children, and from special "Gold Tickets," which cost $25 for businesses and $10 for individuals. Both tickets will admit individuals and their immediate families to reserved seating at the concert, Mawson said. And a "Gold Ticket Reception" will be held at the Thomas Jefferson cafeteria on the afternoon of the performance.

As part of the family series, three young musicians from the district have been selected to join the orchestra in Rimsky-Korsakov's "Scheherazade."

Reservations are now open for booths at the fourth annual Hillcrest Elementary School PTA arts and crafts fair to be held in Renton from 2 to 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 16.

Patience stressed by middle school expert

by Brad Broberg
 Don't expect perfection the first year.
 That was the message delivered last week to the Highline School Board by a visiting middle school expert.
 Dr. Donald Eichhorn, superintendent of schools in Lewisburg, Pa., warned the district not to be overly concerned about "having a full-fledged program ready to go next September. I think that would be a mistake because a program as complex as this (middle schools) can't be tied up into a neat package."
 By next year, all but one of Highline's 7-9 junior highs and all of its 10-12 high schools will be converted to 7-8 middle schools and 9-12 high schools.

 EICHHORN'S cautious advice seemed in slight contrast to the district's gung-ho approach to implementation and may have raised a few eyebrows Wednesday.
 Although it's never been the district's aim to stop work on middle school programs once they are instituted next fall, Eichhorn may have mistaken enthusiasm for that intention, said Highline Superintendent Robert Sealey.
 "After two days with our staff, I think he got the feeling that we were trying to complete everything this year before next fall," Sealey said.
 "We are putting quite an emphasis on program planning."

 Eichhorn's advice was actually nothing new, said board member Jim Rice.
 "We've been told that before."
 Board member Iris Knapp was also not surprised.
 "As I understood what he was saying, he was suggesting what is in the plan. I understood him to say don't expect perfection by 1980." Eichhorn said a good middle school program should continue to develop for 12-15 years after its implementation.

 A middle school needs a good foundation, which Highline is building, but it must be allowed to evolve, he added.
 EICHHORN also stressed a second theme — designing programs to fit the age characteristics of the students.
 "That was the strongest point he made," said Sealey. "The program should be based entirely on what the students' needs are, not what the teachers' needs are or what the administrators' needs are."

 Explained Eichhorn, "We spend more time deciding what we're going to do than studying the characteristics of students. What I'm saying is you should take a look at the age characteristics of your children. Then take a look at your program to see if it fits. If it fits, there's no reason to change."
 One age characteristic of the middle school youngster is a sense of being caught in a web of emotional and physical transitions and Eichhorn repeated a statement from a middle school student to illustrate his point.
 "When asked to describe a middle school, the youngster said, 'I think a middle school is a school where you are too old to be in elementary school and too young to be in high school. In other words, it's no fun."

 BEFORE MOVING to Lewisburg this year, Eichhorn was the assistant superintendent in Upper St. Clair, Pa., which is regarded as having the middle school system, according to Tom Sawyer, Highline's middle school facilitator.
 Besides hosting Eichhorn, Highline called in another middle school expert last Friday, Dr. Conrad Toepfer, from the University of Georgia.
 He devoted much of his talk to the theory that the brains of adolescents 12-14 years old take a brief "vacation" from effective learning, reported Sawyer.
 "They're still learning, but not at the rapid rate they were. You have to tie things closer together," said Sawyer.

Cable TV to carry Mass

"Bread For My People," the Roman

Catholic Mass produced for television by Catholic Communications Northwest in Seattle, has been placed in the Seattle area on public access cable television.
 Mary Pugel, programming coordinator for C.C.N., announced that the Mass, which is signed for the deaf, can be seen Tuesday evenings from 6:30 to 7 p.m., beginning Nov. 6.
 The program can be seen on Channel 3 in those areas served by Viacom Cablevision, and on Channel E in those areas served by Teleprompter.
 "Bread For My People" is produced weekly by Catholic Communications Northwest for television placement in the Pacific Northwest. The program is part of a growing utilization of the broadcast media by the church. While especially designed for shut-ins and the hearing impaired, the Mass is intended to project Christian worship to the community as a whole.

A New Concept in Health Care

Federal Way's Emergency Medical and Family Care Center offers a full range of medical services, on a walk-in basis, at reasonable cost, all in one convenient location.

Our modern medical center is staffed with doctors, nurses, and laboratory technicians on duty 7 days a week, 356 days a year.

We can treat minor ailments and emergencies from common colds, sore throats, fevers, burns, blisters, to cuts, sprains, fractures, and other pains. We can perform complete physical examinations, lab tests, and x-rays, or prescribe medication for common illnesses. And we can provide on-going medical care for as long as you need us.

We've saved a few lives and wiped away a few tears, and now offer the services of a completely equipped and staffed medical center, at a reasonable cost.

SHE SAID TO HIM

"If you want to start your own business you'd better attend this workshop"

So Dave went. During the next eight weeks he learned about marketing, cash flow, finance, site selection, pricing, inventory policy, competition, risk recognition and avoidance, legal structure, and many other important aspects that helped him write a plan for starting his own business.

Was it worth the effort? "You bet!" says Dave, "I've got a plan for my 'Sporting Goods Store in Federal Way that I can show any banker! Or even my wife who told me to do it!"

These ongoing workshops are sponsored by the US Small Business Administration. A new one starts on Thursday evening, November 1, in Federal Way. Call Sonia Ann Beasley at Columbia College for further details.

What does Dave's wife feel about it? "I'm glad he went." She should know. She grossed six figures in her own business last year.

THE RADOST Folk Ensemble will perform at Decatur High School in Federal Way on Friday, Nov. 16, at 8 p.m. The local event will be the final stop of the 1979 King County Arts Commission's dance tour. On Saturday, Nov. 10, the ensemble will be at Lindbergh High School in Renton in a program that begins at 5 p.m. The second stop on the tour will be in Carnation at the Carnation Elementary School on Sunday, Nov. 11, at 4 p.m. The troupe, made up of 45 dancers, musicians and singers in ethnic costumes, perform Bulgarian, Croatian, Hungarian and American music and dance.

Season opens for symphony

The opening concert of the Seattle Youth Symphony's 1979-80 season will be on Monday, Nov. 12, at 8 p.m. in the Opera House.

It is the 20th year that Vilem Sokol has been conductor and musical director of the youth orchestra. He is professor of music at the University of Washington and teaches violin and viola.

On Nov. 12 George Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue will be played by a guest artist, Peter Lederer, who frequently has played at the Seattle Symphony pop concerts.

The 125 musicians also will play the First Symphony by Seattle composer Gerald Kechley, Espana by Alexis Emmanuel Chabrier and Ottorino Respighi's tone poem, The Pines of Rome.

Youth Symphony musicians are 13-21 years of age. Members are chosen through open audition. They come from throughout Western Washington for weekly rehearsals, and alumni play in professional orchestras here and throughout the world.

Season tickets for three concerts in the Opera House or tickets for the opening performance on Nov. 12 are available by calling 623-2001.

Circus arts workshop:

Fifth-graders trade treats for tricks

by Barbara Butts
 Giving up soccer and Halloween usually is a substantial sacrifice for a 10-year-old fifth-grader.

But that is what Cameron Kruse is doing this week.

He and five other fifth-graders from Nautilus and Star Lake elementary schools are packing up today to go to Fort Worden State Park near Port Townsend for a workshop in circus arts.

"He was willing to give up Halloween and soccer for it, and that's a big thing for a kid," said Cameron's mother, Susan Kruse.

In return, the students will be trained in magic, juggling, acrobatics, balancing, pantomime, clowning and circus history.

Three-member teams of students from 21 Washington state grade schools have been selected to attend the workshop, which runs from today through Friday (Nov. 2).

Attending the classes from Nautilus are Sue Nesbitt, Allyson Tripp and Terri Ecklebarger, daughters of Radi and John Nesbitt, Leonard and Celia Tripp and Bobbie and Ken Ecklebarger.

Edward Holmes and Autumn Person will join Cameron in representing Star Lake. They are the children of Suzanne and Brian Holmes and Larry Person. Cameron's father is K. Michael Kruse.

Mrs. Geraldine Jobs, a fifth-grade teacher at Star Lake, will accompany the students.

The workshop is part of "Experiences in Creativity," an annual series of workshops and symposia for the state's creatively gifted students. The series is sponsored by Centrum, a non-profit, cultural organization, and is presented through funding from the Gifted Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Workshop sessions will be led by members of the Floating World Circus performing troupe.

The troupe's members have taught at the Cornish Institute in Seattle and the University of Washington's Experimental College. They are well-known in the Seattle area where they have played to numerous audiences.

Area students were selected after an examination of results from the first two stages of a gifted program being instituted in the district, said a school official.

Asked why she took up the offer, Allyson Tripp said:

"We don't have to act normal, and not acting normal can sometimes be fun."

Grass Roots Gardening

by Ginna Koontz

The waning October days herald the end of a warm summer and an unbelievable sunny autumn. Take advantage of the next few days to prepare the garden for winter and next spring.

Dig glads, let dry for a couple days then remove foliage. Store in old nylon, mesh onion bags or slatted boxes in a cool dry area. Add an insecticide-fungicide dust. Dahlias are treated in the same manner as glads but wash soil from tubers, write variety names on tuber with grease pencil then place in sawdust, bark or peat moss.

Tuberous begonia bulbs should be lifted from pots and stored in same manner as dahlias. Plant winter flowering kale in the empty pots for winter color.

Although fuchsias are evergreen in their native habitats, the hanging basket varieties we cultivate slow down, cease flowering and loose leaves in autumn announcing they need a long rest to regain energy for the next season. After the first light frost cut stems to two inch stubs and set containers in a cool dry spot. Allow soil to become quite dry but water monthly during winter. The disadvantage of saving fuchsias is that few persons have facilities to force early foliage and flowering so it is July before they bloom again.

Geraniums can be wintered over by cutting stems back to two inch lengths, pots set in cool dim, dry location and watered monthly during winter. Cuttings can be made from the removed stems. Root in a jar of water on the window sill, but cuttings are sturdier if started in peat-sand mixture. Divide peony plants if needed. Peonies have the peculiar characteristic of poisoning themselves if set back into the same planting hole. Peony plants relish a handful of lime each fall.

If chrysanthemums are planted in containers feed a liquid plant food now.

Harvest late maturing pears, apples, grapes and potatoes. Root crops like carrots, beets, onions, are best left in the garden. Mulch rows with three or four inches of bark, sawdust, compost or soil.

Deciduous trees and shrubs, especially fruit trees, bush fruits and rhubarb should be planted now. Evergreen trees and shrubs also become well established when planted in late October or early November.

Old wood should be cut out of flowering shrubs, including climbing and pillar roses. Top all tall canes on rose bushes to about three feet so canes don't whip in winter winds loosening and damaging roots.

Autumn lawn care is extremely important. Lawn maintenance includes mowing as long as grass is growing, applying a "winter" lawn fertilizer to assist lawn through the rainy leaching winter. Rake falling leaves frequently. Left laying on the turf, leaves may rot the lawn and also harbor injurious diseases and insects.

Remember to water all plants growing under eaves. Clean up garden debris and rogue out weeds. Garden sanitation prevents many problems. Keep slug bait out, replacing monthly.

Spreading herbicide weed killers (Carson, trade name) according to label directions is especially effective in the cool autumn. Do not use where it can leach into lawns. Do not use in bulb or herbaceous perennial beds.

Container plants must be protected during freezing weather. The plants are generally hardy but roots do not have the protection of Mother Earth. They live only in a thin walled container and a little soil. Wrapping containers with a two inch thickness of newspapers, stapling or tying in place usually affords sufficient frost protection. Set in protected spots outdoors but remember to water if under overhangs or eaves.

Of course, soon all autumn chores will be completed but keep in the gardening mood and abreast of all that's new in the gardeners' world by sending for reputable mail order growers. The names are advertised in all garden magazines: Sunset, Flower and Garden, Better Homes and Gardening, Organic Gardening, etc.

Library offers more than books

The Des Moines Library will be pushing more than books during National Children's Book Week, Nov. 10 through 17.

Through a project called "Arts Express" staff members will try to expose school-age children and families to the widest possible range of visual and performing arts experience.

The first workshop, taught by Johanna Maas will be the study of design by looking at a shoe. The art workshop, for children grade three and up, will meet Nov. 13 at 4 p.m. Pre-registration is required.

A children's voice workshop is scheduled for Nov. 15 at 7 p.m. with singer Jane Cater. The workshop, for school-age children, will include vocal warm-up exercises, humor in music, and songs in other languages.

For more information, contact the Des Moines Library, 824-6066.

Cubs host scary party

A Halloween party and haunted house will scare and delight youths, 12 and under, tomorrow, Monday at the Des Moines Fieldhouse.

Both activities are free, courtesy of Cub Scout Troop 369.

The party will be from 5 to 6 p.m., followed by the haunted house from 7 to 8 p.m.

concerned when the Gators failed to turn CP mistakes into points as the Gators took a 14-7 loss. — photos by Roy Musitelli

Gators miss chance to end loss streak

by Harry Brooks
All of the elements that have kept the Decatur Gators winless this season — the turnovers, the missed assignments, the unenviable ability to give up the big play — combined with the rain Thursday night to dampen Decatur's Homecoming game. A usually explosive Clover Park attack, hampered by an outstanding Gator defensive effort, fizzled along throughout the contest and afforded Decatur numerous chances to break a loss streak that stood at 11 straight going into Thursday's contest. But Clover Park used two long, scoring passes in the second quarter and watched Decatur lose its composure in the second half while taking a 14-7 win. The visiting Warriors, leading 10-0, graciously bestowed field position to the Gators in the final two quarters. Decatur only cashed in on one Warrior favor when a punt-formation center snap zipper reach. Decatur's Phil Fox grabbed the bouncing ball on the run at the CP 4 and continued into the end zone. Steve Babcock's successful extra-point kick cut Clover Park's lead to 14-7 with 2:40 left in the third quarter. BUT DECATUR failed to take advantage of three other Warrior gifts in CP territory during the second half. Senior tackle Scott Bohn gave Decatur possession on the Warrior side of the 50-yard line twice with fumble recoveries. His first find put Decatur at the CP 20 midway through the third quarter, but the Gators blew the opportunity via a center-quarterback exchange fumble which CP recovered at the 13. With 2:48 remaining in the game, Bohn pounced on a loose ball at the CP 36. Randy Moen ripped off an 11-yard run on the next play and followed with a two-yard dive to the 23. There problems struck quarterback Greg Andal. First, the sophomore signal caller dropped the center snap but recovered, and then he was bounced on successive sacks of nine and 10 yards. Clover Park took possession after the second setback with 1:12 left to play and ticked the clock away with three inside running plays. DECATUR also received another shot at paydirt when Steve Babcock intercepted a Jim Cassidy pass at the CP 30, the threat ended when Babcock's 40-yard field goal attempt fell short. "We just broke down at critical times," Decatur coach Greg Flynn said. "We haven't been in positions like that very much this year, and I think our kids got a little too excited and lost their cool." The most discouraging moment for the Gator cause occurred early in the fourth quarter when Clover Park stopped a Decatur march, the only legitimate drive of the game, two feet from the Warrior end zone. The 58-yard, one-foot offensive began when Andal and Mike Perry combined for a 49-yard pass-run play to the CP 20. Veer blasts at the Warrior line moved Decatur to the 11, where Moen converted a fourth-and-one situation with a five-yard dash. Moen powered to the 3 on the next play, but his running mate Mike Hagen was held for no gain in the middle. Moen could manage just another yard on another dive play, brining up a fourth-and-two circumstance. Flynn elected to stay with the straight-forward theme, but Moen was stacked up 24 inches short of the goal line on a crash over right guard with 8:32 remaining on the game clock. "WHEN YOU have four plays from the five, you should be able to score," he muttered. "But I felt that even if we didn't we could force them to give us the ball back in good position with plenty of time left." The coach's outlook appeared correct as the Gator defense allowed the Warriors four yards in three plays. Alas, Clover Park aligned in punt formation on fourth-and-four, and Decatur lined up on offense. The penalty gave the Warriors a first down, and two plays later, Elton Edwards took off on a 35-yard run to the Decatur 49. Missed assignments in the Decatur defensive backfield blemished an otherwise stellar performance by the Gator stop corps. Cassidy and tight end Pat Martin combined to provide the Warriors' scoring on two identical pass patterns. EARLY IN the second quarter, Cassidy made the most of a fourth-and-15 situation by hitting Martin, trotting all alone at the 10. After making the snag, Martin crossed the goal line at 10:37 of the second quarter. Four minutes later, Cassidy and Martin teamed on the same play, which was (n't) defended the same way, for a 66-yard TD. "We were really conscious of their running game, and they burned us with those play-action passes," Flynn said and explained why they worked so effectively. "They would fake the handoffs, and the receiver (Martin) would delay. Our halfback would charge to stop the run, and the receiver would go flying by. Actually, we've had problems being burned on long passes all year." Flynn and his Gators had good reason to be concerned with Clover Park's ground game. The speedy Warrior backfield features Chuck Dennis, possibly the most dangerous running back in the SPSL. FLYNN used line slants and keyed his linebacks on Dennis, and the strategy allowed Clover Park just 88 rushing yards for the game. Dennis ended the contest with 16 yards on 21 carries. Moen and Hagen led a Decatur blitz that either stopped Dennis for no gain or threw him for losses 10 times. "Our defense did a nice job with our game plan," Flynn said, then pointed to the positive side of Thursday's play: "I'm glad our team is competitive with a team like Clover Park. All the kids are showing good character in the face of our record."

Eagles run past Bethel, 30-0

by Harry Brooks
The Federal Way Eagle offense woke from a six-game slumber Friday night and delighted a Homecoming crowd with 30 (thirty) points. Meanwhile, the Eagle defense had its usual outstanding performance, keeping the Bethel Braves scoreless and allowing just 75 total yards. Federal Way gave quarterback John DeRocher, who led the SPSL in passing last season, his worst statistical outing of his high school career. The junior QB managed only two completions in 14 passing attempts for 22 yards. In fact, Federal Way defenders had a catching mark, five interceptions, better than that of the Bethel receivers, who snagged three. Rob Cables picked off two DeRocher aerials, and Dean Youngblood grabbed another, his sixth of the season. DuRocher's replacement, Marty Plumb, also fell victim to the Eagles' ball-hawking tactics. HIS THIRD pass, a floating screen to the left flat area, was snatched by Todd McGrady on the full run. Nothing stood between the senior fullback-linebacker and the goal line as he sprinted 23 yards for Federal Way's fourth and final touchdown. BUT STELLAR defensive play isn't anything new for Federal Way this season, being the major element in the Eagles' 5-3 record, third best in the SPSL. A consistent yard-churning offense, like that which went on exhibition Friday, was something unique for Federal Way this season. The Eagles rushed for 245 yards, highlighted by Todd McGrady's 109 on 12 carries (a nine-yard average per tote). Quarterback Butch Cratsenberg had touchdown runs of 31 and 25 yards while compiling a 66-yard total on 15 carries. McGrady's TD run with an interception and an earlier score on a one-yard plunge gave him league-leading totals of 10 touchdowns and 60 points. "We needed this kind of a game for our self-confidence," a rejuvenated Federal Way coach Doug Adkins chirped as the rain pelted his new "lucky" hat. "We knew they couldn't run, so we put in a few new pass defenses for them. I think we had a pretty good plan." Federal Way will end its season Friday in a battle for the "District Championship" against the Jefferson Raiders, a 32-8 loser to Lakes last Friday, at Federal Way Stadium.

Federal Way is the host in the 8 p.m. contest. THE EAGLES found paydirt on their first possession last Friday when Cratsenberg ended a six-play, 60-yard drive with a nifty 31-yard run. The senior QB broke through right tackle, freed himself from a pile at the Bethel 25, cracked two tackle attempts while veering right and sprinting to the corner of the end zone with 5:29 left in the first quarter. Ten seconds before halftime, McGrady dove through the left side of the Bethel line for a one-yard touchdown. The play capped a six-play, 34-yard march that was set up by Mike Bruner's punt block. Blaine Wilson kicked extra points after each first-half TD to give the Eagles a 14-0 edge at the break. Federal Way took first possession of the second half at the FW 30 and, less than three minutes later, racked up its third touchdown on Cratsenberg's 25-yard scamper. Again, the stocky signal caller bounced tacklers while rounding right end, reversing direction against the flow and racing to the left flag. The scoring jaunt came on the sixth play of the drive, which included a 34-yard McGrady burst. Wilson's 27-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter and McGrady's interception-return score midway through the period closed the Eagle tally. (A descriptive photo of the contest is printed on pg. B2).

Lakes, rain dampen Jefferson

by Dave Thomas
The Thomas Jefferson Raiders, coming off two consecutive victories, entered their game against Lakes last Friday looking for their third. Unfortunately, the Raiders did not want to oblige the Raiders as they defeated their visitors 32-8 at Clover Park field in Tacoma.

A disappointed Jim Gard, TJ head coach, said his team just wasn't ready to play. "We gave too much momentum to them. Our tackling was really bad, and punt coverage broke down."

The Lancers put the game away in the first half scoring all four times they handled the ball. They got started on a 42-yard punt return to the Raiders 15-yard line by Ron Archie. It took them just five plays to complete the drive, capped off by a four yard run by Archie.

Next time Lakes got the ball they moved 62-yards in 13 plays. The drive was not a playbook one. The Lancers appeared to be losing ground as often as they gained it. Two big plays, however, and got as far as their own forty-five in the first half.

Second half action began with the rain starting to come down heavily. The first series for both teams showed the effects the rain had on ball handling. Lakes took the opening kick off at their own seven. One play later Schneider fumbled the ball and the Raiders recovered at the ten. However, two plays later Raider quarterback Jay Gard fumbled with the handoff to Mike Brogan and Lakes recovered at the ten.

Coach Gard felt that fumble was another turning point in the game. "If we could have gotten a quick score there, then the complexion of the game might have been different."

For the rest of the third quarter the weather took control of the game. Neither team could mount a substantial drive and penalties and turnovers dominated the action.

Jefferson finally mounted a drive late in the final quarter. They marched 57-yards in nine plays for the score. The drive was led by the running of Dean DeMulling and passing of Jay Gard. With 3:37 left in the game Gard sneaked the ball over the goal line from two yards out for Jefferson's only score. They added the two-point first came on a third and long pass from quarterback Archie who carried the ball 20-yards for a first down. The second break was a third down pass to Claude Dixon for 27-yards and a touchdown. The score came with just 12 seconds left in the first quarter and made it 14-0.

In the second quarter lakes continued where they left off, moving 7-yards in only seven plays. The big play in the drive was a 47-yard touchdown run by Mark Schneider. The extra point was missed, making the score 20-0.

Lakes was not finished just yet. They moved the ball to the Raiders thirty-seven with just under a minute left in the first half. Then, Lambert hit Bruce Forsland with passes of 15 and 14 yards. With the ball on the seven, Lambert hit Dixon in the endzone for another score. The missed two-point conversion made it 26-0 at halftime.

HS golf scores

The Decatur Gators and the Bethel Braves ended the regular SPSSL golf season in a second-place tie after tying a match, 69-69, Monday at Twin Lakes. Both Decatur and Bethel finished the dual-match season with 9-3-1 records. Federal Way finished in a fourth-place deadlock with Clover Park with a 7-6 tally. The Eagles beat Clover Park 65-62 Monday but fell to league champ Lakes 78-66 Thursday. Jefferson came in with a 4-9 record after suffering a 39-31 loss to Curtis in the Raiders' Monday finale.

The three local teams will enter the medalist tournament tomorrow at Tumwater. Decatur has a strong chance of landing a state tournament berth, and Federal Way could be a surprise state qualifier.

Gymnastics judging clinic at FW High

Ben McIrvine will head up a gymnastics judging clinic beginning this Tuesday from 7-9 p.m. in the Federal Way High School cafeteria. The clinic will also run on November 1, 6 and 8 from 7-9 p.m. Participants will be taught how to judge compulsory routines. For further information call McIrvine at 839-0523 or Bud Hately at 839-9192 or 927-6228.

Mt. Rainier grabs first grid win

by Brien Lautman

The pouring rains gushed down upon Highline Stadium last Friday night, but the precipitation that has drenched the Mt. Rainier Rams parade throughout the current North Puget Sound League grid season has ended. The Rams broke into the win column by virtue of a 13-6 heartstopper over the Auburn Trojans.

For the Rams it was simply delicious after a frustrating seven straight setbacks that nailed them firmly into the NPSL cellar. Seniors cried, coaches hugged each other, while unsuspecting sophomore smiled quietly, grasping the feel of a winner.

"Lock on to this feeling fellas and remember this feeling as long as you can," Head Coach Jerry Dotson said in the emotion-swept Rainier lockerroom. "We played as a team tonight and won. There will be many more to come too," he shouted, "many more."

But the Ram players would not let Dotson pass this initial win on to themselves; instead they praised their coach as a firm believer in their program. "We couldn't have done it without Coach Dotson," several players yelled. "We played this one for him. We wanted it for him," Assistant Coach Bob Kelly said.

The Rams, however, began their search for win number one last Friday with a familiar look. On first and ten from their own 25-yard line, Bob Forsloff threw over the middle for Pruitt, but the pass ended up in the hands of Auburn's Mike Amburgey, and the Trojans found themselves with a first down at the Rainier thirty.

Auburn displayed a patient, up the middle offense from there as Jeff Schulz picked up 17-yards on four carries to push the ball to the Ram eight. Schulz then cracked over left guard the remaining distance, putting the visitors in control at 6-0. Time Haywood missed the point after attempt.

Auburn then tightened up on the struggling Mt. Rainier offense, yielding just eight first quarter yards to their hosts. The Trojan defense gave up just 21 yards rushing all evening to the Rainier offense, while it was a turnover-plagued offense that spelled defeat for Auburn.

While on their own 18-yard line late in the second quarter, Trojan signal-caller Cal Karbowski threw for intended receiver Brian Swift, but Larry Pruitt stepped in to pick off the aerial and carry it to the Auburn twenty-two. Following a clipping penalty that moved the ball back to the forty-three, Dotson sent ailing quarterback Craig Maley in to replace Forsloff. Maley responded by throwing a 43-yard scoring pass to Pruitt, who slipped behind defender Mark Haughn for the equalizing points. Ty Beach, however, could not break the deadlock as he failed on the point after sending both teams in at intermission deadlocked 6-6.

Following Maley's scoring pass, the Rainier offense was not to surface again. The Ram's simply let the defense take care of the scoring.

Heading up that assignment was senior captain Val Blevins who blasted in from the right side of the Trojan line on the visitors initial second half possession, to block Doug Varphotz's punt. Blevins then scooped the rolling pigskin up and rambled 18-yards to paydirt, giving the Rams a fragile 12-6 lead. Beach upped that total to thirteen with the PAT.

An alert Rainier defense was responsible for protecting the precious lead as they continued to come up with Trojan fumbles at key intervals, and tough goal line defense. The Ram stop squad squelched an Auburn mid-fourth quarter surge for the goal line with solid pass defense as Karbowski, following a Trojan drive that began on their own thirty-eight, and ended on the MR four, continued to throw into the endzone, but with no luck. Karbowski did connect on fourth and goal with Amburgey, but the officials ruled the big tight-end did not plant his feet inside the endzone. But the Rams were not out of the fire yet, as they took over on their own four with 2:37 remaining to play. Auburn quickly forced the punchless Rainier offense into a punting situation where Mike Martini booted it out to the thirty-five.

Again, Karbowski began to flail away at the Rainier secondary with less than a minute remaining in the game. But Karbowski, who threw for 81 yards on the evening, could find only Mt. Rainier defensive back Kelly Johnson, who clutched the interception, insuring the Ram victory.

MR spikes Lancers, stopped by Royals

by Brien Lautman

The Mt. Rainier Ram girls' volleyball team continued its winning ways last Thursday night as they stormed passed the Kennedy Lancers 15-0, 13-15, and 15-9. The win, coupled with a Tuesday 15-5, 15-1 loss to Kent-Meridian put the Rams at 3-5 on the season.

Rainier got off to a lightening-quick start against the Lancer girls, clawing to a 15-0 shutout win. The whitewash of their visitors caught Ram Coach Neil Hutchison completely off-guard, but nonetheless pleased.

"It's incredible. I think that's the first shutout by anyone this season. The girls just jammed the ball right down their throats."

Hutchison cited good steady serving and strong net play, in particular Jelene Barton's conscientious front line play.

The Rams encountered some let-down in the following game, however, dropping it 15-13, and setting up a deciding third game.

"We just lost our edge and our concentration," Hutchison said. His girls managed to regain their winning frame of mind for the final game as they stroked to a 15-9 win behind the spiking of Pam Gossman and Denise Hendricks.

Lori Wellman and

Allison Huber added to the Rainier effort with pinpoint serving and "good all-around play."

The Des Moines club found life away from home a bit rockier on Tuesday afternoon as the powerhouse Kent-Meridian Royals turned the Rams every way but loose.

The Rams lost 15 points in the two afternoon matches on serving alone. "It's not that our kids were choking, but Kent-Meridian just served extremely well," Hutchison said. "Nobody will touch them this year. Their jayvees could be the number two team in the state."

Avon sponsors Seattle Tennis

Campbell Sports, Inc. and Old National Bank will present the 1980 $150,000 AVON Tennis Championships of Seattle.

According to Michael Campbell, president of Campbell Sports, Inc., his firm has been involved in producing professional women's tennis tournaments in Seattle since the first one was held in 1977.

The history of the tournament demonstrates the high quality of tennis action Seattle fans have become accustomed to enjoying. The 1979 final brought Chris Evert Lloyd her second Seattle championship, a 6-1, 3-6, 6-3 victory over Renee Richards.

This marks the second year of involvement for Old National Bank. The bank will again serve as the presenting sponsor for

Mortgages on sale at 9%

If you've been waiting for someone to have a money sale, you've waited just long enough. Jack Stumph, branch manager of Benton-McCarthy's Redondo office, is acting as agent for the Pulte construction firm, and Pulte is having a money sale.

With 20 homes under construction in Twin Lakes X (pronounced Twin Lakes Ten), Pulte acquired a large forward commitment of mortgage money, so they are able to offer mortgages on these 20 homes as 9 percent. That's right, an old fashioned number like nine. Thought you'd never see it again, didn't you, with people arguing over 12's and 14's!

"Pulte is one of the nation's largest builders," Stumph says, "and this is their first entry into the Northwest, so they're putting their best foot forward. The price range on these homes is $85,000 to $100,000, and they are three or four bedrooms or two or three levels, quite a few with Sound views. Their energy-saving features include double wall construction, double pane glass with wood wrapped windows, fireplaces, forced air electric heat. They have nice features in the construction like the floors being both glued and nailed so there are no squeaks."

Let's take a closer look at the mortgage. It's a five year mortgage amortized on a 30-year basis, so it amounts to the first five years of a 30-year mortgage. It is up to the buyer to refinance at any time during the five years when the more conventional mortgage rates are within his range. (Keep in mind that the national average is to move in less than five years, so for some families the question of refinancing will simply not arise.)

In addition to that very attractive rate on the interest,

Pulte is paying a lot of the front-end costs: the title insurance, escrow fee, loan origination fee, and a parcel of other one-time fees that either don't apply or Pulte is paying.

WHAT THE BUYER must pay up front are the fire insurance for a year, the starting of an escrow account for the taxes, the Twin Lakes home-owner's fee ($11), and so on: not fees so much as costs any buyer must carry.

Ah, but what do I need down, you say? 10 percent will do, but of course 20 is better. Or with zero down, go VA. Let's take a look in detail at each possibility, applied to a house costing $93,300. It's 1,398 square feet finished, 1,294 square feet of unfinished basement, four bedrooms.

The down payment is $9,330 and those front-end costs are $1,309 for a total of $10,639. The loan amount is $83,970, at an actual interest rate of 9.25 percent, the last quarter percent bearing Private Mortgage Insurance. Principal and interest is $691. Allow taxes at $50 per month and insurance at $20 for a total monthly payment of $761. Now comes the fun: $697 of that $761 is tax deductible because $50 of it is taxes and $647 is interest. At a marginal tax rate of 32 percent, $223 comes off the family's taxes each month, leaving costs so far of $538.

We're not done yet. Total mortgage payment of $691 minus the interest of $647 leaves $44 each month which is applied toward the principal - in other words, that's yours, and it goes up a bit each month.

Remember the rising costs of homes? That's what's been bothering you all along about getting into one, right? Well, as soon as you buy into the market, that works in your favor. At a conservative estimate, houses in this area are going up by 1 percent per month, or 12 percent per year. This house can be estimated to be going up $933 each and every month. And the $44 to the $933 for a total of $977 each month, and subtract that from the $538 we've already figured out that house is costing each month.

ANY LITTLE KID knows you can't subtract $977 from $538 because it doesn't work, but smart grownups realize that $439 is a delightful sum to have a house cost each month. It means you are making $439 each and every month you live in the house!

Let's swing quickly past the same house with 20 percent down. That quarter percent Private Mortgage Insurance drops out now, so the front end costs are now $846 plus the 20 percent down for a total of $19,506. The loan amount is $74,640 and the actual mortgage rate is 9 percent, for a monthly principal plus interest payment of $601. Taxes remain $50, insurance remains $20, for a total monthly payment of $671.

Taking the same 32 percent marginal tax bracket, the $610 that comes off the IRS statement each month is a savings of $195. Put $41 into the principal and use the same appreciation of $933 per month, for an actual monthly cost of a delightful negative $498.

But you say you've got nothing down at all? Pulte will accept VA financing on these homes, too, at the going VA rate of 10 1/2 percent.

Like any other sale, this one is of short duration. For three more weeks Stumph can act as salesman for the best money sale in the area. After that it's back to the regular prices - even a large commitment of money can't be held for long at less than market rates. Stumph's office phone is 941-6400 and his address is 27223 Pacific Highway S. If you've thought you were priced all the way out of the housing market, think again but don't wait too long!

SELLING YOUR HOUSE

By Doug Fields

WHO WANTS YOUR HOUSE?

Somewhere, out there, there must be a buyer for your property, someone who's looking for a home with just the features that your house has. But how are you going to find him?

Chances are, that buyer has already started looking for a home. How are you going to find him before he finds ANOTHER house and passes yours up?

When a would-be buyer comes to town, he heads for where the homes are: the office of a professional real estate agent. The buyer knows he'll find the widest selection of properties that meet his needs in the hands of an expert. He won't have to waste time looking at houses that don't measure up.

Maybe your buyer registered with us yesterday, or last week. He's told us what he wants and needs, and what he is prepared to pay. The vital statistics may match your house exactly. But you'll never know unless you call.

You're as smart as a smart buyer. When you want to sell, go where the prospects are.
