

FW bus service:

Metro group opts to restore plans

by Loren Bliss

The Metro Council's Service Evaluation Subcommittee has voted unanimously to restore to approximately their original proportions four proposals for expanding bus service in the Federal Way area.

Jim Shahan, an appointed council member from Federal Way and the chairman of the service evaluation group, said the move points Metro Transit in the direction of giving Federal Way "most of what we originally planned."

But it also puts the Metro Council "on the track" of voting for a ten-cent fare increase to make up for revenue losses resulting from the soaring cost of diesel fuel and a slump in sales tax returns, Shahan said.

The proposed expansion has yet to be approved by the Transit Committee, of which the subcommittee is part, and by the Metro Council as a whole.

If approved, the four proposals would provide:

— rush-hour express service linking Federal Way with the industrial complexes of the Duwamish and Harbor Island areas, starting in May;

— weekday shuttle service between Federal Way and Auburn, starting in May;

— weekend shuttle service between Federal Way and Auburn, starting in September;

— midday express service between the Federal Way park-and-ride lot at South 320th Street and Seattle, starting in September;

— hourly service to Seattle on both weekdays and weekends from the Camelot and Twin Lakes communities, starting in September.

With minor revisions, this is approximately the service that was proposed by Metro staff members before they decided last week to shelve the last three of the above items to accommodate the budget crunch.

METRO OFFICIALS had indicated at the time the proposal reductions were announced that they would try to add the deleted routes by September. But they were doubtful whether sufficient revenue would be available.

Thursday's action, however, guarantees that the full service package will go into effect if it wins the approval of the transit group and the full council. The main difference is that some of the service originally scheduled to begin in May would be postponed until September.

Shahan said the proposal was restored to nearly its original form by some deft budgetary shuffling. He said that about a third of the necessary service hours were originally allocated to park-and-ride busing from Star Lake.

But construction of the Star

Lake park-and-ride facility depends on whether or not the state gets started on its plans to build an interchange at South 272nd Street accessing Interstate 5.

And both Shahan and King County Councilman Paul Barden, himself a member of the Metro Council, doubt that the interchange will be completed in time for the Star Lake park-and-ride to be operational by 1980.

ORIGINALLY METRO had budgeted for 100,000 additional hours of county service in 1980, with about half of that amount to go into the South King County area. It costs, officials say, about $30 per hour to operate a single bus.

About 29,000 of these hours would go directly into expanded service to Federal Way, though the defeated cutbacks would have slashed that figure to as little as 11,300.

The ten-cent fare increase, itself still a proposal, is one of the three options that the Metro Council is weighing to enable the transit system to cope with both soaring demands for service and the budget crunch.

Other options include leaving fares as they are, which Metro officials said would eliminate all the proposed Federal Way service expansions, and seeking an additional share of state motor vehicle excise tax revenues.

Barden said Friday that he was elated by the subcommittee's vote.

BUT THERE are two things that still have to be done, he cautioned. "We have to make sure that the Transit Committee and the full Metro Council approves the plan. And we have to make absolutely certain that the expanded service really does get implemented."

Barden said he "thought we had it taken care of a month ago, but a month ago we didn't anticipate the financial problems. And unfortunately, the future is no more certain now than it was then."

Given the current situation with OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries), he said, "we might have to make revisions again."

Harry Keinath, a member of the Federal Way Community Council who worked closely with Barden in drafting the original proposals, said the subcommittee's decision is "just beautiful."

"I don't think we've resolved the basic problem, which is that these decisions are apparently political rather than based on a rational set of criteria," he said, "but we're certainly not going to look a gift horse in the mouth."

"We sure need and deserve that extra service," Keinath said. "Our thanks go out to Shahan and Barden a thousand times."

CHRISTMAS TREE SALESLADY, Dulcie Schillinger says they have a policy that helps keep their customers loyal. "If the tree is not fresh and the needles drop, we'll replace it," she said. "We've been here a long time and we want to stay."

Tree lady gives customers a 'what fir' sales pitch

by Ann Hagen

In the good old days, mom, dad and the kids used to take their trusty ax and hike to the woods to find a nice bushy tree that would help fill their house with Christmas cheer and the tantalizing smell of freshly cut evergreens. It was a fun-filled excursion that, typically, took all day.

But, when you live in the suburbs, where time is limited and trees are scarce, you usually hike to a nearby corner and take your pick from among the 100 or more trees on display.

But, the convenience doesn't necessarily make the selection any easier.

"Some people come back and look at the same tree three and four times," said Dulcie Schillinger, who sells trees for her brother-in-law's Bay View Farm in the parking lot off 16th Ave. S.W. and Dash Point Road. "Finally, they pay their money and away they go."

Ms. Schillinger, a retired high school teacher, said they set up for business by Dec. 7 and don't quit until Dec. 23. In their sixth year, she said expected sales are 2,000 trees.

She said, trees, available in five varieties, are cut and brought in daily. Cost is $1 to $4 per foot, depending on what kind it is.

A funny place to people watch, she said last week a woman came in and selected a Noble Fir that cost $26. Hesitant, she bought it on one condition — that the price tag was switched. "I don't want my husband to know what I paid for it," was her excuse.

"WE GET MEN in here who have the longest faces," said Dulcie. "They walk around and grumble until they find the right one. Then they get a big smile on their face and leave without another word."

Usually, she said people search for a tree that will fit a particular location. Some of them want tall, skinny ones and others search for short fat ones. "All I can say, is that I don't always agree with them, but beauty is in the eye of the beholder," she said.

However, Ms. Schillinger said it does pay (especially in carpet bills) to be aware of the characteristics of particular types of trees and the problems they can cause.

If the tree is to be placed on a carpet, she recommends that people select a Noble Fir or Norwegian Spruce that drops the least needles.

"Pine trees are nice but they are also pitchy," she said. "You need a good cover on your carpet."

She also recommends that the carpet be protected when a standard fir or Grandus Fir is selected. Water, she said will help keep them fresh, but characteristically, their needles will drop as the tree dries out.

Occasionally, she said people come to get a tree with little regard as to how to get it home. She mentioned, in particular, a regular customer and his wife who recently came by with their tiny sport's car to pick up an eight-foot Noble Fir. "The man said it was either his wife or the tree so the girl stayed here until her husband could come back after her," said Ms. Schillinger chuckling. The tree ended up stuck in the back window and underneath the dash, she said.

But, she said she tries to make sure that the trees are loaded properly. "You can imagine what happens to the branches if they are put on top backwards. Besides, we'd hate to see one fly off in the street."

She also pointed out the fact that just because the needles fall off doesn't necessarily mean that trees aren't fresh.

"People come in here and they bang the trunks on the pavement to see if the needles fall," she said. But, last summer was dry causing inner needles to die. Their trees are brought in every other day from the 40-acre tree farm on the Olympic Peninsula. They are also trucked to their two other locations in Renton and Burien.

Whenever, Ms. Schillinger gets tired from the 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. hours and wet from the drizzling rain she said she thinks of what her two weeks salary will buy her.

A nice long trip to soak up some sun.

Would-be conman 'suckers' himself

It would have been a perfect textbook fraud, but the Denver, Colorado conman made one major tactical error.

As he was preparing to leave a parking lot in the 27200 block of Pacific Highway South, he spotted his mark enter. He turned his car around, and as the mark exited his car, motioned him over to his Cadillac.

He told his mark he was low on cash, so he was willing to sell him an expensive watch for just $48. There was a $575 price tag on the watch box. He also showed his mark a second expensive-looking watch and a ring set in a velvet box.

When the mark wanted to get a closer look at the merchandise, the suspect told him not to take it out of the car.

It was at that point the smooth-talking conman learned his tactical error. The well-dressed mark pulled out a badge.

King County Police Det. C. J. Dobransky asked if the items were stolen as he had observed numerous boxes in the rear of the car.

The suspect, who later showed the detective a suitcase full of the jewelry, claimed he made his living by traveling around the country selling the jewelry. He even produced receipts for the merchandise.

However, as Det. Dobransky inspected the jewelry, he noticed something odd about the brand names of the watches. Though they appeared to be expensive brand names, in both cases, there was a one-letter difference.

The man was booked into King County jail for investigation of second-degree theft. He was later cited for attempted third-degree theft.

IT REQUIRED A little bit of a stretch, but 2-year-old Andrea Johnston managed to mail her own letter to Santa last week. Andrea, the daughter of Rhonda and Gordon Johnston of Federal Way, is asking Santa for a rocking horse and a baby doll this Christmas. Santa will be receiving mail at the North Pole via this mail box until Tuesday. All good little girls and boys are invited to make their requests and drop them off in front of the Federal Way News office, just east of the intersection of South 320th Street and Pacific Highway South. The three best letters will be awarded prizes — from Santa, of course.

Holiday concert

Christmas is just around the corner and it's time for annual Christmas concerts at area schools. Wildwood Elementary held its concert last week to the enjoyment of families and friends. Band conductor, Dan Herberman, (right) seems satisfied as he leads his band through a holiday tune. For more pictures, see page A-3.

The Murphy Papers is an unpublished manuscript, one we happen to know about because Murphy is an old college chum. Like a lot of frustrated authors, Murphy says his book is 'just too good to publish.'

So he keeps the manuscript near his bed, where now and again he hauls it out to read to his wife. If he takes a drink or two, he's inclined to indulge himself by sharing sections of the work with pals. The following is a sample of one of his recent ramblings, as near the original as I am able to recall.

"Airports," says Murphy, "are going to be what's left of us when they dig us up in two or three thousand years." This is the first premise of what Murphy call the Remnant Theory. As Murphy sees it, the cultural left-overs of ancient Greece, or ancient Mexico, the urns and statues, the gold and the pyramids, are the clues that tell us what was important to those people.

By the same sort of sifting, the historians of the future will come to understand us. Airports, says Murphy, are a natural for survival because of all those runways. Murphy believes that those who come after us will face some deep confusion as they try to puzzle out what we were all about.

"Acres and acres of cement, covering up perfectly good dirt, preventing any sort of contact with the earth, will mystify the curators of the museums of the future." (That's how Murphy talks, sometimes.) "Just as we puzzle over the mysteries of the Sphinx and of rumors of lost continents, so will the minds of scientists centuries hence be boggled by the obvious technical implications of these massive slabs. Surrounded by structures that are uninhabitable, designed only for persons in transit, our airports don't even make sense to most of us.

"You can see it in the eyes of people in line at the ticket counters, or of people getting off of planes," says Murph.

"They have a glazed look about them. Nobody looks at the terminal itself. They know it's just a magnificent illusion. It's like an elevator. Who looks at elevators?"

"People complain about the noisy jets, about the long waits or delayed flights," Murphy points out. "What they ought to be mad about is harder to see. That's because it's like television. When something is everywhere, you begin to stop noticing it. Soon, we'll have one enormous slab of cement running from Olympia to Everett, and we'll be landing airplanes that make the Kingdome look like a thimble."

I don't know about Murphy's predictions, but it makes a certain amount of sense that all those runways will be hard to figure out in a few centuries. If you've lived here long, you can recall when the airport got off the ground. Running from 170th to 177th, it was a mere postage stamp compared with the gray acreage of today.

One way to think of the issue Murphy raises is to wonder what it would be like if the airport didn't exist in its present location. Lots of hotel managers wince at the thought. Lots of homeowners would tell you they like the idea. But it does exist, and as long as convenience is our catch-word and transportation a major industry, it's likely to stay. Like an enormous blanket of cookie dough, our airport threatens to continue its spread. We don't know if Murphy is right about the Remnant Theory, but if he is, we'd like to add a footnote to it. As long as we've got this monster in our midst, why don't we do something interesting with it? Why not decorate it with wonderful murals done by children? Or graphics by famous designers? Or gigantic advertisements? A really clever artist might be able to paint clusters of attractive homes, streets, playgrounds, shrubbery, and people on it, almost like the real thing.

Jim Falk
"For all the people to rejoice in the coming New Year. The place we came from was a lot smoggier, so you can tell where I mean. I got a new job, so I guess you could say some of our wishes already have been granted."

Lucille Hammersmith

Martha Green

Under the Capitol Dome

by Robert C. Cummings

by Robert C. Cummings
In their efforts to polish the legislative image during an election year, the lawmakers are hoping to avoid controversies which might disrupt the 60-day 1980 session.

But they could be taking a calculated risk.

By pushing product liability, the timber tax and transit financing to back burners, they could be laying themselves wide open to being labeled a "do-nothing Legislature" if they add too many others to the list.

So far, so good
They are safe enough in keeping the above mentioned three issues on the shelf for another year.

Despite the fact that product liability dominated the entire 1979 session, it is of major interest only to lawyers.

As noted previously, the present timber tax doesn't expire until June, 1981, so changes aren't urgent.
As for public transit, though it is closely associated with the energy crisis, it is chiefly a local issue, and the Legislature already has opened local avenues of revenue for its financing.

Some Can't Wait
But measures to insure safer transportation and disposal of hazardous materials are subjects which demand attention, and they virtually are breeding controversy.

Many members of the Senate and House Transportation Committees — which recently met jointly on the issue — think transportation problems should be resolved by the Utilities and Transportation Commission through its regulatory powers.

It will endorse a bill extending the UTC's authority to cover private as well as common and contract carriers.

Some Want More Laws

But a majority of the House Ecology Committee believes all such regulations should be codified into law.

And it is proposing legislation which would be much tougher than the UTC regulations, and provide much heavier penalties for violations.

The Ecology Committee also is proposing regulations for hazardous waste disposal which would be much more stringent than those imposed by Gov. Dixy Lee Ray through her emergency powers.

Could Be Flammatory
Judging from past performances, the Governor may interpret such a move an infringement upon her executive authority and ignite another blowup between the two branches of government.

Among other things, the Ecology Committee would establish "quarantine lots" near entrance points, where trucks with hazardous cargoes could be held for inspection and correction of any faulty equipment.

The program would be administered by the Department of Social and Health Services, which would be directed to charge a site use fee high enough to defray the full cost of the entire operation.

Ask Jimmy the Greek
A number of Democratic legislators in both houses who are disenchanted with Governor Ray might seem to indicate it will be a cinch to override her vetoes.

But don't bet on it unless you can match Jimmy the Greek's skill in computing the odds.

While there might be a two-third majority on the floor of each house, any veto message would first have to clear at least one committee in each house. The composition of some of those in the Senate could be tilted in her favor.

Some Never Forget
Peter von Reichbauer of Vashon was the first Democrat to break with Governor Ray when as chairman of the Senate Parks Committee he blocked her attempt to fire Charles Odegaard as parks director back in 1977.

After she obtained a majority on the Parks Commission, and Odegaard was sent packing, the commission appointed his assistant, Jan Tveten.

That pleased von Reichbauer, who has nothing but praise for the new director. But he hasn't forgiven the Governor for firing Odegaard, and vice versa.

They'll Play it Cool
With the Senate majority leader, Gordon Walgren, expected to run for Attorney General next year, two of his colleagues are interested in succeeding him.

They are William S. Day of Spokane and R. Ted Bottiger of Graham, in Pierce County.

But in recent closed-door caucus, both received word that there wasn't to be any campaigning until after the 1980 session adjourns.

The Democrats are determined to avoid the sort of blood bath which rent the Republican caucus asunder during the closing hours of the 1979 session.

An Empty Victory

The unceremonious manner in which the Republicans dumped their former leaders may have jeopardized their chances of capturing control of the upper chamber next year.

The Democrats are unwilling to return the favor by placing themselves in the same spot.

Only six seats separate the majority from the minority.

Winning the floor leadership can be an empty victory if the winner winds up being only the minority leader.

When the campaign starts, Day will have the advantage of seniority. He first came to the Legislature in 1959 as a member of the House, and moved to the Senate in 1969. He was Speaker in 1963.

Bottiger came to the House in 1965, and to the Senate in 1973.

Parish clarifies posture

Editor:

In the Wednesday, Nov. 28, 1979 issue of the Federal Way News, an article appeared which mentioned my appearance at the School District Board meeting the previous Monday. The article leaves much room for misinterpretation of the posture of St. Theresa Catholic Church to the newly proposed change in the use of school facilities by community groups.

In the first place, St. Theresa does not object to paying the operating costs for the use of any school district facilities. Indeed, we have been doing so for over three years.

Our objection to the proposed changes is twofold:

First, we object to being listed in the classification of commercial or profit-making groups. There is a classification for non-profit groups, and that is what any church is.

Second, the proposed rate schedule appears to be inequitable if considered from the operating costs of the various facilities. For instance, rental of one section of Decatur Auditorium costs one-half of the Twin Lakes gym.

The two speakers at the meeting, Mr. Les Holgersen and myself, were in complete agreement. We both feel that a fair rental charge should be made for all facilities. His point was that the proposed schedule does not include any of the outdoor athletic facilities except Memorial Stadium.

As a matter of accuracy, St. Theresa presently rents a portion of Twin Lakes Elementary School for Sunday services, not Star Lake Elementary as reported.

Conditions could halt boat launch plan

by Darlene Himmelspach
Conditions proposed by the county for a site which Weyerhaeuser wants to develop as a boat launch and fishing area on North Lake could nix the project, an attorney for the timber company told the King County Council Friday.

Helmut Walenfels, an attorney for Weyerhaeuser said conditions preventing structures within 200 feet of the shoreline, parking, bulkheads and fill "would flat out prevent" the development. Walenfels said the company wants to construct the public facility and dedicate it to the State Game Department in exchange for the site of the present boat launch site.

The site conditions were imposed by the county in a proposed change to the Federal Way Community Plan from residential medium density to manufacturing park. The conditions would "ensure that the use of the shoreline is consistent with the conservancy environment."

That and other zone changes are under consideration by the county council as part of a revision to the Federal Way Community Plan adopted by the county in 1976. At a public hearing Friday on the proposed revisions in four fringe areas of Federal Way, residents tended to favor proposed downzoning or lower density designations while developers who want to develop land parcels were critical of the planned restrictions.

Meredith Hills, an area in northeast Federal Way that has been a battleground for residents and developers for several years, drew much of the attention at the public hearing.

Bill Pugnetti, speaking for many of the residents, said there is "basic support for the revised plan." He said there is a "great community sentiment in favor of lower density." According to Pugnetti the residents fear increased density would "bring in crime."

Ed Heavey, attorney for Hillis Homes, one of the major developers in the Meredith area, said the proposed zone designations are "a reasonable compromise" between what the developers requested and what the residents wanted.

He said "Federal Way is going to be a city" and told the council the Meredith area is an "urban center" with good access to highways on both sides. He said a court case brought by the Meredith residents against his company over development of Hillis Hills was termed "frivolous" by Superior Court Judge T. Patrick Corbett. He said their arguments to the council about traffic and crime problems that would result from increased development are also frivolous.

Heavey also told the residents "you had your day in court and you lost. The next time you bring a lawsuit against us, you are going to pay." After the heckling and jeers stopped, Councilman Gary Grant, who was chairing the hearing, asked that the meeting proceed in a more orderly fashion.

County plans to control the growth and development of the Jovita Heights area was also discussed by some residents and property owners who disagreed with the proposed requirement that owners of small, contiguous lots must combine the lots before developing.

County Planner Mary Bundy said the area was platted several years ago with 5,000 lots of only 4,800 square feet. She said, to prevent "a Ballard or Wallingford out in the fringes of Federal Way," lot owners with contiguous parcels may have to combine them to get a larger lot for development. Those owners with a single or non-contiguous lots could develop, she said, if they can get septic tanks which would require that the land must perk.

One resident, Dorothy Carpenter, said she favored the low density proposed for the sensitive area because there is very poor drainage in the area, she said. If development continues, she said "pretty soon we're going to live in a desert."

Other areas under consideration by the council for zone revisions include Dash Point-Lakota, Twin Lakes and Spring Valley. There will be another public hearing when the council considers the matter at its regular meeting Jan. 14.

FW man honored for robber bust

A Federal Way man, a Puyallup man and a 3rd Precinct police officer were among the persons honored at a King County police department awards ceremony during a King County Council meeting recently.

The Federal Way man, Richard D. Hinkley, and the Puyallup man, Larry R. Rantanen, are both civilians who work at SeaTac Mall.

Police credited them with helping apprehend the men who are accused of robbing Capitol Savings and Loan on Pacific Highway South at South 335th Street. The robbery occurred on June 29.

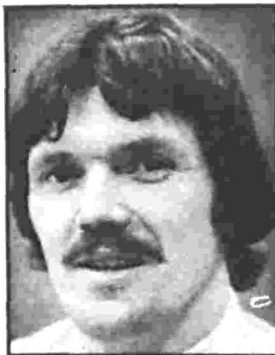

They said that Hinkley observed two men acting suspiciously in the mall parking lot and reported the incident to Rantanen, a mall security officer. Hinkley is an employee of the Sears store there.

Both men took notes on the incident, and when they learned of the robbery, reported it to county police. Their information led to the arrest of one suspect in connection with the robbery and the identification of a second.

THE CRIME made headlines at the time of its occurrence because an off-duty King County officer was in the bank as it was being robbed and attempted to halt the two robbers.

In an exchange of gunfire outside the bank, the officer, Joe Purcell, hit one of the robbers as they fled. The suspect later colared by police had a bullet wound in his leg.

The 3rd precinct officer who was honored at the ceremony — the 3rd includes Federal Way — was William

Richard Hinkley

Franke, who helped capture a Snohomish County homicide suspect on June 28.

Trooper Donald Richard of the Washington State Patrol and Mary Ford, a police department communications specialist, also received commendations in connection with the incident.

Police said that Richard and Franke stopped a 16-year-old boy for a routine traffic check and became convinced that the boy was driving a stolen car.

BUT THE theft of the car hadn't been reported, so they let him go.

The following day, a teletype message from the Snohomish County Sheriff's Department listed the vehicle as involved in a homicide case.

Ford, though she receives hundreds of communications and deals with many officers in the course of a day's work, remembered the traffic stop and put Franke and Richards "back on the trail," police said.

Several hours later the two men found the car, with the 16-year-old asleep inside it.

Sheriff Lawrence Waldt said that the episode "portrays both intradepartmental and interagency cooperation, and reflects highly upon the skills and dedication possessed by all three recipients."

Graduation requirements stricter for FW students?

by Cathy Stone
High school students in Federal Way schools will face stricter graduation requirements if recommendations from superintendent Milton Snyder are approved by the Federal Way School Board.
Based upon comments from an advisory committee, Snyder recommended students in the class of 1983 be required to complete 44 credits rather than the 37 now needed for graduation. The recommendations also included the requirements students complete eight semesters of attendance in high school, maintain continuous enrollment for six periods a day and, in the future, pass a competency test.

Local and state developments prompted the district's review of graduation requirements and the subsequent recommendations.
On the local level, increased state funding has allowed the district to increase class periods from five to six each day. The number of periods had been reduced to five in 1976 due to budgetary problems after repeated levy failures.
The increased periods make it possible for students in the class of 1983 to complete the 37 credits now required in three years. However, a summary of the report from the advisory committee indicated they felt students should be required to stay in school for four years because, for many of them, it represented their last formal schooling.

On the state level, the Board of Education approved regulations in 1976 changing the requirements for graduation. Thus, it is necessary for the district to update its requirements to be in compliance with state regulations.
The increase in required credits would be phased in with 40 credits required for 1981 graduates, 42 for 1982 graduates and the full 44 for students in the class of 1983.
Included in the recommendation requiring students to complete four years of attendance in high school was the notation that a waiver procedure should also be developed to meet the needs of a student in a special situation.

According to the advisory committee summary report, the reason behind requiring students to enroll in six classes each day is because students in the 9th and 10th grades do not use study hall time productively. The superintendent's recommendation includes a waiver of the six-period schedule requirement for students in the 10th through 12th grades if prior approval is given by the school principal.
As with the increased credit requirements, the competency testing is not expected to be implemented for several years. The district is currently in the process of developing the testing procedure and began testing students in the class of 1982 as ninth graders.

No recommendations are expected on subject requirements until further study is done.
The Federal Way School Board will review the superintendent's recommendations at a future work study session. It is not yet known if they will be included on the agenda of the work session, scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 18, at 7 p.m.

New NP, police chief is not 'a quitter'

by Carolyn Logan
The new Normandy Park police chief has more than a dash of determination.

"I'm not a quitter," Donald Pierce asserted. "I can't recall any project that I haven't seen through."

Pierce, 27, a former sergeant in the Pullman police force, had assumed the Pullman chief's duties in his absence. He served in the Pullman Department of Public Safety for almost six years. A Washington State University graduate, Pierce holds a master's degree from that institution.
He was a full time police officer and part time graduate student.

It wasn't easy. Pierce recalled that he considered dropping out of the graduate program in criminal justice. "After I worked about nine hours a day, I wanted to come home and relax, not come home and compose a thesis," Pierce remembered. Seeing fellow students with nothing to do but "be students" didn't help, he found.

BUT Pierce decided that the sacrifice was worth it. So he persisted in the two-and-a-half years work until he achieved his degree.

His thesis zeroed in on the effect of crisis intervention exposure to the sensitivity of police officers. "You may increase an officer's sensitivity by training him in crisis intervention," he explained.

In the same vein, Pierce said the reason he likes law enforcement is that, "I like dealing with people. We provide a service." Pierce's background includes training in sociology.
"HIS RECENT" background" gives him experience in infant care: In Pullman, he tended his four-month-old daughter, Amy, while Pierce said he also pitched in with night feedings. He doesn't regret ending night feeding duty. But he does miss his access to a plane, which he held a part interest in.

"I'm a private pilot and I love to fly," Pierce said of his Pullman days. "You gain the ability to see things from a different perspective. Flying is relaxing; you block everything else out."
In addition to renewal through relaxation, Pierce also finds his other qualities helpful. He replies that he is energetic and has a good sense of humor.
No doubt, these will prove of value as he steps in at a time when there hasn't been a police chief since the former chief retired in January. (Except for the three weeks when the former chief, Jeffrey Libby, served before resigning to return to Colorado because of an unexpected family situation.)
Pierce faces the task of hiring an officer to fill a vacancy, probably by Jan. 1, and hiring the additional officer the city budgeted for in 1980. He also faces the task of buying two new patrol cars, as proposed by the city council. "It's going to take some research to see what's most effective," Pierce said.
All in all, he's plunging right into his job, having accompanied different officers during various patrol shifts to get a firsthand look at their responsibilities.
And Pierce pledges to fulfill his commitment to serve Normandy Park on a long-term basis.

FW travelers seek sun for Christmas

by Nathalie Weber
As December's frosts greet the Northwest, many Federal Way residents are heading to the warmer climates to celebrate the holidays in sunshine.

Packing Christmas trees, presents and holiday trimmings, more locals are flying to Hawaii and Mexico than any other destination this month, area travel agents report. But if you want to join them, you're out of luck.

Nearly every flight during the Christmas season to Hawaii has been booked since last spring. There aren't any empty seats to Mexico, either.

"Those are always popular destinations during the holidays," Janis Lee, travel consultant for Odyssey Travel said. "But this year there're more going to Mexico than Hawaii because of the cost."

Fewer flights and higher fuel costs have increased the price of a ticket to Hawaii approximately $100 more than last year. Prices to Mexico also are up, but not as much as Hawaii fare, because the fuel requirements to Mexico are not as large.

LEE SAID that travel to Hawaii has been offered below actual cost for the past several months because of competition between the airlines. With only two airlines — United and Northwest — now offering service to Hawaii, there won't be any relief from escalating prices.

But despite the cost, Federal Way residents still are seeking the tropical climates. Teri Trettin, sales manager for Orient Express travel agency, said that with Hawaii and Mexico warm-weather spots.

"It seems like more people are booking at the last minute. It could have something to do with economics, but at the last minute they decide 'to heck with it,'" Trettin said. Many of those people are heading for California.

Mildred Hildebrandt, manager of Doug Fox Travel, said a number of her customers also are going to Reno. "They want to get away from the weather. Everybody's looking for the sunshine," she said.

But whether in snow or sunshine, the Christmas traditions usually are observed. "There aren't any pine trees in Hawaii, and most of the Christmas trees used there are fake, so one guy shipped a tree over with him," Lee said.

Hildebrandt said bringing presents on the trip is not unusual, but if they're wrapped, it could cause problems. "One thing people should realize is that they can't get on a flight with a bunch of wrapped packages," she said. "If you're carrying them on, they have to be opened and check-ed just like any other baggage. That makes wrapping them a waste of time."

The inconvenience, however, does not appear to be a deterrent as dozens of area residents are packing their holiday cheer and winging away. And they'll get back just in time to make reservations for next year.

Basic Skills input needed

The Federal Way School District's Basic Skills Program as part of the Washington State Basic Skills Improvement Program Plan, may be commented on by the public through Dec. 29, according to State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Frank Brouillett. The proposed plan, written in compliance with Title II, will be submitted to the Office of Basic Skills Improvement, U.S. Office of Education for fiscal years 1980 through 1983 and is for the allotted amount of $101,142 the first year.

Copies of the proposal are available for public review at the Seattle office of ESD 121, 1410 S. 200th St.

Comments, proposed changes or questions regarding the plan should be addressed to James O. Click, Coordinator of Right to Read-Basic Skills, Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction, Old Capitol Building, FG-11, Olympia, Wa. 98504.

Dederick, Chaplik fill top-level posts

Two reassignments in the reorganization of the Federal Way School District administration were announced by superintendent Milton L. Snyder late this week.

The reorganization, which reduces the number of administrators reporting to Snyder from six to four, was approved by the Federal Way School Board Monday.

Dr. Donald L. Dederick has been reassigned to the position of assistant superintendent for support services and Dr. Paul Chaplik has been named assistant superintendent for personnel and pupil services.

Drs. Dederick and Chaplik have been administrative assistants for Areas I and II, respectively, for the past five years.

Commenting on Dederick's reassignment, Snyder said, "I have selected a person well-grounded in education principles and one who clearly knows the education process. He knows totally the concepts of the new division of learning and will give it 100 percent of his support."

The two areas of major concern for support services are planning for necessary funding alternatives for the school program and the whole area of maintenance and operations, according to Snyder.

Snyder said Chaplik was chosen to serve as head of personnel and pupil services "because of his deep interest in and concern for the well-being of students and because he clearly understands the role of both the teaching and support staffs. This is an area that needs a person experienced in pupil services and Dr. Chaplik has had that experience."

Dr. Donald Dederick

"His recent training in the field of educational leadership has given him the unusually good human skills in dealing with people," Snyder added.

Dr. Dederick first came to Federal Way as a chemistry and math teacher at Federal Way High School in 1961. He started the adult education program in 1962 in addition to continuing his full-time teaching responsibilities. In 1965, he became the first full-time adult education director and was also assigned as the first vocational education director for Federal Way Schools. He became administrative assistant to the superintendent in 1968 and began working on plans for the district's third high school in 1969.

Dederick completed his doctorate in education in 1971 at the

University of Washington. He became principal of Decatur High School in 1970 and in 1975, was appointed administrative assistant for Area I.

In that position, Dederick supervised 13 of the district's schools. He also worked to reduce the graduation requirements when state levies failed and then worked to increase the requirements when state funding became available this year. He has also been closely involved in restoring full accreditation to the district's three high schools.

Dederick sees the reassignment as a big challenge, he said.

"It will take a lot of work on the part of many persons to restore our buildings and grounds to better serve the students in Federal Way. There is a lot for me to learn, but with the help of the staff and community, we can do the job that needs to be done."

Dr. Chaplik came to the Federal Way School District in 1971 as principal at Valhalla Elementary School. In 1975, he was appointed to the position of administrative assistant for Area 2. Before coming to Federal Way, he served as teacher and principal in the Sumner, Wa.

While Area II administrator, he supervised 13 district schools and helped develop the present teacher evaluation plan in use by the district. He also supervised the district's health services program and directed the revision of the new plan for reporting pupil progress in the elementary schools.

He received his doctorate in education in 1979 from Seattle University.

Commenting on his reassignment, Chaplik said, "There are some large needs in the area of pupil services that need our immediate attention and that need to be resolved. I am looking forward to working with our strong and solid personnel department in the district. We will continue to provide the strong support for the division of learning that is needed."

The reassignments of Dederick and Chaplik complete the process of filling the three newly-created assistant superintendent positions. Dr. Ronald Johnson was appointed assistant superintendent for the division of learning on Wednesday.

A-1 TOWING works frantically to free their two tow trucks and a client's car before the incoming tide beats them to it.

Stuck in muck

Tow trucks race the tide

by Ann Hagen
A frivolous drive along a sandy beach turned into a sinking experience for a group of joy-riders last week when time ran out.
Martin Nelson, 10453 8th Ave. S.W. and three friends were seeing how far they could drive on Adelaide Beach last Thursday the car wheels at 8 p.m. when began to spin, driving them deeper and deeper into the oozing sand.
"We were driving along just fine when all of a sudden we stopped," said Nelson with a worried glance at his mud-caked car. "We thought we could go on and on."
Nelson said they hadn't noticed that it was a private beach until daylight the next morning. A sign, posted where the road ends, reads no trespassing.
Three tow trucks were unable to pull the 1967 Oldsmobile Cutlass out before the rising tide took over, camouflaging it in murky salt water and seaweed.
"I came out at 3 a.m.," said Nelson "and I couldn't even see where it was."
The next morning, at 6 a.m., John's A-1 Towing service arrived to finish the job. What appeared to be a simple task, turned into a situation that eventually involved five vehicles, at last count, and a whole lot of cussing.

THE FIRST TOW TRUCK managed to get the car within 10 feet of safety, but got stuck in the sand in the process. A second truck came to the aid of the first one and also got stuck.
At each run toward the security of the asphalted pavement, the second truck loosened up sand and gravel making the task infinitely more difficult.
Two other vehicles, a red pickup owned by the towing service and a '66 Dodge owned by Nelson's friend, John Broderson, were chained together to aid the ailing tow truck as anchors. It didn't help.
Talking under his breath, Nelson said, "Come on, you can do it." He glanced toward his friend and said "I hate watching this."
He was, no doubt, ticking off the time and dollars that the tow trucks would charge after half-dozen hours of work. He said he expected a possible $150 fee.
When asked what he felt his chances were for getting his trucks back on safe ground, Ed Kahn, A-1 Towing manager said, "We'll get 'em out. There's no way we're going to leave them here."
But, as he spoke, the tide slowly inched its way farther toward shore. There were 10 feet left.

If anybody happens to venture to Adelaide Beach and they see the rigging of two tow trucks and the top of a maroon car telescoping from the water's surface, they needn't suspect submerged UFO's.
The tide simply won the race against time.

Santa wants mail

It's that time of year when extra postal runs have to be made to the North Pole, and even if the U.S. Postal Service isn't too happy about the extra load, Santa Claus is.
This year Santa is so anxious to get fan mail that he's offered to deliver a few gifts early for the best letters.

Witnesses sought in car death

A 49-year-old Midway man died at Harborview Hospital in Seattle after being struck by a car on Pacific Highway South early Friday morning, Kent police reported, and investigators are looking for witnesses in the case.
The victim was identified as Lee Mal Mun, of 23653 Pacific Hwy. S. Police said he was apparently in the inside south bound lane of the highway when he was struck.
Dale R. Leyde, 29637 21st Ave. S., was identified by police as the driver of the automobile involved.

Officer L. R. Britton said witnesses are being asked to assist police in determining the victim's movements just prior to the accident.
Those who might have information are asked to phone the Kent Police Department at 872-3322 and either ask for Officer Britton or refer to case number 79-4824.
Lee was apparently on his way to work when he was struck at about 6:30 a.m., police said. Leyde, they said, was on his way home from work.
No charges have been filed, police said.

UW dietician stresses weight control diet

The University of Washington Adult Development Program (ADP) is offering a class in weight reduction for persons with special dietary needs.
Persons who must restrict their intake of fats, sugar, sodium or other foods will receive special advice from a registered dietitian in how to control their weight. The class meets in 90-minute evening sessions, once a week for eight weeks.
Topics to be covered include choosing the correct foods, shopping, menu planning, how to evaluate new foods and resources available to persons with special dietary needs.
The class also will discuss how a person with dietary restrictions can cook for and eat with others who do not have these restrictions.
For information, call 543-0936.

Machine will decide fate of drunk drivers

"BUT OFFICER, I only had two drinks!" Seattle Police Chief Patrick Fitzsimons appeared incredulous when he saw his reading on a breathalyzer machine during a unique press conference on Friday. Guests were invited to imbibe and then undergo the breath test in an effort to publicize the state's new DWI law which goes into effect on New Year's Eve. The law requires a one-day jail term for drivers who score a .10 or more on the machine. Two glasses of wine gave the Chief a reading of almost .06.

by Dan Williams

Where the courts have failed, a machine will try to succeed.

The machine is a gadget called the breathalyzer. Beginning at midnight as Dec. 31, 1979 turns into Jan. 1, 1980, the breathalyzer will become judge and jury for tipsy motorists throughout the state.

Let's say you're weaving your way home after celebrating the passing of the '70s. A state trooper, on the lookout for unorthodox driving techniques, pulls you over and administers the famous "field sobriety test."

When you fail to walk a straight line, or touch the tip of your nose, or remember how to recite the alphabet, the trooper kindly chauffeurs you to the nearest police station. There, you are asked to blow into a tube connected to a breathalyzer, and the machine measures your blood alcohol concentration.

IF THAT concentration measures a tenth of 1 percent or more, you're in trouble. It will be considered proof of intoxication, and a one-day jail sentence is mandatory. Repeated violations will result in longer mandatory jail terms.

Under the current statute, the breathalyzer's measurement can be used only as evidence of intoxication. It carries no more weight in court, theoretically, than the officer's description of the way you were driving or your performance in the field sobriety test.

You can argue that you weren't really driving all that badly after all. Or that you actually did quite well on the perception tests. And that you didn't feel plowed, even though the machine indicated you were.

The judge could weigh all of this, and take pity on you, sparing you the humiliation of 24 hours behind bars.

The machine, however, knows no mercy. A .10 reading automatically means a day in stir and a stiff fine.

THE LAW, of course, is designed to deter the drunk driver — the driver who is responsible for about 35 percent of Seattle's traffic fatalities over the past five years and a grim 50 percent of the highway deaths nationwide.

But how drunk is "legally drunk"? Just how sloshed do you have to be to have a blood alcohol content of .10 percent?

Several reporters, judges, and Seattle city officials set out to answer these questions at a bizarre press conference on Friday. To drive home the impact of the state's new DWI law, and to demonstrate how the breathalyzer measures intoxication, the Seattle legal community invited reporters to sip drinks and undergo breath tests at Gasperetti's Roma Cafe.

"THE NEW LAW WILL REQUIRE ONE DAY IN JAIL FOR THOSE CONVICTED OF DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED. And those who score a .10 on the breathalyzer will no longer be presumed drunk, but will be con-

music, art

A Winter Arts Festival will be held at Totem Junior High School, 26630 - 40th Ave. S., Kent, on Tuesday, Dec. 18' starting at 7 p.m.

Following the Festival, the music department will present a winter concert at 8 p.m.

sidered guilty of the crime of drunk driving," stated Seattle City Attorney Doug Jewitt at the onset of the gathering.

"WE ALL drink socially," Jewitt continued. "Most of us, though, don't think of ourselves as part of the danger. But when we drink, we become just as dangerous as the problem-drinker. Our judgment is impaired the same six or seven times (when our blood alcohol level reaches .10 percent) as the problem drinker's."

The city attorney then left the podium and began to imbibe the first of two boilemakers — an ounce of straight bourbon chased with 12 ounces of beer.

With that amount of alcohol circulating in his bloodstream, Jewitt registered a .05 on the breathalyzer — halfway there.

Seattle Police Chief Patrick Fitzsimons got the same reading after downing 12 ounces of wine. Officers from the city's DWI squad, who administered the tests, explained that readings will vary depending on the size of the drinker, how accustomed he or she is to drinking, and when he or she last ate.

A reporter for this newspaper cheerfully downed two martinis (dry, with a twist) in about an hour and a half. Drinking on an empty stomach, he felt (he says) "mildly looped." His breathalyzer reading was .06, indicating that he could enjoy another of the potent drinks and still not be considered legally drunk.

HOWEVER, LEGALLY drunk or not, he certainly felt "impaired."

Another reporter who admitted to feeling unsafe, but who did not fail the breathalyzer test, downed six vodka tonics in about an hour-and-a-half. He registered a reading of .08 percent and said he felt too drunk to drive.

"It's a funny thing," said one of the officers from the DWI squad. "You could be an oh-five (.05 percent) and be stiff, or you could be a 10 (.10 percent) and feel sober."

Another added that pacing yourself can be a way to keep your blood alcohol content under the legal limit. "Depending on your size, you could maybe have eight or nine drinks in four to five hours and still be borderline," he said.

The reason for this is the alcohol "burnoff" rate of about .015 percent per hour.

BUT RATHER than risk a day in jail, or worse, by trying to keep under the .10 limit, Chief Fitzsimons recommended that people who plan to go out drinking arrange for alternate means of transportation.

Taxi cabs, Metro Transit — even a private limousine at $30 an hour — compare favorably to the estimated average cost of $2,200 for those who are arrested for DWI.

Youngsters look over career opportunities

by Cathy Stone
A young woman looks serious as she carefully reads the sheet of paper before her. She pauses a moment, looking at the people she is about to speak to, takes a deep breath and starts.

On the day of the robbery and his fingerprints were found in the car believed to be the get-away car." The girl continues her dialogue as members of the jury listen intently. While it may seem the young prosecuting attorney is in a court of law, she is actually taking part in a 5th grade career education program at Star Lake Elementary School. The program, taught to students in kindergarten through 6th grades, was started this year with the aid of a $8,630 state education grant. The grant was received as a result of a joint effort by principal Dolores Hit-chock and 5th grade teacher Geraldine Jobs who wrote the grant request based upon a program in the Highline School District. The program "gives children ideas about careers and about eventual work in the 'real world,'" Mrs. Hitchcock said. "I think it gives them a broader horizon."

She noted children in kindergarten "already have very narrow ideas about what they can do in a job." In addition, "children are more likely to see the female in a non-traditional role and have a broader view of general career options available to everyone."

The career education program is usually incorporated within the curriculum, Hitchcock said. As such, it serves the dual purpose of informing students on all kinds of job opportunities while helping them develop some of their other basic skills.

For example, there are simulation or "hands-on" kits on measuring which is helpful in mathematics, a creativity kit, which may parallel the art curriculum, and one on counting and sorting, which provides practice with both numbers and the identification of colors.

The program not only tells the students what job opportunities are available to them, but what skills they might need in each career. For example, if someone is good at oral persuasion, they might think about becoming a salesperson or lawyer, Hitchcock said.

The oral persuasion projects serve another purpose as well, she said. "It increases the students' awareness that oral persuasion is a skill and may reinforce the child who can not read well, but who can listen and express himself or herself well."

The simulation kits are just one of the many approaches teachers may use in teaching career education. There are also books of 10, 20 and 40 minute activities which often coordinate with classroom subjects.

A "Many 1,000 Word Picture Book," which portrays children and adults in various occupations, serves as a takeoff for discussion on what certain jobs involve. There are also numerous media displays including games, posters, books, filmstrips and other media about various careers.

One such display covers the operation of a toy factory and tells how each of the persons working there contribute to the end product.

The career education program has sparked interest in the children, Hitchcock said, adding "It's exciting to them."

"I don't know if any have made a decision on the basis of the program, but I do feel the background and exposure it provides are extremely valuable."

When they think about something they want to do, they should think about something they're good at, she said.

If that's the case, there are a couple of Star Lake students who think they might be good at overseeing the education of the next generation because they told Mrs. Hitchcock they were going to be principals. Just like her.

ONE OF THE simulation or "hands-on" kits for students in the lower primary grades teaches the children what is involved in the job of stock clerk.

Local senator urges more city parks

Legislation recently drafted by Sen. Peter von Reichbauer, D-30th District, would, if passed, place additional emphasis on the provision of adequate park facilities in urban areas.

Under the terms of the legislation, the state parks commission would be given new authority to cooperate with federal agencies and local governments to acquire land for parks with city limits.

"A high priority should be placed on the development of state parks located in urban areas," von Reichbauer, chairman of the Senate Parks and Recreation Committee, explained. "With this legislation we intend to remove any doubt as to whether the commission can locate state parks within cities."

The bill also will make it clear that the Parks and Recreation Commission can enter into contracts or cooperate in the acquisition, development, redevelopment, care, control or supervision of parks and parkways within city limits.

Von Reichbauer said he also is urging the commission and the State Interagency Committee for Outdoor Recreation to give high priority to urban park needs.

Grass Roots Gardening

by Ginna Koontz

Have you considered a greenhouse as a Christmas gift? If so gather literature and suppliers' catalogues. Carefully decide what type greenhouse you want, the purchase the best you can afford. Unless you are well schooled in greenhouse know-how, it is usually cheaper to purchase a ready-made greenhouse. They are usually constructed in units easily erected.

The primary function of a greenhouse is to propagate seeds and cuttings, winter-store container and basket plants and grow winter vegetables.

There are many types of greenhouses. The smallest form is the window greenhouse, an extension of the window sill. The window greenhouse should be attached to a south-facing window.

A lean-to greenhouse has the advantage of saving half the cost of a free-standing greenhouse. It becomes a sun trap helping to warm the house on sunny winter days. Disadvantages are that it is sometimes difficult to join the lean-to to the house itself, or to the roofline.

A free-standing greenhouse can be as large as space and finances permit. The free-standing greenhouse is built in all shapes and constructed from many materials. The basic framework can be redwood, cedar, aluminum or plastic piping. Aluminum does not rot or rust, but it is hard to work, expensive and to my thinking, not aesthetically pleasing. Redwood and cedar are used because they are not susceptible to rot and will last a lifetime.

The wall covering for greenhouses has traditionally been glass. Glass is expensive and requires a strong frame to support its weight. There are acrylic plastic sheets modified to allow maximum light penetration, light weight, easily installed and long lasting. Polyethylene films are inexpensive and easily stapled to the frame. Their maximum life expectancy is five years.

The greenhouse should be set running east-west to capture maximum sunlight. Locate it convenient to power, water and the house. Pour a cement form or use wood or cement builders' blocks for a foundation set several inches below ground level. The greenhouse is then bolted or glued to the foundation. Place black plastic over the soil floor before spreading six to eight inches of pea gravel or crushed rock. Poke a few holes in the plastic to facilitate drainage.

Heated or unheated greenhouse? Our records proved a greenhouse heated with an electric heater last winter was a luxury we could not afford! It takes more calories of energy to heat a greenhouse than you get from food produced.

We did hang four eight-foot Very High Output (VHO) fluorescent lights on each side of the greenhouse. During freezing weather we run the lights continually. During 40-degree or plus temperatures, the lights operate on an automatic timer from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 in the morning. These lights keep the daytime temperature at mid-bench level between 55 and 60 degrees and about 10 degrees cooler at night.

A fan, or fans, depending on greenhouse size, is necessary to move stagnant air. A humidistat to measure relative humidity makes greenhouseing easier. Humidity should average about 60 degrees, dependant on crop requirements. A couple of thermometers should be placed, one at eye level, and one at knee level, to check temperatures.

Winter insulation is inexpensive and saves a lot of heat. Double-glazing is the best insulation. Simply cut strips of plastic sheeting and tack on frame inside greenhouse. Remove in Spring. In summer, sun protection can be provided with bamboo blinds white wash on glass or paint-on "Kool-ray," designed for fibreglass panels.

Our first greenhouse was 6 by 9 feet and almost immediately too small. The current one is 8 by 16 feet and just right. There are double benches on the north side, a fibre glass "grow tub" for vegetables on the south side and a large cutting box with a heat cable on the floor on the east end. We enjoy the freedom of worry over changing conditions with automated fans and circulation systems and lights.

We while away many greenhouse hours, enjoy eating winter crops of onions, radishes, lettuce and spinach. We've stored the hanging baskets, bonsai and potted mini-roses along the floor on the cool north side. More than 100 fuchsia cuttings are rooted and growing. Houseplant cuttings are rooting. We rotate house plants monthly during winter from house to greenhouse where they perk up under the artificial lights. Still blooming away are pots of purple petunias and blue marguerites we started from seeds last March. They apparently missed Mother Nature's winter signal and were fooled into thinking the fluorescent lights are Old Sol.

These are some of the pleasures of greenhousing.

Flooding closes highway

PACIFIC HIGHWAY SOUTH between South 320th and South 324th streets was closed for the second time in a month when torrential rains flooded the street Thursday afternoon. The flooding is caused by inadequate drainage, according to State Highway Department officials, who explain that as more concrete is poured in the area, more of the rain drains into the street rather than into the ground. The state officials say they recognize the problem, but have no immediate solution. Meanwhile, motorists are forced to either drive through the foot-deep water or find another route. Only trucks were allowed to forge the stream Thursday after some cars stalled in the flood.

Help fill the Seattle Food Banks

SOME FOOD FOR THOUGHT

More than 50,000 times a month people turn to the Seattle Food Banks because they are hungry. With the upcoming holidays the demand for food will be even greater. KJR, Pepsi and QFC ask that you give from your heart by making a non-perishable food donation between now and December 21st at any greater Seattle QFC. Pepsi will contribute five cents to Seattle Food Banks for every two litre bottle of Pepsi, Diet Pepsi, Pepsi Light and Mountain Dew you buy from QFC. Together, we can make this truly a joyful Christmas for all.

4-H Club starting for 'pocket pet' owners

A 4-H Club for Federal Way kids who own "pocket pets" is being organized by Star White, the Jobline coordinator at the Federal Way Youth Service Bureau. "Pocket pets" include gerbils, hamsters, white rats and other small animals. White said the club will focus on learning how to take care of such creatures, how to train them, what constitutes good pet nutrition and other topics to be selected by the members themselves.

"There are a lot of possibilities," White said. "The specific activities will depend on what the kids themselves decide they want to do."

She said organization of the club will begin as soon as she has a minimum of five interested persons. Participants must be at least third graders and can be no older than 18.

The four Hs in 4-H stand for "head, heart, hands and health," she said.

Interested parties should telephone White at 839-0116 during working hours and at 839-3184 on evenings and during weekends.

County office move completed

The King County Department of Planning and Community Development (DP&CD) have finished moving their offices, a departmental spokesman announced recently.

Main offices of the parks and recreation division moved from Room W226 in the King County Courthouse to 709 Smith Tower, but telephone numbers remain the same. The administrative offices of the DP&CD, the historic preservation office and the transportation planning section will move into the offices vacated by parks and recreation. These moves, the spokesman said, are scheduled for later this month. Phone numbers of these departments will also remain unchanged.

Nighttime burglar nearly gets caught

A cat burglar, one who burglarizes homes while they're occupied, nearly got caught in the act early Wednesday morning.

A resident in the 32200 block of 25th Avenue Southwest was awakened by a noise and when he front door slam. The victim saw a person wearing a blue ski jacket with sandy-colored hair streaked north on 25th Avenue Southwest.

The burglar got away with two wallets containing a small amount of cash.

The same day, a resident in the 29500 block of 21st Place South reported she heard a cracking sound, then found a bullet hole in a wall adjoining another apartment. The residents of the apartment were gone when police arrived.

Unknown suspects took about everything

2nd work session scheduled

The second in a series of special work-study sessions will be held by the Federal Way School Board on Tuesday, Dec. 18, at 7 p.m. in the Board Room of the Educational Service Center, 31455 - 18th Ave. S. The purpose of the workshop is to discuss the board's philosophy of education, including the fundamental beliefs and goals for the school system.

No official action will be taken.

Obituaries

Rose S. Bushnell

Rose S. Bushnell, age 96, of Federal Way died at Green River Terrace Convalescent Center Dec. 12. Born in Cherokee, Iowa on July 29, 1883, she came from Elktown, S.D. to the Seattle area to live with her daughter in 1942, spending the last nine years in the Auburn nursing home. She was a former Rebekah Lodge member and had worked for the Boeing Co. and Troy Laundry in Seattle.

Survivors include her daughter, Mrs. Otto (Letha) Wiese of Federal Way; a son, Richard Bushnell of Sioux Falls, S.D.; 7 grandchildren, 21 great-grandchildren and 2 great-great-grandchildren.

Visitation was Dec. 14 at Price-Helton Funeral Chapel with removal to Cherokee for services and burial.

Dorothy Ann Truesdell

Dorothy Ann Truesdell, age 3, died Dec. 9. She was born Feb. 24, 1976 in Seattle.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Truesdell of Rochester, Wash.; a brother, Larry of the home, and her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Cooper of Kent.

Memorial services will be held at 10 a.m. Monday, Dec. 17, in Village Chapel in Renton, with Rev. DeWayne Flohr officiating. The family suggests memorials to the Pediatric Therapy Center in care of First Baptist Church of Kent, 11420 S.E. 248th St. Services under the direction of Yahn and Son Funeral Home.

New Life planning Christmas potluck

The Widowed New Life Group is planning a Christmas potluck party for Tuesday, Dec. 18 at 6:30 p.m. at White River United Presbyterian Church, 526 12th St. S.E., Auburn.

Each person attending is asked to bring his own table service, and Don Helton will furnish the meat.

Those whose names start from A to L may bring a hot vegetable or casserole, and M to Z may bring some kind of salad. Beverages, rolls and dessert will be furnished. All widowed people are invited.

A magic lantern slide show will be presented by Joe and Alice Koch, and instead of exchanging gifts this year it is suggested that something for the Auburn Community Center may be brought. Commercially packaged and processed foods will be appreciated.

Because of the holidays the next "Dine Out" will be the second Wednesday of January at the Red Lotus, Jan. 9 at 6:30 p.m.

For the January Meeting the New Life Group will meet A at White River United Presbyterian Church, eat a "brown bag" supper together and then carpool to Auburn High School for a powder puff class in car care.

TONY FRAZIER, a Jefferson center, receives a bounce pass on his way to the basket as Rogers' Phil Kinman tries to block his path. Frazier added 10 points to TJ's 46-43 victory over Rogers, the Raiders first SPSL victory this season. Jefferson travels to Decatur next Tuesday for an 8 p.m. contest.

Vulnerable Raiders bounce by bewildered Rams, 46-43

by Jon Buchholtz
"Vulnerable" is how Ed Erikson described his team Friday night when 6-9 Tony and 6-5 Dave sat on the bench. Jefferson bounced back from a late deficit to nip the visiting Rogers Rams 46-43. Frazier and Christensen sanded the benches much of the first half because of foul trouble. "With Tony and Dave on the bench, our team is really vulnerable," Erickson reflected. "We didn't have a guy over six feet tall playing for most of the second quarter." The Raiders jumped out to a 12-5 lead six minutes into the game, and stretched it to 22-11 before Frazier drew his third foul. Christensen began his search for splinters with five minutes remaining in the initial quarter after climbing over Phil Kinman's back for an offensive rebound. Erikson went with Jay Gard in the middle on defense, who stands 6-0. Darrin Ringenbach and John Knox, both 5-11, flanked him under the basket. Rogers took advantage of the height factor and narrowed the gap to six, 23-17, at the half. "I saw several plusses during the course of the game," Erickson said. "Jay (Gard) is finally coming around in his shooting. It was really a lift and we needed it. He's just a suave player all around. The rest of his game has been great, his passing, dribbling and leadership, and now he's finally getting his shooting hand." Gard, in his first three games, connected on only 12 of 41 field attempts, a 29.2 percentage. However, Friday night, the senior guard connected on eight of 12 and finished the game with 18 points — 11 in the first half. The Rams closed the gap to 32-31 with 1:55 left in the third period before Jefferson could call timeout. Joe Bolam completed a three-point play minutes later and the Raiders held for a 37-33 lead entering the final quarter. When Rogers ripped off the first six points in the fourth period Erikson called time and inserted Frazier and sophomore Darrin Ringenbach. Jefferson's Christensen bagged his only points of the night shortly later to knot the score, and Ringenbach added a jumper to lift the Raiders up for good. Frazier laid in an offensive rebound with four minutes left to pad the score to 43-39. After Kurt Larsen pulled the Rams to within two via an 18-footer from the top of the key, Ringenbach was fouled and sent to the line. The sophomore's free throws iced the game with :30 remaining and the Raider's had their first league win.

Table with 5 columns: Player, FG, FT, REB, PTS. Jefferson 46, Rogers 43. Includes team stats for field goals, free throws, rebounds, and fouls.

Tabernacle tunes help Rams to first win

by Brad Broberg
Dave Rencher has a flair for the unusual. The 6-6 senior transfer from Tempe, Ariz., who is the most enthusiastic player on the Mt. Rainier High School basketball team, says he derives his inspiration from listening to music, specifically the Mormon Tabernacle Choir. However, it wasn't the Hallelujah Chorus that drove Rencher to attempt a dunk shot during a crucial juncture of his team's tense, 49-44, victory over the Highline Pirates Friday night, their first win of the season. "I knew it was a six-point game (actually seven). I wasn't planning on dunking, but when the crowd came up, I said I might as well," Rencher recalled later with a sheepish grin. So he let fly with a two-handed stuff that hit the back of the iron instead of the bottom of the net causing the ball to bounce out of the hoop. TO MAKE matters worse, Rencher was nailed with a technical foul for hanging on the rim and the Pirates, who were trailing 46-39 with less than two minutes left in the game, received new life. Highline's Jerome Sampson then took temporary command. He converted the foul shot following the technical and rebounded a teammate's missed field goal before canning a jump shot from the top of the key with 48 seconds to go to bring his team within two, 46-44. However, a new hero dressed in the blue and white of Mt. Rainier soon emerged. Craig Maley, a junior guard who had scored the Rams' last previous points of the night on a pair of free throws, was fouled while bringing the ball up-court. With his team's first win of the season in jeopardy, Maley dramatically buried both attempts and, in the few remaining seconds, rebounded a Pirate miss, stole a Pirate pass and sank one last foul shot. "I felt good. I wasn't nervous," Maley said later. A KEY factor in the game was Mt. Rainier's quick start. The Rams never trailed after the middle of the first quarter and held a 16-7 margin at its conclusion. Mt. Rainier coach Merle Duncan, Highline coach Jim Robeck and Maley all gave credit to Rencher for Mt. Rainier's early explosion. "Their big kid did a good job in the first quarter," said Robeck.

Explained Duncan, "I feel he got us off on the right track." Although he finished the game with modest statistics (eight points, eight rebounds and two blocked shots), Rencher's pregame gusto and on-the-court verve helped inspire the Rams. "He really hypes up the team," said Maley. Mark Fickes paced the victors in scoring with 16 points. He sank seven of 12 shots from the floor. Sampson and Dave Clement led Highline with 17 each. Mt. Rainier, with a record of 1-2 in the North Puget Sound League and 1-4 overall, will travel to Kennedy Tuesday. Highline, also 1-2 in league but 2-3 overall, will host Hazen the same night. Both games start at 7:30.

Viks skin Gators to stay atop SPSL hoops

by Harry Brooks
Puyallup's starting five is the most talented unit in the South Puget Sound League, and its second five probably is a close runner-up. "Our depth is excellent," Viking coach Jim Clifton noted. "There's not that much difference from our starting team and our second team." And Puyallup proved that while zooming to a 95-35 victory over the Decatur Gators Friday night in the Puyallup gym. Gator coach Carl Buchholz chose not to reflect on Puyallup's awesome display but said his team will have to "revitalize" for a home game against Jefferson Tuesday. The intra-district rivalry will tipoff at 8 p.m. "We shouldn't have any problem getting up for TJ," the coach added. THE UNDEFEATED Vikings handled Decatur in their typical style. The Viks broke a 2-2 at 6:53 of the first quarter and didn't allow another Gator score until they had teased the net for 19 unanswered points. Jerry Williams, who took game scoring honors with a 24 count, reeled off four straight buckets in that string. Junior center Keith Bragg, who topped Decatur scoring with 12, stopped the rally with a rebound putback at 2:12 of the first period, but Puyallup, using a lethal fastbreak attack, had following streaks of 8 and 10 points before halftime.

The stocky, all-senior Puyallup squad, which took sixth in last season's State AAA Tournament, physically dominated a short Gator team the entire game. Bragg and Rich Price were Decatur's tallest performers, both at 6-1. Puyallup played eight members of 6-1 or taller.

CLIFTON put in the entire second unit midway through the first quarter and shuffled players freely the remainder of game. The Viking skipper gave an accurate analysis of his team when asked if it had any weaknesses. "Nothing right now," he answered without hesitation.

Eagles 'pass' by Warriors in 64-49 win

by Brien Lautman
A week ago Federal Way Eagle basketball coach Gary Brines was begging for some assistance with his floundering club. Now, a week later, Brines is beaming because he received that last Friday night against the Clover Park Warriors. With Butch Cratsenberg dishing out a school record 13 assists and center Mike Elliott receiving most of them, the Eagles flew to a 64-49 domination of the Warriors in Tacoma. "We're so much more effective when we run our stuff," Brines said. "I thought we played very well tonight, especially in the late stages. I think we're getting in shape." Federal Way was never in bad shape in its third South Puget Sound League encounter as Elliott scored three of the Eagles' first five baskets, putting the visitors up, 10-6. Clover Park managed to hang with the more disciplined FW team, however, relying on guard Tony Leach's bombs from the top of the key. Leach scored six first quarter points to keep his team close at 14-13. Brines' squad, again behind the pinpoint passing of magician Cratsenberg and Elliott's driving layups, began to pull away from the Warriors midway through the second stanza at 26-19. But a pesky Clover Park press forced two Eagle turnovers that Marty Kessel and center Guy Bickford quickly turned into buckets, slicing Federal Way's lead to 26-22 at half. The Eagles dispensed with the niceties following halftime, however, breaking to a 33-22 advantage midway through the third period and stretching the margin to 44-32 heading into the final quarter of play. Federal Way opened the fourth with a patient, semi-stall offense that resulted in five quick lay-in buckets with only two minutes gone in the quarter, putting the Eagles up, 54-36. Clover Park was then forced into numerous fouls that easily iced the contest for its visitors.

Seahawks invade Oakland turf today

The Seattle Seahawks will try to play spoiler this week against the Oakland Raiders.

Seattle, looking to improve its 8-7 record, travels to face playoff hopeful Oakland in 1 p.m. contest Sunday at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum.

The Raiders, 9-6 on the season after Sunday's 19-14 win over Cleveland, missed the playoffs for the first time since 1971 last year when they finished 9-7. In fact, Oakland has only missed the playoffs twice since 1967.

If Oakland defeats the Seahawks this week and Denver loses to San Diego, the Raiders will qualify for the AFC playoffs as the wildcard team.

Seattle has beaten Oakland three straight times, including a 27-10 win in the Kingdom earlier this season. The Seahawks swept last year's season series with 27-7 and 17-16 wins.

"The games we have had with Oakland have been close for the most part," says head coach Jack Patra, "and we have had good fortune against them.

"With them being in the playoff hunt, it will be a tough game. Oakland is a very solid team."

A Seattle who would give the Seahawks their second successive 9-7 record.

"A win Sunday would mean that our record would be the same as last year, but there is no doubt we are a better team now than a year ago," Patra said.

Seattle is coming off a 28-23 victory over the Denver Broncos. Jim Zorn connected on a 43-yard touchdown pass to Steve Largent with 1:40 remaining to give the Seahawks the win.

However, Largent will miss the Oakland game after suffering a broken bone in his wrist against the Broncos. He finished the season with a career high 1,237 yards on 66 catches and scored nine touchdowns.

"I think he's the best wide receiver in the game," says Patra of Largent, "and there's a lot of good ones. I wouldn't trade him for any receiver in the league.

"He had an outstanding year and it's just too bad his season is over with one game to play." Seattle's defensive unit had one of its finest performances of the season in the final two quarters against the Broncos, holding Denver to 108 yards total on 40 plays and just three points.

Gator girls fall to cagey Vikings, 43-37

The Decatur Gator girls put on a "now you see them, now you don't" display of basketball last Thursday evening as they dropped their third straight South Puget Sound League encounter to the Puyallup Vikings, 43-37 in the valley.

Gary Baker's girls were nearly nonexistent in the opening half of play, shooting a frigid 4-30 from the floor, while trailing their hosts 25-10.

"We just were not intense," Baker commented. "It was by far our worst half of basketball this season. We just made an awful lot of very poor mistakes."

The Gator girls, however, came roaring back (now you see them) in the third quarter, outscoring the Vikings 20-8, to pull within three points at 33-30. Center Cindy Suss led the Decatur scramble with eight points and several key rebounds, while Mary Jo Wick and Debbie Monzelowsky each added two buckets.

Decatur continued to pressure Puyallup in the final period, pulling down a truckload of rebounds, while nearly shutting their hosts completely off the boards. Guard Jamie Gronzik contributed what Baker called a "steadying influence" with her second half ballhandling and defense.

"I think she really came in and turned things around for us," the Gator mentor said. "She sparked us, and really did a super job on defense."

The Gators eventually whittled the Puyallup lead to 39-37 with only 45 seconds remaining, but Viking sharpshooter Mary Wells shook loose and dropped in a 15-foot aerial that iced the contest.

"That was the shot we wanted them to take," Baker said of Wells' game-clinching shot. "We were in good rebounding position, ready to get the ball and go down and try to tie the score."

The Gators were indeed in good rebounding position—most of the night that is, as they out-boarded the taller Viks, 45-22, but fell victim to Puyallup's superior shooting as the homestanding club hit 20-45, while Decatur was an arctic 17-58.

"It was two different games," Baker said. "If we could begin games with the kind of intensity that we end them, we would be much more successful. To say the least, it's been a disappointing week for us, but we'll come back."

Decatur dropped their Monday night meeting with Rogers, 51-43, while coupled with Thursday's loss, its SPSL record fell to

2-3. The Gator girls will take on Thomas Jefferson tomorrow night at Decatur in what Baker calls "an important game for us."

Thursday scoring honors were captured by Puyallup's Wells as she accounted for nearly half the Viking offense with a 24 point performance. Suss was high for Decatur with 16 points, while also grabbing 15 rebounds.

Eagle girls almost cage undefeated Warriors

The Federal Way hoopsters are better off after losing a share of the South Puget Sound League lead Thursday night at Clover Park.

The Eagles absorbed a 48-43 defeat by the undefeated CP Warriors, who won each of their four previous SPSL outings by more than 25 points.

"The kids played 'Their hearts out,' FW coach Greg Bushaw said of Eagle effort. "What came out of it is the girls really started believing in themselves. They really came together."

"I think we can beat them the next time out."

The two teams will meet again Feb. 4 on the Federal Way court, but Bushaw and his squad, which now is lodged in second place with a 4-1 mark, are concentrating on tomorrow's home game against Curtis. The Eagles also will be at home in a Thursday contest with Curtis. Both games will begin at 8 p.m.

Noting that his girls

"were really psyched" for Clover Park, Bushaw doesn't expect a mental letdown in this week's outings.

"WE HAD our chance to beat them (the Warriors)," the Eagle mentor noted.

The opportunity came when the Eagles, trailing 46-43, deployed a full-court press with 30 seconds left on the game clock. CP's Janet Lyle nearly dribbled out of bounds but recovered ball control to deliver a long down-court pass that resulted in an easy layin. The final bucket buried Federal Way's victory hopes.

Federal Way turned the game's momentum in its favor during the fourth quarter. The Eagles outscored the Warriors 19-8 in the final stanza. Cindy Bolam, who was the game's second best scorer with 13 points, and Patty Davidson contributed 6 points each during the last frame. Michelle Ballentine, who was seven-for-seven at the foul line and took game scoring honors with 16 points added four charity baskets in the fourth quarter.

THE EAGLES made good use of frequent trips to the free-throw line as they hit 13 of 18 chances. Clover Park only had two shots at the line and missed both.

The Warriors appeared ready to blow Federal Way out of the gym in the third quarter. By lobbing the ball to Lyle, a 6-2 center, for close-in shots, the Warriors mounted 'a 16-point lead, their biggest of the night at 38-23.

However, Federal Way used driving inside play down the stretch to pull within striking distance.

"When we jumped to a 4-0 lead at the start, I knew it was going to be a real ball game," Bushaw recalled, and his prediction proved to be accurate.

Rams' charity buckets pour on Raider girls

The Jefferson Raider girl basketballers saw their record dip to 2-3 at the foul line Thursday at Fly fishing course offered

An eight week course in the advanced techniques of fly tying, including a review of the insects that trout feed on and to imitate them, will be offered by the Washington Fly Fishing Club starting January 14.

Structured for persons who have a basic understanding of fly tying, the course will meet Mondays from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Green Lake Community Center. It will feature considerable use of visual aids, including overhead and slide projectors, to show the large collection of photographs of insects and flies available through the WFFC.

Boyd Aigner, well-known Northwest fly fisherman and tyer, will conduct the course, assisted by a number of other experienced Northwest anglers.

Registration is limited to the first 30 applicants, and prospective students should contact Ray Sorenson. His phone number is (206) 255-2746.

the TJ gym.

The Rogers Rams copped 17 of 23 foul shots, compared to Jefferson's five of seven, to fuel a 47-41 South Puget Sound League victory.

The Rams used a pair of charity tosses to break at 40-40 tie in the fourth quarter and outscored the Raiders 5-1 in the remaining time when Jefferson's starting 5-10 insiders, Lisa Hackett and Peggy Halwachs, were fouled out of action.

Jefferson overcame Rogers 15-6 lead midway through the second quarter and trailed by only 3 at halftime, 19-16. Halwachs and Marcy Smith led the Raider comeback with strong play under the bucket.

With Halwachs and Orr handling the offensive load, Jefferson jumped to a 21-20 edge early in the third period, but foul problems continually hindered the Raider effort the rest of the way. Jefferson ended the game with 17 personal whistles, and Rogers had 11.

Peggy Fokkema, who ended the contest with 10 points, contributed 6 points early in the fourth quarter when TJ tied the score at 40-all. Halwachs led Jefferson scoring with 12. Rogers' 5-10 forward Tanya Kriese led all scorers with 30.

HCC pair named all-stars

Highline Community College placed two women on the 1979 state women's volleyball all-star team announced last week.

Luane Sinkey, a hard-hitting spiker for the Thunderbirds was honored as a first-team selection, while Barbara Moores, who missed a small portion of the state tourney due to a neck injury, was named to the second team.

WINTER TREAD

Suburbanite Polyester

Deep cleated, well grooved tread - for pull power when you need it most. Under the tread, four full plies of polyester cord (not the usual two or three). Here's snow tire strength and dependability you can count on, all winter long.

2 for $43.90

REGULAR TREAD

Power Streak

Goodyear's best-selling bias ply tire. (And a perfect match to team up with a pair of Suburbanite snow tires). Polyester cord body delivers strength as well as ride. 6-rib tread puts a firm footprint on the road - for sure starts, stops and turns. A great buy... and just in time for winter.

Reading books adopted

The Highline School Board recently approved the adoption of three series of reading textbooks.

The books and the grades they will be used in are:

Pathfinder Reading Program, Allyn and Bacon publisher, for grades 1-6.
 Reading 720, Rainbow Edition, Ginn publisher, for grades 1-8.

Lions roar their approval

Three Lakota Junior High School enrollees were honored recently as part of the noon Lion's Club program to recognize outstanding Federal Way students at the secondary level.

old ninth grader is active as the ninth grade class president and in the Falcon Club. He is also on the Spirit Cup committee, is active on student council and participates in football.

Each month, the Lion's Club selects special students from each of the district's nine secondary schools. Usually two are selected, but it was felt that there were three top students who merited the award at Lakota.

Ninth grade Joy Atherton, 15, was one of those selected. The daughter of Bob and Lucy Atherton, she is active in Honor Society and the Falcon Club and is this year's reigning A.S.B. president. She also takes part in volleyball and student council.

Lakota ninth grader, Gina Holland was chosen because of her involvement in many activities. The 15-year-old is president of the Spirit Cup committee, secretary of Falcon Club and is in honor society. She is also active in volleyball, gymnastics and track and is on Student Council. She is the daughter of Mary Lou Holland.

Each student selected receives a certificate of merit. Selections are made by school counselors who are close to the situation at each school.

Thunderword wins national award

The Highline Community College newspaper, the Thunderword, was awarded the national Pacemaker Award in the bi-monthly publication category recently by the American Newspaper Publishers in a ceremony in San Francisco.

five marks of distinction in the Collegiate Associated Press.

The Thunderword is an annual winner of national honors, first receiving the Pacemaker Award in 1977, as well as receiving numerous other national distinctions. The Highline College publication became eligible for the award by winning

Sherwood & Roberts promotes House

James T. House, Jr. has been named manager of Sherwood & Roberts' South Division as part of the company's reorganization in its Northwest Region. In his new assignment as a full-service division manager, House will be responsible for real estate, permanent mortgage, land loan, construction loan, and training operations in the Kent, Renton, Federal Way, Auburn, Puyallup and Spanaway offices, as well as any additional offices which open in that area. In the six years he has been with Sherwood & Roberts, House has developed an extensive knowledge of the company's product lines and demonstrated excellent leadership abilities. In his previous position as vice president and manager of Seattle Real Estate Division, his leadership enabled S&R to increase from 9 to 15 real estate offices and relocate three offices in the Puget Sound area while also increasing its sales force from 400 to 600 independent contractors. House joined S&R as a salesperson in 1973 following 16 years at Boeing where he was a facilities planning and construction manager. He was named manager of the University of Washington and Seattle University, and he first S&R office to reach $3 million in sales in a single month. In 1976, House received the President's Award which is presented annually to a manager to recognize overall excellence and general contribution to the advancement of the Real Estate Department. He attended the University of Washington and Seattle University, and he is a licensed broker in the state of Washington.

SELLING YOUR HOUSE

By Doug Fields

WHO WORKS FOR YOU?

When you put your home on the market you want to reach as many prospective purchasers as you can. Try to do it yourself and you are limited to those who respond to your ad or hear by word of mouth. If you have a sign out front you may draw passersby. Yet you really know nothing about those people: are they serious househunters, or just wasting your time?

List with a good real estate broker, though, and you get a whole new market for your property—all those prospective buyers who, quite logically, have gone to a professional who specializes in finding just what they are looking for. Better yet, the prospect the broker brings you are pre-qualified: they want a home like yours and they are in a position to buy it.

There is another plus, too: the multiple listing service. When you list with us, you get a tie-in to every professional real estate office in town. If your home is right for another broker's prospect, that prospect will be brought to see it. All the while your listing broker is looking out for your interests.

Put us to work for you. List with
