District can't decide who should get land

Cratsenberg says he has all the aces

By KURT HERZOG

If it were a game of poker being played for the former Water District 56 watershed, you might say developer Andy Cratsenberg upped the ante — considerably.

Cratsenberg stated publicly at Tuesday's Federal Way Water and Sewer District meeting that he will bid at least $490,000 for the 19-acre parcel in Marine Hills. That's $90,000 more than the county has offered for the land and $40,000 more than Cratsenberg's previous offer.

The district board discussed the sale in executive session, but did not take action. Commissioner Don Miller was absent from Tuesday's meeting.

The question facing the board is whether to sell the land to the county or accept public bids for the land, with Cratsenberg the likely high bidder.

The county wants the land to develop into a park, but the most the county will come up with is $400,000, according to King County Councilman Paul Barden, who's been trying to acquire the parcel for the county.

"I have the four aces and the joker," Cratsenberg told the district board.

Cratsenberg already owns a 19-acre parcel to the north of the watershed and a 6.1-acre parcel to the south. He has said he plans to build homes for himself and his two sons on the property, along with other single-family homes.

But Cratsenberg and the county aren't the only players.

Ray Tomlinson
Favors local control

City critics lose longtime leader

By KURT HERZOG

Former city critic Ray Tomlinson has changed his mind. Now Tomlinson supports incorporation.

"It's worth it to have more local control," Tomlinson told a group of Kiwanians at a lunch Wednesday.

Tomlinson said he believes it will probably cost more in taxes for residents of Federal Way if the area votes to incorporate in the March 14 vote-by-mail election, but it would be worth it.

"Do you mind spending another $100 to $200 a year?" Tomlinson asked. "I am in favor of incorporation...if it can get me more services."

Tomlinson said the $100 to $200 figure is just one he "threw out."

Tomlinson's estimate is disputed, however, by a consultant's study of cityhood that predicts the new city could match county services without raising taxes.

Tomlinson has been one of the more visible opponents of in-

Parents say new school should get head start

By MELODIE STEIGER

Raised hands were akin to a roar of approval Tuesday night as about 100 parents voted for joining students and staff of a yet-to-be-built school at an interim site next year.

Getting the new school off to a head start is one of several options being considered by the Federal Way School District to deal with an elementary-school enrollment surge.

The informal vote, taken at the end of a two-hour meeting in the library of Illahee Junior High, was not much of a surprise. School district administrators have for some time presented the idea as the best of several student housing options available next year, including double shifting and adding portable classrooms. And parents at the meeting spoke of the plan as if it were already in place.

But it's still up to the Federal Way School Board to decide if indeed the plan will be carried out. District administrators will recommend a student housing option to the Federal Way School Board within a month, said Delores Gibbons, assistant superintendent for elementary education and moderator of the meeting.

No plan, including the obvious favorite of administrators and meeting-goers, will be a shoo-in, said board member Gail Pierson.

"The (show of hands by parents) will generally influence my vote. But, although we recognize those kinds of votes, people should realize that the board has a broader scope of information on the issue, and we have to think of all the schools," she said.

THE TOP OPTION would entail identifying students of the as-yet unnamed school in West Campus, hiring staff to teach and oversee those students and busing the students to some interim site in Federal Way next year.

Students and staff would remain at that site until the new school, to be built at Southwest 325th Place and 11th Avenue Southwest, opens in September 1990.

RICHARD LUARK, an engineer for Riffenhouse-Zeman and Associates of Bellevue, takes rock and soil samples from the site of what will be a new school near the Alderbrook housing development. The samples will tell the district what kind of support is needed for buildings and parking lots there.

The school district presented other possible ways to deal with an expected influx of 425 students into its already overcrowded elementary schools next year. Instead of forming its new school early, the district could double shift students at one or more schools, bus elementary students to junior high or high schools with classroom space, or add more portables to elementary school sites.

The school district could also change the grade configuration of local schools, perhaps moving to middle schools or taking sixth graders into junior high.

None of those ideas received a single vote from meeting-goers. THE PLAN THEY did choose is not without problems, Gibbons pointed out. For instance, no interim site has yet been chosen to house the new school's students and staff, although it would most likely be Mark Twain or North Lake elementary school.

Both schools were unused for years until recently, when students and staff of existing schools began moving in while their own schools undergo modernization construction.

However, the use of either of those schools to house the new

Station gains precinct status

As of next Wednesday, Federal Way no longer will have a King County police substation. It will have a full police precinct.

King County Sheriff Jim Montgomery has said he is committed to making a precinct in Federal Way to meet the growing police needs in the rapidly expanding community. A major, who will be named at ceremonies Wednesday morning at the station, will bring with him a new lieutenant to command Precinct 5.

Those will be the only visible changes for the time being. A tight police department budget for 1989 means other services and officers normally found in a precinct will be phased in over time. Earlier talks of a full precinct here made mention of another lieutenant, patrol sergeant, clerk/typist and eventually, a full range of investigators.

The substation opened in Federal Way in 1981, occupying a trailer complex near the fire station at 28th Avenue South and South 312th Street. It outgrew those quarters and in 1986 moved to its present site at 34004 Ninth Ave. S. in West Campus.

It has been commanded by a succession of lieutenants until recently, when the sheriff, to show his determination to create a precinct here, began what he called a transition period for the substation. He brought in Capt. John Beard and Lt. Donna Nolan to ease the substation into Precinct 5.

Reassignments and official appointments will be announced at the public ceremony, scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday at the station.

One elementary school will take spring DARE

By LYNN KEEBAUGH

Sixth-grade students in one Federal Way school will take part in the police-taught DARE program this spring.

Federal Way School District officials met earlier this week with county police and decided a small-scale program was better than no program at all after the Federal Way substation made an officer available part-time to teach the 17-week drug education course for free.

The district will decide today which school will get the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) officer, said Sherrille Walker, assistant superintendent for educational support. She's meeting with district teachers to find out which school's sixth-graders are at a point in their "Here's Looking at You 2000" drug program that would most easily jibe with the DARE curriculum.

Another aim, Walker said, is to pick a school with a large number of sixth-graders to assure DARE officer Doug MacDonald will reach as many kids as possible.

MacDonald will be available to teach at only one school because his other duties as Federal Way substation crime prevention officer demand most of his attention, said Capt. John Beard, substation commander.

MACDONALD'S TIME already is stretched thin, Beard said. Most precincts have two crime prevention officers, as well as DARE officers, but Federal Way has just MacDonald to fill both roles.

Getting one DARE officer is a small victory for Sherry Schweizer, who with her husband, Bill, has fought and lobbied for nearly a year to bring the program to all Federal Way schools. But that long battle may have sapped her will to keep fighting.

"I am definitely pleased it's not dead yet...but to work a whole year and to get only (another) pilot program, that's really nothing," she said.

She and members of the Brigadoon PTA first brought DARE to that school last spring as a pilot program. Students there helped collect more than 1,000 signatures of parents and others who wanted to keep the program.

IF ONLY ONE school is to get DARE this year, Schweizer believes it should be Brigadoon because many of its students and parents have been behind the push to win support for the program, though she and her husband have been its most visible and vocal backers. They have students in second and fifth grade, as well as a 2-year-old.

Schweizer expressed frustration in dealing with the King County Sheriff's Department, County Executive Tim Hill and the school district.

"I've discovered how political everything is and I'm not used to that. I think I'll channel my ef-

SUSAN PEARSON and her husband John developed a Sunday School class to meet the needs of the Our Saviour's Baptist Church and their parents. The Our Saviour's Baptist Church program is open to any child with any disability and is scheduled to give parents a chance to attend services together. Above, Susan Pearson works with her daughter, Rebecca, 5.

Special child gets help knowing God

By WENDY CULVERWELL
Susan and John Pearson used to take turns attending services at Our Saviour's Baptist Church and staying home with their daughter, Rebecca, 5½. Rebecca is severely retarded and needs constant supervision.
But the Pearsons didn't think they were alone in finding it difficult to attend church full-time because of a child with severe disabilities. So the couple solved the problem by creating a special Sunday School for children such as Rebecca called "The Friendship Class."
"The friend is its only participant so far and her parents the only teachers. But Susan Pearson believes there are many other families in Federal Way who have to take turns going to church because one parent is at home tending the needs of a special child, needs that aren't met by most churches, she said.
"The problem is that so many parents with children like Rebecca don't come to church because (churches) don't have anything to offer their kids," she said.
KIDS WITH mild mental handicaps or physical disabilities can usually fit in with regular Sunday school because they can understand the gospel on their own.

Children with severe disabilities, however, need help understanding Jesus' love — something they need to experience through an intermediary, Pearson said. Intermediaries are any of the many Our Saviour's members who have volunteered to help out when more children get involved.
"John's and my goal is to have a class where there is one-on-one attention for the children," Pearson said.
The Friendship Class is scheduled so that parents have plenty of time to get their kids to the wheelchair-accessible classroom in Our Saviour's sanctuary and still make it to the sanctuary in time for services.
Sunday services are from 11 a.m. to noon, and the class meets from 10:45 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., giving parents 15 minutes of leeway on either end.
THE PEARSONS have been setting up the basement classroom for Rebecca for about six weeks now. One parent goes upstairs to the worship service and one remains with Rebecca. They trade places halfway through. The arrangement gives both a chance to be ministered to, and to minister to their daughter.

The class is the first in Federal Way to deal exclusively with the needs of the severely affected child, said Jim Tiefenthaler, youth minister.
Susan Pearson has been a special education professional longer than she's been a special mother. She has taught for 12 years and holds a master's degree in the field. She currently teaches at Wildwood Elementary School.
Rebecca was able to attend regular Sunday school classes until she was about 3, at which time her peers began developing beyond her. Her occasional outbursts when she's agitated make it hard to have her in a regular class, where the curriculum is geared to children with longer attention spans and the ability to communicate. Children with severe disabilities usually don't possess those abilities.
Even though the class is taught by her parents, Rebecca responds well to the structured environment of the program, her mother said. She enjoys having her mom sing songs about Jesus, and she also likes the simple children's instruments available to play.

ALL SHE really needs are classmates. The Friendship Class is open to all children ages 3 to 12, with moderate to severe disabilities.
The Pearsons have worked out a formal curriculum — which includes playtime, a lesson, a physical activity and a snack. The church provides the space and many of the toys in the Friendship closet.
Parents of children in the class are asked to participate once a month, so the Pearsons don't anticipate any shortage of adult "friends" in the room. Each child will have a teacher throughout the class.
The format recognizes that special children have limited attention abilities and communication skills, so progress from there to activity is brisk. There is a welcoming time to give kids a chance to adjust to the room. There are also plenty of toys to be played with, music to be heard and illustrated Bible stories to be read (with assistance).
Our Saviour's is at 701 S. 320th St. For more information, call the church office at 839-6822 or 927-3030.

FEDERAL WAY'S GUIDE TO WORSHIP

DON'T ACT ON IMPULSE: LET FAITH HELP YOU DECIDE

We do many things on impulse, in haste and often have time to cool off and think it over. We may quit a job because of one unfortunate incident. We might terminate a friendship because of some real or imaginary hurt. We occasionally contemplate a divorce. In any case, if some situation should bring you to a major moment of decision, give it a lot of thought. Would you really be better off as a result of this action, or would you be sorry perhaps for the rest of your life? If you need help in deciding this, go to your House of Worship and tell your clergyman about it. That is one of the most vital functions of your faith: to point you in the right direction and to help you straighten out your life, once and for all.

A peek at the weekend

TONIGHT: The Seattle Group Theatre continues performances of "The Meeting," a play depicting a fictional meeting of civil rights leaders Malcolm X and Martin Luther King Jr. The production opened yesterday and will continue Tuesday through Sunday until Feb. 19. Show times are 8 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturday, 7 p.m. Sunday and 2 p.m. matinees on Feb. 4 and 12. Ticket prices range from $10 to $14.50, with student and senior discounts available one-half hour before show time. The theater is located at 3940 Brooklyn Ave. N.E. in Seattle. Call the box office at 543-4327 for more information.

SATURDAY: The Bathhouse Theatre opens another zany version of a classic with Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," set in a present-day Florida resort hotel. The play will run through Feb. 19. Ticket prices range from $9 to $18 and are available by calling Ticketmaster at 628-0888 or the box office at 524-9108. Tickets also are sold at Ticketmaster outlets.

SUNDAY: The Seattle Art Museum will host A Storytelling Session in conjunction with its current exhibit of Japanese woodblock prints. The program will feature Cathy Spagnoli, a storyteller who has studied Japanese oral literature and culture, and Joan Rabinowitz, an ethnomusicologist who plays traditional Asian instruments. They will perform together, blending stories and music. The program is free with museum admission, which is $2 for adults, $1 for seniors and students and free for children 6 years and younger. The museum is in Volunteer Park. Call 625-8900 for more information.

THIS WEEKEND: The Northwest Chamber Orchestra presents The Conductor's Showcase, a series of four concerts tonight, tomorrow and Sunday conducted by Israeli native Yehuda Gilad. The program, called "Spanning the Classics," will include works by Mozart, Britten and Schubert. The concerts will begin at 8 tonight and tomorrow, with a 3 p.m. matinee on Sunday at the Intiman Theatre.

Local poet, painter create together

By ANN SEIDNER

Just in time for Valentine's Day, two South King County artists have collaborated on an art show at a Seattle gallery.

The show is titled, "Valentines," but it is not a seasonal show, said Camille Patha, a Normandy Park artist, whose large acrylic paintings and monotypes will be featured in the show.

"They're major, important works of art," she said.

One reason for their importance is their uniqueness. Neither the gallery owner, nor Patha nor Lonny Kaneko, the second local artist, have ever seen anything quite like these "valentimes."

Using mixed media and lots of color, Patha created pictures she calls "lush, extravagant, filled with lace, spangles and jewels."

"It's as if you're in someone's lingerie drawer," said Kaneko, a poet who teaches creative writing at Highline Community College.

Kaneko, a Vashon Island resident, wrote poems "for people who love" for this show.

"A valentine isn't quite a valentine without a sentiment," Kaneko said. So he wrote poems to complement Patha's pictures. And he gave some poems to Patha, which she, in turn, illustrated.

Although they each worked separately, the process began to be a real collaboration when they put words and pictures together. Instead of simply hanging a framed poem next to a framed picture, Patha and Kaneko thought to put them together, so that sometimes a poem appears in the picture itself and sometimes it appears on the periphery.

Although they considered getting a calligrapher to print the poems, they decided finally on Kaneko himself as the best person for the job.

"The immediacy of his hand on the work itself" lends another dimension to each piece, Patha said.

Kaneko's poems are compiled in a small book that Kaneko will autograph at the show's reception.

The show opens Jan. 31 at the Foster/White Gallery on the seventh floor of Frederick & Nelson at Fifth Avenue and Pine Street, downtown Seattle.

The reception will be from 1 to 3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 4. Guests can meet Kaneko and Patha and browse among the poems and pictures for sale. The show will close Feb. 19.

For more information, call the gallery at 382-8538.

TJ grad cops Bigelow role in 'Carousel'

A graduate of Thomas Jefferson High School will head the cast of "Carousel," the spring production of the Federal Way-based Puget Sound Musical Theatre.

Alan McEachern, a Kent resident and 1977 graduate of TJ, will star as Billy Bigelow, a ne'er-do-well who gets a second chance to make a difference in his daughter's life. McEachern says he sang with high school chorales and a barbershop quartet, but has never combined drama with singing before.

Twin Lakes resident Diane Sweeney, who played the narrator of last year's PSMT production, "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," will play Julie Jordan, Bigelow's wife. Sweeney currently is in the chorus of the Tacoma Opera's production, "Showboat."

Karla Seman, a Sumner resident and junior high drama teacher, will play Carrie Pimperidge, the play's second female lead. Burien resident

Dick Dille, who has performed onstage for both Avenue Act I in Auburn and Federal Way's Mormon church, will play Enoch Snow in "Carousel."

Federal Way resident Margaret Carr, who most recently played a nun in Avenue Act I's "The Sound of Music," will play Nettie Fowler, the outspoken boarding house operator of "Carousel."

More than 60 local people were tapped for parts in "Carousel," which will be staged at Decatur

High School on March 31 and April 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, 14, 15 and 16.

Director Lanie McMullin is calling for more male cast members, however. The show particularly needs male singers. For information, call Joy Bearman at 833-4064.

Tickets for the show are $9 general admission and $5.50 for students and seniors. They will be available at the door and are being pre-sold at The Place for Gifts and Things in Federal Way, 32901 First Ave. S. For ticket information, call 838-3237.

Philharmonic picnics with pop music

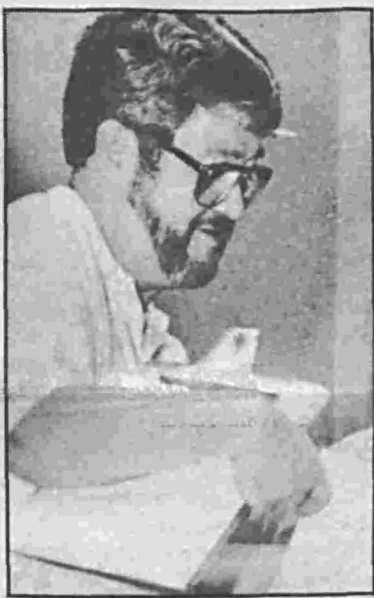

A selection of Broadway and vintage pop music will spice the Federal Way Philharmonic's Pops Gala fundraiser on Feb. 4.

The community orchestra made up of professional and semi-professional musicians and the Cornucopia Concert Band will perform a "Winter Picnic with the Pops."

Guest director Don Barrows will open the evening at 8 p.m. in St. Theresa's Church in Federal Way. He will lead the orchestra in performances including the theme from "Star Trek," a medley from "Les Miserables" and a set of Dixieland Jazz arrangements.

Then the Cornucopia Concert Band, a Seattle-based group that performs music of the early 20th Century in America, will play tunes from the time when jazz and ragtime music were popular.

"Put On Your Old Grey Bon-

Don Barrows

net" and "In The Good Old Summertime" are just two of the old favorites the ensemble will perform.

Barrows, music director of the local Harmony Unlimited singers and of the Puget Sound Musical Theatre, was invited to conduct the gala concert by Brian Davenport, the orchestra's usual conductor.

Davenport is currently in Finland, guest conducting the Tampere Messiah Chorus. He will return Feb. 5.

Barrows, a long-time Federal Way resident and music teacher at Kentridge High School in Kent, says he is excited about the opportunity to conduct the Federal Way Philharmonic.

"We do lots of Broadway musicals for Puget Sound Musical Theatre and Harmony Unlimited," Barrows said. "So it's kind of neat to have the opportunity to do a pop concert (with the philharmonic)."

St. Theresa's Church will be decorated in festive red and white for the evening, which will include a raffle at intermission, hor d'oeuvres, coffee, dessert and a no-host bar.

Tickets are $25 each. It's table seating, so reservations are a must. Tickets can be purchased at The Place for Gifts and Things in the Quad and at Washington Mutual Savings Bank, both in Federal Way.

Tickets also are available by mail. Write to P.O. Box 4513, Federal Way, 98063. Or call 244-8755 or 839-9132 for tickets and for more information.

At the Movies

"DIRTY ROTTEN SCOUNDRELS"

This movie qualifies as one of the best comedies of the year. Michael Caine plays Lawrence Jamison, a charming rogue who makes his money by soaking rich, corrupt women for all they're worth. Steve Martin plays Freddy Benson, a small-time scam artist living hand-to-mouth in the south of France. When these two get together, the result is predictable — competition. Who's the best con man? Their struggle is the focus of the film. The chemistry between the two stars keeps the story clicking fast enough to overcome minor deficiencies in the script. The movie is also refreshingly clean. You can count the number of curses on one hand, minus your thumb, and they are of the tamest variety. "Dirty Rotten Scoundrels" is rated PG and is playing at SeaTac South and at Lewis and Clark.

"THE NAKED GUN"

tion of the "Police Squad" series. You're bound to laugh at least at some of the non-stop antics, no matter how stupid and how tasteless some of the jokes and slapstick humor are. It doesn't matter what the plot is. Neilson and co-star Priscilla Presley (making her film debut) obviously have fun in a world where Laurel and Hardy would fit. An impressive list of celebrities agreed to make fun of themselves by appearing in the film, including George Kennedy, O.J. Simpson, Jennifer James, Ricardo Montalban and several TV sportscasters. "The Naked Gun" is rated PG-13 and is playing at SeaTac South and Lewis and Clark.

FEDERAL WAY basketball players Lake Dawson, B.J. Miller and Jason Schmidt watch from the sidelines as the Eagles go down to defeat against Clover Park, 67-58.

Warriors hand Eagle boys tough hoop loss

By CHUCK MINGORI

Clover Park's quickness and Federal Way's inability to make clutch shots down the stretch helped give the visiting Warriors a 67-58 boys' basketball victory Tuesday night.

"I give them credit, they spread the floor on us and used their quickness," said Federal Way coach Jerome Collins. "We were a step behind, and maybe that's an understatement, two steps behind at times."

Federal Way (3-7, 4-11) also fell two steps behind third-place Sumner (5-5, 6-9) in the South Puget Sound League's North Division standings. Clover Park (7-3, 13-4) remained in second place in the South Division one game back of Curtis (8-2, 11-3).

"We just packed it in on those big guys. We were just basically guarding their two guys with four of our guys," said Clover Park coach Brian Hagbo, explaining his team's defensive strategy.

Hagbo's team countered offensively by slashing inside for easy layups against Federal Way's man-to-man defense. The Warriors made 26 of 41 field goals for a sizzling 63 percent, compared to Federal Way's totals of 25 of 56 for 45 percent. Clover Park had the advantage at the free-throw line, where the Warriors made 13 of 21 shots to the Eagles' 6 of 12.

THE EAGLES broke out to a 12-7 lead after senior Jason Schmidt scored his second straight bucket from close range on a reverse layup from underneath.

But the Warriors turned it around quickly, running off 16 straight points to take a 23-12 lead after one quarter. Guard Jackie Kellogg spearheaded the effort by scoring 11 points in the period, including a running jumper at the buzzer to end Clover Park's first-quarter assault.

The Warriors also scored the first four points of the second quarter to complete a 20-0 run. Federal Way's Andy Jerdal ended the streak with a long shot from the corner to make it 27-14.

The Eagles fell behind by 20, though, at 37-17 after Kellogg scored on a backdoor layup. B.J. Miller then scored inside and senior guard Dan Afework made two baskets in a row to close the gap to 37-23 at halftime.

Federal Way went on an 11-4 run to open the third quarter. Afework, who scored a game-high 21 points and also dished out nine assists, carried the bulk of the scoring load early in the quarter with two three-point field goals and a driving layup to bring his team back to within eight at 41-33.

AFEWORK HIT another basket on a running banker for his 11th point of the quarter to keep Federal Way within eight at 43-35.

But Sylvester Berry, a muscular 6-2 center, went to work for the Warriors. He hit four free throws sandwiched around his own basket inside to boost the Warrior lead to 49-35.

Donny Marshall helped keep the Eagles close with two baskets late in the period, as Federal Way trailed, 52-41, going into the last quarter.

The Eagles fell behind by 14, but made another run. Darrin Albright struck first from the outside and Afework completed a three-point play on a drive to the hoop and a free throw to make it 59-50 with 4:45 left in the game.

The Eagles battled back to within seven three times in the fourth quarter. The last time Jerdal hit two free throws with 2:16 left to make it 63-56.

But that was as close as Federal Way would get, despite coming up with some key steals late in the game.

"We got the shots we wanted, we just couldn't put them down," said Collins. "I could really use Jeremy Sloane about right now."

SLOANE, of course, was the league's Most Valuable Player for Federal Way last year and he was a deadeye on three-point shots. Unfortunately, he is now playing for the Air Force Academy.

Decatur boys miss a chance to move up

By TIM CLINTON

The Decatur boys' basketball team was in a dogfight for the South Puget Sound League North Division's third and final playoff berth going into Tuesday's action.

The Gators also had a chance to do something the Eagles and Spartans hadn't — beat Bethel. But it was not to be, as the Braves emerged victorious in the Decatur gym, 57-44.

The Gators are now three games out with five to go. Sumner is third at 5-5 behind Puyallup (10-0) and Rogers (8-2), followed by Federal Way at 3-7. Decatur slipped to 2-8 and Thomas Jefferson brings up the rear at 1-9.

If the Gators are to keep their outside chances alive, they will need a win at Federal Way at 7:30 p.m. today. The Eagles are equally desperate.

"They're still looking for a playoff berth, too," said Decatur head coach Lee Anderson. "It's critical for that reason."

Bethel (6-4) needed Tuesday's win to keep its hold on third place in the South Division.

"It was a case where they came in saying if we're going to make the playoffs, we want to make sure and give it our best shot and not lose to someone we shouldn't lose to," said Anderson of the Braves.

THE GAME was tied at 11-11 after one quarter of play, before the Braves moved ahead to stay on six-straight points to open the second quarter.

"We had trouble reacting to their pressure," said Anderson. "The second quarter they did a good job changing the tempo. We came in wanting to create the tempo ourselves, and instead they created it."

Statistically the Gators have the worst shooting percentage in the league, and that continued to be a problem Tuesday as they made only 17 of 50. Marcus Hentschell, Decatur's strong outside shooter, was held to only five points to make matters even worse.

"The biggest thing was our defense," said Anderson. "We have to play good defense to stay in games. We gave up too many shots around the basket area and that hurt."

Joey Roni was the Gators' leading scorer with 15 points and Chris Brauer was right behind with 12.

Bethel was sparked by Todd Cristofolletti, who racked up 20 points on 8-for-9 shooting from the field.

The Braves opened with five straight points, and Decatur came back with six in a row on Kenny Lester's outside shot followed by two baskets for Roni.

Cristofolletti put the Braves ahead again at 7-6 with a hoop and then Pete Klobutcher tied it with a free throw. Roni and Brauer followed with layups for an 11-7 advantage.

BETHEL head coach Mike Mullen called a time out at that point and took his team to task for its lack of motivation, and the Braves responded to tie it by the end of the first quarter.

Bethel then came out hot to open the second quarter to start putting the game away.

Raider boys rally early, then fall to Curtis

By GERARDO BOLONG

For two glorious quarters, the Thomas Jefferson boys' basketball team was on the way to upsetting the heavily-favored Curtis Vikings.

When the dust had cleared, however, Curtis had the final say as the Vikings took the measure of the Raiders, 68-37.

In a game with that score, one would have thought that the game was completely one-sided. Until early in the second half, it was a toss-up game.

"It's tough to play against a Bruce Case team," said Viking head coach Don Huston. "His teams are well-disciplined."

"Our second half man-to-man defense was the key. We didn't necessarily get a lot of steals, but we made them throw the ball away and do some things they didn't plan."

Raiders coach Bruce Case was unavailable for comment, but assistant coach Brock Taylor agreed in principle with Huston.

"For the first half we controlled the tempo and showed good patience. In the second half their defense forced us into turnovers and we got caught up in their pace. Steve Johnson had a good offensive game, but the second half was entirely Curtis's."

THE GAME began auspiciously for Jefferson as Steve Johnson helped the Raiders to a 4-0 lead. Curtis came back to lead 7-6 before a Jefferson goal gave the Raiders an 8-7 first quarter lead. Jefferson was playing deliberately, but with motion on offense. Johnson and Daryn Ditmore kept TJ alive offensively.

In the second quarter, Eric Lovrak canned a three-pointer from the top of the key to give Curtis a 12-8 lead. With good play from Johnson, Ditmore and Aaron Martin, TJ battled Curtis to a 21-21 tie.

That final tie was broken by the Vikings on a Lovrak three-point goal as the buzzer ended the first half with Curtis ahead, 24-21.

The opening moments of the second half suggested that the game would go down to the wire.

Curtis' Brent Williams dunked in a goal to extend the Vikings' lead to 28-21. Johnson rolled in two free throws and TJ was within four points at 28-24 after several minutes of the second half.

Then the roof caved in, as the 6-6 Williams dunked the ball to send Curtis on a 17-2 scoring spree to end the quarter with the score Curtis 45, Jefferson 26. Williams had eight points in the quarter.

The two TJ points during that run were on an inside goal by Johnson. Turnovers against the Curtis defensive pressure simply caused the offense to disappear.

Both teams continued the same trend in the fourth quarter. Williams, Lovrak and John Cole led the Viking onslaught until Curtis coach Don Huston cleared the bench with just over two minutes in the game.

Jefferson's trend of being unable to handle the ball well enough to run their offense carried over from the third quarter. Gym rat basketball dominated the final minutes.

Johnson led Jefferson with 18 points.

For Curtis, Williams knocked in 22 points and teammate Lovrak gunned in 15 points.

TJ will go to Rogers for a 7:30 p.m. game today.

Gators break through to win big at Bethel

Before Monday's game at Bethel, Decatur girls' basketball coach Gary Baker had expressed concern because of the South Division-leading Braves' speed. His Gators were also not playing as sharply as they had earlier in the season.

But Decatur rose to the occasion, breaking Bethel's press for a big lead early and cruising to a 68-57 win.

"We were able to handle their pressure and get some easy baskets out of it," said Baker. "We passed well."

The win put the Gators' South Puget Sound League record at 8-2, one game behind North Division-leading Federal Way and Puyallup (9-1). They are four games ahead of Rogers (4-6), and the top three teams in the division will reach the SPSL tournament.

Decatur also finished with a 4-1 record against South Division foes, and has one game against each of the five other North Division teams left on its schedule.

"Before we played the South Division, we felt if we went 5-0 or 4-1 we'd be in good shape," said Baker. "Now we're in the division games and it's important to win as many as we can. We want to try and get as high of a seed as we can."

The Gators played Federal Way last night (after press time), and visit Rogers Monday at 7:30 p.m. Decatur hosts Thomas Jefferson (3-7) next Thursday, before finishing off the season at the homes of Puyallup and Sumner (3-7).

A No. 1 seeding in the division guarantees a trip out of the SPSL tournament into West Central District action. A No. 2 team would have to lose twice at the SPSL tournament to get knocked out, while a No. 3 team has to win twice.

THE GATORS took a 16-9 lead by the end of the first quarter Monday, as junior forward Kathy Laky scored 10 of her game-high 24 points.

"Three of her baskets were off breaking the press," said Baker. Center Shelley Richter then took control with eight points in the second quarter, as Decatur jumped out to a 37-21 lead by halftime.

The Gators were up, 62-37, early in the fourth quarter before clearing the bench and coasting to the 68-57 win.

"Bethel started shooting long ones, and hit three three-pointers in a row," said Baker of the Braves' late surge. "They're a very good outside shooting team."

Richter scored 17 points behind Laky, and point guard Jana Medges had 12.

Tanya Fischer contributed eight and Shannon Barrett three, as Kim Houston scored two and Heidi Berth and Tara Beckett one each.

The Gators went 26-for-45 from the field and 16-for-29 at the free throw line compared to Bethel's 18-for-63 and 12-for-18 totals.

Decatur outrebounded the Braves, 42-28, led by Richter's 13 and the 11 of Laky.

Eagle girls blitz CP

The Federal Way girls' basketball team moved into a virtual tie for first place in the South Puget Sound League's North Division with Puyallup following Monday's 62-33 win at Clover Park.

The win boosted the Eagles' record to 9-1 in SPSL play, the same as Puyallup's, and to 14-1 on the year.

"Clover Park is a very, very young team, very inexperienced," said Federal Way coach Chuck Czubin, whose team met Decatur last night (after press time). "They're probably a year or two away from being very competitive."

Clover Park dropped to 0-10 in SPSL and 1-14 overall.

Federal Way led by only a 16-8 margin after the first quarter before upping the margin to 29-

13 at halftime. The Eagles extended their lead to 50-19 entering the fourth quarter, as coach Czubin was able to clear his bench.

"We were able to play our whole bench and we brought in some of the younger kids," he said.

Jenny Mahlstedt led the team in scoring Monday with 15 points, while Shannon Sehlin finished with 10. Jennifer Evans was next in scoring with eight, followed by Kelly Czubin seven, Janelle Oakeley six, Cyndi Shahan, Jana Woodworth and Tara Boe four apiece, Heidi Saheli three and Jennifer Davis one.

After meeting Decatur last night, Federal Way will play host to Sumner on Monday and Puyallup on Thursday.

Czubin named athlete of week

Kelly Czubin, a 5-11 junior on the Federal Way girls' basketball team, has been named the Federal Way News' Athlete of the Week.

Czubin scored 23 points on 10 of 15 shooting from the field and 3-for-4 at the foul line last Thursday to lead the Eagle girls to a 65-46 victory at Spanaway Lake.

She then came back to score 12 points and snare seven rebounds in Federal Way's 58-47 win at home against Bethel on Saturday.

Federal Way, ranked seventh in the state with a 9-1 South Puget Sound League record and a 14-1 mark overall, met crosstown rival Decatur last night (after press time).

Other city foes plan to carry on corporation and believes his change of mind will convince other opponents to change their minds.

Other steadfast opponents doubt it. "Absolutely not," is opponent Vern Benson's reaction. BENSON IS chairman of Citizens Against Incorporation, the organization Tomlinson was chairman of during the 1985 failed cityhood campaign and until recently was still affiliated with.

Benson hadn't been told about Tomlinson's change of mind. "I'm very surprised by it," Benson said. "I'll have to talk with him."

Jack Ringler is another visible opponent who had discussed the change of opinion with Tomlinson.

"This doesn't mean anything for Citizens Against Incorporation," Ringler said. "He told me the other day he was going to do it. I can't be critical. I respect everyone's opinion."

Cityhood supporters who have been at odds with Tomlinson in the past say they're pleased Tomlinson has changed his mind. They also say he's one of many former cityhood opponents who have decided to support incorporation since the 1985 campaign.

"We welcome (Tomlinson's) support," said Jim Handmacher, Federal Way First! member. "I view his change of heart as a public example of what a lot of Federal Way people are doing."

Tomlinson had been slated by the county to be the author of an anti-incorporation article that was to appear in a voter's pamphlet. That pamphlet will be sent out with the mail-in ballots sometime in late February.

Ringler will now take over that task. Also, Tomlinson had been asked to speak at an incorporation forum sponsored by the Federal Way Community Council. Ringler will take over that job, too.

TOMLINSON said he changed his mind after attending a recent economic development summit sponsored by the Seattle-King County Economic Development Council, the Federal Way Chamber of Commerce, King County and Puget Power.

The summit made him realize that local control would increase if Federal Way incorporated and that he was willing to pay more taxes for that control, Tomlinson said.

He was also influenced by his failure to convince King County not to allow a public storage facility that was built in his neighborhood.

"With all the effort I put into that I could have stopped the public storage facility if it had been a city," he said.

Tomlinson is currently a member of the Federal Way Community Council and has said earlier he would run for city council in Federal Way if incorporation is approved.

Now, however, he said he won't make any decision about running for city council until after incorporation is decided. A potential city council position played no role in his change of mind, he said.

DESPITE his change of heart, Tomlinson doesn't completely agree with everything incorporation supporters are saying. For instance, he said members of Federal Way First! are misleading residents when they say the county takes more money out of Federal Way than it gives back in services and capital expenditures such as roads.

However, the consultants who produced the incorporation study, The Georgetown Group, say a new city of Federal Way could pay for all services, including the county's projected capital expenditures on roads and parks, without raising taxes above their current level.

Despite that, Tomlinson said he still believes it would cost residents more in taxes.

"Why don't they just come out and say that," Tomlinson said in a private interview. "There are a lot of people who don't mind paying that if we have more local control and increased services."

Park backers push arboretum

Marine Hills residents Monte Powell and Al Wilson told the board Tuesday they have formed a group called the Arboretum Foundation of Federal Way.

The group has offered to help with creating a park out of the watershed and the parcels owned by Cratsenberg. That may include donating money from residents, Powell said.

THE COUNTY would like to obtain the Cratsenberg parcels along with the watershed to form a 65-acre park that would include 20 acres the county already owns northwest of the watershed.

Powell said Federal Way needs parks and the county and the district should work together to save open space.

"We need parks and we need them now," Powell told the commissioners. "It's in the public interest that (the watershed) should remain in the public domain."

Powell also said it would be possible for Cratsenberg to develop the property into a 70-unit apartment complex if a planned unit development (PUD) were approved by the county.

Cratsenberg denied he would build apartments on the land and said he wanted the Federal Way district to put a covenant on the deed of sale for the watershed that would prohibit building apartments.

Cratsenberg also said Powell had deliberately misled residents of Marine Hills, where Cratsenberg also lives, by telling them he planned to build apartments.

"Those statements were made to hurt my family and to sell the property to King County," Cratsenberg said.

The proceeds from the sale of the watershed will go to help offsetting the cost of $1.8 million in improvements being made by the Federal Way district to the aging water system of the former Water District 56 in Redondo. The two districts merged last year.

"This board has an obligation to the people of Redondo to accept the higher bid," Cratsenberg said. "People in Redondo don't care if a public park goes there or not."

Redondo Community Club President Gene Achziger told the board most of the Redondo residents he has talked to would rather get the most money they can for the watershed than have a park.

Powell presented commissioners with pictures of an arboretum that included trees, ponds and paths.

Although arboretum supporters envision a "passive-use" park, Barden has said the site could include some ballfields.

According to the district's merger agreement, the watershed must be disposed of "in the most cost-effective manner," said Jim Miller, Federal Way district general manager.

"The operative term is 'the most cost-effective,'" Miller said. "The board has to decide if that means highest price."

CRATSENBERG told the board he would be willing to deal with the county to develop the land he doesn't use into a park, if he were to acquire the watershed.

"If we're successful, then Mr. Barden and I can sit down and discuss his park," Cratsenberg said.

Pro-parks resident Wilson said there is no guarantee that another developer wouldn't bid higher than Cratsenberg and build apartments.

Cratsenberg said he has the only lots that include access to the watershed.

"Any developer who would bid against Andy Cratsenberg would be stupid," Cratsenberg said.

The land has been appraised by the county and by an independent appraiser at $350,000. The county's offer of $400,000 is fair, Barden said.

The $400,000 was earlier taken out of the county budget, but was put back in by King County Executive Tim Hill this week. However, the King County Council has not yet voted on including that money in the budget.

Barden said he has enough votes on the council to approve the purchase of the watershed. The council is scheduled to vote on the purchase Monday.

"We just keep going around," said Leonard "Doc" Thompson, board president. "We're trying to be fair to the people of Redondo and we're trying to be fair to the parks people."

Questions focus on new school

school's students would probably disrupt the school district's $50 million modernization program, making it necessary to reschedule work at some schools. Pierson said the effect of that change has not yet been closely examined.

The condition of those schools, particularly the delapidated North Lake, concerned parents at the meeting.

"Is North Lake legally habitable?" asked Lake Dolloff parent Nick Barta, to the laughter of the crowd.

Although North Lake's roof has leaked for years, Superintendent Richard Harris said the district would use no site that is not legally approved. He noted that the school will probably be declared surplus when its present use is over.

Mark Twain is small, but could be used as a permanent school site in coming years, he added.

CREATING A NEW "school" at an interim site next year would mean not only boundary changes in West Campus, but elementary-school boundary changes throughout the district to balance remaining enrollment, said Gibbons.

A conservative estimate places next year's elementary population at 9,500 students, 425 more than presently enrolled. The new "school" would take some pressure off nearby overcrowded schools, but not enough, said Gibbons.

Boundary changes will not be made until spring. By then the district hopes a new computer system will offer districtwide boundary recommendations.

PARENTS HAD few questions about boundary changes, and instead inquired about the interim school. Harris and Gibbons offered some answers and speculation:

- Potential growth within the boundaries of the new school would be accounted for, so students tapped to move next year would continue attending the new school in 1990.
- Staff for the new school could easily be assembled by next fall. A principal will be selected from the district's present elementary principals by Feb. 15.

- Changing district grade configurations could take three to five years. It probably couldn't be done by next fall.
- A $14.7 million bond, approved by local voters in September, included money for 10 school portables to handle overloads. But four could be used by the end of this school year and three are needed for Sacajawea Junior High during its upcoming modernization, leaving only three for overcrowded schools next year.

ONE PARENT said the school district should look farther ahead than a year or two. She added that the district had probably not done so in the past. Gibbons said projecting student enrollment too far ahead creates unrealistic predictions. The state, she added, only pays for schools that will house students here now, not students who are to come.

Harris said the district has already looked ahead, and has only seen more and more students. "You haven't seen the end of bond issues, I can guarantee that," he said.

School district decides today which school will take DARE forts back into my church and teaching Sunday school, where people say what they mean," she said.

If the DARE officer is assigned to a school other than Brigadoon, Schwiezer said she hopes parents there will become standard-bearers for the program, which she believes is more effective than the drug prevention curriculum already taught in schools.

"IT'S THE ONLY program endorsed by the U.S. Justice Department," she said, and the expertise of a police officer means more to children,

"because he knows what's going on out on the streets.

"It's also positive exposure to police for the kids and good public relations both ways," she added.

Walker doesn't disagree with any of Schwiezer's arguments. But she says the district has more to consider, such as whether the county will continue to fund DARE in the future and to what extent.

"We want to receive something that's consistent for our students," she said. "We want it for all kids in all schools every year."

The long-term future of DARE has been in limbo since budget fights between Hill and the county council put program funds in jeopardy.

POLICE department officials say they're still waiting on the outcome of budget revisions and school officials are waiting on the police before promises are made, Walker said.

She also said Federal Way schools are committed enough to DARE that she would assist any group that takes up the program's cause before the state Legislature, a tactic that has been discussed by the county council and other school districts. Walker testified before the county council regarding the value of DARE early in the budget process, and said she hasn't given up on its future.

Boeing boosts funding for pool

The Boeing Co. contributed $2 million to the Seattle Organizing Committee (SOC) of the Goodwill Games this week.

About $500,000 of that contribution will go to help pay for the Goodwill Games pool being built in West Campus.

Construction is well under way on the $18.8 million aquatic center. The complex is being built without profit by the Sabe-

Corp. King County has pledged to pay $8.8 million into the pool project and the SOC has pledged to raise $5.8 million. Another $2 million has come from the Quadrant Corp. in a land donation for the West Campus site and $1 million has come directly from developer Dave Sabe.

Another private fundraising group called World Class Splash plans to raise another $1.2 million to help pay for added seating in the swimming and diving complex.

The Boeing contribution adds credibility to SOC efforts to raise money, according to Bill Sears, director of media relations for the SOC.

However, the pool won't be called "Boeing Aquatics Complex," Sears said. Organizers are looking for a donation of at least $3 million before they name the complex after anyone.

"This is a rather substantial boost to the program," Sears said. "This is a harbinger of things to come."

The pool complex is expected to be completed by April 1990, in time for the start of the July 1990 Games. After the Games are over, the pool will be turned over to the county.

Boating exam offered

Boaters can start the boating season off safely with a U.S. Coast Guard Courtesy Examination at the Des Moines Marina between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Jan. 28.

Examinations are made only with the consent and in the presence of the private boat owner.

It is not an enforcement activity. If the boat owner is in compliance with legal requirements, a decal certifying compliance will be awarded to the vessel.

If not, the boat owner will be informed as to how to make his boat safer by meeting safety regulations.

Federal Way Water and Sewer District
Notice of Intention to Provide Street Lighting

NOTICE is hereby given that, pursuant to Federal Way Water and Sewer District Resolution No. 89-294, the District intends to provide and levy a charge for street lighting for the following area, to wit:

1. All lots within that portion of the plat of Buena Addition consisting of Lot Nos. 7 thru 14 of Blocks 2 and 3, Lot Nos. 7 thru 10 and Lot Nos. 23 and 24 of Block 13, King County, Washington.

Notice is further given that the Board of Commissioners of Federal Way Water and Sewer District will conduct a public hearing at 7:00 p.m. on February 17, 1989, at the Water Quality Operations Building at 31627-1st Avenue South, Federal Way, Washington, to hear public comments.

Notice is further given that a street lighting system shall not be established if, within thirty days following decision of the Board of Commissioners, a petition opposing the street lighting system is filed with the Board and contains the signature of at least forty percent of the voters registered in the area to be served by the proposed system.

Present average charges for street lighting is $2.25 per month, per residence.

Crowd watches group beat teen

Police officers responding to a fight last Friday at the SeaTac Mall estimate as many as 250 people gathered to watch a group of teen-agers beat up another youth. Although police are downplaying racial overtones, one witness and the youth who was beaten said it appeared the fight may have been racially motivated.

Police

The 15-year-old Auburn youth who was beaten told King County police he was leaving a theater in the mall when he was confronted by a black teen-ager who accused him of "not liking blacks." The youth, who is white, denied the accusation and said he tried to walk away from the other teen.

The Auburn youth said the other teen-ager then grabbed him by the neck, but he broke free and ran into the parking lot where he was chased by the teen-ager and a handful of his friends. They caught the Auburn youth and beat him, bloodying his nose, reports state. One member of the group also brandished a knife.

The group that chased the youth was racially mixed, with three blacks, an Asian and a white male. Police arrested the 14-year-old who brandished a knife for fourth-degree assault and booked him into the juvenile detention center. The youth who started the fight ran off and was not arrested.

Three others were cited for failure to disperse. A 17-year-old from Seattle was released to his mother and two 18-year-olds, one from Puyallup and one from Federal Way, were booked into King County Jail.

Substation Capt. John Beard said he doesn't believe the incident should set off any alarms about racial violence here. But it can't be ignored, either. "It does alert us to the potential of the problem, but other than one other incident, there hasn't been any open violence between races," he said.

He referred to a December fight in the mall parking lot between a group of Asian males and a group of black males. Some of the participants claimed the fight started over racial slurs. One combatant received bruised ribs in the incident.

Although cruising has been blamed for a variety of problems on weekends around the mall, Beard said it wasn't to blame for this fight. The youth who was attacked had been at a movie and those who beat him had been inside the mall.

The large crowd that gathered was ominous, Beard said, but it was comprised mostly of moviegoers who had just left the theaters and gathered to watch the fight. No other injuries were reported.
