Candidate crunch could occur today

By KURT HERZOG
Today is the last day to file for a position in the Federal Way City Council election. Candidates may file until 4:30 p.m. today at the King County elections division in the King County Courthouse. A rush of candidates is expected to file, or in some cases refile, at the end of the day as candidates who have already filed withdraw from one position and file in another. Although all seven positions are elected at-large, and not by district, candidates may not want to risk running against others who are considered strong contenders. They will, however, have to pay the $48 filing each time they file. Already, two candidates have changed positions. Al Frank switched from Position 1 to Position 2 and Ray Tomlinson switched from Position 6 to Position 4. AS OF the close of business yesterday, a total of 29 people had filed to run in the May 16 city council primary election. Fifteen candidates filed on Monday. Another two candidates filed on Tuesday, five filed Wednesday and seven filed Thursday. Filing between Tuesday and yesterday were:
• Mary Gates in Position 1.

Gates, 45 teaches communications courses at local community colleges but the 14-year Federal Way resident is better known for her community activism. She is a current or former member of the Federal Way Community Plan Update Committee, King County 2000, the Federal Way Women's Network, the Wetlands of West Hylebos and the Goodwill Games Pool committee. She and her husband, Bill, were named Citizens of the Year for 1988 by the Federal Way Chamber of Commerce. The Gates have two children.
• Mark Freitas in Position 2. Freitas, 40, is a community activist working in the commercial real estate field. He has lived in Federal Way for about four years and has worked here for 11. Freitas is married with three children.
• Fred Jaber in Position 2. Jaber is a Federal Way Community Council member. He could not be reached for comment.
• Francis McConnell in Position 2. McConnell, 47 is a union official working for Kaiser Aluminum near the Tacoma tideflats. He has lived in Federal Way for 18 years and is active in Democratic Party politics. He is married with three children.

Crumbly weather

THE WEATHER HAS BEEN for the birds so far this spring, but that doesn't prevent the Lesh family from enjoying the outdoors — from inside their car, of course. Charles Lesh, his wife, Dana (not visible) and their children (from

Boundaries still under computer's scrutiny

By MELODIE STEIGER
Federal Way school administrators have gazed upon the Great Machine and its computer software and have deemed it good. But it has not yet spewed forth the answer administrators so desperately seek. Namely, the boundary changes necessary to solve overcrowding by balancing enrollment in local elementary schools. Dolores Gibbons, assistant superintendent for elementary education, and a team of local educators flew to Los Angeles this week to get a first-hand look at the computer software recently purchased by the district to draw up new boundaries. With a whir and a hum, the software performed some pinpoint demographics for its audience, including picking out special education students from the entire district and from particular schools, said Judy Wall, district communications director. When put through all its paces, the system can map out any special student population,

Schools await eight options for districtwide revisions route bus traffic and point out any natural obstacles, such as greenbelts, that could figure into new boundaries. But it will take some time, maybe a few weeks, before the GeoBased system creates eight boundary scenarios from which to choose, Wall said. THAT IS LATER than was previously planned, particularly for such a universally touchy subject as boundary changes. But operators of the GeoBased system were slowed by the outdated maps available for the fast-growing community, Wall said. Boundary options were expected to be reported to the Federal Way School Board and administrators by April 1, allowing more time for community input by the end of the school year.

But now they are not expected to arrive in the district until the end of April, when they will be introduced to the school board and a citizens' housing committee. The public will be invited to three community meetings in mid-May, at which the boundary options will be outlined. "And we'll hold them sooner, if possible," Wall said. The Federal Way School Board will eventually choose the new boundaries, which probably will affect all 17 elementary schools in the district. That includes one more school and 400 more students than are now in Federal Way. The board's decision is expected by the end of the school year in June. In the meantime, the school district is verifying available maps of the area for the computer, and tracking homes and the students that live there. "What we find is that we'll have the most current map of Federal Way available to anyone in the district, because

School district takes county DARE

By LYNN KEEBAUGH
By next fall, all 17 Federal Way elementary schools will have the DARE program. Two Precinct 5 (Federal Way) patrol officers are taking the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program training course at the police academy and by the start of school next year will be teaching drug resistance and self-esteem lessons to local sixth-graders. Officers Debra Crisp and Mike Butschli will join crime prevention Officer Doug Macdonald in teaching the program, said Maj.

Ollie Moore, precinct commander. Although Crisp and Butschli will finish their training April 14, it will be too late into the school year to start the semester-long program at any of the Federal Way School District's 14 schools that currently do not have the program. Panther Lake students are getting DARE education this spring from King County and Sunnycrest students are being taught the program by the Kent Police Department. CURRENTLY and in the past, Federal Way has had

DARE only as a pilot program and on a small scale. Moore had said that when he received additional resources, he would expand the program. Those resources have been arriving since the police station here received full precinct status in February. By May 1, 10 new officers will have been added to Precinct 5, freeing Crisp and Butschli to become DARE

Incinerator may yet undergo EIS

By ANN SEIDNER
If the state House and Senate approve a major recycling bill as it reads now, Tacoma will have to delay opening day for its incinerator to complete a thorough environmental study of the plant. Sen. Peter von Reichbauer (R-30th) attached an amendment onto House Bill 1871, the Waste Not Washington Act, that would require any plant designed to burn solid waste to complete an environmental impact statement (EIS) first. Although von Reichbauer had tried to stick the amendment on to the bill while the measure was under consideration in the Senate Environment and Natural Resources Committee, lobbyists from Tacoma and Tacoma Public Utilities fought back, telling legislators that the plant had acquired all the necessary environmental permits. IN 1984, the incinerator was issued a determination of non-significance (DNS), which means that any environmental effects are not expected to be significant. But von Reichbauer said he has the support of Sen. Dan McDonald (R-48th), chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and the amended bill sailed through that committee on a unanimous voice vote. "I'm not a NIMBY (Not In My Backyard)," von Reichbauer said in a later interview. The senator lives in Dash Point where, along with residents in Browns Point and Northeast Tacoma, residents have been most vocal in their opposition to the plant. "The process has been flawed. The government has got to live by the rules they expect everyone else to live by," von Reichbauer said, charging that Tacoma Public Utilities, which owns the plant, decided that only a DNS was necessary.

Play invites diverse audience

'Carousel' gives lots of reasons to attend

By ANN SEIDNER

If only relatives and friends of the approximately 70-member cast of "Carousel" came to see the show, the house probably would be packed every night.

But being related to, or friendly with someone in the cast isn't the only good reason to see "Carousel," Puget Sound Musical Theatre's current production directed by Lanie McMullin. The local company's rendition of the Rogers and Hammerstein musical presents plenty of good reasons.

First — good music and good acting. Rogers and Hammerstein wrote some of their best for this show about a small coastal community in New England during the late 1800s. Many audience members will recognize such favorites as "June Is Bustin' Out All Over" and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

The entire cast sings some of the classic numbers while dancing energetically on stage to music ringing from the orchestra pit, and those scenes are truly impressive. Equally impressive are the solos by lead characters in the play.

DIANE SWEENEY, who played the narrator in Puget Sound Musical Theatre's previous production of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," plays the intelligent and angelic Julie Jordan in "Carousel." In several scenes, she sends her well-trained, full and resonant voice into the corners of the performing arts center at Decatur High School.

Julie marries a ne'er-do-well carousel tender, Billy Bigelow, played by Alan McEachern. McEachern is a graduate of Thomas Jefferson High who is making his dramatic acting debut in "Carousel."

He is a seasoned singer, however, and he displays an obvious ability to combine the two talents in his "Soliloquy." In this scene, he sings joyfully and defiantly about his future plans for his unborn child — be it boy or girl.

Karla Seman dominates the stage when she's on it as the flighty and downright dumb Carrie Pipperidge. She opens the play declaring her love for the pompous but silly Mr. Enoch Snow (Dick Dilley), and by the end of show, she's married and the mother of eight.

These two couples — Julie and Billy, Carrie and Enoch — form the core of the sad but hopeful story about love.

A SECOND reason to see the show is to witness how well the acting and singing is supported

"YOU'RE A QUEER ONE, Julie Jordan," sings Carrie Pipperidge (right), played by Karla Seman. Sweet and shy around men, Jordan (Diane Sweeney) doesn't quite understand her best friend's criticism. The two women perform lead roles in Puget Sound Musical Theatre's current production of "Carousel," a Rogers and Hammerstein musical set in New England in the late 1800s. The play continues this weekend and next in the Decatur High School Performing Arts Center.

by detailed sets (including a huge carousel) and by the small but adept orchestra made up of members of the Federal Way Philharmonic. The orchestra is conducted by Brian Davenport, who conducts the philharmonic's own performances.

And a third reason to see "Carousel" is to marvel at the seemingly endless connections the cast and crew boast from home and community.

For example, McEachern was recruited for his leading role by Don Barrows, musical director and founding member of Puget Sound Musical Theatre. Barrows also served as choir instructor of McEachern while he taught at Thomas Jefferson High.

Dilley is the brother of Don Dilley, assistant musical director and pianist for "Carousel." Dick Dilley's wife, Michelle, came to help with make-up, Al Reamer, president of the nearby Burien Little Theatre, is in charge of costumes, and many other family connections are evident by reading repetitive last names throughout the program.

THESE connections are not examples of blatant nepotism, existing only for lack of other talent. Puget Sound Musical Theatre seeks community and family connections on purpose, to highlight the wealth of local talent.

That was the charge of three Federal Way teachers who founded Puget Sound Musical Theatre in 1981. Two of those teachers, Mary Jean McDonald and Don Barrows, remain active in the company today. McDonald, a teacher at Adelaide Elementary, has served as the company's artistic director since its inception. And Barrows, choral director at Kentridge High School in Kent, continues to serve as musical director.

The two were involved in a performing group in Burien for a while before realizing that much of the talent in that group came from the Federal Way area. So they decided to found a theater company to support that abundance of local talent.

The company has taken on some classic musicals over the years, including "Oliver," "The Music Man," "Fiddler on the Roof" and "Peter Pan." In 1987, the company experimented with a smaller cast and more sophisticated production of "Guys and Dolls," but the next year returned to its showcase style with "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." "Carousel" continues that tradition.

Puget Sound Musical Theatre continues performances of "Carousel" this weekend and next at Decatur High School. Show times are 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Decatur High School is located at 2800 S.W. 320th St. in Federal Way. Advance tickets are $3.50 general admission and $5 for seniors and students and are available at The Place for Gifts and Things, 32901 First Ave. S. Tickets at the door will cost 50 cents more. For more information, call 838-3237.

A peek at the weekend

TONIGHT: The Pavilion Playhouse at the Pavilion Mall in Tukwila will open a new season with a performance by The Storysingers. The multi-talented duo will perform at 1 p.m. in the first level atrium of the mall, where a monthly children's theatre presentation is offered to the public for free. The Storysingers will present their own unique style of combining stories with music and drama. For more information about The Storysingers or about the Pavilion Playhouse, call 575-8090.

SATURDAY: Book World in Kent presents a free event for devotees of British broadcaster Dr. Who. Activities will include video shows of old and new Dr. Who episodes, a trivia question and answer panel, a demonstration of a Dr. Who role-playing game and a prize drawing. Dr. Who is host of a British science fiction program for children, but has gained popularity over the show's 25-year history in the U.S. as well. Call 824-9422 for more information.

SUNDAY: A percussion orchestra made of gongs, chimes, metallophones, xylophones, string instruments and flutes called Gamelan Pacifica will perform a concert of original and traditional music at the PONCHO Concert Hall. The instruments are from central Java in Southeast Asia and the music is rhythmical and cyclical, somewhat like western jazz. Endo Suanda, a drummer and dancer from West Java, will join the Gamelan as a guest performer. The show will begin at 8 p.m. at 710 E. Roy St. in Seattle. Tickets are $6 general admission and $4 for students and seniors and are available at the door. Call 323-1400, ext. 217, for more information.

THIS WEEKEND: The Northwest Chamber Orchestra will present its third concert in the Conductor's Showcase series tonight, Saturday and Sunday at the Intiman Theater in Seattle. Called "The Elegance of Rococo," the concert will feature selected works of Mozart, Handel and Haydn, conducted by David Blum. Blum's daughter, Pamina Blum, will perform Mozart's "Concerto for Flute" as the program's guest soloist. Concerts begin at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday. Ticket prices range from $8 to $17 and are available by calling 343-0445. Children age 17 and younger will be admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

April ballet offers original works

Dance works choreographed by members of the Pacific Northwest Ballet and by the ballet's artistic director will be presented in the company's April program next week.

"Delicate Balance" and "Dumbarton Oaks," choreographed by Kent Stowell, artistic director, will be performed at 8 p.m. April 12, 13 and 14 and at 2 and 8 p.m. April 15 in the Seattle Center Opera House. Also included in the program will be a performance of "Roses," choreographed by Paul Taylor and set to the music of Richard Wagner and Heinrich Baermann. Works by members of the Ballet company are set to music by Hindemith, Muffat and American composer Walter Piston.

Ticket prices for the shows range from $9 to $40 and are available by calling Ticketmaster at 628-0888 or at any Ticketmaster outlet.

Centennial show highlights women

As part of the state's centennial celebration, the lives of pioneer and native Washington women will be explored in a musical reading called "Our Mothers' Stories."

Playwright Nikki Nojimi and the Group Theatre Company will take the audience on a metaphorical journey through the state and through the lives of women — Native American, Asian, Hispanic, Black and Caucasian. The performance will take place at 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 12, at the Kent Senior Activity Center Auditorium at 600 E. Smith St.

Members of the activity center will offer a pioneer dessert, coffee and tea for sale to accompany the performance, which is free.

For more information, call 859-3991.

Celtic quartet to play in Ballard

Canada's Rare Air quartet will perform traditional and new Celtic music tomorrow at the Backstage in Ballard.

Each member of Rare Air plays a variety of rare and exotic instruments and composes new original music from traditional sources. The group's appearance in Seattle is sponsored by Tir na nOg and the Seattle Folklore Society.

Tickets for the 8:30 p.m. show are $9 general admission and can be purchased at all Ticketmaster outlets or by calling Ticketmaster at 628-0888. Tickets will cost $1 more at the door.

For more information, call 525-5218 or 789-3764.

At the Movies

"THE ACCIDENTAL TOURIST"

William Hurt, Geena Davis and Kathleen Turner are all excellent in "The Accidental Tourist." The story is about travel writer Hurt's escape from life after the murder of his son and his eventual return to the human race. Kathleen Turner stars as his wife and Davis is the girlfriend who helps him start caring again. It's not exactly an action movie, but it's filled with warmth and humor.

Rated PG-13. "The Accidental Tourist" is playing at Gateway Center.

"LEAN ON ME"

Morgan Freeman plays the real life Joe Clark in his inspirational story of a fiery high school principal. Clark gained national attention and praise from former President Reagan for turning a New Jersey school from a drug-infested cauldron of violence into a place of learning in less than a year. Expelling students, firing teachers and chain-locking fire doors to keep out drug activity finally leads to the film's climactic ending, when Clark gets thrown in jail. It's an exhilarating film. Rated PG-13. "Lean On Me" is playing at Gateway Center.

All sixth-graders will take DARE

officers, Moore said. Two of the precinct's DARE officers will work full-time on the program and the third will work part-time, he added.

The details have not been worked out with the district, but Sherrelle Walker, assistant superintendent of educational services, said she is thrilled at the prospect of having DARE in each school.

"This is what we've been hoping for all along, and we've indicated to the county that we are interested in the program," she said.

The cost of materials from the program, which ranges from $100-$200 per class, probably will be paid by the district, said

Maj. Dick Kraske, who administers the program countywide.

"WE WILL support it to the best of our ability, but until we get something in writing, we don't know what we're looking at. We're in the waiting process now," said Judy Wall, district information officer.

School districts that find it difficult to come up with the money for materials may get some help from local service organizations, Kraske said. The county's DARE program recently incorporated itself so it can raise funds for the program from outside county budgeting channels, Kraske said. He added that most service organizations have been receptive to the idea and several have pledged support for the program, including the Federal Way Rotary Club, which donated $3,000 last year.

The county supplies the officers, and in some cases, the materials, at an estimated cost of $68 per student, Kraske said.

The Kent Police Department is hoping to keep its DARE officer in the schools that have the program this year, and is trying to add another officer to the program, said Diane Lewis, crime prevention program assistant.

She said the department has not determined which schools will get the program, but it anticipates trying to keep it at the three schools that currently have DARE.

ALTHOUGH Sunnycrest is in the Federal Way School District, it is in the Kent police jurisdiction. Kraske said King County originally had provided the DARE program in other jurisdictions, but tends to shy away from that now.

"We have enough to do in our own area, that we don't like to cross jurisdictions," he said.

Kraske added that he has asked for and received five more DARE officers (two of which are Crisp and Butschli), and by April 14, he will have 16 officers teaching the program countywide.

The DARE program started last year as a pilot program at Brigadoon Elementary, where parents and students lobbied heavily to keep the program and expand it districtwide.

One backer disenchanted with program

Although school and police officials are excited by the expansion of the DARE program, at least one past supporter is disenchanted with the program.

Bill Schweizer, who with his wife, Sherry, has been a dogged advocate of DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education), says he no longer is a supporter of the program. The main reason he no longer wants to be a part of the program he says, is because he has not been allowed to play an active role.

"They have removed my wife and me from the program, and this program is about parent and community involvement," Bill Schweizer said.

He said his wife has been told she cannot play a part in planning the spring DARE graduation ceremony, and that he has received a letter from the King County Sheriff's Department telling him his lobbying efforts no longer are welcome.

He said he and Sherry have become disenchanted with those administering the program because they believe officials were not up front with them about their intentions for DARE, especially promises that it would remain at Brigadoon Elementary School, where their children are students.

Parents and students at Brigadoon, which hosted the pilot

DARE program, gathered signatures and petitioned in support of the program and lobbied to keep it at their school and expand it districtwide.

Sherry Schweizer still views the expansion as a victory.

"The bottom line is that sixth-graders at Brigadoon will have DARE next fall. It's too bad we missed a whole semester because of politics, but this should give those kids a lot of pride, knowing they were an effective part of the program," she said.

Computer working on new boundaries

we've found all those little cubbyholes and side streets that have been built since maps of Federal Way were drawn," said Wall.

DISTRICT ADMINISTRATORS are also preparing to move special programs, such as special education and English as a Second Language classes, to new schools throughout the district. New boundaries offer a chance to redistribute those programs more equitably throughout local schools, said Sherrelle Walker, assistant superintendent for educational support.

Meetings with parents and teachers of children in special programs have been held to get feedback about coming changes, Walker said.

"I think parents have been aware and accepting of the fact that there will be boundary changes here next year, and that boundary adjustments will be ahead of us for quite a while," she added.

With districtwide boundary changes planned for the next two years at least, the school board last fall approved the purchase of the school district's own $54,000 GeoBased computer system to track and redistribute its students.

Although work this year is being done in Los Angeles, where trained personnel are available to operate the GeoBased system, the district eventually will receive its own software to use on district-owned computers.

Although a single school district employee will be trained to use the software, all school secretaries will be taught to supply data for use by the GeoBased system, Wall said.

The work currently being done in Los Angeles as well as the training for district employees were included in the system's $54,000 price.

Skylight will bring sun inside the mall

SeaTac Mall is updating its look.

The area in front of Nordstrom's Place Two, formerly a courtyard with temporary vendors and a brightly-colored dome ceiling, is being remodeled.

According to Sally Mantz, mall manager, the ceiling will become a domed skylight, and facilities will be constructed for six permanent merchants in the area, which will be called "Kiosk Village."

Construction on the project is now underway, and will be complete by the end of July. So far, Nintendo and Kinderphoto have signed leases for Kiosk Village spaces, and other tenants are being lined up.

The outdoors theme of Kiosk Village will be enhanced by trees and park benches.

"It picks up the look of the mall," Mantz said.

The remodeling project is part of many changes in store for SeaTac Mall, which is now 13 years old.

At the Mall

The most notable change at the mall has been development of the Fleetstreet food court.

Mantz declined to disclose specific projects in the future, but did say that expansion projects are heating up.

While workers remodel the Kiosk Village area, a barricade has been erected to protect the public from falling debris. An artist recently completed drawings of mall employees on the outside of the barrier to dress it up, said Lynn Standerfer, the mall's marketing director.

Fired worker files complaint

By WENDY CULVERWELL

Former employees at KTBW-TV, the Federal Way affiliate of the Trinity Broadcast Network, once considered their many overtime hours charitable work.

The 12 to 15 people it takes to run the Christian cable TV station gladly donate their time to the TBN ministry, said one former employee who asked to remain anonymous. They believed in their work so much, she said, that if they could have afforded to, they would have worked for free.

For their efforts, former KTBW employees say they were harassed by station manager Jim Fuller, who was fired last month for allegedly violating company policies. The former employee said that in the two years Fuller was station manager, 40 people were hired and left KTBW. In the three years before that, only one person was fired, she said.

The former employee said she was fired abruptly and without explanation in 1987. When it happened, Fuller let her remain an hour to finish the payroll so that employees would get their paychecks on time. Police officers then escorted her off the grounds and she was not paid for finishing her work, she said.

"It's like a wife going the extra mile, and then finding out the husband has strayed — that he doesn't appreciate her," she said.

FULLER called allegations against him "scurrilous" and "libelous."

"The charges are untrue," he said. His attorney declined to say if he would take legal action against TBN over his firing.

One of the people to lose a job under Fuller was Holly Allen, a Kent resident and born-again Christian whose answering machine message ends with a warm, "And God bless you very much!"

Allen volunteered at KTBW as a prayer partner, answering viewer calls to an on-screen number, for about 1½ years. When the old coordinator left, Allen got the paid job of overseeing the volunteers. She was in the KTBW building, 1909 S. 341st Pl., when the anonymous woman was escorted off the grounds by police.

"We operated like a well-oiled machine," Allen recalled during a telephone interview Tuesday.

Allen was one of the first people to complain about Fuller to TBN's founder and president, Paul Crouch. The company is based in Santa Ana, Calif.

FULLER verbally abused employees and made false accusations against them as well, Allen said. And when he fired people, she said he contrived to make it appear they had quit so they wouldn't get unemployment benefits.

She said she was fired for insubordination two years ago. Last month, she filed a complaint against TBN with the National Religious Broadcasters, saying she was fired without cause.

The complaint was prompted when four people quit their jobs on the same day.

"We wanted it cleaned up inside," Allen explained. "As Christians, we didn't want the media making a heyday out of this, so we took the Biblical way (of going up the chain of command)."

"But we're willing to talk now," she said. "We think it's going to take a sovereign act of the Lord to clear this up."

In her complaint and in interviews, Allen likened Crouch and his wife to "master" and "mistress" and the employees to "slaves."

THE CROUCHES were aware of the Fuller situation, Allen believes.

Phil Little, a private detective in North Hollywood, Calif., who handles TBN investigations, said that isn't the case.

Employees and former employees who think Crouch knew and approved of employee abuse are incorrect, he said.

Little explained that the manager was put on probation during the investigation, and fired when TBN determined he was breaking company policy.

"Mr. Crouch's position is if there's a problem, we want it solved," Little said.

KTBW-TV, the Federal Way affiliate of the Trinity Broadcast Network, is at the center of a complaint filed last month with the National Religious Broadcasters. Holly Allen of about 1,000 religious broadcasters. It is reviewing Allen's complaint along with Crouch's response, said Richard Bott, chair of the NRB ethics committee.

"It would be impossible for me to say how long it will take for the entire series of complaints to be reviewed," Bott said from his Missouri home.

AS OF next year, the NRB will no longer sanction family-controlled operations, such as TBN, and it's possible TBN will become disassociated with NRB.

With Fuller gone, the anonymous employee believes KTBW can go back to doing its job — Christian ministry via cable TV to the King/Pierce county areas.

"I have high hopes that all the problems are behind Channel 20," she said.

Allen, who still enjoys some TBN programs but not Crouch's show, is less enthusiastic about the organization.

At one point, she said, 12 phone lines handled prayer partner calls. Now only five lines are in place and there aren't enough volunteers to answer them, she said. When she made a test call recently, she got a constant busy signal.

It used to be set up, she explained, so that after-hours calls could be forwarded to volunteers' homes. Suicide calls, she remembers, usually came late at night. And the 24-hour food and clothing bank now has restricted hours, she said.

"You've got little old grandmas skipping meals to send money to this," she said. "Donors don't realize the services they think they're supporting aren't as available as they should be."

Little responded that accountability to TBN's financial supporters is one of Crouch's top priorities.

A spokeswoman for KTBW said the affiliate's management is not commenting on the situation.

HELPFUL ADVICE COMES FROM FAITH AND A POPULAR SONG
As you probably remember, there was a song last fall which became an instant success, and not entirely because it was catchy and cleverly written. What really made it such a tremendous hit was the good advice it contained, simply stated in four words and repeated throughout. It told us not to worry about our problems, giving examples of some of them, but instead to "be happy." Of course, many of our woes require some action on our part to solve them, but just showing our anxiety will only upset those around us. Perhaps the best way to follow the song's advice is to attend our House of Worship and trust the Lord to provide the answers. Worry will no, solve any problem, and we should be grateful to that song writer for reminding us of this fact.

What's the use of worrying?
It never was worthwhile,
So, pack up your troubles
in your old kit-bag,
And smile, smile, smile.
— George H. Powell

DECATUR RIGHT fielder Donniss Henry makes the second out of the fourth inning during Tuesday's game with Puyallup. The fourth was the last inning of play, as rain cut the action short.

Rain benefits Gators, hurts Raiders

By TIM CLINTON
This week's wet weather has been a headache for most area baseball teams, but it's been a blessing for Decatur. Twice the Gators seemed on their way to getting blown out when rain saved the day. They trailed Thomas Jefferson, 9-1, when rain halted the action in the third inning Monday, and were down, 10-1, to Puyallup in the fourth Tuesday when the game was called. Both games must be replayed in their entirety. But the Decatur coaching staff feels the action may already be paying off for their inexperienced but potentially talented team. "The only thing these teams have over us is experience," said Gator assistant coach Lance Baker. "The nice thing about this is we got some experience and the games didn't even count. Somebody up there likes us." Decatur found itself bouncing back at the time Tuesday's game was halted. Brady Nelson, the only returnee from last year's team that finished fourth in the state, led off the inning with a home run, and the bases were loaded when it was called. "What happened that last inning was we relaxed and had fun for the first time," said head coach Gary Holmboe, whose team remains at 0-1 in South Puget Sound League play and is 2-1 overall. BUT FOR TJ head coach Jim Gard, Monday's rain-out was not a happy experience. "It was frustrating," said Gard. "Too bad we couldn't finish it." The Raiders have yet to play a league game, with five SPSL games to make up already counting a game that was supposed to be played at Sumner Wednesday. That one will be made up Monday at 3:30 p.m., since the last rain out has to be made up first. Gard's team had already been given the rest of this week off for vacation. TJ has fared better in non-league action, getting two games in and splitting to stand at 1-1 overall. The Raiders started off with four runs in the top of the first Monday.

Jamie Sonnenfeld led off with a single to left, and Bill McNally hit one off a diving first baseman's glove. Pete Persons singled to load the bases for TJ standout Aaron Martin, who ripped a two-run single into the hole in left field. Aaron's brother, Chris, singled to score two more after John Steele hit into an out. The Gators' Nelson responded with a solo home run with two outs and nobody on and an 0-2 count against him in the bottom of the inning, but the Raiders rallied for five more in the third. Walks and errors proved disastrous for Decatur that inning, but with five runs in and the bases loaded for Martin, the ballgame was stopped. BILLY HOBERT was having a big day for Puyallup that went for naught on Tuesday. Hobert, who is headed for the University of Washington as a football quarterback, singled in one run in the first, hit a solo home run in the third and then added a two-run blast in the fourth. On the mound, the Viking senior struck out nine Gators over the first three innings, with the only Decatur hit into play being a double by Kevin Dahl. Other than the double and a hit batter, it was all strikeouts. But with Puyallup up, 10-0, going into the bottom of the fourth, things began to change. Nelson, just after commenting that Hobert "doesn't throw hard enough to break a pain of glass," blasted a pitch way over the fence in left. Matt Leamer drew a walk and Bill Ludwig singled ahead of a passed ball. Leamer turned in about a 20-foot slide through the mud on the play to make it into third. Corey Smith followed with a walk and Viking head coach Jerry DeLaurenti went to the mound to replace Hobert, but a steadily increasing rain and a wet field drove the umpire to stop the action right there. DeLaurenti protested, but to no avail. DECATUR was to play Federal Way last night (weather permitting), before hosting Tye for non-league action at 3:30 p.m. today.

Ruffo remains true to Kennedy nine

By ADAM WORCESTER
At baseball games, he might be sitting in the stands behind the Kennedy dugout. At football and soccer games, he might be in the pressbox or strolling the Lancer sidelines. At basketball games, he might be front and center behind the scorer's table. But he's always there. John Ruffo has never missed a Kennedy baseball game. In fact, Ruffo has missed few Lancer sporting events in his 21 years at the school. From football and girls' soccer in the fall through baseball and boys' soccer in the spring, he has shared triumphs, sorrows and rain delays right along with the teams. He even followed swimming for four years, when North Puget Sound League 50-yard freestyle champ Lisa Yonaka was a student in one of his business courses. "I DON'T think there's a sport I don't like," he says. Ruffo is stat man, No. 1 fan and unabashed booster of Kennedy athletics. He has handled football scoring duties for 15 years and kept the boys' basketball scorebook for 20. In between, he teaches business classes and freshman algebra. He also found time to coach the freshman boys' basketball team for 11 seasons. Last winter, he took a sabbatical from coaching and scorekeeping to watch the girls' basketball team. "After following them so far in soccer, I wanted to see them play hoops," he says. "You get hooked on something, and enjoy it, you want to follow it." But Ruffo does much more than "follow" his teams. He charts them, promotes them, and boosts player morale. HIS PREGAME candy gift to the girls' soccer team last fall, Tootsie Pops, became a ritual throughout the Lancers' run to the state championship. Each bar emphasized a theme. For the first state playoff game, against Columbia River, it was Three Musketeers: "All for one."

For Juanita it was Peppermint Patty: "We were going to freeze them out." For Mead, in the semifinals, it was Butterfinger: "We aren't going to let this chance slip through our hands." For Issaquah, naturally, it was Uno. At the team's end-of-season awards banquet, Ruffo presented each player with a trophy full of candy. "HE'S ONE OF the most generous people I know," says Lancer soccer coach Doug

Raiders boot Spanaway to remain on top

Despite playing on poor field conditions, the Thomas Jefferson boys' soccer team remained unbeaten with a 6-1 victory over Spanaway Lake at Bethel High School Tuesday night. The Bethel field was in poor shape and is "in need of repair," explained Jefferson coach Jim Judson. "It really disturbed one's ability to perform," he said. Aaron Van Dusen managed to score three goals for a hat trick in spite of the poor sloppy playing conditions that caused players problems with their footing, while Daryn Ditmore scored twice and Jeff Clayton hit the back of the net once. "We definitely dominated play," said Jefferson coach Jim Judson, whose team boosted its season record to 4-0-2. "Under those conditions, the kids did well. We had some very good scoring opportunities and were able to capitalize on some of them. We were happy to come away with a win, that's for sure, to keep pace." The Raiders are tied for first place in the South Puget Sound League standings with Lakes at 3-0. Decatur, which meets Federal Way at Federal Way

Memorial Field tomorrow at 7 p.m., is one half game back of the leaders at 2-0. Jefferson was playing without regular starters Brad Kolbo and Dan Parnell, but the Raiders drew solid performances from their replacements with Tim Tilbury playing in Kolbo's sweeper position and Jason Bowers in Parnell's center mid-field spot. Others having good games for Jefferson were outside fullback David Zumwalt, forwards Aaron Van Dusen and Daryn Ditmore, outside midfielder Jeff Clayton and Shannan Seelig at fullback. THE DEFENDING Class AAA state champion Raiders have run into some stiffer competition this year in the SPSL, said Judson. "It looks like there's more parity in the league this year," said Judson. "I think everybody we have played this year has shown signs of improvement." Jefferson opened SPSL play with a 3-2 victory in a shootout over Puyallup before beating Bethel, 4-0. The Raiders will return to SPSL play at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at home against Rogers. TJ has a bye next Friday.

Academy shines in open tourney

The Federal Way Academy of Martial Arts showed its stuff once again at the 16th annual Jerry Gould Shorinryu Open at Highline Community College April 1. In the pee wee division, Long Nguyen took a second place trophy in kata (forms) competition. Also in the pee wee division, Nguyen and Misha Lapoint teamed up for a second place finish in entertainment with a skit they performed to music. Lapoint, who is only 9½ years old but has been taking martial arts lessons from the Academy for 5½ years, just recently earned a black belt. In the junior division, which is for youngsters between 9 and 15 years old, Nathan Jones took first in advanced kumite (fighting). Also in the junior division, Michael Rhodes grabbed ed first place in white-yellow belt kata. His brother, Jerome, finished fourth in kata in the same division. Joe Witt captured second place in kata also in junior division competition. Another trophy in the junior division came from Jason Hamer with a third-place finish in white belt kata. In women's competition, Amber Oedewaldt claimed first in kata, Joyce Liberty grabbed third in white-yellow belt kata and Karlene Escriba took fourth in women's white-yellow belt kata. In the women's brown belt division, Daisy Lapoint took a strong second-place finish. In men's black belt competition, Claro Austria claimed third place in open division form.

Chamber sets golf tourney for June 14

The second annual Federal Way Chamber of Commerce Golf Tournament will take place June 14 at the North Shore Golf and Country Club. Registration is limited to the first 144 paid golfers. Reservations can be made with the Chamber office by calling 838-2605. Cost per person is $45, which includes golf, tee prizes and dinner.

The format for the tournament and awards are as follows: low gross, low net in handicap and callaway divisions, closest to the string, best foursome gross score, closest to the pin on all par threes and the "grossest" score of men and women. Tee time will be 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. with cocktail hour starting at 6 p.m., dinner at 7 p.m. and awards at 7:30 p.m.

Czubin takes top honors for week

Kelly Czubin, a junior on the Federal Way girls' track team, has been named the Federal Way News' Athlete of the Week. Czubin, also a standout forward on the Federal Way girls' basketball team, has continued her success in the spring with consistent winning performances. Czubin captured wins in the high jump (5-1), long jump (15-1) and the triple jump (30-10), and also ran the leading leg on the Eagles' Victorious 1,600-meter relay team last Friday afternoon against the Rogers Rams.

Athlete of the Week

Federal Way won the girls' meet, 75-57, to bring its South Puget Sound League record to 2-1.

Another time, Ruffo caught a lineup discrepancy that earned Kennedy technical free throws and a quick second-half lead in a crucial NPSL basketball contest. But he says his best memories are of pitcher Floyd Bannister and the 1973 state-championship baseball team. BANNISTER WON 15 games, 12 of them shutouts, struck out 196 of 378 batters and recorded a 0.00 earned run average in leading the Lancers through a 28-1 season. He later pitched for the Mariners, White Sox and Royals in the major leagues. "He was phenomenal," Ruffo says. "If you got a run for him you were guaranteed at least a tie." "Last year's team, outside of Bannister, had to be the most fun because it's fun to have that type of offense." The Lancers led the NPSL with a .423 team batting average.

'Thrill Search' opening

Thrill Search 1989, the Pacific Northwest's first ever adventure sports trade show, will run today through Sunday at the Seattle Center Exhibition Hall. Sports enthusiasts can test their skill on a windsurfing simulator, dive into a scuba tank, view world class climbers Paul Piana and Todd Skinner scale a 40-foot sculptured cement wall, watch exhibition stadium trials by Swatch Pro Cycling Team Member Hans Rey, participate in a seminar on emergency wilderness medicine given by authors Cliff Jacobson and William Forgey MD, share experiences with Stacy Allison, the first American woman to reach the summit of Mt. Everest, and see the latest in equipment and technology relating to kayaking, climbing, hiking, windsurfing, cycling, running and fitness. Hours for the event are 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. to 9 a.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $4.50 for adults, $3 for seniors and $2 for children 6-12. Children under six will be admitted free.

Aerobics offered by Kent parks

A class that offers an opportunity for kids ages six and over and parents to do a complete aerobic workout will be offered this spring by Kent Parks and Recreation Department at Scenic Hill Elementary School, 260525 Woodland Way So., Kent. Participants will get in shape learning the basics of aerobic exercise and physical fitness while working out to music using simple and creative movements with certified aerobics instructor, Debbie Galbraith. Class meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m. Class fee is $41 for adults and $20 for kids. Call 859-3599 for information.

Correction: Umpire in photo is misidentified

The umpire in Sunday's Decatur-Rogers baseball photo that appeared in the Federal Way News ("Decatur nine drops opener to Rams, 7-2") was incorrectly identified as Robbie Ruth. Federal Way resident Doug Sample was shown making the out call on a Rogers player.

TWISTING AND TURNING over the Hylebos Waterway, these ducts on Tacoma's incinerator (Steam Plant #2) will carry high temperature gases from the burner's combustion chambers to the boilers. From there, the gases will travel to the economizer, where they will be cooled by water, and then on to the baghouses to filter the emissions before the gases are sent out the stack, which remains to be built. Northeast Tacoma, on the bluff above Commencement Bay, is in the background.

Incinerator amendment debated

At newspaper press time yesterday, HB 1671 was scheduled for a second reading on the floor of the Senate.

IF IT PASSES the full Senate, the bill will then go back to the House for concurrence on the amendment. But its progress even that far does not mean the bill has a free and clear passage to the governor's desk, von Reichbauer said.

"The lobbyists are working overtime," he said.

Bob Mack, lobbyist for the city of Tacoma, said that he and Greg Hanon, lobbyist for Tacoma Public Utilities, will be working to delete the amendment from the bill as it travels through the Senate and back to the House.

"Our view is that the amendment is inappropriate for that bill," Mack said.

HB 1671 is a bill that sets recycling goals for all municipalities in the state and defines incineration as one of the last alternatives to use as a solution to the state's solid waste disposal problem.

Mack said that von Reichbauer's amendment technically lies outside of the "scope and object" of the bill, and should be removed on those grounds.

Removing the EIS requirement from the bill will be difficult because the language is included in an amendment that speaks to other subjects as well. The amendment must be dissected to remove only part of it.

But Mack said the fight is not over.

"It will be harder to take out that section," Mack said, "but not impossible."

Citizens of the Month

DECATUR HIGH SCHOOL DECA CLUB advisors Bob Pressey (left) and Paul Stoltenberg were named Citizens of the Month for February by the Federal Way Chamber of Commerce. About 200 Decatur students are involved in DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) business classes. Several Decatur DECA students have been involved with chamber activities. In addition, 12 Decatur DECA students recently qualified to go to national competition.

Candidate protests rules for residency

Despite a lull in the number of city council candidates who have filed since a rush of first-day filings, a controversy has arisen about the residency of one announced candidate.

Tom Trigg filed Monday. However, Trigg does not reside in Federal Way, contrary to elections regulations that state all candidates must live in the area in which they are running for city council.

Trigg listed the address of the insurance business he operates in Federal Way as his residence. That doesn't conform to election laws, according to county elections officials.

However, elections officials say they won't contest Trigg's candidacy unless someone else officially contests it.

ANY REGISTERED voter may contest the issue. It simply requires a letter from a voter stating specific reasons or evidence that Trigg does not live in Federal Way.

Elections officials then would look into the issue and make their own determination whether to take Trigg's name off the ballot.

April 28 is the last day to contest Trigg's residency.

The residency requirements have been contested in other city council elections, according to Bob Bruce, elections superintendent.

THE STATE Attorney General has ruled that businesses do not qualify as residences in past cases, Bruce said.

Trigg, 41, said he has owned a house on Vashon Island for the last three years, but lived in Federal Way for about 30 years before that.

Trigg said that owning his insurance business in Federal Way for the last 10 years should qualify him for running for city council.

"I spend 12 hours a day here," Trigg said.

City council candidate list swells

Loudon could not be reached for comment.

• R.T. "Bob" Wood in Position 5. Wood could not be reached for comment.

THE TWO top vote-getters in each of the seven non-partisan positions in the May 16 primary will then face off in the Sept. 19 final election.

After the council takes office, it has until March 10, 1990, to officially incorporate.

Until then, King County is still responsible for governing Federal Way.

Here is a list of the candidates who filed on Monday and the positions they originally filed for. Some may have switched positions since then.

- Position 1: Ethan Allen, Alfred Frank and Bill Shortt.
- Position 2: Lynn Templeton.
- Position 3: Debbie Ertel.
- Position 4: Kenneth Pease, Thomas Trigg and James Webster.
- Position 5: James Handmacher and Michelle Lewis.
- Position 6: Robert Stead and Ray Tomlinson.
- Position 7: Don Miller, Kenneth Poyneer and Phil Watkins.

Police dog's nose leads to purse thief

A woman who was robbed by a man she had given a ride to got her money back Tuesday after a police dog tracked the man to a restaurant near where the crime occurred.

The woman told King County police that she had given the man a ride and when she stopped her car at South 256th Street and 26th Avenue South at about 10 p.m. to let him out, he grabbed her purse and ran.

She said she went home to call police, who responded with a K-9 unit. The dog followed the man's scent to a restaurant at Pacific Highway South and South 254th Street. The woman pointed out the man who robbed her to police and he was arrested. The man gave the woman back her money, showed police where he had dumped the rest of her belongings and was released when the woman said she no longer wished to pursue charges.

Burglar makes easy entry into salon

No signs of forced entry were detected at Kona Tans, where a burglar stole the safe and made off with money from the cash register.

King County police report that the owner found the safe missing from its usual spot when she opened for business Monday morning. An early customer helped search the business and found the empty cash register tray and an empty coin box from a soda vending machine. The soda machine had been opened with a key.

The business was not ransacked, and police are investigating those who may have had access to building keys.
