Draft city policies unveiled

County would honor '89 budget

By LYNN FRANCISCO and LYNN KEEBAUGH

Some Federal Way residents are concerned about the mixed messages they're hearing from King County regarding the fate of several road projects planned here for 1989.

Some say they have been told, depending on who they talk to, that the county no longer is responsible for building or maintaining roads in Federal Way because citizens here voted to incorporate.

That's not so, Bryan Glynn told a group gathered Thursday morning at a meeting of the Federal Way Chamber of Commerce Legislative and Transportation committees.

Glynn, director of the Office of New Cities, said County Executive Tim Hill believes the county should go ahead and spend its share of the more than $9.3 million in road projects planned in Federal Way in 1989, and a county council staff report presented Wednesday concurs. Some $3.1 million for those projects comes from county funds and the rest from grants, said Lou Haff, county road engineer.

Some of those major projects include widening Southwest 312th Street, South 356th Street and Southwest 356th Street.

The task now, Glynn acknowledged, is informing county employees at all levels that the county still is responsible not only for those projects, but for fixing potholes and maintaining roads, at least through the year. Beyond that depends on the council's reaction to staff recommendations and a willingness for the city to share costs with the county, he said.

The county should carry through with spending those dollars, said Lonnie McLean, Transportation Committee chairman. It cannot afford to irk

Puffing policy sparks little fire

Cigarette boxes tap-danced across the video screen in the Federal Way School District Board Room, and cartoon caveman Fred Flintstone sang, "Winston tastes good like a cigarette should."

The happy-go-lucky antics of decades-old tobacco commercials were in sharp contrast to the duty of the Federal Way School Board on Tuesday night, which was to look over a proposal that would outlaw tobacco use in all district buildings and on all district grounds.

The school board expected a burning debate for this first look at the committee-devised proposal, but it was obviously unprepared for a nearly empty board room. Only five people, all members of the district's tobacco-free study committee, showed up.

"I suspect that parents don't realize yet that this means when they come to open houses, concerts, plays, games and so forth, that they won't be able to smoke on the grounds," said Nancy Robertson, president of the board.

Tom Murphy, assistant superintendent of secondary programs and chairman of the tobacco-free committee that created the policy, reiterated that point at a Federal Way PTA Council meeting Wednesday. He urged PTA members to publicize the proposed policy to parents, and encouraged comments.

"What parents need to know is that this affects everyone — parents, students, teachers, volunteers, guests, construction workers, everyone," he said.

SOME DISTRICT buildings currently have no restrictions on smoking for district employees and guests, although many schools have designated smoking areas and some allow no smoking at all.

IF THE PROPOSED policy is approved by the school board, the smoking ban would be phased in. First, smoking areas would be designated for each building in September, although

Utility sells land to lone bidder

By KURT HERZOG

Local developer Andrew Cratsenberg Sr. has been awarded the Water District 56 watershed for $490,000.

Federal Way Water and Sewer District commissioners voted unanimously Tuesday to sell the property to Cratsenberg after he was the sole bidder for the 20-acre parcel west of Marine Hills.

Cratsenberg said he plans to build homes for himself and his wife and for their two sons on the property. He already owns land to the north and south of the watershed. Together with the watershed, Cratsenberg owns about 44 acres.

Cratsenberg said Tuesday he would like to sell or donate half of the watershed parcel and all of the rest of his original holdings to be turned into a park.

He has been trying to arrange a deal with King County, which earlier had tried to acquire the watershed for $400,000, but the county doesn't appear interested in a park deal, he said.

INSTEAD, HE will be willing to deal with the new city of Federal Way to acquire the park, he said.

"My family will donate all or part of the land for park," Cratsenberg told the district commissioners Tuesday.

Cratsenberg had been trying to obtain the watershed for at least a year and had raised his

Picket power

PUGET POWER employees, unhappy that they have been working without a contract for the past year, are picketing most mornings at the power company's Federal Way work plant on 32nd Avenue South near the Highway 18 overpass. International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers 77 members (from left) Chris Hoyt, Dan Nelson and Maynard Lipp have been carrying signs for the past five weeks. Puget Power employs 1,109 union members. Joe Murphy, IBEW business manager, said work rules and the safety of work crews are at issue, but Puget Power officials refused to comment. Contract negotiations have been ongoing for the past 15 months. The current contract expired 12 months ago, Murphy said. Members believe they can't win a strike, so picketing before work has been one way workers have vented their frustration, he said. Nelson's sign refers to Eastern Airlines President Frank Lorenzo, known for his history of breaking unions and driving hard bargains at contract time.

Burner EIS in Gardner's lap

By ANN SEIDNER

What began as a grassroots effort to require an environmental review of Tacoma's incinerator now has the weight of the state Legislature firmly behind it.

The House overwhelmingly approved HB 1671 Tuesday, 91-4, keeping intact a Senate amendment requiring Tacoma to complete an environmental impact statement (EIS) for its garbage incinerator. The bill, known as the Waste Not Washington Act, now goes to the governor for final approval.

"You can beat city hall sometimes," said Sen. Peter von Reichbauer (R-30th), who introduced the incinerator amendment that has overshadowed at times attention to the omnibus solid waste bill itself. The Dash Point Republican has been the chief legislative ally of a growing number of residents, mainly from Federal Way and Northeast Tacoma, who fear the health and environmental effect of the tidelflats burner and want an EIS to answer their concerns.

Amendment survives despite intense lobbying from Tacoma

Responding to residents' concerns that Tacoma Public Utilities, which owns the $48 million plant, did not obtain the necessary environmental permits, von Reichbauer stuck the incinerator provision onto HB 1671 and fought off objections to keep it there.

In the Senate and the House, some legislators attempted to erase the provision, saying it went beyond the scope of the bill. In both chambers, however, the attempts were defeated and the bill was approved by large margins.

All legislators from the 30th and 33rd districts voted in favor of the bill.

Despite the favorable returns, von Reichbauer said he was surprised by the outcome because of heavy lobbying by Tacoma and its utility division.

"No one expected us to win," he said. "The odds were a million to one."

"I'VE BEEN carrying the sword on this, but the people in the grassroots organizations are really responsible for galvanizing public sentiment," von Reichbauer said.

Besides effective lobbying from von Reichbauer and residents, the size of the overall bill also contributed to the amendment's successful passage, said Rep. Jean Marie Brough (R-30th), who took over von Reichbauer's fight in the News to publish section devoted to council races

Already the phone calls are coming in: "Where can we find out more about the Federal Way City Council candidates?"

On May 10, a week before the May 16 primary election, the Federal Way News will publish candidate profiles in a special section devoted to election issues.

In editions of the newspaper between now and then, we will publish brief introductory stories on the candidates. Some of those candidates announced their intention to run before the filing period began and have received such coverage.

In addition, the Federal Way News is conducting separate endorsement interviews with the candidates for the purposes of offering our recommendations, which will appear on our Comment page in issues shortly before the election.

For introductory stories on three candidates see page A-11.

Man shoots himself rather than face arrest by police

By LYNN KEEBAUGH

A man being sought by police for questioning in a Seattle rape case killed himself yesterday afternoon when he was stopped by a King County police officer.

The 35-year-old man, whose identity was not released by press time yesterday, shot himself in the chest with a 12-gauge shotgun in an empty lot at the northwest corner of Pacific Highway South and South 272nd Street.

King County police had earlier in the day stood by as Seattle police executed a search warrant on the man's Federal Way area residence, looking for him, said Maj. Ollie Moore, Precinct 5 (D Federal Way) commander. The man was not at home, but police put out a description of him and his truck.

Officer Ed Brown spotted the man at about 1:30 p.m. and pulled him over, Moore said. The man drove into the vacant lot and parked his compact truck facing westbound. Brown parked his patrol car about 30 feet away, facing the pickup.

As Brown started to get out of his car, the man took the shotgun, placed it to his chest and pulled the trigger, Moore said. He died instantly.

Nearly a dozen police and emergency vehicles clogged the area for some time immediately after the incident, as the county's major crime unit detectives investigated the shooting. Moore said that the shooting will be treated just as any other death investigation.

Moore also said police are investigating the possibility that the man may have left a suicide note with his girlfriend, who had reported that he seemed worried and despondent.

TIM DYCK may have been born in Ethiopia, but he will direct the Seattle Welsh Choir in a performance in Seattle Sunday.

Dyck also has lived in England, Lebanon, Wales and Canada besides Ethiopia and the United States.

Gymanfu Ganu set for Sunday

Local man to direct Welsh choir

By TIM CLINTON

Tim Dyck has come a long way to direct the Seattle Cor Cymraeg, which will put on a Gymanfu Ganu at Lake City Presbyterian Church April 23.

Or, to put that in English, the Northeast Tacoma resident who was born in Ethiopia will direct the Seattle Welsh Choir in a Festival of Song.

And how did a man born in Ethiopia come to direct a Welsh choir in Seattle?

To start with, he is half Welsh. His mother, who was born in Wales, was working in Ethiopia as a nurse when she met his father — a Mennonite from Kansas who was working for the Ethiopian government as a teacher.

That combination explains in part how Dyck, 32, got into music.

"The Mennonites are great lovers of music," he said. "Their tradition almost rivals the Welsh. Almost, but they have not had their own country or anything to really develop it."

Dyck's memories of Ethiopia are limited to what he has seen in pictures since the family left when he was two years old, but it was only the first of several exotic places he has called home.

From Ethiopia they moved to Birmingham, England, and when he was six they moved to Beirut, Lebanon.

WHEN HE was 10 years old, his family had to flee from Lebanon because of the Arab nations' Six-Day War with Israel.

"We had to paint our headlights blue or black with a little hole to let the light out, so we could see somewhat but not be seen (by the Israelis)," Dyck recalls.

"We had to go stay at the American University, and they called us like at one in the morning and we got on a bus. Some soldiers also got on, and at the airport there were armored cars and trucks with soldiers all over."

The family caught a plane to Istanbul, Turkey, then went to Rome and London on their way to Wales, where they stayed with his grandmother and aunt.

He went to school in Wales for one year before his father decided to return to the states, settling in Portland, Ore. The family lived in Portland three years and then moved to northern Alberta, Canada for his high school years.

Dyck came to Salem, Ore. to attend Western Baptist College, and moved to this area in 1983. He works in juvenile rehabilitation.

He joined the Seattle Welsh Choir once here for the simple reason that he "loves to sing."

"I just grew up loving music," he said. "My dad was a great singer, and my mom loves the piano. My dad also directed choirs when called upon. I kind of grew up with it."

When the former director retired he offered Dyck the job, and he's been at it for five years now.

"It was something I wanted to do since I was 10, so it took a long time to decide — like five or 10 minutes or less," he said.

"When I was 10 years old in Wales, we had a school program. The director had a baton, and I thought it was the neatest thing in the world. I got teased because if I heard music, I'd conduct it."

"Gradually I got more into the music and got into the pattern and saw what other directors do. You can always learn from somebody else."

THE SEATTLE Welsh Choir is composed of about 25 members (depending on who is working at a given time), and gives performances throughout the Northwest wherever invited.

The performances are known as Gymanfas, and consist of 16 hymns, some of which are sung in English and some in Welsh.

But these are not your average hymns, as they are sung in the Welsh style.

"Here the hymns are simplified, and there they are not," said Dyck. "Their harmonies are more different, and therefore they are more interesting."

Gymanfas are not just a concert, as the audience, which usually averages around 400 for the Lake City performances, also takes part.

"Getting 400 people together and singing, that's just great," said Dyck. "We sing a couple hymns and get the audience primed to sing, then then you get them to really sing."

The Welsh are known for their long and rich musical heritage.

"A lot of these tunes are so old no one knows who really wrote them," said Dyck, who mentioned Greensleeves and Londonderry Air as fitting into that category. "The hymns are nitty-gritty real-life stuff. A lot of the hymns were written by people coming out of coal mines."

The Welsh have strong folk music and hymn traditions, and sometimes they intertwine. For instance, in times past the folk music was looked down upon because it wasn't religious, and those tunes became hymns.

"So they developed all these hymns, and now you can go to a pub in Wales and hear people singing these very religious hymns," said Dyck. "They say you hear better hymn-singing in the pubs in Wales than you can in the churches in England — and it's true."

DYCK gets paid only a small

Congregation will build church

By WENDY CULVERWELL
In the early 16th century, the Pope had Michelangelo to paint the Sistine Chapel ceiling. Four centuries and a Protestant Reformation later, Sunrise United Methodist Church considers itself fortunate to have a member with roof-shingling know-how.

The Rev. Chuck Hindman

The roofer and the rest of the congregation, largely untrained as construction workers, will provide the manpower necessary to erect the church's permanent home.

The church held a groundbreaking ceremony at the site, 150 S. 356th St., last Sunday. The Rev. Chuck Hindman originally expected construction to start immediately afterward, but a building permit snafu delayed the project by two weeks.

Plans for the church, drawn up by Miller Hull Architects, were deliberately kept simple enough for unskilled and unpaid workers to follow.

As a result, the building will cost "only" $305,000 rather than $380,000. About $50,000 has been raised so far, $10,000 alone on Commitment Sunday in November 1987, when members made the decision to proceed with the building project.

THE 4-year-old Sunrise congregation has been meeting in the gym at Lake Grove Elementary School since Hindman started the church at the behest of the Methodist church.

Modernization of Lake Grove is scheduled to start in June, long before the congregation will be able to occupy its new quarters. Hindman hopes to move into the new church by next Easter, but isn't sure where the church will go in the meantime. Meeting in a school, he believes, has hindered membership growth by restricting the church's visibility.

Before Sunrise came along, the local Methodist community had two options — Browns Point United Methodist in Northeast Tacoma and Federal Way United Methodist near Thomas Jefferson High School. For many people, neither is close enough to the main part of Federal Way to be considered a neighborhood church.

About 100 families belong to Sunrise — nearly half the adults had never attended church or had not belonged to churches as adults.

Hindman said that's typical for a Methodist church, particularly a new one.

The minister believes some people join young churches rather than established ones because of the influence they can have on its development.

SUNRISE'S member involvement would certainly tend to support that belief. Nearly everyone, Hindman said, got involved with the building project — from filling out opinion surveys to meeting with the architect to raising funds.

The only thing that hasn't been decided, in fact, is the color scheme. Hindman said that everyone wants something "warm and approachable."

"Everybody has a different idea of what 'warm and approachable' is though," he said.

Construction of the 65,000-square-foot multi-purpose facility was originally opposed by DIRE (Development Impact Resistance Exercise), a group of activists that monitors land development decisions involving Federal Way.

King County's Building and Land Use office issued a determination of non-significance for Sunrise, indicating the church's plans posed no adverse impact to the surrounding environment. DIRE appealed the decision because the church property sits only 100 yards from a tributary to the Hylebos Wetlands, and in fact slopes down to the tributary.

Hindman was happy to see the situation resolved after a meeting with DIRE.

Debbie Ertel, DIRE's president, said her group requested that erosion-control measures be taken before the site was cleared, instead of after, as required by the county. Sunrise agreed and DIRE withdrew its appeal.

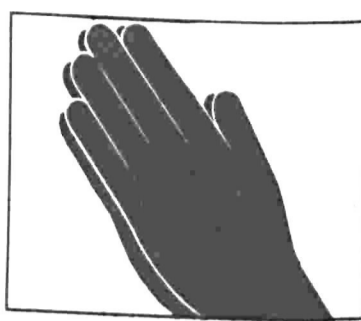

"We're trying to keep the area as natural as possible," Hindman said. "We want to be sensitive to the environment."

Strong faith opens doors to God's riches

By THE REV. JACK HOLT
River of Life Fellowship

Today in the church we have fallen short of the perfect will of God because we don't use our faith. Most Christians are settling for second or even third best instead of going for the best that God has granted to us.

In Romans 12:2, it says that as we renew our minds to the word of God, we will be able to test what is God's perfect will.

Many Christians are settling for just God's good will instead of developing their faith to its full potential. Jesus himself rebuked his disciples because they did not preserve their faith by casting out a devil.

The disciples asked Jesus why they were not able to. Matthew 17:20 explains, "Because of the littleness of your faith; for truly I say to you, if you have faith as a mustard seed you shall say to this mountain, move from here to there, and it shall move; and nothing shall be impossible to you."

What an incredible statement, "nothing shall be impossible." If that doesn't cause you to shout hallelujah nothing will. There's too much defeatist preaching going on in the pulpit today, when Jesus has offered us so much.

I remember a story I heard of the type of faith it takes to receive God's promises.

There was a man who was crossing a tight rope over Niagara Falls. He yelled out to the people, "Do you believe I can make it?"

They yelled back, "Yes, we believe you can make it."

He went over and back and then put a chair on his back and said, "How many believe I can cross over with someone sitting in the chair?"

The crowd yelled back, "We believe you can make it." He yelled back, "Who wants to sit in the chair?"

It may be a silly story, but it shows that to believe in the promises of God you must be willing to go all the way with it.

If you're lacking in faith, the way to receive it is to listen to people who preach the word of God without compromise. Rom. 10:17 says, "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God."

Staying home from church won't get you healed. It is amazing to me that people who are sick will stay home from church because they don't feel well. But the next day, even if they don't feel well, they will go to the doctor.

I believe we need to go to the doctor and seek the healer Jesus. If you are in physical difficulties, seek Jesus: The Bible says God shall meet all your needs with his riches in glory in Christ Jesus.

Dare to believe him and let your joy be full. Why choose to be a mundane Christian when Christ offers the riches to his kingdom.

FAMILIES AND NATIONS MUST TRY TO BE GOOD NEIGHBORS

Canada and the United States have always been good neighbors through the years, although as with families who live next door to each other, occasional differences will arise. This is only natural, but nonetheless the "heads" of the families can get together and work out solutions acceptable to both. The friendship is also kept in a healthy state by paying visits to

Miss Thriftway creates a stir among fans

Old hydroplane helps to promote museum

By CHUCK MINGORI

The late Bill Muncey was king of the unlimited hydroplane racing circuit for many years, and now fans can see Muncey's first big winner on display at Freeway Showcase.

The "Miss Thriftway," which won consecutive national high point championships in 1960-62 and two Gold Cup titles in 1961-62, is on display at Freeway Showcase, 7200 Pacific Highway E. bordering I-5 between Tacoma and Federal Way.

The boat is on display to help promote a proposed world class hydroplane museum to be built in the Puget Sound area. Currently, the museum owns some 16 boats as well as approximately 13,000 artifacts.

"We wanted to do a community service so we looked around for what would be a good service for the community and contacted the hydroplane museum," said Linda Plein, who, along with her husband, Len Boscarine, are owners of Freeway Showcase.

The roadside business specializes in merchandising and liquidating excess goods and equipment, such as cars, trucks, forklifts, boats, trailers, log loaders, containers and other specialized equipment.

The Miss Thriftway is located in a prime spot on the Freeway Showcase lot next to I-5.

ALTHOUGH SHE USED to live in New Mexico, Plein said when she moved up here with her husband she was impressed with the strength of local interest in the thunderboats.

"It's like everybody gets together and really supports the hydroplane Seafair festival," said Plein. "It was really interesting to see the home town get wrapped up in the (Seafair) festival."

Plein said that since the Miss Thriftway was put on display about a month ago, she's received numerous inquiries.

"What's it doing here?" is the question often posed to Plein and Boscarine, who have to explain, "No, it's not for sale."

It would be hard to put a price tag on the Miss Thriftway.

"It's history so there's no way you can put a value on it," she said.

Boscarine said that some of the passersby who stop in for a closer look at the Miss Thriftway, which competed against such other big-name boats at the Miss Bardahl and Miss Exide, are adults in their late 20s and 30s who followed the sport as youngsters. Some even had their pictures taken sitting inside the big boat back in its heyday.

"They go gagga when they see it," he explained. "It's just neat to see the expression on people's faces when they come in here and see that thing."

ROBERT WILLIAMS, president and managing director of the Unlimited Hydroplane Hall of Fame and Museum Inc., said the Miss Thriftway is one of 16 boats the museum owns.

He said when they found the Miss Thriftway, it was in pretty bad shape and had been "very badly abused." The boat was lent to Plein and Boscarine to help attract attention to the museum and to their local business.

"It sure has done that," he said.

Williams, who along with Plein and Boscarine lives in the Burien area, said that the Miss Thriftway had been kept outside for about 10 years. The Miss Thriftway has since been cleaned up for display. Once a building is found for the museum, plans are to restore the Miss Thriftway, probably into running condition, Williams said.

The Miss Thriftway, along with the other 15 boats now owned by the museum, probably would have rotted away had an effort not been made to locate them, said Williams, who has scoured the countryside looking for old boats.

THE MUSEUM project has been going on for some seven years now. Although painstaking efforts have been made to find the boats and collect artifacts, some of which date back to 1904, there has been difficulty in finding a permanent location for the museum.

But Williams explained that the Unlimited Hydroplane Hall of Fame and Museum, Inc., is "very close" to making an anouncement concerning a site.

"I would think in 60 days we'll probably have an announcement," he said.

The Miss Thriftway was built in 1959 and was powered by a Rolls Royce Merlin engine. The original owner was Willard Rhodes and it was designed by Ted Jones. It was donated to the museum by the Greater Seattle and Associated Grocers in 1984.

The boat was the fastest thing on water for three years. Muncey used the boat to win 14 races and three national titles. On Feb. 15, 1960, Miss Thriftway became the fastest propeller-driven boat in the world averaging 192.001 mph over the measured mile on Lake Washington's East Channel. The record stood for two years.

FROM 1959 to 1983, the hydro started in 85 heats, finished 77 of them, was first 46 times, second 16 times, averaged 56 heats at better than 100 mph and won 14 of 32 races entered.

While the Miss Thriftway certainly has helped with the efforts to find a suitable site for the museum and has created quite a stir among old racing fans, Plein and Boscarine are simply honored to have the boat on their lot.

"We're just glad to have it here and feel like we're part of making history," Plein said.

Eagle center signs with Nevada-Reno

Jason Schmidt, a 6-foot-8 senior at Federal Way High School, has accepted a full-ride scholarship from the University of Nevada-Reno.

Schmidt, an All-South Puget Sound League first-team player during the 1988-89 season, was a two-year starter for the Federal Way boys' basketball team.

He averaged 14.2 points and 9.4 rebounds to lead the Eagles this past year and 12.8 and 11.6 rebounds his junior year when Federal Way won the SPSL title and advanced to the state tournament.

Schmidt also has been selected to play for an Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) team that will play the Soviet National Junior Team May 18 in the University of Puget Sound (UPS) Field House.

Federal Way nine downs TJ, Lakes

Federal Way put away crosstown rival Thomas Jefferson, 18-2, in South Puget Sound League baseball action Monday, then scored a 10-3 win at Lakes Tuesday.

The previously undefeated Thomas Jefferson Raiders, who had a bye Tuesday, dipped to 3-1 in SPSL play, while the Eagles improved to 5-2 with the wins.

Federal Way scored six runs in the first to open Monday's game.

Milt DeAsis walked and Alan Hensley singled, ahead of a three-run home run by Jeff Wagner.

Floyd French followed with a solo home run, then Marty Mogensen singled and scored on a double by Steve Crevling. Mike Sugg singled to bring in Crevling.

TJ picked up both of its runs in the second. Joey Sonnenfeld doubled and Ed Martinez singled him home. Martinez eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Pete Persons.

But the Eagles scored once more in the third, then added four in the fourth on a grand slam home run by French. Federal Way picked up seven in the fifth with the help of doubles by Wagner and Luke Almaden.

French was the winning pitcher, improving his record to 3-0.

THE EAGLES opened with two in the first against Lakes Tuesday in a rally that included singles by DeAsis and Wagner, and racked up another run in the second when Crevling tripled and scored on a fly ball by Danny Graham.

Federal Way broke the game open with six in the third. Treg Vandenberg and DeAsis blasted triples and Doug Conzatti, Graham and Wagner singled.

Wagner singled, stole second and scored on a base hit by French for a run in the sixth. TJ is at Bethel at 3:30 p.m. today, at Sumner tomorrow and at Decatur Monday, while Federal Way's next action is Tuesday at home against Sumner.

CP upsets Jefferson

The Thomas Jefferson boys' soccer team suffered its first loss of the season Tuesday night, as the Raiders were upset by the Clover Park Warriors, 2-1, at Clover Park.

The Warriors are now tied for third place in the South Puget Sound League with Federal Way at 4-2, while Jefferson fell into a tie for second place with Rogers at 4-1. Defending SPSL champion Lakes leads the league at 5-0.

The Raiders, now 5-1-2 on the year, will play host to Sumner at 7 tonight at Federal Way Memorial Field. Tuesday, the Raiders will do battle with crosstown rival Federal Way beginning at 7:30 at Federal Way Memorial Field.

Eagles fight off Spanaway, 3-1

By TIM CLINTON

Federal Way defeated Spanaway Lake, 3-1, in the soccer match Tuesday, but just who won the boxing match is more unclear.

The two teams went at it in a bench-clearing brawl in the right corner of the Spanaway Lake side of the field with about 22 minutes to play in the game, with two Sentinels and one Eagle — Ricci Greenwood — drawing red card ejections.

The game, which featured a lot of tripping fouls, was heated the rest of the way, and Federal Way's Ben McGill also received a red card right before the end to leave both teams with nine players on the field.

"It was a good game," said Eagle head coach Mike Minahan. "I wish it wouldn't have gotten to this point."

It all started off as a well-played game for Federal Way.

The Eagles struck first only 3:45 into the first half as Tim

Brawl, ejections mar victory for Federal Way boot squad

Senigal scored from the left side across the mouth of the goal into the right side of the net.

Federal Way made it a 2-0 contest five minutes later.

Bret Jacobson fed the ball to Sean Peterson, who headed it on into the back of the net.

HOSTILITIES gradually built up toward the end of the first half and early in the second half, with some of the officials' calls also raising controversy.

The Eagles' next score was set up with 24:10 to play in the second half, when Greenwood was tripped and fell on the ball in the goal box.

The play earned Federal Way a penalty kick, and Paul Carpenter took it — drilling the ball into the right corner.

Greenwood was only temporarily hurt and remained in the game, but two minutes later he found himself in the middle of a fight.

Greenwood got tangled up with a Sentinel defender as the fisticuff started, and both benches and the players on the field quickly joined them in the right corner.

The most notable injury was to the Eagles' Rick Lively, who took a fist in his right eye from the Spanaway Lake goalie and had to leave the game. The Sentinel goalie was among the players ejected.

Spanaway Lake took the ensuing free kick from the corner and got nothing out of it, but did score on a penalty kick with 19:24 to go.

A foul was called on the Eagle goalie as he went for the ball, and Doug Wolff of the Sentinels bounced the ball in to make it a 3-1 game.

One more ejection resulted when McGill drew a yellow card on a foul and apparently said something about it to the referee.

THE MATCH goes into the book as a 3-1 win for Federal Way, keeping them in the South Puget Sound League race for one of two playoff spots.

The Eagles, who have won four straight, improved to 4-2 in SPSL play with the win, tying them for third place.

Lakes leads the way at 5-0 and Thomas Jefferson and Rogers are tied for second at 4-1, followed by the Eagles and Clover Park in third. Decatur and Curtis are right behind at 3-2.

Federal Way was coming off a 2-1 win over Bethel that came down to a shootout Friday.

Home runs spark Decatur victory

By CHUCK MINGORI

The Decatur baseball team combined home-run power with solid defense and strong pitching to defeat the Spanaway Lake Sentinels, 6-3, Tuesday afternoon at Decatur.

Decatur shortstop Gregg Landskov and catcher Bill Ludwig each drilled towering home runs over the 336-foot fence in straightaway center field.

The Gators also turned in some outstanding defensive plays in the field to support the four-hit pitching of Sur Johnson and Brady Nelson.

"I thought we played good defense," said Decatur baseball coach Gary Holmboe. "We hit the ball timely and we made some good plays in the field, which we haven't been making."

The victory raised Decatur's record to 2-4 in the South Puget Sound League. The Gators, who dropped a 13-0 decision to Class AA power Tahoma of the Seamount League on Monday, are now 4-4 overall heading into a 3:30 p.m. clash today at Curtis.

Nelson, Decatur's strong-armed, right-handed pitcher who had a perfect game going for 6½ innings before settling on a one-hitter Friday during the Gators' 10-0 victory over Lakes, mowed the Sentinels down in the final two innings Tuesday to collect a save.

Johnson, who picked up the win after going five strong innings, was relieved by Nelson to start the sixth. Nelson struck out five batters and walked one in two innings of work.

"Sur did a good job and Brady can come in and kind of take care of them," commented Holmboe. "He's got a lot of strikeouts (43) this year. He's tough."

SPANAWAY LAKE looked tough at first, however, as the Sentinels scored one run in the top of the first on a walk and a double after Landskov and second baseman Kevin Caldwell had turned a double play.

After the Gators left the bases loaded in the bottom of the first frame, the Sentinels threatened to score again in the second. Spanaway Lake had baserunners on second and third, but

Landskov gave Decatur a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the second when he launched a two-run homer over the fence in center field with designated hitter Preston Larson on base. Larson had smashed a line drive off the glove of the Sentinels' second baseman earlier.

The score remained the same until the top of the fifth when the Sentinels regained the lead on a two-run homer to left field.

BUT DECATUR erupted for four runs in the bottom of the fifth. Nelson started it off by hitting a pop up behind first base that fell in for an error off the second baseman's glove. Matt Leamer then walked before Ludwig crunched a three-run homer to center field almost to the same spot where Landskov's was hit earlier.

Austin, who had singled to right field, came in to score later on a sacrifice fly by Leamer.

Decatur center fielder Donnis Henry came through with a running catch in the gap in right center in the top of the sixth to take away a possible Spanaway Lake hit with a runner aboard. Then Nelson, who had fanned the first two batters he faced in the sixth, also struck out the side in the seventh to wrap up the victory.

U-14 Wings plan tryout for Sunday

Local senator 'carried sword' for burner EIS

House. "It is such a major piece of legislation," Brough said. "Nobody wanted to put it at risk. If we went in a conference (committee to work out differences between the two chambers), there was a feeling that something might come apart."

HB 1671, if approved by the governor, would require all municipalities in the state to recycle 50 percent of their waste by 1995. The state Department of Ecology and local governments would pay for instituting the plan by imposing a 1 percent collection tax on residents' monthly garbage bills.

ALTHOUGH von Reichbauer's amendment would require any future solid waste incinerator to complete an EIS before it begins operating, it clearly was geared toward Tacoma's plant.

Tacoma had issued itself a determination of non-significance to build the plant, which means that any environmental effects are not expected to be significant.

Now about 75 percent complete, the incinerator was originally scheduled to begin producing electricity by burning sorted garbage, wood and coal by the end of this year, though the EIS could delay its opening.

"The bill is an awkward penalty for the city with (construction) so far along," said Rep. Dick Schoon (R-30th). Although Schoon said he is not opposed to seeing Tacoma's incinerator fire up, he also is not opposed to requiring the city to complete an EIS.

"It's something they should have done at the start," Schoon said.

"I was on two tours (of the incinerator), once before construction started. At that time, I raised the question about an EIS and their answer was, 'It's been taken care of,'" Schoon said.

A potential misunderstanding on Schoon's part, however, was not the reason the Federal Way Republican did not take an active role in the issue as did other 30th District legislators von Reichbauer and Brough. Schoon said lack of time was the major reason he did not join the fight.

AT A RECENT Federal Way Chamber of Commerce

'You can debate all day about if the plant will operate (safely), but the only way to resolve that debate is to operate the plant and hold us accountable,' Mark Crisson said.

meeting, King County Council member Paul Barden challenged Schoon to take the lead in the House to pass von Reichbauer's amendment and Schoon agreed.

"My agreement was to get the bill through," Schoon said afterward.

Barden, another chief ally of Federal Way and Northeast Tacoma residents pushing for an EIS, was pleased with the vote in the House.

"Now if we can keep the governor from vetoing it from the bill, we'll have the proper kind of review (EIS) before anything is fired up to bombard Federal Way," he said.

Mark Crisson, however, superintendent of Tacoma City Light, said he was disappointed that the incinerator provision had been approved.

"The amendment is unfair and unnecessary," Crisson said. "It's unfair because it's changing the rules at the end of the game. And it's unnecessary because all along the way, we've obtained the necessary studies and permits," Crisson said.

"Our consultant's study will be ready in a couple of weeks, and that will answer all the questions we've gotten from the public," he added, referring to a $30,000 study authorized by the city council and utility board to answer residents' initial concerns about the plant. Most residents, however, opposed the study, preferring instead the more comprehensive EIS.

"YOU CAN debate all day about if the plant will operate (safely), but the only way to resolve that debate is to operate the plant and hold us accountable," Crisson stated.

"Our feet ought to be appropriately held to the fire. If the plant doesn't run as advertised, we won't run it," he said.

Crisson said it's too early to know how long of a delay might result if City Light were to undertake the EIS, nor did he know how much an EIS might cost or if the city might pursue litigation if the governor agrees that an EIS should be done.

It's possible, he said, that if a costly and lengthy court battle seems likely, then completing an EIS may be the better alternative.

"The time and expense of an EIS are not my real concerns," Crisson said. "My primary concerns are possible delays after the EIS is done. Once the document is done, it may become the base for additional litigation or it may suspend operations or delay operations.

"The bottom line means unnecessary expenses to ratepayers — utility and refuse," he said.

Members on both sides of the debate are planning heavy lobbying of the governor's office while the bill goes through that final step.

Gov. Booth Gardner's position on the incinerator provision, which he can veto if he chooses, is unknown as yet.

"The governor strongly supports the bill," said Dan Youmans, Gardner's deputy press secretary. "However, there are some sections that he's going to take a look at and review, including the section on the incinerator," Youmans said.

Once the governor receives the bill, he has 20 days in which to sign it.

Before the incinerator is allowed to fire up, it also needs a solid waste permit from the Tacoma-Pierce County Health Department. The department currently is reviewing a health risk study of the plant before it decides whether to issue the permit.

No smoking on school grounds, policy says schools without smoking areas would not be forced to create them. Smoking also would be prohibited in all district vehicles.

Restrictions would tighten Jan. 1, 1990, when the use of tobacco would be prohibited inside all district buildings and vehicles. And by July 1 of next year, according to the proposal, tobacco products of all kinds would be outlawed on all district property, including schools, playgrounds, non-school facilities such as the district bus barn, and Federal Way Memorial Stadium.

The policy would apply to district employees, students and the general public. District policy already states that students at all schools except Continuation High School, an alternative school, cannot use or possess tobacco products.

The restriction of smoking at Continuation worried Principal Larry Merlino, who said that 80 to 90 percent of his students smoke and some would likely leave school if that rule is enforced. Likewise Ardelle Gulbraa, representative of the union for transportation and food-service workers, said she is "hanging out to the very end" against restrictions about smoking on all school property.

"That would mean an employee couldn't even go out to the car and have a cigarette," she pointed out.

Merlino said smokers in other non-smoking school districts can be found puffing away on sidewalks and parking lots, safely off school property but within sight of their schools. Another district employee, who asked not to be identified, said she foresees the same situation here.

"There aren't many smokers (in our union), but people I know plan to go across the street," she said.

THE TOBACCO-FREE committee stressed that smokers who choose to kick the habit should get support from the district. They could get $50 stipends to help defray the cost of programs that would help them quit, or could receive up to $200 for the tuition of such a program, once they prove they have remained tobacco-free for six months, the committee recommended.

The first suggestion would cost the district $10,000 if 200 employees take advantage of the stipend. The second would cost $40,000 if 200 smokers took that route.

The school district could also sponsor two non-smoking seminars per year in the district, at a cost of $1,000 per year, the committee reported.

All costs are tentative, said Murphy, because it is not known how many smokers work for the district.

THE TOBACCO-FREE committee did not draw up possible punishments for anyone who would defy the non-smoking policy, leaving that up to the board. Surrounding districts, whose policy were borrowed from Federal Way's proposal, handle those situations very differently, Murphy said. Auburn employees, for instance, pass out booklets that list policy guidelines to offenders.

Although penalties will be necessary, "What was suggested by the committee was that this is a helping policy, instead of a punitive one," Murphy said.

The public and district employees are invited to comment on the proposed policy at the April 24, May 8 and May 22 school board meetings. The school board is scheduled to approve a policy May 22.

The April 24 board meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at Totem Junior High, 26630 40th Ave. S. For information, call 941-0100.

County would expect cities to pay fair share

Federal Way now, he added. "If the county wants to sell its services to the city, they just can't drop these things," he said.

A group of citizens that includes Maryann Mitchell, former head of the incorporation drive, plans to watchdog the county to make sure it completes planned 1989 projects.

Glynn concurred with McLean, and added, "The 1990 budget will be heavily influenced by whether cities choose to contract with us for services. There's a keen interest to do a good, competitive job here," Glynn said.

But roads aren't the only consideration when it comes to continued services in Federal Way.

Incorporation may equate to the county driving harder bargains with existing cities as well as new ones if the King County Council goes along with other policy changes recommended by council staff.

On Wednesday, members of the council's Parks and Resources Committee got their first look at a myriad of proposals that would change county billing to a pay-as-you-go basis.

Representatives of existing and newly incorporated cities are expected to fight many of the proposals.

ACCORDING TO a staff report, the county often subsidizes suburban cities in the services it provides to those jurisdictions. The staff recommended that, in the future, the price the cities pay should more closely reflect the actual costs.

The staff called the review of cost policies especially important with the expected loss of revenue from the newly incorporated cities of Federal Way and Sea-Tac and the annexed areas of Tukwila.

The proposed changes would not affect this year's budget. Services and projects planned for 1989 would be carried out as budgeted, according to staff and councilmembers.

But the cost of county services could go up in the following years, for cities that wanted to continue receiving the services.

IN ADDITION, cities could end up footing more of the bill for major projects such as roads, unless they wanted to risk losing the projects.

Councilman Greg Nickels called the proposals "a lot to chew on," saying there are some difficult decisions ahead.

"For example, it makes sense for cities to pay for (maintenance on) a county park that is within a city. But as a practical matter, it's been difficult to get cities to pay when the county has been doing it for them all these years.

"We'll have to decide how to react. Do we shut down the parks or just continue to pay?" he asked.

Nickels said the council is not likely to make final decisions on the new cost policies until mid-

June.

IN GENERAL, staff members recommended that the county recover what was called "full costs" for its services to cities. In specific areas, they recommended the following:

- Health services: Currently, suburban cities do not pay for health services until two years after the county has provided them. The staff suggested that the cities pay for the services as they receive them.
- Roads: The county should complete all projects that are budgeted for this year. In future years, the county would stop all projects within city jurisdictions — even those already begun — unless the cities agreed to a cost-sharing plan.
- Parks: The county would retain all regional parks, including the Goodwill Games Pool and Fort Dent, but would transfer ownership of all neighborhood parks, athletic fields, county swimming pools, and community centers within city limits to those cities. No money would change hands in this transfer of ownership.
- Public safety (police): — Cities that want to continue to contract with the county for police services would have to pay for the "full array of services." In other words, a city could not sign up for selected police services, but would have to pay for all the public safety services offered by the county, including K-9, bomb squads, criminal investigations and several others. In addition, the cities would be charged on a call-for-service basis. As an example, this year, Federal Way would have paid $4.1 million for the police services it is expected to use, if charged on a per-call basis.

The council has scheduled a public hearing on these proposed policy changes Monday, June 12.

Cratsenberg may donate park property to new city offer at least twice to outbid the county. To make absolutely sure he wasn't outbid by anyone else, Cratsenberg had prepared two sealed bids to submit at Monday's bid opening.

One bid was for the $490,000 he had earlier pledged he would pay for the watershed, and another was for $500,000 just in case someone else showed up to bid. No one else submitted a bid, so Cratsenberg submitted his original $490,000.

Commissioners and district staff were pleased with the sale to Cratsenberg. After months of indecision among commissioners about whether to sell the land to Cratsenberg for more money or to the county for a park for less money, the final arangement was a good deal for everyone, commissioners and staff said.

"I'm real happy," said Commissioner Bob Piquette. "He's going to be donating some of it to the city for a park."

The proceeds from the sale will go to help pay for $1.8 million in improvements to the former Water District 56 system. District 56 merged with the Federal Way district last year and Federal Way assumed the responsibility for selling the watershed.

Earlier, several Marine Hills residents had suggested turning the watershed into an arboretum. Proponents of the arboretum could not be reached for comment to see if they still will pursue those plans.

Introducing three city council candidates

Elaine Cook

Federal Way City Council candidate Elaine Cook has a list of community activities as long as your forearm.

Cook is a 34-year Federal Way resident who is running for city council in Position 4.

She said she would like to improve the quality of life in Federal Way and wants to keep the public informed about the transition from county to city government.

Cook is a professor at Seattle Pacific University and has a master's degree in educational administration.

She has been the president of the American Association of University Women, a public-school teacher for 19 years, president of the Puyallup Education Association, president of the Federal Way Library Board and has been active in many other community activities.

Elaine Cook

Cook, who declined to state her age, is married and has four children and nine grandchildren.

She lives near the central business district of Federal Way.

If Cook is successful in the May 16 primary, she will run in the Sept. 19 final election.

Debbie Ertel

When she was president of the Federal Way Community Council last year, Debbie Ertel was probably the most often quoted person in area newspapers.

Ertel was, and still is, active in several community activities and she would like to continue that activity as a Federal Way City Council member. She is running for Position 3 in the May 16 primary.

Ertel, 41, is a production analyst for Rotary Offset Sales Co., a Robinson Communications company.

Ertel has lived in Federal Way for 14 years. She currently resides in the Adelaide neighborhood.

She was a member of the Federal Way Community Council for 10 years, most recently as its president in 1988. She is also a board member for the Harborview Medical Center, a member of the King County 2000 committee and is president of Development Impact

Resistance Exercise (DIRE), a private group of community activists set up to keep an eye on Federal Way development.

She was also chair of the Federal Way Health Care Alternative Project.

She has taken college classes in a variety of subjects, but has no degree.

Ertel is a single parent with one child.

James Webster

Jim Webster knows the inside of governmental operations.

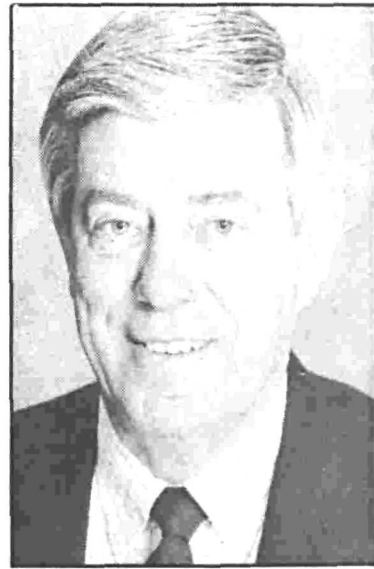

His 26 years in public administration qualifies him to be a Federal Way City Council member, he said. Webster is running for council in Position 4.

"I have the background, experience and the commitment to provide leadership," Webster said.

Webster was manager of the King County Park System from 1976 to 1982. He has also been assistant director for park operations for the Washington Parks and Recreation Commission, co-chair of the 1988 Federal Way School District bond issue campaign, a member of the school district's fiscal services study committee, and a member of the chamber of commerce's commercial and industrial development committee.

His list of activities also includes many other community service positions.

Currently, Webster, 54, is a

partner with a management consulting firm, a director of the Pacific Northwest Park and Recreation Maintenance Management School and executive director of the International Northwest Parks and Recreation Association.

Webster has lived in Federal Way for 17 years. He lives in the Twin Lakes neighborhood with his wife and two sons.

Driver assaulted by bus passenger

A Metro bus driver was assaulted Monday morning by a rider who would not get off the bus at the end of the line.

The driver told King County police he picked up the 21-year-old Seattle man in downtown Seattle, although he claimed he had no money for the fare. Metro has a policy of not refusing rides to the indigent, the driver told police.

But once they arrived at the park-and-ride at South 320th Street near Interstate 5, the driver asked the man, who appeared to be intoxicated, to leave the bus. The rider refused to leave, and the driver told him if he wanted to go back downtown, it would cost him $1.25.

The man refused to pay and refused to leave, and a struggle ensued as the driver radioed his office about the problem while he drove toward Pacific Highway South on South 324th St.

The driver told police that the rider became more violent and broke the back door of the bus while trying to force it open. The driver said he opened the door for the man, who left the bus, fell to the ground, and passed out. He was still there when police and an ambulance arrived to take him to Harborview Medical Center for observation.

The rider also was cited in Federal Way District Court for fourth-degree assault and malicious mischief.

Garage door has a mind of its own

A Five Mile Lake area man had to watch helplessly as his garage door mysteriously closed onto the hood of his car, causing considerable damage.

The man told King County police he was working on his car at about 4:15 p.m. Saturday when his automatic garage door began to close on top of his car. He tried to stop the door with his own controls, but to no avail.

He and his roommate told police that during the same time the garage door appeared to have a will of its own, the neighbor's elaborate ham radio antenna was rotating, indicating it was in use. The man said ever since his neighbor moved in six months ago and installed his radio equipment, his garage door has inexplicably opened and closed. He also has had problems with his phone and television.

The police took the case for informational purposes only.

Board-grabbers have struck twice

The same group of teen-agers that reportedly relieved three youths of their skateboards Sunday evening apparently had done the same thing earlier in the day to two other skateboarders.

Two youths, ages 13 and 14, told King County police they were behind Sportsworld at about 1:30 p.m. when they were approached by a group of six teen-agers who grabbed their skateboards and ran. Later that day, three other youths told police they were at the Federal Way Shopping Center when a group of teens matching the same description took their skateboards.

Descriptions of the pickup truck used by the marauding skateboard thieves are the same in both incidents, and the license plate number supplied by victims also matched. The teens who took the skateboards are described as teen-agers of Asian descent.

Chamber lauds teen who founded center

The founder of a drop-in center aimed especially at teens recovering from drug and alcohol abuse has been named Citizen of the Month for March by the Federal Way Chamber of Commerce.

Bob Davis, a senior at Decatur High School, has been the driving force behind Phases Teen Center, which opened earlier this year at 30682 Military Road S.

Phases shares space there with D & D Accounting, owned by Davis' mother, Louise Davis.

The center's main goal is to provide peer support for teens such as Davis, who are recovering from drug and alcohol abuse.

Eventually, Phases hopes to raise enough money to hire a full-time staff person to work at the center. For more information, call 839-6989.

Four earn spot at speech tourney

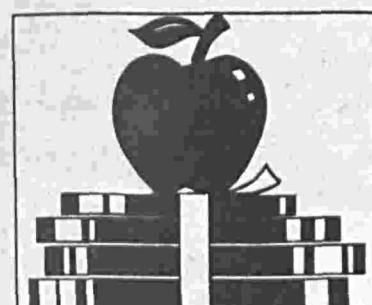

Members of the Federal Way High School speech team recently ranked high enough in regional competition to earn berths at an upcoming national tournament.

Jason Woehler, Adam Houghton, Eugene Schantz and Alex Shu qualified to compete at national speech competition in Colorado this June by scoring first and second places in a recent Western Washington tournament held in Tacoma.

Woehler earned second places in both Lincoln-Douglas debates and extemporaneous speaking. Houghton received first place in humorous interpretation and Schantz placed second in the same division. Shu took second on oratory.

Speech coach Lois Gorne said the 14-member team received the most awards given to any school at the Tacoma tournament.
