Day care County to offer vouchers

By LYNN FRANCISCO

A $1 million program approved by the King County Council on Monday will bring subsidized child care to parents in South King County this year.

The voucher program will serve low-income working parents who do not qualify for other assistance.

County officials estimate that of the 12,700 children living outside the city of Seattle who need subsidized care, close to 9,000 live in South King County.

Based on those figures, the county will spend 69 percent of the $1 million on children in the south portion of the county.

Sadikifu Akina-Jones, child care coordinator for the county, said the appropriation should provide child-care for 700 children throughout the county.

AKINA-JONES WILL begin recruiting providers next month. By June, she plans to begin recruiting parents to participate in the program.

Eligibility will be based largely on income. A working family of four would qualify if its income fell between $1,500 a month and $2,000.

Baby bash

BRYCE CORNATZER holds on tight to his balloon at a birthday party Wednesday at St. Francis Community Hospital. All of the 1,479 babies born at the hospital since it opened on May 6, 1987, were invited to the second annual party and nearly 100 attended, along with parents and siblings. Bryce, 15 months, was there with his mother, Kim, of Tacoma. Party-goers were treated to cake, ice cream, entertainment and balloons.

MSC report card shines

By LYNN KEEBAUGH

Report cards are out and the South King County Multi-Service Center administration is all smiles.

Not only did the non-profit social services agency's 1988 financial audit show it in the black for the first time in years, but a United Way evaluation gave the center straight As on its own report.

The multi-service center, 1505 S. 356th St., serves all of South King County with financial assistance for emergency shelter, transitional housing, food, health care, drug and alcohol programs, literacy programs, transportation for the handicapped and elderly, clothing and job search assistance.

The multi-service center was beleaguered by a 1985 shortfall of funds, plus interest and penalties, and bank loans and debts that amounted to nearly $500,000. The problems were caused by mismanagement of funds, such as pooling grants and money earmarked for certain projects to pay for an assortment of bills.

THE CENTER'S new management has been working since 1986 to restore its financial stability and last December paid off the last of those bills.

Now the 1988 audit shows the

Part of Lakota fish ladder caves in

By KURT HERZOG

A fish ladder the Federal Way Water and Sewer District built for migrating salmon near its Lakota sewage treatment plant has partially collapsed.

The ladder was built out of cement and rocks as part of a project to relocate Lakota Creek, which runs next to the plant at 3045 Dash Point Road. The entire stream relocation project cost about $1.6 million.

District officials estimate it will cost $50,000 to $100,000 to repair the fish ladder.

The stream relocation was part of the district's upgrading of the existing sewer plant from primary to secondary sewage treatment. The entire secondary sewage treatment project, currently under construction, is expected to cost $34.1 million. It is scheduled to begin operating in January 1990.

Officials aren't sure what caused the concrete walls of the fish ladder to collapse. Some erosion had been seen a short time ago, but most of the damage was done last weekend.

At least six-tenths of an inch of rain fell on Saturday, officials said, causing the concrete to crack into sections. Water eroded the dirt banks supporting the concrete, causing even more damage.

Right now, a tarp is playing the role of the concrete banks and is channeling the water where it should go.

"We don't know what happened," said Steve Wieneke, district

Four judges added to Superior Court

By LYNN FRANCISCO

King County will add four more Superior Court judges over the next two years in an effort to reduce the court's backlog.

The additional judges are part of an agreement reached between the court, the county executive and council. It came just as Superior Court judges were preparing to sue the county over failure to provide funding for more judges.

Presiding Judge Gerard M. Shellan called the accord a "timely and necessary response to the problems facing the court."

"This (agreement) was not for the benefit of the judges, but for the litigants. People should not have to wait three, four or five years for redress of their grievances," he said.

The four judges would be phased in over the next two years at a cost of about $300,000 a year.

In addition, the county would remodel existing court facilities to accommodate the new judges.

If the County Council and the executive approve the plan, King County will have 46 Superior Court judges.

The agreement, which was mediated by King County Prosecutor Norm Maleng, also calls for an advisory committee to help determine the need for more judges in the future and to recommend changes that would make the system efficient.

The settlement is expected to be approved by the County Council at its May 1 meeting.

Suspect in robbery is caught in Oregon

By ANN SEIDNER

Two men have been charged with first degree robbery for the March 27 hold up of Art's Shoprite grocery in the Browns Point Shopping Center.

Oregon police arrested David Allen Veeder, 25, and Charles John Parr, 23, on April 6 after the attempted robbery of a convenience store in Salem. Neither of the two men have permanent addresses in Washington or Oregon.

If Veeder and Parr had not been arrested for the attempted crime in Salem, they probably would not have been charged in the Browns Point robbery, said Roy Durham, Pierce County Sheriff's detective.

Sheriffs had only circumstantial evidence to connect the two with the Browns Point incident, when they allegedly ran from the store and evaded police after the early morning attempt to steal the contents of the store safe.

But Durham got a confession from them in Oregon after they were chased down and caught following their attempted crime in Salem, Durham said.

Durham brought the confession and other information that linked Veeder and Parr to the Browns Point crime back to Pierce County to obtain the arrest warrants.

Art Kaiser, owner of Art's Shoprite, said he had considered the possibility that more than one person was involved with the crime at his store last month, but only one man entered his store.

At about 7 a.m. on March 27, Kaiser recounted that a man wearing a ski mask came into the store and threatened Kaiser with a .22 caliber semi-automatic pistol. The man forced Kaiser to open the safe and was about to load the booty into his knapsack when Kaiser grabbed the gun, pointed it at the robber and pulled the trigger. But the gun didn't shoot, Kaiser said.

Capp's creation comes to Auburn

By SEAN ROBINSON

Remember Fearless Fosdick? Fearless Fosdick was one of the memorable characters in Al Capp's comic strip, "Li'l Abner." Fosdick was a Dick Tracy parody. Whenever he appeared, he was full of gaping, cannonball-size holes that some nefarious no-goodnik had inflicted on him. But Fosdick never noticed, intent on his war against crime. Somehow, the impossibility of that was always worth a chuckle.

Well, Fosdick didn't make it into the musical version of "Li'l Abner" by Norman Panama and Melvin Frank, but most everyone else from Dogpatch did, and the Auburn Avenue Act I theatre is doing a credible job of mounting the production.

MOST MUSICALS are short on story and long on song and dance, and "Li'l Abner" is no exception. The plot concerns an atomic test scheduled to occur in the middle of downtown Dogpatch. Unless the residents can figure out some way to prove their town is "necessary," the government will blow it up.

COMBINED with this explosive storyline is the never-ending romance of Abner and Daisy Mae. Abner is a big strong buck of a man, whose muscles are matched only by his complete indifference to Daisy Mae's advances. Daisy Mae waits for Sadie Hawkins Day, when the women of Dogpatch get the opportunity to catch the man of their choice.

There is some good music in "Li'l Abner." "Jubilation T. Cornpone," a song about Dogpatch's founder, is a foot-tapper. "Namely You" is a sweet romantic number, and "Progress is the Root of All Evil" is a funny satirical song. Good voices in the cast are a strength.

DIRECTOR Patrick Dennis Hart has opted for an enthusiastic approach to this production, and he achieves it. Every cast member is alive and energetic. However, while committed performers are always a pleasure, a little variety would be welcome.

The cast is so charged up and enthusiastic from the very beginning that there is no place to go. By the time of the Sadie Hawkins Day Ballet, which should be the high point of the first act, everyone has been stomping, screaming, hooting and hollering for the majority of the play. As a result, the dance is a bit anti-climactic.

A little languorous Southern pace would be an effective contrast to the livelier moments. The hoedown atmosphere is entertaining, but too much on one level, to the point where it's hard to tell one celebration from another.

The actors tend to get caught up in this frenetic pace. It causes them to talk too fast, sometimes unintelligibly. This kills a good deal of the humor based on Al Capp's wonderful language. Slowing down and taking a healthy approach to diction would improve matters considerably.

THE PERFORMERS are capable. Cherity Edwards as Daisy Mae has a sweet ingenue voice. Her numbers are some of the best moments in the show. Marty Durham's Abner is appropriately wide-eyed, though he has an occasional flat note.

Dale Bowers and Patty Day are a cantankerous pair as Mammy and Pappy Yokum, but Bowers could restrain his crablike movements a bit. It isn't necessary for everyone to be high-voltage, and some slower paced characters would enrich the ensemble mix.

One such slower-paced type is Bob Ogilvy's Earthquake McGoon. Ogilvy has a foghorn of a voice, and uses it to great effect. His laugh lines boom out at a measured pace, and it's a pleasure to be able to sit back and listen to him without effort.

THE SAME can't be said for Karl Kippola's Evil Eye Fleagle. Kippola is a wonderful mover. His snakey mannerisms mesh well with the character. But he has chosen to speak in a high-pitched squeak that is very difficult to understand. Slowing down would solve this problem, and make Kippola's performance a real highlight.

Other good performances come from Timothy Alderman as Senator Jack S. Phogbound, Jon Stewart as General Bullmoose, and Carrie Sleeper-Bowers as Dr. Finsdale. The large female ensemble that plays wives, Sadie Hawkins dancers and other sundry parts is the greatest strength of the production.

AN UNEXPECTED and pleasant surprise was the costume work by Pam Heinzle and Bonnie Nelson. Good costuming in community theatre is the exception, not the rule. Heinzle and Nelson should be proud of their efforts.

By the way, the Avenue Act I offers dinner with this production, a practice that should be standard in every theatre in the country. The meal is six courses with a choice of snapper or chicken for the main. Espresso, wine, soft drinks and beer also are available, and as Al Capp might have said, that ain't chicken feed.

"Li'l Abner runs through May 21 at the Avenue Act I Theatre, 10 Auburn Ave. Curtain time Friday and Saturday is 8:15 p.m., with Sunday matinees at 3 p.m. Dinner begins at 6 p.m. for evening shows, and 1 p.m. on Sundays. Tickets are $21.50 for dinner and show and $10 for show only, $7 for students and seniors. For tickets and more information call 833-0620.

Civic Light Opera presents 'Raisin'

Seattle's Civic Light Opera will present Raisin, an opera based on Lorraine Hansberry's "A Raisin in the Sun," for three weekends starting this weekend. The show opened on Broadway and then embarked on a tour of the U.S. and Canada, winning awards on the way. "Raisin" has won the Antoinette Perry Award and the composer and lyricist have won the Grammy Award for Broadway's Best

At the Movies

"BEACHES"
Bette Midler shines in this touching story about two girls from vastly different backgrounds who become life-long pen pals and friends. Barbara Hershey's performance can't be faulted, either, and Lainie Kazan steals every scene she's in as Midler's mother. Playing at SeaTac North.

"DANGEROUS LIAISONS"
Sexual and emotional games are the subjects of "Dangerous Liaisons." John Malkovich and Glenn Close play 18th Century French aristocrats who are associates and self-professed masters of betrayal and sexual gamesmanship. The games they play are humorous, but eventually lead to a tragic ending. The dialogue is shockingly enjoyable and much of the movie is decadent fun. Nonetheless, the movie preaches a timeless message: human emotions are not to be trifled with so callously. Rated R. "Dangerous Liaisons" is playing at SeaTac North.

"FLETCH LIVES"
"Fletcher Lives" is true to character to its predecessor ("Fletcher") and to the books of the same names. Chevy Chase uses his famous facial expressions and various voices to change character in an effort to solve a murder mystery. Julianne Phillips lends a good supporting role as she tries to help Fletcher solve the mystery to clear the name of one of the chief suspects—her TV evangelist father. They solve the mystery, of course, but the perpetrator is not the obvious choice. Rated PG. "Fletcher Lives" is playing at SeaTac South.

"RAIN MAN"
"Rain Man" is a classic contrast between character playing and character stereotyping. Tom Cruise plays his usual slick self, this time a high-strung Los Angeles businessman. Dustin Hoffman is his autistic math genius brother. Hoffman's performance, as usual, is impeccable. The two brothers meet, essentially for the first time, when their father dies and leaves his fortune to the autistic's institution. Cruise's character kidnaps him as leverage and as a way out of his latest business failure. The two set out on a cross-country road trip in dad's classic convertible. It's a rocky road into the sunset. Hoffman fans will love "Rain Man," which is rated R and is playing at SeaTac North.

STARPAC meets with arts groups

By SEAN ROBINSON

The Society for the Acquisition and Refinement of a Performing Arts Center, or STARPAC, held its second meeting Monday night, electing a partial board of directors and introducing itself to the local arts community.

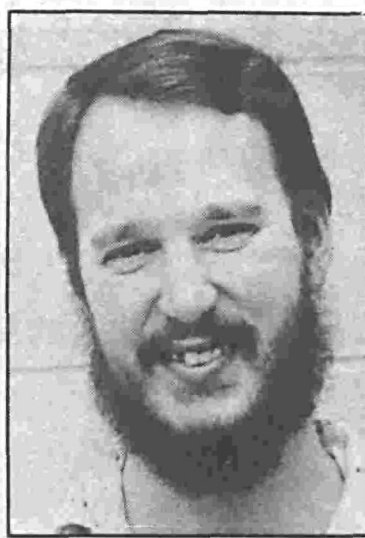

The STARPAC representatives, led by newly-elected chairman Dick Dilley, met with spokespersons from local arts groups in discussions described as heated, cautious and positive.

Among the groups in attendance at the public forum were Dance Unlimited, PZAZZ, Puget Sound Musical Theater, the Federal Way Philharmonic and Centerstage.

"WE SPENT a lot of the meeting explaining what we're doing and why," said Dilley. STARPAC hopes to build a performing arts center in Federal Way by raising funds on a grassroots level, then going to local corporations for further support. The center would be used by area arts groups as well as national ones.

"We'll be registered as a non-profit organization within two weeks," said Dilley. "I want everybody in Federal Way to put in $5 between now and September."

Dilley has raised some eyebrows with his plans, which have a short time frame. "Looking at it realistically, we know everyone's not going to flock to our side," said Mary Jean McDonald, artistic director of the Puget Sound Musical Theatre. But McDonald added, "I like his (Dilley's) non-nonsense let's-get-with-it policy." Dilley described the representatives from Centerstage as "pretty negative, for the most part. They kept throwing out reasons why things wouldn't work out."

Dick Dilley

BUT McDONALD felt the skepticism was justified. "I think they're (Centerstage) hesitant. They've had many years of a tough row to hoe."

Linda Anderson, the owner of Dance Unlimited, had similar thoughts. "We need to see both sides. The people bringing up negative things had some valid points. It's necessary to know all that we're up against. I don't think it's all going to be roses."

Bob McKenzie, president of Centerstage, summed up the group's views on STARPAC, saying, "I applaud their efforts. I'm just unsure about the technique."

Centerstage has spent a number of years attempting to build a cultural center in Federal Way. The theatre group mounted semiprofessional productions in the late '70s and early '80s at Group Health Cooperative, but the space was never more than a temporary home. In 1984, the lease ran out, and Centerstage was forced to leave the Group Health building when the clinic expanded.

Since then, Centerstage has been involved in an ongoing search for land to build a theatre. "Not being able to keep that space has put us through some gut-wrenching times," said McKenzie. Though Andy Cratsenberg, local developer, donated a parcel of land to Centerstage, it was found to be too small to accommodate a theatre space as well as parking facilities. Centerstage has been exploring other possible sites ever since.

McKenzie is concerned about Centerstage losing its identity. "We're dreamers too, with a vision. We just don't want to mix these two dreams and create a nightmare."

"I'm not ever going to discount someone who has a common goal," said McKenzie. "We need to sit down at a table with both groups."

Dilley and McKenzie are in agreement that Federal Way's incorporation has opened up new possibilities for the arts.

"Now that we're a city, we have a decision to make," said Dilley. "We can be known as the shopping center to Seattle or the focal point of fine arts in Puget Sound, based on our actions or non-actions."

"INCORPORATION is nothing but a positive step toward a cultural center here," said Mackenzie. "We want a permanent space that we can call our own that will outlive any of us."

Joanne Piquette, in charge of publicity for STARPAC, hopes a consensus can be reached. "If Centerstage or any of the groups decides not to participate, we would be weakened," she said.

Dilley remains confident that things will work out. "The phone's been ringing off the hook," he said. As far as differences of opinion are concerned, Dilley is willing to cooperate.

Dilley said one woman at the meeting made a great comment. "She said STARPAC was not trying to control the shovel, just that we were trying to get everybody to dig the same hole," he said.

STARPAC will continue to meet every Monday at Totem Junior High at 7:30 p.m. All meetings are open to the public. For further information, call 243-8534.

Dance used to express liturgy

By WENDY CULVERWELL
At a Lutheran church in Bellingham, dancer/movement therapist Betsey Beckman used children to dramatize the baptism of Jesus.

A little girl played Jesus while four other children waved a sheet over her head, which symbolized the Holy Spirit descending upon him.

The program was simple enough for the children to understand and perform. It also served a second function — warming adults in the church to the idea that dance can be an excellent form of worship.

"Catholics are used to this type of thing, but I don't think Lutherans are — they seemed pretty surprised," Beckman said Wednesday night at Family of God Lutheran Church.

Linda Heath, the member who arranged for Beckman to be in Federal Way, agreed.

"In the Lutheran church, you're struggling half the time to keep still and to keep the kids still."

But, Heath noted, moving in the sanctuary during the class seemed "natural."

BECKMAN is a professional dancer, a transformational movement therapist, and she holds a master's in ministry. She was on hand to teach a class on liturgical dance, or the expression of the sacraments through dance.

Heath saw Beckman in a class at the annual Community program held in Tacoma each year at either Pacific Lutheran University or the University of Puget Sound. In this case, she saw her at PLU. She invited Beckman to conduct a class in Federal Way.

The worship community at large was invited to attend, but as it turned out, only Lutherans took up the offer — four from Family of God, one from Calvary Lutheran, and two from a church in Tacoma.

Beckman, a Seattle resident, is Catholic.

Heath said she wants to put together a dance program for the coming Pentecost celebration at Family of God. Beckman's class, she thought, would be a good place to start.

The seven-member class spent a good deal of time working to choreograph "Come, Holy Spirit," a Pentecost piece by John W. Peterson. It proved a challenge. On one hand, the chorus beseeches the Holy Spirit to revive the church, "Dark is the hour," while the verses allude to Christian history. "Some were martyred and to the lions hurled." The images, the new dancers found, do not flow easily.

THEY settled, at least temporarily, on a "Holy Spirit" figure independent of the action taking place in the verses. For Wednesday at least, the Holy Spirit was represented at Family of God by a hot pink scarf waving about the sanctuary.

Expressing liturgy through dance may sound unusual, but Beckman pointed out that a Sacred Dance Guild exists for dancers of that order.

She got involved by blending her ministry background with her interest in dance. When she's not conducting seminars at churches, she works at the Institute for Transformational Movement in Seattle.

The minister of Family of God, the Rev. Jim Christianson, is enthusiastic about using dance in special services.

"It's an extension of what we do already. We get up, we sit down, we go to the altar," he said. "Worship involves the whole person, the total person. It has my support."

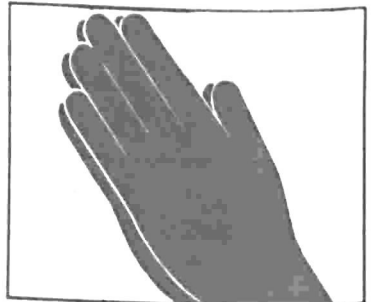

Pentecost will be celebrated May 15, 50 days after Easter.

Retired missionary will reflect on life

Retired missionary Marie Melrose will share her experiences out in the field at 9:35 p.m., April 30, in the sanctuary of Steel Lake Presbyterian Church, 1829 S. 308th St.

Born in China and educated in the United States, Melrose's most recent post was a professorship at the Presbyterian College and Theological Seminary in Seoul, Korea.

All are invited to attend the program.

St. Luke's musical tells Jesus' story

St. Luke's Lutheran Church will present the Jimmy and Carol Owens musical, "The Witness." The musical tells the story of Jesus through an apostle and the other men and women who knew him.

Performances will be at 8 p.m., May 5 and 6, and at 7 p.m., May 7. St. Luke's is at 515 S. 312th St. For information, call the church at 839-0172. A free-will offering will be collected.

Morris dancers to visit Unitarians

The Misty City Morris Dancers will perform at 10 a.m., April 30, at the First Unitarian Universalist Church of Seattle, 25701 14th Pl. S., near Saltwater State Park.

Morris Dancing is an ancient English folk art and has been a traditional part of the May festival for many years. A children's May Pole dance, singing and poetry will also be included in the service. Call 839-5200 for information.

Singing family to perform in Auburn

The Goads, a family of Christian singers, will perform at 7:30 p.m., April 30, at the Auburn Performing Arts Center, 700 E.

Main, Auburn. All are welcome. Contact Neil or Sharon Brumbaugh at 838-6670 for more information.

Preschoolers will serve tea to moms

Marine View Christian Preschool students will honor their mothers at the annual Mother's Day Tea, at 11 a.m., May 10 and 11.

The children will present special gifts to their mothers, sing for them, and provide food items they cooked by themselves.

The school is at 8469 Eastside

Drive N.E., near Dash Point Elementary School. Call 941-2172, or 952-3940 for information.

FAITH TELLS US TO BE KIND TO ALL OF GOD'S CREATURES

Our world was once filled with the animals and birds of God's creation, but throughout the ages some species have fallen by the wayside while others have managed to remain viable despite all the storms, floods, droughts and earthquakes that nature could inflict upon them. However, our increasing demands for progress and recreation have encroached upon the wilderness areas, putting our wildlife in greater jeopardy than from all the natural disasters combined. Even those hardy survivors may not be able to withstand the cruel or unthinking actions of human beings. We must act humanely toward them, and by example teach our children to do likewise. The denizens of the wild, as well as the family pets, are all God's creatures, so let's treat them with all due respect and kindness.

"And God made every thing that creepeth upon the earth." — Genesis 1:25

Federal Way booters knock off TJ, 3-2

By TIM CLINTON
The Federal Way boys' soccer team defeated crosstown rival Thomas Jefferson for the first time since 1982 Tuesday, holding off the Raiders, 3-2.

The Eagles jumped out to a 3-0 lead by halftime, before TJ came back in the second half to make a game of it.

"It's been a long time since we beat them," said Federal Way head coach Mike Minahan. "It was a great win for us."

The last time the Eagles beat the Raiders was May 17, 1982, when their 1-0 victory on the last day of the season sent them to the state playoffs and kept TJ home.

Damon Hagerott was Federal Way's coach at that time and Jim Judson was in his first year with the Raiders.

A lot of Eagle players went their entire careers without beating TJ. This year's seniors were only fifth graders, and the sophomores were third graders.

Thomas Jefferson has won five of six state AAA titles since 1982 under Judson's leadership, winning five straight South Puget Sound League titles and finishing second to Lakes last year but going on to take state.

BUT WHILE Tuesday's win kept the Eagles' chances of making this year's playoffs slim at best, it also put TJ's season on the line.

The Raiders were helped by Spanaway Lake's 1-0 upset of Lakes, which knocked the Lancers into a tie for first place with Rogers at 6-1 in league play.

The top two teams in the end will go on to state, and TJ, Decatur (a 1-0 winner over Bethel Tuesday) and Clover Park are all tied for second at 5-2. Federal Way is 5-3 and Curtis 4-3.

The actual playoff berths will be awarded on a point system, with teams winning in regulation time getting three points, teams winning in overtime or a shootout getting two and teams losing in overtime or a shootout still taking one.

On that basis, Rogers has 18, Lakes 17, Decatur 16 and Clover Park 15, with TJ and Federal Way having 14 each.

The playoff picture is further complicated by who plays who in the final three games of the season.

TJ hosts Curtis at 7 p.m. today at Federal Way Memorial Field today then goes to Lakes Tuesday at the same time, before finishing the season against Decatur next Friday.

Decatur's other matches include a trip to Spanaway Lake at 7:30 p.m. today and a visit from Rogers at the same time Tuesday.

Federal Way is at Clover Park at 7 p.m. today and home against Sumner for its finale at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Other key games include Lakes at Rogers today, Clover Park at Curtis Tuesday and Lakes at Clover Park, Puyallup at Rogers and Curtis at Sumner next Friday.

BUT FOR this past Tuesday, Minahan was just happy with the win over the Raiders.

"We played well the first half," he said. "We got some nice finishes. They were great goals."

The first came with 21:21 to play in the first half, as Tim

Senegal drilled the ball into the right corner on an assist from Bret Jacobson.

Jacobson assisted Senegal on another goal into the right corner at 9:33, then fed the ball to Ricky Phillips at 4:06 to play in the first half for the third Eagle score. Phillips bumped the ball through up the middle.

The Raiders dominated play in the second half, and it took a good effort by Federal Way goalie Kelly Noland to prevent TJ from scoring any more to tie it or win.

TJ scored first with 11:44 to play, as Daryn Ditmore took a cross from David Zumwalt on the left side and punched it on into an open goal.

A little over a minute later Ditmore had another chance on a direct free kick, but Noland dove to his right to save it.

That turned out to be a big play, as the Raiders did score again with just under two minutes left. This time Dan Parnell found the right side of the net for TJ.

The Raiders were driving for another shot when time expired.

DECATUR defeated Bethel by a 1-0 score just prior to the TJ-Federal Way clash at Federal Way Memorial.

The Gators outshot the Braves, 15-3, but could only get the one goal into the net.

"We had so many more shots than they did it was pathetic," said Decatur coach Rick Denison. "I don't know how many times the ball went off the pipe and out. Anywhere but the net."

Sean Young finally found the net in the second half on an assist from Tom Helmer.

Eagle softball team rolls to another impressive win

By CHUCK MINGORI
The Federal Way girls' sloppitch team continued to look impressive Tuesday, as the Eagles rolled past Thomas Jefferson, 11-1.

The victory boosted Federal Way's South Puget Sound League record to 10-1 heading into Wednesday's game with Sumner. The Eagles had bombed Clover Park on Monday, also by an 11-1 margin.

"The girls are playing really super," said Federal Way coach Doug Baldwin. "They play hard every game, because every team in the South Puget Sound League can pop up there. So you have to be really on your game every day. So far the girls have been able to do that."

Federal Way trails only unbeaten Rogers (10-0) in the SPSL standings. Those teams are scheduled to meet Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. at Steel Lake Park.

Thomas Jefferson, which had knocked off Bethel on Monday, 7-4, fell to 4-8 with the loss to the Eagles. The Raiders were led by Shannon Skorupa's three RBI in the win over the Braves.

Jenny Mahlstedt, who collected three hits in Federal Way's win over Clover Park, put her team ahead to stay in the top of the second against TJ as she slugged a solo home run to right center field.

Federal Way added three more runs in the top of the third to take a 4-0 lead.

PINCH HITTER Tracy Bille started the third-inning rally with a single. Kathy Badgley followed with a fly ball that went over the TJ left center fielder's head for a double. TJ alertly got the ball back into the infield on the relay throw to nail Bille at third.

But Nancy Jetton, who picked up three RBI Monday, added another Tuesday with a single to center field to score Badgley. Mahlstedt then lofted a pop up that dropped in behind second base for a double.

Megan Despain, who had three hits against TJ to lead the team, drove a single to left to score Jetton. Ginger Hines brought in Mahlstedt with the third run of the inning as she hit into an error. Tara Boe smacked a soft liner over shortstop for a base hit, but Despain was thrown out at home attempting to score.

Jefferson's tally came in the third inning. Jolene Hering, on base with a fielder's choice, came home when Vanessa Mucilli hit a bouncer to Federal Way's Shannon Sehlin at third. The Eagles did catch Skorupa in a pickle between second and third, however, for the third out of the inning.

THE EAGLES then added two more in the fourth to take a 6-1 lead. Eileen Aki's two-out double to center field scored both Jennifer Wise and Badgley after those two had walked.

Another rally in the fifth by the Eags made it 9-1. Despain singled to left center with one out and Hines followed with another base hit on a hard grounder under the shortstop's glove.

With two down, Wise delivered an RBI single to left center to score Despain. Erin Pellant singled to right center to score Hines and Sehlin lofted an RBI single to center field to tally Wise.

Both teams were held scoreless until the top of the seventh when the Eagles picked up two more runs.

Despain singled to left center to lead it off and Heidi Saheli and Boe followed with walks to load the bases. Wise's single to left center brought in Despain and Pellant hit into a fielder's choice to drive in Saheli.

Boe, trying to advance from second to third, was injured when she tried to slide in under the tag.

"It looks like her ankle is twisted pretty bad," said Baldwin of his injured catcher. "We're hoping it is nothing real serious, but we're not going to take any chances. We're taking her to the emergency room and hopefully she'll be OK."

DECATUR, after beating Lakes 9-4 on Monday behind the three hits and three RBI of Michelle Aman, lost a 1-0 heart-breaker to Puyallup on the lower Steel Lake Park field Tuesday to slip to 6-5. Puyallup evened its league mark at 6-6.

Koree Frank knocked in Tarah Jackowski with the winning run in the top of the seventh for Puyallup.

"We had a super game," said Decatur coach Greg Flynn, whose team is tied for fourth place in the SPSL with Spanaway Lake. "Both teams played extremely well, both teams played great defense."

Puyallup finished with eight hits and no errors, while Decatur had five hits and one error. Tanya Fischer made "a great play at shortstop," noted Flynn, while Kim Houston had a "couple great catches" in the outfield. The Gators also turned a couple double plays with "Heidi Bertch turning the pivot really well," Flynn explained.

Centennial Games track meet slated

The Washington Centennial Games qualifying track meet for zones 3, 5 and 6 will take place on Friday, June 16, and Saturday, June 17, and will be held in conjunction with the Federal Way Summer Invitational Track and Field meet at Federal Way Memorial Field.

Zone 3 covers the Clallam, Jefferson, Grays Harbor, Mason, Kitsap and Thurston counties, Zone 5 covers part of King County and Zone 6 covers Pierce County.

The winner in the following age groups and events will advance to the Centennial Games Aug. 10-13 in Spokane: 13-17, 100 meters, 400 meters, 800 meters, 1,500 meters, long jump and shot put; 18-25, 26-29, 200 meters, 400 meters, 1,500 meters, 5,000 meters, high jump and javelin; and 40 and up, 100 meters, 400 meters, mile, 500 meters, discus and shot put.

Athletes may compete in only one event at the qualifying level and the cost will be $10. All qualifiers must reside within one of the three zones. Each winner must declare his or her intention to compete in Spokane by the end of the qualifying meet and must be TAC members. Qualifiers may purchase TAC cards on meet day at a cost of $7 for those 18 and under and $10 for those 19 and over. All qualifiers must have proof of birthdate on meet day.

THOSE INTERESTED in competing in the Federal Way Track Club's Federal Way Summer Invitational may do so on the same weekend of the Washington Centennial Games qualifying meet.

Events from the 50 meters on up to the 300 meter hurdle events and field events will be going on both days for age groups 7/8 up through 17/18, 19-29, submasters and masters.

The cost for each event will be $2.50 for 29 and under and $4.50 per event for 30 and up. Event coupons may be purchased for the Federal Way Invitational starting at 4 p.m. June 16.

Participants may also register for the qualifying meet of the Centennial Games starting at 4 p.m. Friday, June 16, or pre-register prior to June 9. Pre-registration would be advisable because the first event of this meet starts at 5 p.m.

The schedule for the Washington Centennial Games preliminary meet at Federal Way Memorial Field for Friday, June 16, is as follows:

5 p.m., 400 meters, 13-17, 18-25, 26-39 and 40 and over; 6 p.m., 200 meters, 18-25, 26-39; 6:30 p.m., 100 meters, 13-17, 40 and over; 9:15 p.m., 1,600 meters, 40 and over; 6 p.m., shot put, 13-17; 6 p.m., discus, 40 and over; and 7 p.m., shot put, 40 and over.

The schedule for the Washington Centennial Games preliminary meet for Saturday, June 17, is as follows:

8 a.m., 5,000 meters, 18-25, 26-39, 40 and over; 6:30 p.m., 1,500 meters, 13-17, 18-25, 26-39; 7 p.m., 800 meters, 13-17; 9 a.m., javelin, 18-25; 10 a.m., javelin, 26-39; 11 a.m., high jump, 18-25; 12 p.m., high jump, 26-39; and 2 p.m., long jump, 13-17.

Entry forms for the Washington Centennial Games preliminary meet at Federal Way can be picked up in the front office of the Federal Way News or at area schools. For more information, contact Angie Eichholtz, 927-3586.

Participants of spring fitness runs listed

The fourth annual St. Francis Community Hospital spring fitness runs took place Saturday, April 22, drawing 187 participants in the 10-kilometer race and 132 5-K runners as well as numerous others in the Family Walk.

Rusty Belknap, the only wheelchair entry in the 10-K race, finished first overall with a time of 31:15. The 17-year-old Auburn resident, who is a national competitor in wheelchair competition, was allowed to begin the 10-K race one minute prior to the rest of the participants.

Taking first among the 10-K runners was Bill Gote of Bellingham, who finished in a time of 32:06. Tony DeAugustie of Kent captured first place in the 5-K race with a time of 16:12.

Candidate introductions

Francis McConnell

F.W. "Bill" McConnell says he will listen and respond to the needs of the people if elected to the Federal Way City Council in Position 2.

McConnell, 47, has lived in Federal Way for nearly 20 years, he said. In that time he has seen the area grow and become disoriented under the direction of the King County Council, he said.

Also, he said he has watched county police drive prostitution out of Sea-Tac and into Federal Way and has seen drugs move into Federal Way.

McConnell said Federal Way needs strong police and fire departments. It also needs affordable low-income housing.

McConnell is a "works repairer" for Kaiser Aluminum in Tacoma. He is past president of his union and currently secretary of the local branch of the United Steelworkers of America Union.

McConnell is married with three children. He lives in Twin Lakes.

Arthur Hagberg

Art Hagberg is running for the Federal Way City Council in Position 4 because he says it will be a rewarding experience.

"I can't think of anything more exciting and rewarding that I could be doing than be a part of creating a brand new city," Hagberg said.

Hagberg, 58, was a city council member in Homer, Alaska, for two years. He also worked as a sales manager for the Washington State Lottery Commission.

Now Hagberg is a real estate salesman. He has been in sales all his life, he said.

The serious issues facing Federal Way are growth, police service and traffic planning, Hagberg said.

Hagberg has lived a total of 19 years in Federal Way. He is married with five children and four grandchildren.

Art Hagberg

Hagberg resides in Twin Lakes.

Homer Anders

Homer Anders concedes that several of his opponents in the race for Position 6 on the Federal Way City Council have more political experience than him.

But Anders, 49, hopes that voters will consider his experience in dealing with governments when they vote in the May 16 primary election. A self-employed land surveyor, Anders deals with King County and the cities within it on a regular basis.

It was during a visit to the King County Courthouse that Anders noticed only one person had filed for Position 6. So he decided to run for the seat but not to actively campaign.

Anders does not plan to raise funds, to advertise or to seek publicity. He hopes voters will be attracted by his philosophy of government — much less is much better.

Homer Anders

Cityhood for Federal Way, he believes, is a necessary evil.

"I don't like it like I don't like when it rains on a picnic — but it's a fact of life," he said.

Anders is a nine-year resident of Federal Way. He and his wife live in the Buena area and have six grown children.

Fred Jaber

The new Federal Way City Council needs to manage growth, says Fred Jaber, who is running for the council in Position 2.

"You can't stop growth, but you can channel it and stay ahead of it so that it makes a constructive contribution to the community," Jaber said.

Jaber, 35, has been a sales manager for 15 years. He is currently a salesman for Hertz Rent-a-Car. He used to be sales manager for the Bon Marche and said he worked with a $9 million budget.

Jaber is also a member of the Federal Way Community Council and a precinct committeeman for the Republican Party.

He has a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Washington.

Fred Jaber

Jaber has lived in Federal Way for 10 years. He currently lives south of West Campus with his wife and son.

center firmly in the black, said Deanna Dicomés, executive director.

"For the first time in a long time we show a positive equity. We're not going to run out and go shopping at Nordstrom's, but we're making great progress," she said.

The audit shows the multi-service center took in slightly more than $2.6 million in 1988, "and every penny was accounted for," Dicomés said.

The agency actually had a surplus last year of $40,000, which she is happy about, but wishes it was more than twice that size.

"Ideally, we would like to have a couple of months' operating expenses in reserve and that would be at least $100,000. We're working on it," Dicomés said.

HAVING A healthy financial outlook will help the multi-service center when it asks businesses, individuals and governmental agencies for donations and grants. That comes in handy, particularly now, when the agency is in the midst of a capital drive to raise money to pay for its purchase of the Federal Way Elks Club building, which will house all programs and services offered by the center, including the food bank and its warehouse.

Earnest money has been put down on the property, but the sale has not been finalized. The state Elks organization must first approve of the sale and some building surveys are yet to be completed before final papers are signed, Dicomés said. If all goes well, the center will move into its new home this fall, she added.

"This audit gives us credibility when we go out and ask people for money. They know they won't be throwing it down a black hole," Dicomés said.

So far, the agency has raised $187,000 toward its goal of 750,000. The campaign to raise that money will continue until the building is paid for, she added.

Another aid in that drive is the United Way board and agency management report that was commissioned for the multi-service center by Boeing. This year the report gave the agency straight As, Dicomés said, compared to "a couple of Ds and a C in years past."

Last year was the best year the agency has had, Dicomés said. Its sound financial status has helped in fundraising, and this year's budget tops the $3 million mark, indicating that the agency is able to attract more grants and donations because its financial reputation has improved, she explained.

"Right now, everything is better than it's ever been," she said.

Flasher is striking at eastside schools

Police are investigating the possibility that several reports of a man exposing himself to young girls at schools in eastern Federal Way might be related to the same person.

King County police investigated two sightings April 20, one at Lake Dolloff Elementary School and one at Kilo Junior High School. Kent police investigated two similar incidents April 19 and 20 at Totem Junior High.

Descriptions of the man in the Lake Dolloff and Kilo incidents are similar except for his clothes and age. Three girls described him as white, 30-40 years old, standing 6 feet tall with a slim build. He has medium-dark brown hair with bangs and brown eyes and was unshaven, with sparse stubble on his face. He approached the girls on a bicycle.

Two girls in the Kilo incident described the man similarly, but said he was 18-22 years old. They were not as close to the man as the other girls, however, police reports state.

At Lake Dolloff, the man wore a trench coat and a dark knit watch cap, and at Kilo he wore a dark blue baseball cap and a red shirt or jacket.

The physical description of the flasher at Totem varies, but his dress, a tan trench coat and knit cap, matches the clothing of the man at Lake Dolloff. The flasher at Totem also was riding a bicycle, Kent police said. He is described as dark-haired and complected, possibly of Hispanic decent, standing about 5 feet 10 inches tall. He is reported to be in his mid-20s.

Kent police stationed an officer at the school last Friday in anticipation the man would return, but he failed to show up a third time, they said.

Only families living outside the city of Seattle will be eligible for the program.

Akina-Jones said the county hopes to sign up at least 100 child care providers, located throughout the county and in the city of Seattle.

"We will make every effort to honor parents' requests for specific providers," she said.

The county will provide a maximum of $412 a month subsidy for infants, $331 for toddlers and $296 for school-age children.

The subsidy will be on a sliding scale, depending on the parents' income. Akina-Jones said the appropriation for the program will increase slightly in 1990.

New school to host parent meeting

The Seabury School in Browns Point will host a parent meeting from 1-3 p.m. Saturday, April 29, at the Federal Way Library.

The private school is now accepting applications for kindergarten and elementary school students. Barbara Field, director of the school, will offer a full day program for students from Northeast Tacoma, Federal Way, Fife, Milton and Auburn.

Future plans include expanding up to sixth grade. Individual class sizes will be no larger than 15 students.

The Seabury School is a non-profit corporation governed by a board of trustees comprised of former teachers and school administrators and a pastor from a Federal Way Presbyterian church.

The Federal Way library is located at 848 S. 320th St. For more information, call 839-0269.

David Wallace

David Wallace is running for Position 5 on the Federal Way City Council because he wants to preserve the quality of life in Federal Way.

"My wife and I are representative of young couples and families who are committed to living in Federal Way," Wallace said. "I am concerned that unrestricted and uncontrolled growth, crime and traffic pressure will erode the quality of life."

Wallace, 28, is a legal intern with a local law firm. He has a bachelor's degree from Carnegie Mellon University and will graduate from the University of Puget Sound Law School in May.

He belongs to the Washington National Guard and is a member of the chamber of commerce and the International

David Wallace

Law Society.

Wallace has lived in Federal Way for four years. He lives north of West Campus with his wife.

Alfred Frank

Al Frank has lived in Federal Way for 21 years and he says he knows the community well.

Frank, who gives his age as "60-plus," is running for Federal Way City Council in Position 2.

"I know about government and I feel that everybody has a stake in it," Frank said. "There are a lot of new people in Federal Way, but I feel I am the one person you can trust."

Frank was a research engineer for Boeing for 20 years. He has also been a part-time instructor at Seattle Community College, owned a personnel recruiting firm and currently owns a hospital supply company.

Frank has worked on several incorporation campaigns and ran for city council in 1985, but lost.

He has a bachelor's degree in history, a master's degree in social studies and a bachelor's degree in metallurgical engineering from Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute.

Frank lives in Buena with his wife. They have three sons.

Students take part in 'Global Seattle'

A number of high school juniors from Federal Way recently participated in "Global Seattle '89," a symposium for future leaders that addressed regional and international issues.

The program was sponsored by Seafair and Seafirst National Bank.

The students, by school, were: Decatur — Johanna Salatas, Alex Yan, Andrew Cho, Shirley Lee and Tina Saravanja.

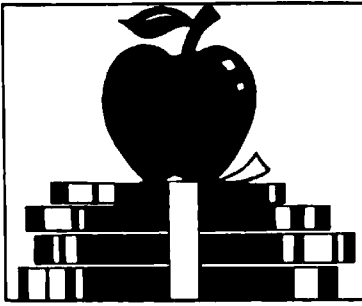

Federal Way — Trissa Dexheimer, Trent Erickson, Angie Thomson, and Lisa Arsenault.

Thomas Jefferson — Amy Kim, Jackie Kim and Christine Mayhew.

Sacajawea names six top students

Six students of Sacajawea Junior High have been named students of the month for March.

Honors went to Tammy Fernando and Garrett Penwell of the Sacajawea seventh grade, Jayne Duran and Matt Priestman of the eighth grade and Kim Willis and Todd

Our Schools

More than 250 students from around King County participated in the series of workshops, which were held at the University of Washington.

Wilhelm of ninth grade.

Students were selected by teachers and staff based on their leadership, citizenship and scholastic achievement.

Their photos will be displayed in the school trophy case, and each will receive a medal.

Officials inspect ladder

director of engineering. "It just really showed up this past weekend."

Representatives of the company that built the ladder, Waterworks Inc. of Bellingham, and the company that designed it, HDR Engineering Inc. of Edmonds, were asked to visit the fish ladder on Thursday.

Wieneke said it isn't clear yet who will shoulder the blame for the collapse or who will have to pay for the reconstruction.

The district planted salmon in the stream after the stream relocation was completed about two years ago. Those salmon are not in danger because they are not due to return for another two years.

Police nab Art's suspect

The robber ran from the store and was gone by the time police arrived.

"I'm glad they got him," said Kaiser when he heard of the arrest. "You don't know when somebody like that is going to come back."

Veeder and Parr also are charged with first degree robbery in Oregon, and will remain in the Mason County Jail to face charges. Then the two will be brought back to Pierce County for arraignment, said Jim Roche, Pierce County deputy prosecuting attorney.

Roche said that, depending on their prior criminal records, Veeder and Parr could receive a sentence in Pierce County anywhere from 31 months to 171 months for the attempted robbery, which is a class A felony.

Correction: Wrong city council position is listed

In a Wednesday, April 26, story in the Federal Way News ("Candidates introduced"), the wrong city council position was listed for Mary Gates. She is running in Position 1 against Bill Shortt and Rick Allen.

Fund-raiser set for Kirk Pasbrig

There will be a garage sale tomorrow from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 5235 S.W. 316th Place in Federal Way to help raise funds for 13-year-old Kirk Pasbrig's trip to Europe this summer to participate in the European-Select Youth Soccer Tour.
