STAN BORESON, A POPULAR local TV host of the '50s and '60s, revived his songs and jokes for an Adelaide Elementary School audience last week. Boreson's visit was part of Adelaide's 25th birthday party, held Thursday. Also on the bill was a chill feed and sock hop. Adelaide students and staff dressed up in outfits reminiscent of 1964, the year the school opened.

He was a star for nearly 20 years, with a little help from his friends: an accordion, a silent clown named Hey You, and a droopy basset hound, No Mo, who stole the show with a sad glance at the camera.

In an exaggerated Norwegian accent, he told silly jokes and sang silly songs that described things close to home: Ballard, seafood, houseboats.

And now here he was at Adelaide Elementary School. Stan Boreson in the flesh, accordion and all.

What? You don't remember Stan Boreson? Pardon me, stranger, but your out-of-town roots are showing.

Stan Boreson was what we now call good, clean fun, and parents and staff at Adelaide's 25th birthday party Thursday, where he was the featured entertainer, clearly wished for his return to the local airwaves.

"We just wish you would come back on TV for our kids," a parent exclaimed as Boreson autographed an album. "Were you singing the theme song?" Boreson teased. "Yes!" chorused a couple of parents.

"I know — I was watching your lips," Boreson said, wagging his finger. Adelaide teacher Michael McSweeney, who co-ordinated

Gang meeting Monday

Straightforward information about possible gang activity in Federal Way is what Pat Woodey says she is seeking from a town meeting devoted to gang awareness, to be held Monday, June 5, at Thomas Jefferson High School.

(A story that ran in Friday's Federal Way News stated an incorrect date for the meeting.)

Audience participation is encouraged at the town meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m. in the school gym. Audience members can ask questions of three panel members, including a school district administrator, a police detective and the campaign director of Tacoma's Safe Streets program.

Thomas Jefferson High School is at 4248 S. 238th St. Federal Way residents of all ages are invited to the meeting. For more information, call Woodey at 854-3676 (days) or 839-3444 (evenings).

Bond planned for fall

Residents rank local open-space land

By KURT HERZOG

A group of Federal Way residents decided what parcels of local open space they would like to save from development at a public forum Thursday.

The approximately 30 residents who attended a presentation from the King County Council's Citizens Advisory Committee on Open Space helped prioritize a list of 10 parcels.

Citizens Advisory Committee members said they anticipate this fall's countywide open space bond will total about $115 million and will include open space and trail acquisitions around the county.

Local advisory committee members Dick Burris and Dave Kaplan had reviewed several parcels prior to the meeting including those in the 1988 bond issue. That bond issue failed largely because of the inclusion of money for the Seattle Aquarium and other items not related to open space.

Federal Way residents were particularly unhappy with the 1988 bond because it didn't include a proportionate share of money for Federal Way open space.

Kaplan said he and Burris will make sure Federal Way gets its fair share this time.

Proposed county-service plans rankle local transition leaders

By KURT HERZOG

Proposed policies aimed at making up revenue King County expects to lose after Federal Way and Sea-Tac incorporate are being called unsubstantiated, unfair, unnecessary and even ridiculous by some community leaders.

The King County Council directed its staff to come up with the policies on how to regain some of the $35 million in tax revenue the county expects to lose annually after the two communities officially incorporate and begin receiving tax revenues that used to go to the county.

The proposal calls for the full recovery of costs for services the county provides on a regional basis including police, health care and parks maintenance.

The policies will become the foundation on which the county will negotiate contracts with the new cities for providing municipal services such as police protection and road maintenance.

The 60-page document is extremely complex. Representatives of the Federal Way First! Transition Team met Friday morning to discuss a formal draft of their objections to the new policies.

THE TEAM hired Sea-Tac area consultant Judy Stoloff to write the draft. The draft was to be distributed to several Federal Way City Council candidates for their signatures and to other team members over the

A draft report assessing the feasibility of building a new road between South 320th and 312th streets will be reviewed at an open house Wednesday, June 14, from 4-7 p.m. at Federal Way School District headquarters.

At this time the new road is only being studied and no plans exist to actually build it.

The draft report, prepared for the county by consultants, describes four alternative alignments for a road connecting 312th and 320th. All routes begin at South 320th and 11th Place South and end at South 312th and 14th Avenue South.

The routes pass through the Federal Way School District's transportation and maintenance complex and then run along the western boundary of the Federal Way Shopping Center parking lot. Depending on the route, the road would require various amounts of right-of-way through the shopping-center parking lot and/or neighboring homes.

A connection to the intersection of Pacific Highway South and South 316th Street is included in the study.

A four-lane extension of South 316th from 20th Avenue South to Pacific Highway South already is under construction. That project will include a traffic light at the intersection of South 316th and Pacific Highway South and a new entrance into the shopping center parking lot. That entire project should be completed by the end of summer, said Rex Knight, manager of engineering services for the King County Department of Public Works.

The South 312th-320th road study was requested more than a year ago by local transportation activists; however, many residents of the neighborhood through which the new road would pass blasted the plan at previous meetings. They complained the road would carve up their back yards.

In addition, many of the people who proposed the study have since criticized it for not exploring other ways to improve traffic flows in the southwest corner of Federal Way's central business district.

Once a final version of the study is complete, it will be turned over to the new city of Federal Way, which would have to conduct an environmental review if it ever decided to build the road, said Knight.

The school district headquarters building is at 31405 18th Ave. S. For more information call Jackie Spears, 296-3737.

Parents address daughter's killer

Editor: This is directed to the person who murdered our daughter.

On the morning of Aug. 28, 1988, you chose to take the life of our beloved daughter, Tracy Jean Whitney. We cannot imagine what on earth she could have possibly done to deserve such a terrible fate.

You not only stole her life and all the things she will never be able to do, but you have also changed forever the lives of her family and friends who love her. We now have a life sentence, one that will go on forever. We all miss our Tracy very much and we wish you could know what that kind of pain is like.

We really do not understand how you possibly can live with yourself after what you have done. Do you have no conscience, remorse, or guilt? How do you get up every morning and look at yourself in the mirror?

Letters

On a different note I would like to thank all those caring people in the Federal Way community who have given their love and support to us through this ordeal. But please; if there is anyone out there who knows anything about what happened to Tracy Whitney, please come forward.

It's our task to keep kids from harm

Editor: All of us are horrified by the ghastly incident involving the boy in Tacoma. Our thoughts and prayers go to the child and the family, for the future process of healing physical and emotional scars.

The incident should focus all citizens not only on the terror of child abuse, but also on the larger issue of our society providing increased services and programs that protect children and prevent such tragedies.

There are no more important issues today than the needs of our children. It is vital that we commit ourselves to the success of the Children's Initiative, quality education, good day care and agencies and organizations that are dedicated to the care and enrichment of children.

The key to generating healthy, productive adults is to provide people with self-esteem, values, skills and correct role models as children. Once that commitment is addressed, we will see fewer adults committing crimes against children and fewer children suffering at the hands of assailants, many of whom were abused as children themselves.

The cycle of violence against children can only be broken by every person standing up for the rights of boys and girls, for their care, education and protection.

The children of this community, our nation and world are our most important resource and the hope for our future. Our challenge is to provide them the opportunity to grow into well-adjusted and caring adults by demonstrating our care for them as children.

I'm disappointed by both sides in strike

Editor: In October, 1983, I was hired as a checker for a brand new Albertsons (Woodmont Place). My position in the store (today) is "Customer Service Trainer," so I devote a lot of time and energy into training our employees to give our customers the best service possible. I feel our store is number one when it comes to fast, friendly service.

And now, along with the rest of the store's employees, I am standing outside the store with picket signs. It was recommended to us by our union (U.C.F.W. locals 1105 and 81) that we reject the contract offer...

We have been out of work for 20 days, during which time we have been told to picket four hours a day, rain or shine... but neither side is willing to compromise. Store management is kept in the dark and the locked out employees are given the old cliché, "No news is good news."

It isn't fair to any of us and speaking for myself, I just want this mess to end, so that I can be back in the store, doing what I do best, serving my customers, and representing and supporting a fine grocery store.

Until both sides come back to the bargaining tables, I have no intention of picketing any longer. Why should I give my time, if they aren't willing to do the same. My personal thanks go out to all of our devoted customers for their support and understanding during this strike.

Women's clubs were vital here in past

Editor: I've been intending to write to commend you for your Centennial '89 series. And congratulations to Melodie Steiger for her part in them. The two recent articles in the Federal Way News (May 21, "Women's clubs...") were interesting.

But I bet it was learned at the Centennial Tea that there were women's clubs in the area before the Harding Women's Club was formed in 1934. This is not to say any of them were as large or as active; however, the development of state Highway 99 caused an increase in population and the necessity for a means to get acquainted in the community.

The firemen's auxiliaries began before 1934, I think. And I'm sure the Redondo-based "Dorcas Club" began even before these.

One thing I've always wondered is where the latter club got its name. A member I asked didn't know, and perhaps there are no older members who were there when it began. Something in the back of my mind seems to remind me it had something to do with a Dorcas Ann Kincaide.

Was it a suspicion because of a commemorative stamp? Or did I see a grave in the Mountain View Cemetery with dedication to her? No doubt there is information on all of our early community affairs in the old issues of the Auburn Sun, which are on microfiche in the Auburn Library.

Anyone wishing to share some information they may have on early women's clubs may call Linda Smith, research chairwoman of the Historical Society of Federal Way, at 941-3859, or myself at 927-4061 in case she is not at home.

Book looks at state from sky-high view

At first glance, Over Washington is just another pretty picturebook, based on a clever premise, an eagle's eye view of our state.

Sometimes glorious, sometimes funny, sometimes arresting and sometimes moving, the images of photographer Harald Sund float across the pages. The book opens on a steep, feathery photo of old growth Doug fir, then drifts us over farms in Arlington, a gang of tugboats on Elliott Bay, curious and quirky shots that look down on suburban landmarks — one of the most appealing is Federal Way's own Wild Waves Park.

But finally, these are merely pictures. What makes the book a keepsake are the nuggets of pure lore provided by another Federal Way area treasure, author Murray Morgan, who makes his home on Trout Lake.

Imagine this: At a friend's home, you pick up the book from a coffee table in idle curiosity. Here and there you spot a familiar scene as you thumb the pages: the snaky tooth of Mt. Shuksan in the moonlight; the pastel turbulence of the Pacific off Tatoosh.

A sentence like this one captures you, dragging you into the text: "On the foggy morning of May 7, 1792, Captain Vancouver's flotilla of small boats rowed out of Discovery Bay..."

How did he know it was a foggy morning, you wonder. And soon you are forgetting the photos, hunting hunks of gold that litter the text. Morgan is one of the few distracted by the sight, a few pages further on, of Walla Walla wheatfields, green as a pool table, sculpted like muscle.

Over Washington is far from a postcard recap of the region. What it offers is a fresh look at old friends: Rainier up close in a pinkish haze; a vast view of the Columbia near Bonneville Dam, its silver shoulders budging the canyon it created; a cluster of log booms that look from on high like a primitive charm bracelet.

Even in the captions under those photos, Morgan's witty touch and historical grasp are wonderful. A full-page spread of a hydro dam is explained in tidy understatement:

As you pause over these pages you may be reminded that a landlubber sees Puget Sound in terms of beach frontage, cabin cruiser moorage and property values. The real estate we have parceled out, as seen by Sund and Morgan, has its grandeur restored. But it is a qualified grandeur.

scholars to have seen some of the original journals kept by early explorers along our coast. From those rare sources, he has pieced together a mosaic of history that makes these more than naked images.

Reading one of those intriguing anecdotes — about an esoteric event that led to the opening of the Oregon Trail — you lose your place, ment: "Chief Joseph of the Nez Perce said, 'The white people would change the rivers if they did not suit them.' The whites named this dam Chief Joseph."

This summer, you may be visiting some of the same sites, taking snapshots of San Juan sunsets or pointing out to kids the patchwork farms that unfold under the eyes of red-tailed hawks cruising the Pullman, northwest of Palouse. Take the book along. You'll have a story to tell with every picture. It will remind you that we inspect the earth habitually from a puny angle.

Send a copy to relatives who can't escape the pancake topography of Kansas or the shrinking Eden of California. Before you do, spend a few hours with Morgan and Sund yourself.

As you pause over these pages you may be reminded that a landlubber sees Puget Sound in terms of beach frontage, cabin cruiser moorage and property values. The real estate we have parceled out, as seen by Sund and Morgan, has its grandeur restored. But it is a qualified grandeur.

Without a sermon, they show that the urgent world of traffic jams where we spend our lives was first a concoction of geography, and still is. Colored by beach towels and the splayed figures of sun-bathers, Alki looks like a spill of alphabet soup. A marina becomes a chromatic maze.

The real heroes of the book are Puget Sound, and the mountains that interrupt our earthly view. That's a lot more than we ask of most picturebooks, and with Morgan's help, a generous tribute to the state. Whenever you think the world is too much with us, this book will remind you, as Robert Frost wrote, "We were the land's before the land was ours."

Boreson brings back homely humor

Adelaide's birthday with teacher Joe Finley, said he first heard Boreson's old songs during one very cold Christmas season in the early '80s, when he was cooped up with a newborn baby and the radio. When the school's 25th year rolled around, he remembered the entertainer.

"We wanted to find somebody who represents the era of 1964, and there was Boreson," McSweeney said. "I think he was charming."

Boreson no longer has No Mo by his side (the dog would be 37 by now, he points out), but he dusted off some of the old songs for Adelaide's students. And despite 20 years of dust, the kids laughed in the right places most of the time, even at "Walking in My Winter Wonderland" (sung to "Winter Wonderland").

"I wrote a beautiful Western song, because I love Western music. I called it, 'When the Lone Ranger Ripped His Jeans, We Saw His Hide Out,'" Boreson told the Adelaide crowd.

And the crowd groaned. "I wrote another about Russia. I called it, 'It Was Dinnertime in Russia, Soviet.'" "Say it out loud. It'll come to you."

BORESON WAS NEVER movie-star handsome. He looks more like somebody's kindly uncle. He opens doors for women, speaks fondly of his wife and former co-workers and dares to sing the praises of manners before a modern audience:

"It doesn't hurt a bit to be polite, It only shows that you are very bright..."

Boreson is 100 percent

Norwegian, and Scandinavian characters are the basis for at least 99 percent of his comedy. By donning a red wig, wire-rimmed glasses and clunky hat, he becomes Uncle Torvald, a Norwegian Everyman harried by wife and family. He also plays the Swedish Answer Man, who had a reply for everything:

'I get to a convention in a strange town, a strange hotel and 500 strange people, and I die. I'm so nervous I think I'm going to croak, and I'd much rather be at home,' Stan Boreson said.

"Who wrote, 'The Prisoner of Zenda'?" "Nobody. He wasn't allowed to get mail."

He still giggles when recalling Pepita the Flea, a gag that starred a piece of metal on paper, guided by a magnet under the paper. Pepita spoke in a high, squiggly voice, often exclaiming, "Oh no!" — a local predecessor to "Saturday Night Live's" Mr. Bill.

"We just made all that stuff up. It was just jokes, and we had a good time doing it," Boreson said.

NOW 64, BORESON'S time is spent heading a touring company, Stan and Barbara Boreson Tours, out of Seattle. Besides arranging tours throughout Canada and the U.S., he occasionally performs and, now has produced 13 records, some of them children's albums and some Scandinavian tunes. The latter are played on the radio both here and abroad.

Boreson still accompanies himself on the accordion, an instrument he learned to play at 12. He wanted to play the guitar then, but found he had to sing with the guitar, and he was too shy to do that.

He's still shy, he says. "I get to a convention in a strange town, a strange hotel and 500 strange people, and I die. I'm so nervous I think I'm going to croak, and I'd much rather be at home," he said.

But the show goes on, and jokes win over the audiences.

"I always figure, one more time I lucked out," he said.

BORESON PLAYS FOR adult audiences most of the time now. Adelaide's show was special, however, he said. It commemorated the school's 25 years, and harkened back to the heyday of kids' programming.

Those days ended here in the late '60s, when Boreson and his like were chopped from the TV schedule.

"It was just a thing that was happening. All the shows were going, one at a time," Boreson said.

And Boreson has stories of those days, when Hey You the clown was played by old pal Doug Setterberg. Hey You "talked" with a horn because Setterberg had lost his larynx to cancer.

Boreson tells of Pepita the Flea, who got so popular that fans sent tiny furniture for his TV home. And he recalls with pleasure that two GIs from Washington met in Vietnam because of his show. One was singing the theme song in the camp shower, and the other joined in.

And still, he says, everybody asks about No Mo, the dog that did little and looked so miserable doing it.

"They remember the dog as much as anything," Boreson said.

Tips sought in murder

Crime Stoppers in Tacoma received a few calls concerning the murder of Tracey Jean Whitney when it offered a $1,000 reward for information a few weeks ago. None of the calls, however, provided investigators with new information.

The 18-year-old Federal Way woman was last seen alive the night of Aug. 27, 1988, at the Burger King restaurant near SeaTac Mall. She fought with her boyfriend and left on foot, detectives learned.

Her body was found the next morning on a sandbar in the Puyallup River by two fishermen. She appeared to have been murdered.

Her boyfriend is not a suspect in the murder, a spokesman for Crime Stoppers said. In fact, there are no suspects and no solid leads, though the case is still being actively investigated.

District asks customers to conserve lawn water

Federal Way water customers are being asked by local utility officials to conserve water use this summer by watering lawns only every third day.

The Federal Way Water and Sewer District's water conservation program is voluntary. Seattle and Tacoma already use the lawn-watering conservation program and this is the second year Federal Way has used it.

To find out which day you should be watering on, call the Federal Way Water and Sewer District at 941-1516, or stop in at district headquarters to pick up a calendar. The district's headquarters is located at 31627 First Ave. S.

District officials advise that lawns need to be watered only once a week. For best absorption, water before 10 a.m. or after 9 p.m.

Hylebos Wetlands ranked high on parks list acquired, it will present its list to the King County Council for placement on the ballot. It's anticipated the open space bond issue will be voted on in November. The bond issue will require a 60 percent approval from voters to pass.

Kaplan and Burris initially presented a list of eight parcels to Federal Way residents Thursday. However, one of those parcels was later split in two and another was added at the suggestion of a resident.

The list, in order of priority, follows:

- 138 acres of farmland at Southwest 344th Street and 21st Avenue Southwest worth $3.8 million.
- 24 acres of the Hylebos Wetlands around Brook Lake that is currently threatened by development. Originally, another 71 acres of the wetlands were included in one 95-acre parcel, but the parcel was split. Kaplan said the 71 acres is primarily a buffer zone that is important, but isn't as threatened by development as other parcels. The other 71 acres was given the third-highest acquisition priority. The entire 95 acres is estimated to be worth $1.6 million.

- 10 acres in the Adelaide/Lakota area between Southwest 304th Street and Southwest 306th Place and between 24th and 26th avenues southwest at a cost of about $310,000.
- 37 acres north of North Lake in what will remain unincorporated King County after Federal Way officially incorporates. The land is estimated to be worth $3.2 million.
- A parcel near Southwest 363rd Street and 12th Avenue Southwest. The size of the parcel is undetermined, but is estimated to cost about $240,000.

• An unknown amount of land called Spring Valley that includes the North Fork of Hylebos Creek near the Pierce County Line. Community activist Ted Enticknap suggested the parcel be included because it was the most-requested parcel in a 1988 survey of open space that was conducted by the Federal Way Community Council and the Federal Way News. The cost of the land is also unknown.

- 50 acres called Lutherland north of Lake Killarney, which is also east of Interstate 5 in the still-to-be unincorporated county. Its value is estimated at $1.8 million.
- Last on the list is 84 acres of the Evergreen Airstrip just west of the Cal Worthington auto dealership on Pacific Highway South. The land is estimated to be worth about $6.1 million, but recently sold to a private owner for at least $10 million. Residents agreed that the property probably was too expensive to be included.

Another two possible parcels wound up being deleted by residents. One was the Bethel Temple Church Camp and adjacent Fred Meyer store site near Mirror Lake. Bethel Church officials said they have plans to build a senior citizen's housing complex on the land. Also, Fred Meyer officials at the forum said it was unlikely they would part with the land just yet. Store officials are waiting to see if they will be allowed to build on another site in West Campus first.

Another site at 13th Avenue Southwest and Southwest 325th Place is primarily swamp and isn't threatened by development, residents decided.

Thursday's forum is not the last chance for residents to suggest parcels for preservation. Citizens may send their requests to the citizens advisory committee by June 14. The committee's address is: Citizens Advisory Committee on Open Space, Natural Resources and Parks Division, 2040 84th Avenue S.E., Mercer Island, WA 98040.

The bond issue will include the acquisition of several parcels that will create a regional trail system, according to Keith Artz, open space manager for King County Parks. "In five years, if the bond passes, we'll have the best regional trail system in the country," Artz said.

If the bond totals $115 million, county residents would pay about $17.50 a year for 20 years on a $100,000 home.

County hopes policies will recoup revenue weekend. It will be presented to the King County Council on Monday.

The county council will hold a public hearing on the policies June 19.

In summary, Stoloff likened the new county policies to the reaction of a divorced spouse. The county must realize it will have to pay more for services for awhile when it loses part of its economies of scale, just as a newly divorced person must begin by duplicating such services as phone service, heat and rent, Stoloff said.

It also will cost more for new cities to start up, she said. It costs money to hire people, buy new furniture and other capital expenditures, but eventually costs go down when the city is up and running.

"In general, when you split up it costs both partners more,"

Stoloff said.

Also, the county isn't taking into account that even though its revenue will drop, so will the cost of services it provides to residents of Sea-Tac and Federal Way, said Debbie Ertel, Position 3 city council candidate who attended Friday's meeting.

The team had asked the county council for an extension on submitting its response to the new policies, but the council refused, according to Maryann

Mitchell, chairwoman of the team.

"We don't want to get bulldozed into doing something," said Position 4 candidate Elaine Cook. "A lot of this is just trying to scare us."

Also at Friday's meeting were Position 4 candidate Jim Webster, Rep. Jean Marie Brough (R-30th), team member Jeanne Burbidge and Dick Burris, land-use consultant to the team.

New health clinic planned for Federal Way

On Friday, members of the King County Council got their first look at a plan to build three new health clinics in the county, including one in Federal Way.

The clinics are part of a $99.8 million dollar bond issue approved by the voters two years ago.

Officials with Seattle - King County Health Department say they are looking at several possible sites for the Federal Way clinic, but no decision on a location will be made until the council approves the overall plan, expected sometime this summer.

Judy Pierce, with the Health

Department, said they hope to locate the new clinic near Pacific Highway South and South 320th Street, in an area that is centrally located.

"We know that the elderly and low-income women with children can have problems with transportation, so we will be sensitive to those needs when we open new sites," she told the council.

Pierce said that property adjacent to the Elks Lodge building near West Campus is in strong contention for the health clinic site, since that would put the clinic close to the South King County Multi-Service Center.

The center plans to buy the Elks Lodge property and move its facilities there.

The new clinic, which is not expected to open until April, 1991, will serve between 15,000 and 20,000 clients.

Pierce said the low income population in south King County is expected to grow by 40 percent in the next ten years.

"Our emphasis is on low-income children and pregnant women, so we are going where the growth is," she added.

Car chase ends in Federal Way

A King County police officer attempted to pull over a reckless driver on southbound Interstate 5 in Seattle, but the 29-year-old Monroe man apparently wasn't in the mood for a traffic citation.

Instead, he led the officer on a chase at speeds ranging from 50 to 85 miles per hour in and out of heavy traffic on the freeway late Wednesday night. He wasn't stopped until he lost control of his car at the SR 18 exit in Federal Way.

The chase started when the Monroe man, driving a blue and cream colored 1974 Ford LTD, approached the marked King County patrol vehicle near Spokane Street on southbound I-5 in Seattle. He was doing approximately 80 miles per hour and slowed down upon seeing the patrol vehicle.

But when the driver of another car began signaling to the police officer that something was amiss with the LTD driver, he accelerated and began weaving in and out of traffic in all four lanes to escape.

The officer began his pursuit without the patrol car's siren or emergency lights on and paced the LTD driver at 80 miles per hour. He then turned on his lights and siren, but the driver of the LTD continued to evade him at high speeds.

At the Southcenter interchange, he ran three other vehicles out of the left-hand lane and onto the freeway shoulder.

The chase proceeded past South 188th, 272nd and 320th streets until the fleeing driver lost control of his car at the SR 18 exit in Federal Way.

The man was arrested for felony flight.

Job seeker helps himself to $400

A visitor to Odyssey West Campus Travel Wednesday morning told the manager he was looking for a job. In reality, he had just stolen $400 from the office's cash box.

The manager told King County police she closed the safe drawer before going to the rest room. While away from the front, she heard the door buzzer sound and went to investigate. When she got there, she saw the suspect standing outside the door.

He re-entered the store when she arrived and told her he was looking for a job. After being informed there were no openings, the man, described as a black male in his 30s, 5 feet 2 inches tall and 150 pounds, left the office.

She then went to the safe drawer for paperwork and realized that it had been opened and money was missing.

A witness said she saw a man fitting the suspect's description running across the parking lot and north on First Avenue South. He convinced the man he needed a ride to Des Moines. The man drove him to South 216th Street and Pacific Highway South and received $25 for his troubles.

In the car, the loan officer noticed a large roll of bills in the man's right hand, and was informed he had earned the money dealing drugs.

The loan officer provided information to the police and turned over the $25. Fingerprints were lifted from Odyssey Travel's cash box.

The thief was unshaven and wearing baggy beige pants.

Stolen truck tips off snack bar thieves

Six boys, three from Federal Way, two from Enumclaw and one from Auburn, have learned that if you're going to loot a candy shack, you'd better not haul the treasure away in a stolen truck.

The looting started last Saturday night when the three Federal Way boys, 13, 14 and 16, used stolen bolt cutters to cut the lock on the Federal Way Soccer Association snack bar, located at Lakota Junior High School.

The boys filled a canvas bag with goodies, which two of them, brothers, took home. They left the bag and the bolt cutters in a dumpster near their apartment.

The third boy went home and called a friend to brag of the theft. That boy and two additional friends then drove to Lakota in a stolen pick-up truck to further loot the shack. They took a "large quantity" of candy and soda but were later stopped by an Algona police officer who spotted the stolen truck.

He discovered the stolen items and the three boys confessed to having robbed the candy shack. The original three burglars were arrested as well and the canvas bag and bolt cutters were recovered from the dumpster. They confessed to having broken into the shack.

The six boys were released to their respective parents.

Too-tight jeans get wearer in a pinch

Having on jeans that were too tight turned out to be a criminal offense for a 15-year-old Seattle girl visiting Wild Waves Amusement Park on Tuesday.

The Seattle girl was walking through the women's changing room at the water park when another girl, 12, noticed her pair of $45 designer jeans missing. She spotted them on the 15-year-old, who was then detained by a police officer.

During a routine search for weapons, the police officer discovered pink spots on the jeans that the owner had said would identify them as hers. The jeans in question were size 5/6 while another pair in the suspect's possession were size 9. The stolen pair, which she was wearing, were so tight the zipper wouldn't move.

The Seattle girl admitted she stole the jeans and was taken to the King County Youth Center for fifth-degree theft. The case was remanded to Juvenile Court.

Pipeline 5 is key to local water plan

Residents of Federal Way will have a chance to comment on plans to supply water for the next 50 years at a meeting on Wednesday.

The South King County Regional Water Association (RWA), a group of area water districts, will present its Critical Water Supply Plan at a meeting 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, June 7, at Kilo Junior High School, 4400 S. 308th St.

The primary recommendation of the plan is to supply additional water to South King County residents by taking water from the proposed Pipeline 5.

The proposed pipeline would take water from the Green River. Most of the water will go to Tacoma, but other water districts, including Federal Way, will take water from the pipeline.

The pipeline has been opposed by environmentalists, fishermen and Indian tribes because of its potential effect on salmon spawning in the Green River.

However, administrator of Gary Cline, managing director of RWA, the pipeline is the only new source available to supply water to the growing number of South King County residents. The aquifers from which most of the area's residents get their water are operating at capacity, Cline said.

After Pipeline 5 is on line, districts will have a chance to let the aquifers recharge so that they may be used during peak-demand periods, he said.

"Pipeline 5 gives us breathing room," he said.

The RWA will present its plan to the King County Council after it hears what residents think at the meeting at Kilo and at other area schools.

Also, the city of Tacoma will present its own water supply plan update to King County. Tacoma is the lead agency on the Pipeline 5 project, but it needs the approval for the project from the King County Council because most of the pipeline will pass through King County.

Tacoma's water plan will be the subject of a King County Utilities Technical Review Committee meeting, 1:30 p.m., Tuesday, June 6, in Room 1101 of the Smith Tower, 506 Second Ave., in Seattle.

Summaries of the RWA's plan will be available at Wednesday's meeting.

Rapid recycling rate may outstrip market

By BONNIECLARE ERLING

King County residents may soon find themselves victims of their own successful recycling programs, if they do not figure out where to go with all the recycled garbage.

A proposal to form a Commission for Marketing Recyclable Materials is wending its way through the King County Solid Waste Committee. The main purpose of the commission would be to seek ways of using the recycled materials, develop new markets for the materials and promote the use of products manufactured from recycled materials.

Recycling programs are being established throughout the county to deal with burgeoning waste at the county's Cedar Hills Landfill.

"We'll all be in a hell of a lot of trouble if we don't move on this issue," said Paul Barden, Solid Waste Committee chairman. "We'll all be driving our trailers full of bottles and cans out to Cedar Hills. The need is so obvious."

The proposal for a marketing commission has been sent out to a number of people for their reactions. Rod Hanson, county director of solid waste, said he had hoped the commission concept would have been part of a recently passed state recycling bill. Implementation of the commission on the county level would be the second best approach, he said.

Commission activities would be funded from a surcharge on the county disposal fee. Hanson said the surcharge should be "more toward 50 cents a ton," rather than the 15 cents a ton recommended in the proposal.

The proposal recommends appointing 15 members representing garbage haulers, the recycling industry, King County manufacturers, Seattle and suburban cities and others.

Terre Harris, president of Harris Associates and a representative of the Rabanco Co. disposal firm, said recycling experts should be included.

"You'll get to where you want to go a lot faster by going to the people who understand the issues," Harris said.

The success of recycling in Kent illustrates the need for a marketing commission to help dispose of materials that are gathered, according to Gary Ewing, a consultant and monitor of disposal and recycling issues for Kent Disposal, a Rabanco subsidiary.

"In Kent, 88 percent (of residents) are curbside recyclers," Ewing said.

Six Eagles chosen

Area all-stars announced

By TIM CLINTON

Federal Way High School's baseball team may have tied for second-place in the South Puget Sound League's North Division, but the Eagles finished first in this year's All-News first-team selections.

Federal Way garnered six of the 12 available positions, with Thomas Jefferson taking four and Decatur two.

The Eagles tied Rogers for second in the final season standings with a 10-5 record, and TJ and Decatur both finished four games behind at 6-9, tied for fifth.

Even though the Gators did not reach the state playoffs for the first time since 1983, they still proved to be as good or better than the rest of the SPSL when one pitcher was on the mound—senior Brady Nelson.

Nelson was a unanimous choice for the All-SPSL first team, and he also makes the All-News team for the second year in a row.

Nelson — the Gators' only returning player from last year's team that finished fourth in the state — led the SPSL with 76 strikeouts in 54 innings of work. Nelson had a 1.66 earned run average and a 4-3 record, and also hit for a .386 average.

The other All-News pitching position goes to another All-SPSL pitcher — Federal Way ace Floyd French.

The Eagle junior finished with a 6-1, 1.37 record, striking out 21 in 41 innings and also earning a save. Like Nelson, French also carried a big bat — hitting .361 with four home runs and 18 RBI. He is a second-year All-News player.

TWO OTHER first-team SPSL players are on the All-News team in Federal Way right fielder Jeff Wagner and Thomas Jefferson designated hitter Aaron Martin.

Baseball

Martin earned his way onto the All-News team for the third-straight year. The Raider senior hit .370 with 18 RBI, five doubles and three triples.

Wagner makes the first team for the first time as a junior following a .375 season that included two home runs, three doubles and a triple. He had 17 RBI.

Aside from Wagner, the rest of the All-News outfield consists of TJ senior Mark Nielsen in left and Federal Way sophomore Milt DeAsis in center. Both make the All-News team for the first time and both were All-SPSL second-team selections.

Nielsen hit for a lofty .474 average to lead the Raiders, and had a streak where he reached base safely 23 of 26 times. Nielsen hit one home run and six doubles with eight RBI, and also scored 14 runs and walked 11 times.

DeAsis hit .377 as a sophomore with three doubles, one triple, 15 walks and a team-leading 14 stolen bases. He had six RBI.

THIS YEAR'S All-News catcher is Decatur junior Bill Ludwig, who also was a second-team All-SPSL choice.

Ludwig paced the Gators with his .436 batting average and hit two home runs with 12 RBI and 14 walks. He makes the All-News team for the first time.

Making the All-News team as a first baseman is Federal Way sophomore Mike Sugg. Sugg hit a lofty .419 with three doubles, one home run and 10 RBI in just 31 at-bats.

This year's All-News team boasts two second basemen (rather than three pitchers as in years past) in senior Marty Mogensen of Federal Way and TJ junior Joey Sonnenfeld.

Mogensen started his third season at second for the Eagles and hit .333 with 17 RBI, also taking SPSL honorable mention. This is his first selection to the All-News team.

Sonnenfeld hit an impressive .413 with 12 RBI to also make the All-News team for the first time. The All-News third baseman is Federal Way senior Treg Vandenberg, also a first-time selection and an SPSL honorable mention pick. Vandenberg hit for just a .221 average, but was a defensive standout.

Defensive play and two years as a starter earned TJ senior Jamie Sonnenfeld's way onto the All-News first team as a shortstop. Sonnenfeld — an All-News honorable mention choice last year — had been hitting .310 at one point before going into a late-season slump to finish at .220.

THIS YEAR'S All-News honorable mention list includes two catchers in Federal Way senior Doug Conzatti and TJ junior Chris Martin.

Conzatti hit a solid .315 with two home runs in only 38 at-bats with seven RBI, while Martin hit for a .359 average with one home run and 14 RBI. Martin made SPSL honorable mention as well.

An All-News honorable mention choice for the second year in a row is Federal Way catcher and outfielder Jeff Hutchens, who hit .285 as a senior.

Decatur third baseman Kevin Dahl made All-SPSL and All-News honorable mention after hitting .261 as a senior. TJ third baseman Pete Persons makes All-News honorable mention after a .251 junior season.

An honorable mention choice in left field is Federal Way senior Al Hensley after hitting .285, with other honorable mention outfielders being Decatur juniors Preston Larson (.285) and Josh Austin (.256). Taking honorable mention as solid-fielding shortstops are Federal Way senior Steve Crevling and Decatur junior Gregg Landskov.

The All-News team is selected by the Federal Way News sports staff with nominations made by area coaches.

Trio honored by SPSL

Two Federal Way Eagles and one Thomas Jefferson Raider were named to this year's All-South Puget Sound League softball first team.

The Eagles' Eileen Aki was named at first base and teammate Jenny Mahlstedt in left-center field, with TJ's Jolene Hering earning her way onto the first team in left.

Decatur shortstop Tanya

Fischer and left fielder Kim Houston made the second team along with Federal Way second baseman Kathy Badgley and shortstop Erin Pellant.

Taking All-SPSL honorable mention were Michelle Aman and Jana Medges of Decatur, Karen Mingus and Shannon Skorupa of Thomas Jefferson and Shannon Sehlin of the Eagles.

Feds beat defending champs to improve to 6-0

By TIM CLINTON

Jeff Wagner blasted a grand slam home run in the top of the second Thursday to pace the Federal Way American Legion baseball team to a 7-3 win over twice-defending District 11 champion Kirkland.

It was the Omni Executive Center squad's first-ever win over the powerful Pepsi Pak at Peter Kirk since that team joined the league in 1985.

The Feds ran their District 11 record to 4-0 with the win and improved to 6-0 overall.

Aside from Wagner's heroics that gave Federal Way a 7-1 lead at the time, Floyd French also went the distance on the mound to improve his record to 4-0.

He threw five innings in a game that was called after the top of the sixth because of an 11 p.m. curfew, striking out five while walking one and giving up four hits. Only one of the three runs allowed was earned to put his earned run average at 0.95 in 18 innings of work.

While the Feds' pitching was on once again, their usually stingy defense committed four errors — double their total for the previous five games.

"We didn't play our game, and we still won," said Federal Way head coach Tom Wagner.

KIRKLAND helped the Omni Executive Center cause, also committing four errors and walking nine in the first two innings.

Mark Nielsen, Matt Wimmer, Wagner and French all walked in order to start off the first and force in a run, and Doug Cozatti hit into a two-out error to bring in two more.

The Pepsi Pak scored one in the bottom of the inning to cut the lead to 3-1, but Kirkland starter Brian Berkley was still as wild as the proverbial March hare in the second.

Berkley gave free passes to Gregg Landskov, Nielsen and Wimmer to start off the inning, and then Wagner put his home run over the towering but reasonably close fence in right field.

After walking French Berkley was pulled from the mound in favor of Jeff Bulman, and Bulman wound up getting out of the inning and pitching shutout ball the rest of the way.

But the damage was already done with a 7-1 Federal Way lead, even though the Feds got there on just the one hit — Wagner's.

"It was a fastball, slow and outside," said Wagner of the pitch he hit out. "It just squeaked over the fence in right, but that was good enough."

Kirkland did score one unearned run in the second and another in the fourth, but that was only enough to cut the final margin to 7-3.

FEDERAL WAY finished with four hits to equal the Pepsi Pak's total, with Wagner going 2-for-3 to lead the way.

Wagner improved his batting average to an even .400 (6-for-15), and has a team-leading three home runs and seven RBI.

The Feds were to play Burien in a 9:30 p.m. game Friday (after press time) and go to Bellevue to play Honda at high noon yesterday, already giving them six league games out of 18 scheduled for the summer.

Federal Way will visit Auburn at Brannon Park for another league game at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Both Miller and Anderson are seniors.
