Clean sweep

TIM BOLEN (CENTER) AND HIS brother, Dan, help their grandmother dump garden waste at the Neighborhood Recycle Center in Federal Way. The family was taking advantage of a free disposal service offered at the recycling center last Saturday and Sunday by King County. The 200 tons of yard clippings taken in those days will be recycled into mulch by a Bothell topsoil company.

The free service will be offered at the recycling center the first weekend of every month through October. For information, call 296-4483. King County is also seeking county residents who want to try their hand at composting garbage. Free cedar composting bins will be given out on a first-come, first-served basis. Prepare for gangs now, experts say

By MELODIE STEIGER

Gangs are not here. Not quite yet, according to Major Oliver Moore, commander of King County police Precinct 5 (Federal Way).

But about 80 Federal Way residents were advised Monday night it will not be easy to keep them from coming here and from trafficking drugs in Federal Way neighborhoods.

And stopping them is up to the community, they were told.

"When you put your head in the sand, you know what part of you is exposed," said Lyle Quasim, director of Tacoma's Safe Streets program, a community effort to stop gangrelated crime in Pierce County.

The event was a gangawareness meeting for the community, sponsored by the Federal Way Community Council. Audience members were supposed to ask questions of panel members, including Quasim, a King County police detective and a Federal Way School District Administrator.

But they wound up telling their own stories as much as asking for advice. One mother, who asked to not be identified, said her daughter apparently rode along from Federal Way to Portland with gang members last week. She wasn't sure the girl went voluntarily.

Another mother spoke of her own daughter Regina Chiara Fournier, a former Thomas Jefferson High School student who recently was shot and killed at a Tillicum convenience store after a traffic altercation. There was no indication the killing was gang-related, according to police.

"But we want to make people aware. We are average individuals, and now we're trying to put the pieces back together, said David Chiara, the victim's father. "They strike everywhere, and we want people to know that."

MOORE SAID SO FAR Federal Way has had no documentable gang-related crime, although some schools have gang "wanna-bes" among their students. Thirty known gang members have given Federal Way addresses when stopped by police, he said.

But small numbers don't preclude crime, said Moore, who moderated the meeting. That afternoon, a Federal Way police officer had stopped a suspect who had a small amount of crack cocaine in his

Transition team loses two more over hiring plan

Two more members of the Federal Way First! Transition Team have resigned because of unhappiness with the team's decision to hire consultants and make recommendations to the still-to-be-elected Federal Way City Council.

Four of the team's approximately 25 members have now resigned for the same reasons.

Former team member Dale Roper resigned Friday after he learned that the team had decided to hire community activist Dick Burris as a consultant on local land-use issues. The team voted May 30 to hire Burris at a cost of $8,000 plus up to $2,500 in expenses to study land-use policies and make a report to the team by Sept. 1.

Another member, Laureen Walker, resigned just after the May 30 meeting because of the Burris hiring, other anticipated hirings of consultants and team plans to make recommendations to the new city council.

ROPER, A local landscape architect, said in a private interview that the team should be studying issues on cityhood and in some cases present alist of options to the city council. However, it's wrong for the team to have a consultant take over the study of local land-use issues, he said.

"Dick has done Federal Way a great service...with the land-use appeal process," Roper said. "But this is too important to be left to unqualified people for self-serving purposes.'

Roper also said the study of the land-use issues should be done by a committee, not just one person.

"The planning process at its best is open," Roper said. "It's not best accomplished by a railroad yardmaster sitting at his kitchen table."

Burris works full-time as a yardmaster for Burlington Northern. Although he has no official training or degrees in land-use planning, he has been active in community land-use and transportation issues as a member of the 1985 Federal Way Community Plan Update Com-

Finding food in Federal Way

By WENDY CULVERWELL

True or false: McDonald's has more restaurants in Federal Way than any other

At three locations each, Godfather's, Dairy Queen, Denny's and Domino's are in a five-way tie with McDonald's for the honor of being Federal Way's most prevalent restaurant.

According to an informal survey the Federal Way News conducted to highlight the dining guide in today's paper, 113 restaurants serve the area. Array of local restaurants can satisfy anyone's taste

Fifty-one of them have Pacific Highway South addresses. However, McDonald's, with its reputation for exhaustive research on site location, has no Pacific Highway South restaurants in the area.

OK, question number two. True or false: All McDonald's have a Burger King across the street.

Federal Way's two Burger Kings are each located within a few blocks of a McDonald's, but a third McDonald's stands alone inside SeaTac Mall.

TWENTY-TWO fast food chains have 28 restaurants here, making them the largest category of dining establishment in Federal Way. Another 21 restaurants fit into the

which means they serve walkin customers at real tables with real silverware, real waiters and real water

The family-style restaurants have fairly standardized menus — a few soups, a few salads, sandwiches, hamburgers and dinner entrees.

Some, such as Red Robin, specialize in one particular area (hamburgers), while others, such as Denny's, have a little bit of everything.

I-5 office building finally set to open

By KURT HERZOG

After a two-year delay caused by the bankruptcy of its owner, the Federal Way Center finally appears ready to open.

The six-story building of glass and steel sits on South 320th Street near Interstate 5 and is expected to be sought after by tenants because of a shortage of other office space in its class.

Because of its glass exterior, the center is considered Class A office space, the most expensive to lease. Owners Nizar and Sadru Sayani are charging about $4 per square foot a year more than the industry average for Class A office space.

Because of that relatively high cost, the building has been slower to lease than other office space, but because of the space shortage and the building's location, commercial real estate brokers expect it will be filled up

THE INDUSTRY average is currently about $16.50 a year per square foot, according to Peter Crolius, a leasing agent with Coldwell Banker. However, there is only a 4 percent vacancy rate in Class A office space in Federal Way, he said. There are only two contiguous, 5,000-square-foot office spaces currently vacant and the Chamber blueprint will challenge council

By BRAD BROBERG

If members of Federal Way's first city council expect the local chamber of commerce to cut them some slack their first few months in office, forget it.

Instead, the chamber has cut their work out for them. The Federal Way Chamber of Commerce unveiled Monday a final report from the Economic Development Summit held in January. The report, a sort of blueprint for the future, contains 40 recommendations to improve aspects of the community deemed weak by the summit's nearly 100 participants. "I'm challenging the com-mumy and the new city council to review some of these weaknesses to come up with solutions and plans," said Zaran Sayre, co-chair of the chamber Commercial and Economic Development Committee.

Although the city council will not take office until after the Sept. 19 final election, the chamber's outgoing president, Don Eiler, believes the 14 remaining candidates should respond to the report immediately.

"If I were running for city council, I'd be doing it now," he

The summit drew participants from all corners of the community. They broke into seven small groups that each were assigned a topic to explore. They listed the strengths and weaknesses of Federal Way in relation to the topics and recommended solutions.

Topics included education, recreation and community development.

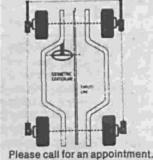

The language contained in the recommendations often is general and neutral when it comes to taking specific stands. For instance, to deal with growth, one of the recommendations states, "Development standards should be linked to growth projections and accommodate necessary changes."

Eiler said the document still is too new to trigger specific actions, but Bob Green, the chamber's chief executive officer, said chamber committees are taking the report's recommendations to heart when setting their goals.

Sayre said he expects a followup meeting to be held in six months to a year to review progress on the report's recommendations.

The summit and report were paid for by Puget Power. All participants will receive a copy. In addition, a limited number are available at the chamber office. Call 838-2605 or 927-2556.

Burris must lead by walking away

Dick Burris, are you listening?

For anyone who has watched you over the years, it is abundantly clear that you care about Federal Way. It is also clear that your passion for improving it has sometimes made you deaf to other views.

Maybe that didn't matter before cityhood was approved in March. It matters now, because your friends on the transition team seem unwilling to hear that picking you as a paid consultant put the city's credibility at risk.

Your scorn for county planning is well-known. Those close to you have seen you throw up your hands at what you considered misguided actions by public servants. Why take the risk that the same suspicions will be focused on your own new city?

Though you had to apply for the position as a paid planner to consult with the transition team, and though you have good credentials for the role, the question of conflict is a valid one. In spite of your hard work on behalf of cityhood, some of those who sided with you in wanting that city now have their doubts about you as a potential partner in it.

Whether you intended it or not, you have become a public figure. Your colorful style and your combative nature have made you memorable. That may explain the wariness among some members of the transition team that is laying groundwork for the still un-elected city council. At least four of them have resigned lately, troubled about your becoming a paid consultant in the planning process.

None of them has said you are malicious in your interest. None has attacked your intelligence or your knowledge of local zoning and planning. All of them are aware that you are a self-taught expert on these matters, and have spent years arguing and studying the problem of local growth, without thanks and without pay.

But now, as a public participant, you stand to gain personally from that expertise. Because they will use private funding, this is an issue the transition team leaders have dismissed. But the new city is a tender shoot. Public suspicions will hurt its chances of survival. Wouldn't it be better for the new city if you took yourself out of the running?

Without any suggestion that you have anything but the highest motives, we urge you to consider that. We also hope you will provide your ideas and talents to the planning process as a volunteer. If we understood you from the beginning, what you wanted was a livable, well-planned community. You've helped us get there.

For you and others who worked hard to make it happen, the lesson is that personal gain must be shunned, even if it means letting others fill your shoes. Maybe that hurts, but in the city's best interest, it is the prudent thing to do.

Let's study China, not our own bias

he ancient and mysterious culture of China came unravelled in the news last week, turned as blunt and prehensible as a rifle butt.

We do not ignore the dozens of individual tragedies in this conflict. But for Americans gearing up to take vacations, the siege of Tiananmen Square has a special importance. It offers us a chance to widen our understanding of world affairs.

In a way, it is an interruption of America's comfort zone. a troublesome reminder that there is more to the world than Little League or summer camp. Americans suffer, despite the worldwide reach of our media, a blind spot about the changing globe.

Seeing those maps and graphics of the incident, we may believe it confirms our own political bias. We may shake our heads in sympathy, telling ourselves some fairy tale about communist oppressors and their predictable response to whispers of dissent.

Putting aside those easy conclusions, we might ask what we knew about modern China before this incident. Could we answer simple questions about Chinese schools, Chinese architecture, Chinese art and music, Chinese people?

Or are we willing to settle for the limited understanding we have always had. Eating what we think is Chinese food, playing Chinese checkers, eating our meals from fine china, haven't we missed the point about one of our largest neighbors on this planet?

Before we conclude anything about what the current conflict means, let's take the rest of the world more seriously, beginning with China. Improving our own understanding is sure to help us make rational judgements about the position taken by our elected leaders on the situation.

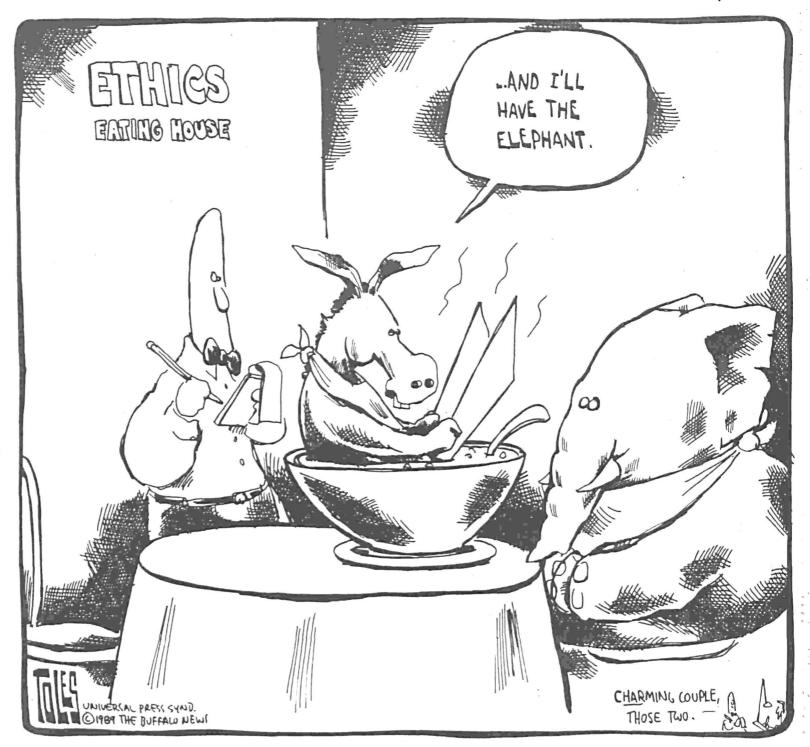

It may also increase our appreciation for the freedoms we take for granted.

If we're lucky, we learn to deserve her

My brother is about to get married again. It may be the bravest thing he has ever

He has run white water in a torrent, with a flimsy kayak between him and disaster. He has driven a jetski over choppy water until his teeth nearly left his mouth. He has stood beside me in a rowboat, fly-casting in opposite direc-

Getting married again puts those other acts of bravery to shame. Here's why. He has been married before, and he knows in intimate terms that for a man, marriage is the emotional equivalent of leaping off a parapet with a rubber band around your ankle.

(It may be the same for a woman, but I'm not qualified to judge that.) Taking that leap requires a certain kind of courage the second time around. The first time, a man may be blinded by sentiment or some less noble cause.

I say this as a second-timer myself — going on 20 years now. Getting me to agree to the second marriage, my wife used neither threats nor tears. She simply left town for a while, which convinced me wordlessly.

In my brother's case, the decision to marry again has been more philosophical than urgent. That is why I see in it a bravery I didn't see in my own case. I just missed the woman so much I begged her to extinguish my desolation - or words to that effect.

My brother, however, has weighed marriage while the woman of his affections looked at him from across the room, or strolled with him on the beach, or shopped with him for shoes.

He made his decision not in the vacuum of her absence, or in the midnight morass of his pillow. He just decided it was probably a good idea. He has not confessed any anguish about it. He has not gone out and gotten stupid drunk to convince himself.

Not that he should have. His likely wife is affectionate, funny and beautiful. I hope I have those in the right order, or I may discover she is temperamental, too.

But he has known her long enough to discern whether she has the character, intellect and energy for him, and clearly, he thinks she does. What he cannot know, because none of us knows, is whether he can say the same for himself

That, finally, is the mistake most men make in a second marriage: not knowing if they are suited for a given woman. We all want to think so. Experience should have taught us to think twice. But ego blinds us to that honest self-assessment. If we are unusually lucky, we learn to deserve the women who marry us.

I wish that for him, and commend him on his bravery.

Soviets don't care about good will

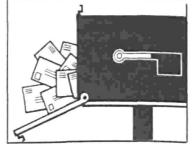

Even though we have not reached official status as a city, premoters of the Goodwill Games are already suggesting a sister city for us, as long as the sister city is Russian. I presume that other nations will participate, but if the Soviets backed out tomorrow, the whole program would collapse.

Marxism has a fatal attraction for many, particularly the naive, the fearful, and the "business-as-usual" opportunists. The naive believe that the Russian man-on-thestreet is the same as we are. He probably is. But he has nothing to say over the policies foreign and domestic - of the criminals who rule with despotic cruelty in the Kremlin.

The fearful want peace, as long as it doesn't involve setting up adequate defenses for our nation and rocking the boat. And the business-as-usual entrepreneur regards Russia as a vast market, though the Soviets are heavily in debt to the West... now owing an estimated $127 billion... Are city officials afraid of reality?

Why are Tacoma Public Utilities using ratepayers' money to lie to the public? I refer to a half page ad in local papers. This ad, listing so-called "facts" about the tideflats garbage incinerator brings to mind the full page ads taken out by Exxon immediately after the Valdez oil spill.

In the ad they accuse opponents of misleading and distorted statements. They then proceed with a list of distortions. misleading statements and at least one downright lie!

They claim that Steam Plant 2 (itself a misleading statement) will complement recycling. They state that recyclables are removed from the garbage at the landfill. Refuse Derived Fuel consists mainly of paper, plastics and aluminum cans, all recyclable. They go on to say if intensive recycling efforts reduce the amount of RDF available the plant has the flexibility to operate on a different mix of fuels. This despite the statement by City Light officials in a recent article that the plant would not be economically viable if it did not burn garbage. The ad concludes, "A few people are just now trying to impose unnecessary and unfair requirements that will result in delays that could cost $8-12 million a year." Those "few" people are hundreds of households in Northeast Tacoma, Browns Point, Dash Point and South King County who live directly in the path of emissions to be produced by the incinerator.

The "unnecessary and unfair" requirements they want to impose are an Environmental Impact Statement, which should have been done before the project was initiated, and an accurate and unbiased Health Risk Assessment...

Finally, logic dictates that costs of $8-12 million per year on a $48 million project could only result if further study shows the plan to be deficient in pollution control systems or that the plant should not be allowed to operate at all! Is the fear of not measuring up to real environmental scrutiny what Tacoma Public Utilities really fears? Is this the real reason they have spent so much of the ratepayers' money to fight a "few people" in Northeast Tacoma?

He does have an associate's degree in transportation planning from Green River Community College and works occasionally as a land-use consultant for developers.

Burris responded to Roper's comments by pointing out that he won't be studying land-use issues on his own. He plans to work with other consultants the team will hire. Also, he will be working on a computer using data supplied by local civil engineer Kent Stepan.

Burris said he is indeed qualified and wouldn't respond to Roper's comments that he was working on the land-use study for "self-serving purposes" other than to say it is un-

The Federal Way First! Transition Team is a self-appointed group of Federal Way residents who hope to help the new city get started. Most have been active in community issues for years. They are being funded through a blind trust managed by Kent Stepan. Stepan receives donations and passes the money on to the team. He is not to reveal specifically where the money is coming from. THE MONEY is coming primarily from local businesses, according to team members, but they don't know which and businesses members say no one who has donated will have any influence on team decisions.

Like Roper, Walker is unhappy with the direction the team decided to take.

"I was under the impression we were going to be volunteer people," Walker said. "With the hiring of consultants...and recommending things...I'm not interested in the way things

Mitchell said the majority of the team decided to hire consultants and to make recommendations, including a list of options, to the city council. Only Walker voted against hiring Burris, she pointed out.

She also is upset with the criticism aimed at Burris.

"Dick has been involved in land-use issues here since 1975," she said. "He's given a thousand hours to the community on landuse planning."

BURRIS IS taking a leave of absence from his Burlington Northern job and should be compensated for that, Mitchell said.

Despite his lack of formal land-use education, he is highly respected by other community activists, county officials and developers, she said.

Also, another potential tenant may sign this week to lease about half of the 65,355-squarefoot building, Crolius said. Crolius would not disclose what other tenants might be signed, but said one is a lumber broker and another is a military recruiting station.

Other attractions to the building are a swimming pool, jacuzzi, locker room and workout area. Those facilities will be open to tenants only. The center also has balcony space available on three floors.

The building was set to open two years ago, but construction was halted when the contractor, Kerkhoff Development Corp. of Canada, filed liens against Qualico Homes, then the center's owner. Kerkhoff alleged it hadn't been paid.

THE SAYANIS own Qualico Homes, but later sold the center to another of their companies, Westmark Investments. Westmark is now the legal owner of the building.

To protect itself from Kerkhoff liens and other creditors, Qualico filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

The bankruptcy proceedings and liens were resolved last November and work was completed on landscaping and interior finishings.

The Sayanis would not return repeated phone calls.

Westmark also has plans to begin construction this fall on a Holiday Inn that will sit next to the center.

The Sayanis would like to have the hotel open in time for the July 1990 Goodwill Games. All swimming events will occur at a pool being built in West Campus.

Chandler reorganizing

district office structure

Congressman Rod Chandler (R-8th) has announced an office reorganization in which staff fice hours at various locations around the district.

In the past, Chandler has had offices in Federal Way and Bellevue. The Bellevue office will remain open, but as of July 1, district aides will establish weekly office hours in local libraries and city halls in South King County. Tentative plans call for a city-by-city rotation that will include Federal Way, Auburn, Kent and Enumclaw. That rotation will replace the district office in Federal Way.

Chandler said the widespread distribution of population in the south end of the 8th District necessitates rotating offices, to reach more constituents.

Chandler will maintain his existing Federal Way phone number after July 1. Calls to 941-2875 will be switched automatically to the Bellevue office at no cost to the caller.

Grads grab diplomas this weekend

Pomp and circumstance go on display this week as four Federal Way high schools hold graduation ceremonies for about 1,200 students.

Plans for graduation ceremonies, held Friday and Saturday at various locations, are as follows:

Continuation First of the four high schools to hold graduation will be Continuation, Federal Way's alternative high school.

The ceremony begins at 1:30 p.m. Friday at the school, 31455 28th Ave. S. Introductory remarks will be given by Larry Merlino, principal of Continuation, and Dr. Harry Johnson, a supervisor for the state's Superintendent of Public Instruction office and longtime supporter of alternative schools.

Continuation's class speaker will be Rique Kathlean. Kathlean, 18, is vice president of his school's student body and president of Inter-High, an organization of students from all four local high schools. He also was a member of a school district advisory committee, and has received a scholarship from the Masonic Lodge of Federal Way.

Two Continuation students, Sunny Loudin and Margie Erhardt, will perform for the students and their families and friends.

Thomas Jefferson

Thomas Jefferson High School's graduation will be held Friday night, starting at 7:30 in the gym of the school, 4248 S.

Speakers for TJ's Class of '89 will be seniors Christopher Beer and Tonya K. Mansfield. Beer, the school's honor society president, has won several awards and scholarships, including the Glenn Terrell President's Scholarship from Washington State University and the Washington State Principals Scholar award. As a Washington State Scholar, he will receive college tuition for four years.

Mansfield is president of TJ's Thespian Troupe 2211, a drama club, and a member of the school's honor society. She is a longtime member of the school's concert choir and a feature writer for the school paper. Mansfield also has won several awards, including being named the Federal Way Elks' Most Valuable Student.

The school's symphonic band will perform for the Friday night ceremony. Sakisha Delves, a TJ senior, will sing the national anthem and Gina Mangels, likewise a graduating senior, will sing "That's What Friends Are For."

the cost of losing weight.

Graduation will begin at noon Saturday for seniors of Federal Way High School. The ceremony will be held at Federal Way Memorial Stadium, 1300 S. 308th St., just west of Federal Way High School.

Senior Lee Thrush will be valedictorian for the ceremony. Thrush has a perfect grade point average, is treasurer of his student body and has won several awards. He was named Legislative Scholar this year and also has been awarded by the Air Force ROTC.

Faculty speaker will be Phil Isernio, teacher of the school's marketing classes and coordinator of its DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) chapter.

Opening comments will be given by students Paul Pi and Alex Hsu, and closing remarks will be offered by Sujata Dev and Erik Johnson.

Decatur Decatur's ceremony will begin at 4 p.m. Saturday and also will be held at Federal Way Memorial Stadium, 1300 S. 308th

David Cabreza has been named valedictorian for Decatur. Cabreza is senior class vice president and one of the top 10 students in his class. His honors include being named the Federal Way Lions Club Outstanding Boy of the Year, and receiving the Washington Principals Scholars Award and the Washington State Honors

Award. Also addressing the class will be Kerry Brock, a co-anchor for KOMO TV news. Students Mary Beth Allmann, Kim Brazier and Carol Chang will perform, "Just for a Moment."

Members of the Federal Way School Board will bestow diplomas at each ceremony.

Continuation and Federal Way graduations are open to the public. Decatur and Thomas Jefferson ceremonies are open by invitation only.

For more information, call Continuation at 838-1004, Thomas Jefferson at 839-7490, Federal Way at 839-0523 and Decatur at 838-3530.

Man commandeers car and its owner

A man who at first claimed he had to get to the hospital to see his brother commandeered a Federal Way woman's car Thursday afternoon, taking her along, too.

The 61-year-old woman told King County police she had pulled into a business parking lot at South 305th Street and Pacific Highway South at about 4:50 p.m. She was approached by a man who told her he had an emergency and had to see his brother, who was having surgery.

The woman said she started to walk away from the man when he pulled a small, black handgun and told her, "I mean business," as he forced her back into the car on the passenger side. The woman said she began screaming and honking the horn, but the man covered her mouth with his hand.

As he drove northbound on Interstate 5 the man told the woman he had gotten tired of waiting for a ride. He also asked for the time every few minutes, the woman said.

An unfriendly visitor forced his way into a North Lake area home Sunday and assaulted one of the residents.

Another resident of the home told King County police she responded to a knock at the garage door at about noon, but when she opened the door she recognized the man standing there as someone who is not welcome in her home. She said she tried to shut the door, but the man forced his way in.

Burner study lays to rest no fears

By ANN SEIDNER HARTMAN Residents of Northeast Tacoma and Federal Way who have been skeptical of the environmental safety of Tacoma's incinerator got some support from a recent study.

The Bellevue firm of Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Quade and Douglas completed a fourmonth environmental assessment of Tacoma's $48 million incinerator under construction on the tideflats. Funded by the city, the $30,000 study was intended to answer questions raised by residents about the environmental effects and safety of the

The incinerator, now about 75 percent complete, will burn sorted garbage, wood and coal to produce electricity for about 21,000 homes in Tacoma.

The 95-page report concludes that City Light, which owns the plant, should consider ways to reduce fugitive dust from the coal pile that will sit at the plant, address the problem of storm water runoff from the coal pile, install erosion control devices around the plant and try to burn more wood than coal to reduce ash and air emissions.

The study also says that City Light's environmental documentation was poorly organized and incomplete. Concerned residents have been claiming the same for about a year now, demanding that City Light complete an environmental impact statement (EIS) for the plant. In 1984, the city determined that the incinerator would not be environmentally significant and did not require Brinckerhoff, was not available for comment. But the study seems to support residents' claims that more environmental review is necessary. Parsons Brinckerhoff used only information already collected and Tacoma Public Utilities, said that the study states the bulk of information that would be included in an EIS already exists, but in several documents instead of one. The study concludes that City Light is using 'good engineering practices" in its construction of the incinerator and that emissions will be within federal and state emission levels, Veseth said.

Residents will, however, see an EIS for the incinerator as well. Several weeks ago Gov. Booth Gardner signed into law a bill requiring the city to undertake an EIS. The city has agreed to do so, but also will challenge the bill in court.

Marion Weed, president of the Northeast Tacoma Community Club, said she continues to be concerned that the EIS also will use only information already gathered by City Light.

"We want to see this be a really objective, complete study," Weed said. "Anything less would be completely contrary to

Another study of the health risks of the incinerator is being completed by the Tacoma-Pierce County Health Department and Envirosphere, a Bellevue firm hired to study the plant's effects on health.

The study will be released at a final public meeting to discuss the findings. The meeting will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 10, in the cafeteria in Building A of the south campus of Bates Vocational Technical Institute. The south campus is at 2201 S. 78th St. in Tacoma.

Health department officials will answer questions raised during the public comment period earlier this year and will discuss the study in four workshops: legal, health, solid waste permit process and engineering issues. The first two workshops are scheduled simultaneously during the first half of the meeting and the last two workshops are scheduled during the second half.

In addition, health department staff will give written answers to all questions asked earlier as well as to the 10 most commonly asked questions about the health risk study.

The study was part of the process required for City Light to obtain the solid waste permit it needs to operate the plant.

On June 23, the department will announce its decision on whether to grant the solid waste permit.

Low-fat diets may avert heart attacks

By JACQUE DOHERTY

Saturday morning. The kids sit in front of the TV watching yet another commercial for Sugar Bombers. Breakfast is hand-to-mouth from a box of Marshmallow Monster Mun-

Where are Mom and Dad? They're out jogging. Gotta keep in shape, gotta keep that cholesterol level down.

Farfetched? Not really, some experts say. Most adults are aware of the importance of exercise and attention to their cholesterol levels. But they may not think of their kids in these

Adults have every right to be concerned about high cholesterol levels, which have been linked with heart disease. In 1987, almost half the adult deaths in this state were related to heart and blood diseases. One expert estimates that as many as 60 percent of adults have cholesterol levels that are too

But children are not immune to the problem. An estimated one-quarter to one-third of children have high cholesterol levels. However, if cardiovascular disease usually strikes in middle age, why should cholesterol in kids mat-

Recent studies have shown that the conditions that cause heart trouble later in life start

"Remember, heart disease is characterized by years and years of incubation, and then by only seconds required for the fatal event," Dr. Kenneth Cooper wrote in his recent book, "Controlling Cholesterol." "If the epidemic of heart disease in this country is ever going to be controlled, it must start with an aggressive preventive approach with our children."

COOPER, founder of the

Cooper Clinic and director of the Aerobics Center in Dallas, takes an aggressive stance in a controversy over kids and cholesterol. He advocates testing for all kids, a low-fat diet after the age of 2 and a regular program of exercise.

Other groups, such as the American Academy of Pediatrics, recommend a more cautious approach, especially in limiting fats in a child's diet.

The debate about kids and cholesterol stems from studies that have alerted doctors and nutritionists to the role that childhood diet plays in longterm health.

Since 1973, the Bogalusa Heart Study at Louisiana State University has tracked more than 8,000 people ranging in age from newborn to 26. Besides linking high cholesterol in childhood with a correspondingly high level in adulthood, the findings included the results of autopsies on participants who had died for a variety of reasons.

The autopsies revealed that, even in teenagers, those with high blood-cholesterol levels and diets high in fat had cholesterol build-up in their arteries.

Some clues that prompt a doctor to check a child's cholesterol level include high blood pressure, obesity or a family history of heart attack or stroke. Another factor doctors are just beginning to fold into the equation is the parent's cholesterol

MOST OFTEN, a young patient is given a blood test for high cholesterol levels only if such risk factors are present. 'We don't do a test without an indication," says Dee Woods, a pediatric nurse practitioner with Valley Pediatrics, a private clinic in Renton. She adds that if they could perform a quick, reliable test in their office, they would do it routinely.

However, at a recent conference for nutritionists, a problem with checking only highrisk kids was brought up by Bonnie Worthington-Roberts, director and professor of nutrition sciences at the University of Washington.

Worthington-Roberts cited a study at the University of Maryland which found that half the children tested had high cholesterol levels. Only 36 percent of those with high cholesterol had risk factors that would have alerted their doc-

Because pediatricians follow no standard policy in checking for cholesterol, if parents want their children tested, "it may require that parents do ask," she

Once a high cholesterol level is discovered in a child, most doctors agree that changes in diet are in order. The American Academy of Pediatrics states that kids with a cholesterol level over 176 milligrams per 100 milliliters of blood "should be considered for dietary counsel-

FOR ADULTS with cholesterol levels more than 200 milligrams per 100 milliliters, doctors generally recommend a diet low in cholesterol with no more than 30 percent of calories supplied by fat.

Children however, pose a more complex problem.

When it comes to nutrition, kids are not just smaller versions of adults. After birth, " babies depend on mother's milk or formula that contains as much as 50 percent fat. Experts agree that this amount of fat is essential for the rapid growth and development that occurs during this time. The kind of nutrition necessary after age 2 is not so clear.

Low cholesterol kids more apt to be heart attack free

One reason for differences of opinion is that, although almost everyone agrees a high cholesterol level in a child is undesirable, there is very little information on long-term effects of limiting fats in a child's diet.

The American Academy of Pediatrics is very cautious about dietary changes for children, recommending 30 to 40 percent of calories from fat for adequate growth and development. Dr. Kenneth Feldman, a pediatrician at Seattle's Odessa Brown Children's Clinic, echoes this reluctance to make major changes in diet.

"We don't yet know how well we can affect kids with borderline elevation of cholesterol and how that will affect their health in the long run," he said.

ON THE OTHER hand, Evette Hackman, a registered dietitian at Stevens Health Clinic in Edmonds, feels that unless a child is underweight, a diet limited to 30 percent of calories from fat is "not detrimental." Her view is seconded by the American Heart Association, which recommends this same fat percentage for all healthy people over the age of 2.

Although doctors and nutritionists may not agree on some of the details, most of those interviewed pointed out some guidelines for parents to improve their kids' health now and in the future.

· Health is a family affair. Parents who are aware of their own health and fitness provide an example for children.

· Encourage kids to keep active and start some kind of exercise. Bike riding, walking, skiing: Exercising as a family can make fitness a natural part of a child's life.

high-carbohydrate foods are good choices for the whole family. Change over to those foods gradually. For snacks, make a variety of acceptable choices available for kids. If kids buy lunch at school, monitor what's being served and talk to foodservice officials about any con-

Facts about cholesterol

Cholesterol — A fat-like substance manufactured by the liver. Cholesterol is a necessary component of cell walls, provides insulation for nerves, aids in digestion and helps to produce hor-

Dietary Cholesterol — Cholesterol is found in foods of animal origin only. Egg yolks, organ meats such as liver and brains, and poultry, beef, veal, lamb and pork all contain dietary cholesterol.

Blood Cholesterol Level - A measurement of cholesterol in the blood stream expressed in milligrams of cholesterol per 100 milliliters of blood. For adults the recommended level by the American Heart Association is 200 milligrams per 100 milliliters or less; for children the American Academy of Pediatrics gives 176 milligrams per 100 milliliters as an upper limit.

High-Density-Lipoprotein (HDL) - A carrier of cholesterol in the blood stream. High-density lipoproteins are also known as "good cholesterol," because they are believed to move cholesterol not used by cells away from the tissues and back to the liver where the cholesterol can be excreted.

Low-Density-Lipoprotein (LDL) - A carrier of the cholesterol that clings to artery walls and causes blocking of blood flow. Also known as "bad cholesterol."

Saturated Fat — A type of fat found in foods of animal origin such as meat and dairy products, and in palm and coconut oils. Eating saturated fat can raise the blood cholesterol level, so check the labels on products that are labeled, "no cholesterol." They could contain saturated fat.

Transplant tomatoes to where the garden is hottest

It's tomato time in the garden and if you don't have tomato plants in bloom by now, then get going and pick up a few transplants this week.

Tomatoes are one vegetable that give you a decent return on your energy investment. If you want to shave a few cents off your grocery bill this fall, invest in a couple of tomato plants now.

The most reliable tomatoes to grow in Western Washington are Early Girl, IPB, and Pik Red. The cherry tomatoes also ripen in time and do great in pots.

Plant long and leggy transplants deep and they will develop a root system all along their buried stem. You can even dig a ditch and lay your tall plants sideways. Just remove the leaves to be buried and bend the top up towards the sky.

Deciding where to put your tomato farm is easy. Just seek out the hot spots in your yard. Classic locations are up against a heat retaining wall or next to a sunny cement patio. Other ways to grab the heat include planting tomatoes in the center of a rubber tire or in soil mulched with black plastic to grab the heat.

Q. First let me say I followed your rhodie advice and fertilized last summer when my rhododendrons were done bloomong. This spring, my showhe were covered with blooms. I was also successful at wintering my fuchsia basket just by storing it under our deck. Thanks for the ideas. Now let me ask you if there is any place that recycles plastic plant pots. I've got a pile of the black one gallon pots that shrubs are sold in and I hate to pay for the honor of taking them to the dump.

D.M., Puyallup A. Your worries are over. Load that pile of pots into the car and present them for recycling at the nearest nursery. I called three year-round nurseries in your area and all the owners agreed they'd be happy to recirculate any rigid plastic nots you bring them.

One large nursery even offers a credit toward future plant purchases when you return their containers. Just be considerate enough to sort and stack the different sizes of pots you plan to

Q. We have a young pear tree that has never bloomed or born fruit. It is growing in a shady spot so I suspect it needs more sun. Should we risk moving it to a sunnier location? When should the transplant take place?

K.R., Puyallup A. Go for it! You don't have much to lose. If you leave that pear where it is, you'll never get fruit and probably end up fighting off all sorts of diseases that thrive in the cool darkness of a shady location.

Promise you'll wait until late winter when the tree is dormant and the ground is no longer frozen before you dig and transplant your sun-starved pear tree.

Q. Most of my roses died this winter and I want to replace them with hardier stock. One variety that lived is a very pretty bi-colored rose. The edges of the petals are red while the center is cream. Can you help me identify this hardy rose so I can get more just like it?

B.J., Seattle A. It sounds like your survivor is none other than the famous "Double Delight" hybrid tea rose. This rather tall and thickstemmed rose not only survived our harsh winter, but is disease resistant as well.

Hardiness and disease resisntance are two delightful qualities and more important than the red and cream coloring.

June is a good month to go rose hunting because the plants you find at the garden centers will be potted up and in full bloom. It should be easy to match up your favorite rose with the blooming varieties on sale

Real Life Home Gardens:

Every June I plant a narrow bed alongside a pathway with annual flowers. This spring I avoided the geramium and marigold route and invested in dwarf roses instead.

If this narrow rose garden lives up to its promise, we should enjoy color and fragrance all summer from compact tidy shrubs. It will also be the last time the narrow beds need replanting since the shorter polyantha and floribunda roses are so hardy.

The short mini roses have much smaller flowers on shorter stems than the fancy hybrid tea roses, but they have a greater disease resistance and are easier to prune. Just a light shearing with the hedge trimmers each spring will keep them

Look for florascape, mini or dwarf fli floribunda roses if you want to substitute roses for annual flowers in your garden or patio pots. I planted a bunch of different varieties this year so I could judge them all side by side. May the best rose win my recommendation to you in the Junior Olympics meet draws big crowd

By CHUCK MINGORI

Anyone in the general vicinity of Federal Way Memorial Field on Saturday had to know something big was taking place.

The parking lot overflowed with cars and the stadium rang with excited voices. An estimated crowd of 1,000, including participants and spectators, attended the Federal Way Elementary Track Junior Olympics.

"Elementary track is the biggest thing in Federal Way," said one of the meet coordinators, Ron Mattila.

And that certainly appeared to be the case on this sun-baked afternoon as 300 to 400 young athletes performed in front of an adoring audience.

"I thought it went extremely well," said another meet coordinator, Barb Tight. "The whole side of the stadium was filled."

In addition to the elementaryage athletes, who received ribbons for placing in the top eight places in each event, junior high and high school students, most of them graduates of the elementary track program, volunteered as helpers during the meet

Athletes competed in a variety of events, including the 800 meters, relays, 50 meters, softball throw, long jump, 100 meters, 200 meters and 400

PARTICIPATING schools were Mirror Lake, Brigadoon, Lakeland, Panther Lake, Lake Grove, Star Lake, Twin Lakes, Lake Dolloff, Camelot, Woodmont, Nautilus, Adelaide, Olympic View, St. Vincent, Sunnycrest, Valhalla and Wildwood.

Star Lake captured first as a team in Division I, followed by Panther Lake in second, Brigadoon in third and Lake Dolloff in Adalaide won first place as a team in Division II, with Valhalla in second, Woodmont in third and Nautilus in fourth.

Although many may think the elementary track program has reached a peak, Mattila thinks it's still on the rise.

"I still think it's growing," he said. "It's a growing event."

Mattila said organizers of the event are looking for "constructive criticism" from the public on how the program can be im-

Anyone with suggestions can reach Mattila at Panther Lake Elementary (838-1340) or at home (845-8745).

Another big meet for all ages will take take place at Federal Way Memorial Field on June 16-17. This event is sponsored by the Federal Way Track Club.

For more information on the Federal Way Track Club, write to Barb Tight (program coordinator), 33554 36th Avenue S.W., Federal Way, Wa., 98023.

Kids' derby scheduled

Calling all trout — and kids who like to fish for them.

The annual Kids' Trout Derby will take place this Saturday at Steel Lake Park.

The registration deadline is Friday. If your child still is unregistered, stop by The Reel Thing sporting goods store in Federal Way, one of the derby's many sponsors, and sign up. The Reel Thing is in the Federal Way Shopping Center at 31503-C Pacific Highway S. The derby is Derby Chairman Jerry Lachapelle of the South King County Chapter of Trout Unlimited said that about 50 more feet of netting (which keeps the planted fish close by) has been added to the dock space this year. That means there will be about a third more space available, which will keep the lines shorter. Another lineshortening feature will be a flip-card numbering system that will allow parents and kids to roam the park while keeping a watchful eye on the cards for their number to come up, signalling it's their turn to drop a line off the dock and catch their two fish.

Some other new wrinkles have been added to the event, including additional community involvement. Costco will provide some pastry for the event. Gordie and Earlene Myers will operate a concession stand and donate a portion of the proceeds to help defray derby expenses. The Federal Way Clown Club will entertain kids with surprises and balloons. A lot of volunteer help is stepping out to make this event suc-

Besides Trout Unlimited and The Reel Thing, derby sponsors include the Steel Lake Residents Association and King County Parks and Recreation.

Legionnaires suffer first losses of the season

By TIM CLINTON

The Federal Way American Legion baseball team's speedy start came to a crashing hault this past weekend.

The Omni Executive Center squad fell to Burien by a 14-1 score at Sacajawea Park Friday, then lost to Bellevue Honda at Bannerwood Park Saturday, 7-1.

The Feds had gotten off to a 6-0 start overall and a 4-0 beginning in District 11 play, but now stand at 6-2 and 4-2.

A number of factors were blamed in part for the downfall.

For starters, Federal Way was without the services of ace pitcher Floyd French. French, who boasts a 4-0 record, had just thrown six innings in Thursday's win over defending District 11 champion Kirkland.

Baseball

Head coach Tom Wagner also cited fatigue, and not without

The Feds had a busy week, starting with an 8:15 p.m. game at Bannerwood Tuesday followed by a school day, followed by an 8:30 p.m. start at Kirkland Thursday followed by another school day (they did not get home until midnight either

Friday Federal Way had a 9:30 p.m. start against Burien, and the players had to meet at 10 a.m. the next morning for Saturday's noon game at Bellevue.

The three late starts were among only five scheduled for the summer season, which ends in late July (excluding possible late games in tournaments). Feds also played six District 11 games out of only 18 for the season in a nine-day

"It was a combination where we played a lot of games, were up all night, and then played early this morning (Saturday)," said Wagner. "They were flat. I kind of felt it before we started. But it's not an excuse - you got to play through these things."

WAGNER FEELS his team will get back on track, however.

"The kids are playing well, it's just a little setback," he said. "When you win six or seven in a row you start taking things for granted, and coaches do, too."

The Feds also ran into hitting problems.

They were held to just one run on two hits by the fastballs of Burien's Kelly Jacobson under the lights at Sacajawea Park Friday, then scored only one on five hits off the slow offerings of Bellevue's Andy Piston Satur-

Jacobson went the distance in Friday's game that was shortened to six innings because of a 10run slaughter rule, striking out 14. He had a no-hitter going until two were out in the bottom of the Strangely enough, the slowthrowing Piston had a no-hitter going even longer in full daylight Saturday — having it broken up with one out in the fifth. He struck out seven and scattered five hits, allowing only an unearned run.

ALLEN HENSLEY was the player who broke up both nohitters.

The Feds' senior outfielder bounced a hard grounder past the Burien third baseman Friday and stole second before scoring on a base hit by Chris Saturday Hensley singled cleanly into left field to snap Piston's no-no.

Milt DeAsis followed with a bunt single and Jamie Sonnenfeld moved the runners to second and third with a bunt, but they were stranded there by a strikeout.

Two runners were also left on base in the sixth, before Federal Way scored its lone run in the Chris Martin singled up the middle with two outs, and he came around on a Mark Nielsen double and an error before the game ended on a fly ball.

The Feds are at Kent Memorial Park for an 8 p.m. game with Kent Post 15 tomorrow, after visiting Auburn last night. They are then off until Tuesday when they visit Enumclaw at 6 p.m. - marking the halfway point of their league

Mavericks open season with split in Mukilteo

The Federal Way Big League team opened up its season Sunday by splitting a doubleheader at Mukilteo. The Mavericks won the first game, 4-3, behind the strong pitching of Robert Domzalski, but lost the second, 15-11, after making a strong comeback effort.

Domzalski went all the way for Federal Way in the opener, striking out seven batters and walking none to pick up the win.

Pete Persons had a strong day at the plate as he went 2-for-4 with a pair of doubles. Center fielder Bill McNally also had a good game, as he went 2-for-4 with a double and a triple and covered the ground well in the outfield. In the second game, Federal Way fell behind 15-5 before scoring the final six runs to make the final score respectable. Rob Sherman, Persons and Scott Mayer pitched for Federal Way.

Coach John Roberts said the pitching and defensive efforts were lacking in the second

"When the defense isn't playing its best defense and the pitching sometimes doesn't play for the defense, all of a sudden you've got a battle royal out there," he said.

For Mayer and Sherman, it was their first outings since last summer, Roberts said, noting it was a good opportunity for them to loosen up their arms. Offensively, Persons played well again, as the Thomas Jefferson third baseman hit 3-for-4 with three singles, while Decatur catcher Bill Ludwig went 2-for-4 with a pair of Mike Recancia also performed well, as he went 2-for-2 With a double and single in his Big League debut for Roberts.

Roberts was pleased with his squad's comeback effort in the seoond game.

"We made a tremendous effort to get back in it," he said. "They did battle back offensively. The put the last six runs up on the board and that was really good to see," Roberts said.

The Mavericks played host to Renton last night (after press time). They are scheduled to travel to play Magnolia in a doubleheader this Sunday beginning at 1 p.m.

Junior Legion squad absorbs weekend split

All-star baseball players from Federal Way and the Seamount League played the North Puget Sound League at Enumclaw, but there was a shortage of Federal Way-area players.

Federal Way High School was represented by catcher Doug Conzatti and second baseman Marty Mogensen in the action for seniors to determine who goes on to the state all-star game next week, but no others.

"It was sickening to tell the truth," said Federal Way head coach Gary Mogensen. "No one was there from Decatur or TJ (Thomas Jefferson). We were poorly represented.'

Some big names from TJ and Decatur were left out, apparently because of a mix-up in communication, including All-South Puget Sound League pitcher

Brady Nelson of the Gators and TJ All-SPSL designated hitter Aaron Martin. Also among those excluded was All-SPSL second team choice Mark Nielsen of TJ

One other player from Federal Way - Al Hensley was chosen as an outfielder for the action in Enumclaw but opted to play in that day's Federal Way American Legion game instead.

Part of the problem there stemmed from a $25 fee charged to participants of the feeder game. The fee was apparently charged to cover the cost of umpires and balls, but no admission was charged to onlookers.

Other problems included the fact coaches were not notified who was playing until Wednesday, and players had to send their forms back Thursday. Also, the Federal Way area was supposed to be represented by a coach on the field, but no word was cont here beforehand.

THE ONLY positive, according to Mogensen, was the fact Conzatti had a good day. Cozatti threw out three runners from behind the plate-one being picked off at first, another press time Monday.

thrown out trying to steal second and the other trying to go to third on a wild pitch. "At least Doug had a good time," said Mogensen. "He had a good day behind the plate." Conzatti played in the second game only, going 0-for-1 offensively with two walks. Mogensen also played the second game only, but did not fare so well.

As for Conzatti, notification was supposed to come out early this week as to whether or not he will play in the state game," although it had not come as of

Danny Graham reached first base on a dropped third strike to start it off, and went to third on a base hit up the middle by Kevin Caldwell. Caldwell went to second on the throw to third, which almost caught Graham.

That set the stage for Sugg, who singled up the middle to score both runners.

The Feds had five hits in all in the game, with Josh Austin go-2-for-3 to lead the way. He also made four put-outs in the

A highlight of the game was the performance of Darell DeMongelaere, who relieved Graham on the mound in the third and went 31/3 innings, allowing no runs on two hits.

DeMongelaere just moved in from the Spanaway Lake area to Twin Lakes and is the 18th player on the team's roster. DeMongelaere, who will be a junior next year, will play for Decatur.

"He kept the ball low," said Federal Way head coach Dave Sugg of DeMongelaere. "He is a spot pitcher. I'm sure the Decatur coaches will be happy to have him."

Curt Nelson threw the seventh inning and retired the side for the Feds.

Federal Way's next action is tomorrow, when it visits Kent Memorial Park for a 5:30 p.m. game with Kent Post 15.

Western Soccer League action. Webber, who played college ball at the University of Portland, is playing summer ball for the Timbers.

Clint Carnell had sent the match into overtime when he scored for the Storm with less than a minute remaining in

Retiring coach leads T-Bird track team to title

By CHUCK MINGORI

Highline track coach Don Mc-Connaughey couldn't have asked for a better retirement present than the one his Thunderbird track team presented him at the recent conference meet.

Highline was the first team to defeat Spokane in the Northwest Athletic Association of Community Colleges conference meet in 17 years. And the T-Birds did it in McConnaughey's final year as head coach.

McConnaughey, who arrived at Highline the year the college opened in 1962, is Highline's athletic director, an instructor and an administrator.

"I just don't have time to do all the things I should be doing," said McConnaughey, who also is athletic commissioner of men's sports at Highline and has been on the NWAACC executive board the past two years.

McConnaughey's successor as track coach will be his assistant now, Ben Welch. For McConnaughey, coaching has been a labor of love.

"I guess you don't do something for 35 years unless you kind of like it," he said.

MCCONNAUGHEY stepped down from his post as head track coach in 1979 and was succeeded by Chuck Czubin, who ran the program from 1980 to 1986. McConnaughey served as Czubin's assistant in 1986 and then took over the head reins in 1987 again.

Highline finished fourth in the conference meet in 1986 with only five kids on the team, took second to Spokane by only a difference of eight points in 1987 and then was the runner-up against last year by 12 points.

This year, Highline brought them so badly. That made a big difference."

Highlighting the May 26-27 conference meet for the Thunderbirds was the co-record breaking performance of Highline's pole vaulters. Ron Johnson (Snohomish) and Garth Willard (Kentwood) each cleared 16-3 to set conference marks and placed first and second. Those two had cleared 16-6 before.

Johnson is headed to the University of Washington on a track scholarship, while Willard is headed to Oregon.

McConnaughey attributed part of those two pole vaulters' success to an indoor vaulting box at the college along with the expertise of pole vaulting coach Rick Baggett.

ANOTHER STANDOUT performance was turned in by Brett Goller (Curtis), who won the 10,000 meters (31:42.52) on Friday, May 26, the 3,000-meter steeplechase (9:18.3) early Saturday and the 5,000 meters (15:06.27) later in the day Satur-Goller won the conference cross country title the past two years and also won those same three events at last year's conference track meet.

Goller is headed to either the University of Idaho or Eastern on a full scholarship.

Highline posted a 1-2-3-4 finish in the 1,500 meters, with Paul Monaghan (Puyallup), Ed Glass (Lakes), Chris Helm (Lindbergh) and Carl Buena (Jefferson) finishing in times of 3:58.51, 3:59.14, 3:59.79 and 4:00.16.

Highline's 400 relay team finished second in 43.28 behind Spokane at 42.78. Competing for Highline's relay team were John Armeni (Kent-Meridian), Johnson (Snohomish), Artis

Williams (Puyallup).

Armeni also ran third in the 200 (22.1), fourth in the 400 (49.2) and anchored Highline's 1,600 meter relay team to a personal best and second-place time of

THE T-BIRDS had plenty of other impressive showings as well. Monaghan ran second behind Goller in the 5,000 (15:14.09), with Glass in fourth at 15:31.0 and Loren Hawkins (Peninsula) taking fifth in 15:40.36.

Hawkins also placed third behind Goller in the 10,000 (32:2 3.3), while Tim Vandervlugt (Nathan Hale) captured fourth (32:57.0). Hawkins also is leaning toward attending the University of Washington.

A lot of kids think going to a community college is the end of the road," said McConnaughey.
"I have four-year (college) coaches calling me all the time. It really works good for my recruiting if they (athletes) know that."

Russ Capps improved from his eighth-place finish in the decathlon last year to claim third this year with 6,516 points. Capps also was fourth in the high jump at 6-4 and sixth in the discus with a toss of 141-7.

Mike Zehnder (Fife) helped the Highline cause with a fifthplace effort of 176-7 in the

IN STEEPLECHASE competition, Highline received a third-place finish from Tony DeAugustine (Kent-Meridian) with a time of 9:35.7. Also placing fourth and sixth in that event from K-M were Terry Cushman and Matt Morrison in times of 9:42.2 and 9:49.4, respectively. Pat Robinson (Garfield) came through with a second-place run of 1:53.5 in the 800. Robinson also is receiving attention from Armond Williams (Hazen) rounded out Highline's scoring with a sixth-place finish in the long jump at 21-61/2 and also was sixth in the high jump at 6-2.

Two top teams knock Trojans out of tourney the state tournament in two games, you might as well do it against two of the top finishers.

That's what the Fife girls' slowpitch team discovered at the state AA tournament in Centralia Memorial Day weekend.

The Trojans were edged, 6-5, by Lynnwood in the opener May 26, and Lynnwood went on to finish second in the state.

Fife resumed play May 29 after rain problems and was eliminated by Liberty - the eventual third place finisher by a 13-1 score.

"It's neat just to get to state, and to get through districts," said Trojan head coach Mike Ryan, whose team finished with an even 10-10 record overall.

Against Lynnwood, the deciding run did not cross the plate until the bottom of the seventh, and Ryan had praise for senior pitcher Dorrie Col-

"She did a good job pitching," he said. "She held them to six runs, and that's great against them."

Joanne Weinbrecht had a big day at the plate against Lynnwood, going 2-for-3 with two > SOPHOMORE Judye Scheidt finished with Fife's top batting average for the season at .614. while Debbie Nelson led with her three home runs and 22 RBI while hitting .550.

Weinbrecht was honored as the Pierce County League's second team shortstop, while Coleman and Tammy Boyle took honorable mention.

"The seniors led us there," said Ryan. "They were willing to work and not quit. They got us there with their attitude.'

Ryan also has a good group of players coming back, though, including sophomores Scheidt and Weinbrecht, not to mention freshman starter Gina Handrock at third base.

"They'll figure out a way to Monday's game did not go so win next year," said Ryan.

County offering tennis lessons

Team tennis, youth tennis and adult tennis classes are being taught by the King County Natural Resources and Parks Division, Federal Way-Des Moines District, this summer.

The team tennis program is designed for youths nine to 18 years of age with a serious interest in tennis. The program offers 18 to 20 hours of instruction plus matches with other teams in the South King County Junior Tennis League.

Match play is open to all participants. Matches will be hed at sites in the Renton, Kent, Auburn, Highline and Federal Way areas and a tournament will conclude the program.

Tennis players meet Monday through Thursday. Match play will take place on Mondays and Wednesdays from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at scheduled sites. Instruction and practice is on Tuesdays and Thursdays at Sacajawea Junior High School from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Team tennis program begins June 19. The fee is $62.50. Pre-registration is required three working days in advance. For further information, call 941-0655.

Youth tennis classes are being offered for beginning and advanced beginning tennis players 8 to 16 years of age. This is an opportunity for students to develop grip, proper racquet position. strokes and good serving techniques as well as basics of the game.

Classes will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at Sacajawea Junior High and Tuesday and Thursday mornings at Des Moines Park beginning June 19. Fee is $28.60 for nine classes. Pre-registration is required three working days in advance. For further information regarding registration, call 941-0655.

Adult tennis classes will be held Monday and Wednesday evenings at Sacajawea Junior High School and Tuesday and Thursday evenings at Des Moines Park beginning June 20. Fee is $26.40 for eight classes. Pre-registration is required three working days in advance.

This is a chance to enjoy the outdoors, get some exercise and pick up some tennis tips. King County Natural Resources and Parks Division, Federal Way-Des Moines District, is offering beginning and advance beginning lessons for adults.

Classes are designed to teach and develop grip, proper racquet position, strokes and serving. Class members also will be taught basic game play and

Lancers led league in statistics

By ADAM WORCESTER

Glancing at the final North Puget Sound League baseball statistics, one would think Kennedy, not Hazen, won the league championship.

The Lancers led the NPSL in team batting, with a .366 average. They led in team pitching, with a 1.33 earned-run average. They had individual league leaders in runs batted in, home runs and walks.

They led in every important department in fact, except one: final standings.

Kentwood tore through the NPSL regular season with an 18-0 record, followed by Kennedy and Kentridge at 14-4. But in the league playoffs, Hazen (12-6) surprised everyone by downing Kennedy, then Kentwood twice, to nab the NPSL's No. 1 statetournament berth.

Kennedy was two outs away from earning a state seeding before Hazen's two-run, seventh-inning rally ended the Lancers' season with a 7-6 loss - the first time in five years they have not advanced to the state quarterfinal round.

But it was a good campaign nonetheless, Lancer coach Joe Faccone said.

"We led the league in fense and we led the league in pitching. That's the mark of a successful season," he noted. Kennedy finished with a 15-5 record.

"I wanted to try to get 20," Faccone said. "The disappointment lies in the fact that this team didn't get to regionals. We should never have lost (to Hazen)."

Kennedy led the NPSL with 192 hits, 13 home runs and 154

Outfielder Sterling Johnson led the Lancers in hitting and came within a tenth of a point of the NPSL batting crown, losing to Highline's Mike Keane, .511 to Johnson also tied for the league lead in home runs (4) and finished second behind teammate Jade Smith in number of walks drawn (21).

Smith topped the Lancers in stolen bases (14) and was the squad's second-leading hitter (.434), followed by Marc Sag-

Summer activities scheduled

A host of summertime activities are being planned by the Federal Way-Des Moines Recreation Office.

On July 26, the MacDermott Chiropractic/Wavemakers Haircare and Supplies Swim-Ride-Run-Relay will take place in Des Moines.

The event, which gets started at 4:30 p.m., offers divisions from 8 years old through seniors. The relay begins with lap swimming at Mount Rainier Pool, following by biking to Des Moines Park and running through an obstacle course. Entries are due by 4 p.m. on Monday, July 18. Cost is $28 per team or $9 for a single competitor. For further information, call 941-0655 or 296-4279.

The 10th annul BK's Kitchen-Boston Pizza Fun Run will take place at 9 a.m. Saturday, July 29, beginning at Zenith Park, So. 240th and 16th Avenue So. Participants of this event, which is sponsored by King County Parks and Recreation, BK's Kitchen and Boston Pizza, will receive a fun run shirt, free dinner at BK's Kitchen, discount coupons from Boston Pizza and refreshments. Awards will be handed out for nine age division winners. Entry fee is $8, $10 after July 16. The race is five miles long. For further entry information call 941-0655 or 296-4279.

The 13th annual Federal Way Tennis Tournament, sponsored by King County Parks and Recreation, will take place Aug. 12-20 for all ages and divisions.

The tournament offers singles, doubles and mixed doubles in four divisions: open, advanced, intermediate and beginning. Entry forms and specific information regarding the tournament will be available June 12 at the Federal Way-Des Mointes District Recreation office. Nine seniors will depart Kennedy this spring: Jim Picinich, Kevin Medvedich, Jason Picinich, Bryan Sauve, Sagmoen, Forsell, Jacobson, Englin and Johnson.

But eight others will return, including O'Connor, Jacobs and Smith.

"This was a great ball club. It did us all proud," said Faccone.

"But we've got a bad taste in our mouths right now. We have to get it out of our system. Spring can't come fast enough.'

New port chief brings 'refreshing' change

By KIM HESLER

Talk to Port of Seattle employees about their new executive director, and it's hard to distinguish whether they are talking about a man or a soda pop. Everyone uses words such as "refreshing" or "delightful" to describe him.

Zeger van Asch van Wijck, 41, became the port's new executive director in January. He was called upon to calm the stormy internal seas of the port and help it become more competitive in world trade. So far, he's gotten rave reviews.

"He is the most refreshing thing to come to the port in a long time," said George Maillot, a tenant at Shilshole Bay Marina, which is owned and operated by the port. He met van Asch van Wijck at a Port-Watch meeting. PortWatch is a citizen's group that acts as a watchdog on port issues. "Never before has someone that high up sat down and really listened to what citizens had to say."

Van Asch van Wijck knows that he cannot raise his hands and part the waters of Puget Sound, that he cannot singlehandedly improve the port's image. He says he will need the help of people throughout the chain of command at the port, in the community and in the media.

HE LEARNED this key to successful management in the Netherlands, where he was the highly regarded executive vice president of the Port of Rotterdam, the largest port in the world. His Dutch accent flavors his words, although his command of the English language is

"I can't do everything myself. If I try I will be always working," said van Asch van Wijck.

"I delegate work because if I'm doing everything, I'm not motivating people.'

As the executive director, van Asch van Wijck is responsible for overseeing $1.2 billion worth of port facilities. He will need to address problems such as overcrowding at Sea-Tac Airport and the aircraft noise controversy in surrounding communities, leasing of waterfront facilities and making Seattle more competitive with other West Coast ports in international trade.

According to several port employees, the most difficult hurdle van Asch van Wijck will have to clear is getting the 60 departments of the port to agree on what the port's mission ought to be. Each department has been heading in different directions, according to many on the port's staff.

"NO ONE could really articulate what the goal of the port was," said Lynn Taylor, director of harbor development and the coordinator of van Asch van Wijck's new strategic plan.

Van Asch van Wijck has initiated a master plan that will lay out the combined objectives of the port.

"He plunged right in the day he got here and asked each department to give him a briefing on what they do, what were their concerns, and what they felt were the objectives of the port," said Commissioner Paige Miller, one of van Asch van Wijck's five bosses. "It was a very refreshing and systematic exer-

Not only has van Asch van Wijck met with groups of port employees, he has met with members of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, labor unions and PortWatch.

"I want to get the silent ma-

Zeger van Asch van Wijck

jority involved in the strategic plan. I want to hear what people think," van Asch van Wijck

He added that he cannot please 100 percent of the people, but so far he has managed to please a lot of them.

"Maybe it's because he's new and we are giving the new guy on the block a break. But I go on a coffee break and overhear plumbers, sheet metal workers and pipe fitters - people way down the chain of command — talking about what he's doing," said Bill Raymond, maintenance superintendent for the port's waterfront. He's very approachable." WHEN VAN ASCH van Wijck speaks, the reaction is reminiscent of the commercial in which

"Everyone's excited. For the first time, we've had a top executive sit down and talk to us.

the stockbroker talks and people drop everything to listen. He will start talking to someone in an office and moments later a crowd has gathered around him.

"He is just delightful and positive," said Phyllis Sampson, "He practices what he preaches and he is a great com-municator."

Van Asch van Wijck outlined his vision of the port at a recent forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters. "I see the broad picture. We have a lot of potential for growth here," he

On the marine side, van Asch van Wijck envisions a more diversified and modern port, updated with new technology. He would like Seattle to become a "teleport," electronically linked with other ports and clients worldwide. He implemented that same idea at the Port of Rotterdam.

AS FOR THE airport, he sees an opportunity to increase the air cargo distribution from Sea-Tac by using the "Seattle shortcut" marketing plan that the marine side uses to attract international customers. It points out the time-saving advantage Seattle offers because of its proximity to Asia and Eastern Europe.

This idea may spark protest by many citizens in the airport vicinity because it will generate more aircraft noise.

"It's a question of whether you want economic activity or not," van Asch van Wijck said. By increasing the amount of air cargo business at the airport, "it will bring more growth and wealth to the community."

"I know that there is a problem with airplane noise in the community and to solve it we must go to the source," he said. 'We must talk to Boeing and see how they can build quieter airplanes."

Until such airplanes exist, he offered some short-term solutions to the noise problem. Double-paned windows could help reduce noise level in homes, he said, and the port could purchase homes whose

DOROTHY M. OWENS

CLERK OF THE COUNCIL

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the market prices have plummeted because of jet noise overhead.

VAN ASCH van Wijck understands the need for a quiet household, which is why he and his wife of 19 years, Trees (pronounced "Threse"), chose to live in a house that is nestled in a woodsy residential area in Bellevue.

"I like the Bellevue area," he said. "It's quiet, but you are very close to the city.'

At 7:30 a.m. each weekday, van Asch van Wijck leaves home, takes his three teenage children to Eastside Catholic High School, then hops on Interstate 90 and arrives at work by 8:30 a.m. The early morning traffic on I-90 doesn't seem to bother him. "We are used to it," he said. "In the Netherlands there is always traffic." Trees, 41, stays home with their 2-year-old daughter. He runs the port and she runs the household. "That is my part in all of this," she said with a shy

She is like her husband, and wastes no time getting things in order. She arrived here only a few weeks ago with their four children, but the beautifully furnished house looks as if they had lived there for years.

ACCORDING TO Trees, the most complicated thing about her husband is his last name (pronounced "fon Osh fon Vayck"). The name dates to the 15th Century marriage of a Dutch couple, one from the little city of Van Asch, the other from Van Wijck.

"Zeger is always the same, never angry," Trees said. Then she reached for an English vocabulary book to search for the right word, When she found it, she said, "He is very balanced, but never boring."

Inspiring family members is easier than inspiring opponents, but Wijck has managed to get a positive reaction from Port-Watch and other community interest groups.

One thing that struck us is that he is willing to listen to new ideas," said Diana Swain of PortWatch. "He is a refreshing person for both the port and the public."

Councilman Paul Barden called the $5,667 proposal "a laudable one.

"There are many people who have the inexorable burden of caring for the elderly, and they desperately need a break," he

But Councilman Greg Nickels sounded a more cautious note. He agreed that the program would provide an important service, but he said the council should move carefully when that will soon be new cities.

"There will be continuing needs in Federal Way and in Sea-Tac, so I'm not saying that we should write them off and say we aren't going to serve them.

But I do think the council should decide what are the county's major needs and make sure this program fits in with those needs," he added.

THE DAY-CARE program is part of a $12,829 package from County Executive Tim Hill on special programs for the elder-

Hill was given the money in last year's budget, with a direcidentify special needs of the elderly. The council received Hill's recommendations last

The proposal also asks for $5,211 for a nutrition and transportation program for elderly Korean-Americans in Federal Way.

The program would provide meals of Korean cuisine for 75 elderly from the area. It would also offer transportation for the weekly event, which would be held at an area church.

The proposal is scheduled to be considered at a council committee meeting later this month.

County tightens control on EISs hiring and supervision of consultants who write environmental impact statements for developments in unincorporated areas of the county, under an ordinance approved by the County Council on Monday.

Currently, the consultants work directly for the developer building the project.

Councilman Ron Sims introduced the measure, saying that under the current system, environmental impact statements are often slanted in favor of the developer.

SEVERAL OFFICIALS said that the measure would not produce a significant change in environmental documents, but they believed that it could Road soon.

King County will take over the change the public's perception of the consultant as an advocate for the developer.

"The public and many professionals believe that EIS's are overly controlled by the applicant and are not always objective analyses," said Jim Tracy, director of the county's Parks, Planning and Resources Depart-

Tracy, who formerly headed the Department of Building and Land Development, said he didn't agree with that belief, but he does feel it is important to change that perception.

"We do need to assure the public that these documents are as unbiased and objective as possible," he added.

DEVELOPERS had opposed the ordinance when it was introduced, saying it would add to the cost of projects, since a developer would have to hire his or her own consultant to watchdog the one hired by the coun-

A compromise of sorts was reached on that issue when the council agreed to let the developer help select the consultant. Final selection, however, would remain with the county.

Don Davis, assistant' executive director of the Seattle Master Builders Association, said that developers also were concerned that the new requirements would slow down the preparation and review of EIS's.

"The volume of applications (for developments) in King County is so high now that anything they do to add to the workload at the county could be a problem for us," he said.

UNDER THE ordinance, the county will prepare a list of consultants who are qualified to write environmental impact statements. Consultants on that list will be the only ones who can be hired by the county to prepare the environmental documents.

Councilman Paul Barden said he was "bothered" by the county creating a list that could exclude some consultants:

"Who is going to be on that gravy train?" asked Barden. 'I'm going to watch that very closely," he added.

The measure passed the council by a unanimous vote of 9 to 0. The ordinance will not take effect until Jan., 1990.
