'Weird stuff'

Pump has whiff of nostalgia

By SEAN ROBINSON

"It's my night light," said John Hagopian.

A 10-foot-tall antique gasoline pump that stands in your front yard and suffuses the neighborhood with a fluorescent glow in the evenings is your night light?

Well, that's pretty weird, John, but we're sure it's not the weirdest thing in Federal Way. That's why we're beginning a series of feature articles in the Federal Way News called "Weird Stuff." If there is a local landmark in your neighborhood that you think fits this moniker, we'd like to know about it. Call us at 839-0700 if you have an entry worthy of the name "Weird Stuff."

Hagopian's pump has been standing guard over his yard for about a year. The 67-year-old retired insurance appraiser discovered it at the corner of South 168th Street and Highway 99, where property was being cleared for a parking lot.

"I rebuilt it," said Hagopian proudly. "That's all we had when I was a kid. It's actually for the pleasure I get out of it." Hagopian spent about $200 restoring the ancient pump, which he said dates from "the tall end of the 20s, maybe 1925." His efforts have borne fruit. He said collectors have told him the pump is worth $3,500 in its shiny new condition. Not a bad investment.

But he won't sell it. "Where would I get another one?" he said. Hagopian used to collect antique cars, but he no longer has the space to accommodate them. The bright red old Texaco pump is his alternative.

He put the fluorescent lights in himself, and did the wiring, using a metal table leg as a center conduit. The lights come on at 9 in the evening, and shut off about 1 in the morning. "Obviously, I can't have gasoline in here, since it's illegal," said Hagopian (Lawmakers tend to frown on volatile materials in the suburbs).

Even though the pump is effectively out of order, it doesn't stop passersby from gawking. "How many gallons do you get?" shouted a man driving by in a truck.

"Ten," said Hagopian, brandishing the pump handle. And that's how much it would hold, if it was functioning. The original brass numbers indicating how much gas had been pumped into your Model A are still there. Hagopian said he was "very, very fortunate to restore them."

But the burning question has to be, what do the neighbors think? Does the presence of the pump lower surrounding property values?

"What kind of person would say that?" said Hagopian. "If anyone's (property), it would be mine."

He said he gets very few negative comments, in fact, quite the reverse. "One guy said, 'That isn't going to last. I'm going to steal that,'" he said. Hagopian has bolted the pump into the sidewalk in front of his house, so any prospective thieves better have the arms of Arnold Schwarzenegger.

ger.

Hagopian said he enjoys the memories of childhood the pump brings back, and snorts at today's era of convenience. "Can you imagine something like this in an all-night service yourself?" he asked.

Officials hasten to find water sources

By KURT HERZOG

In three years or less, Federal Way will not have enough water in its aquifers to supply the area's anticipated needs.

"It's not time to panic, but it's time to start caring," says Mike Krautkramer, a hydrogeologist hired by the Federal Way Water and Sewer District to study groundwater and find new sources.

Three years is not far off, however, and the only other source that officials predict will be able to supply enough water to the area won't be ready for four years. Pipeline 5, Tacoma's $45 million plan to supply water from the Green River to itself and South King County water districts, won't be finished until 1993 or possibly later.

"The numbers just started to hit home," Krautkramer said. Those are numbers derived from pumping tests on Federal Way wells and officials admit they're not exact.

"We're talking about something we can't see and can't measure," Krautkramer said.

Also, the dwindling supply of water is something that's affecting more than Federal Way. According to studies by the South King County Regional Water Association (RWA), a group of area water districts, the regional water supply also is less than anticipated.

"Several years ago it became apparent that water supplies were not on par with what we thought they would be," said Gary Cline, RWA administrator.

BUT FEDERAL WAY is in a unique situation. It is the largest user of groundwater in the state and gets all its water from underground aquifers.

Federal Way is an aquifer island of sorts. It receives no water from streams or other water sources. All water comes from rain.

Those aquifers are drying up because of a growing demand for water in Federal Way and because of concentrated development in the area. That one-two punch is having a kind of Catch-22 effect.

The more development there is, the less chance groundwater has to drain back into the aquifer because of the construction of impervious surfaces such as parking lots, roofs and other construction. The more develop-

Transition team is still sparking spirited debate

By LYNN KEEBAUGH

At least one member of the Federal Way First! Transition Team wonders what all the public fuss is about. "What's the problem? The land issue is gone," said Bob Hash, deputy chief of Fire District 39 (Federal Way) and a member of the cityhood transition team.

He spoke yesterday morning at a meeting of the Federal Way Chamber of Commerce Transportation and Legislative committees meeting.

But there obviously is a fuss, as discussion of the recent publicity over the team's decision to hire one of its members as a private consultant to study land-use issues proved. The team eventually backed down in the wake of negative publicity and the resignation of some team members over the subject, but the debate has not cooled.

Despite the decision not to hire team member Dick Burris as a consultant, other transition team members, Burris included, say they still plan to study land use and advise the new city council.

Other chamber and transition team members complained about negative publicity from the public and the press and wondered if public perception of the team might not be tainted.

Other chamber and transition team members in attendance complained about negative publicity, from the public and the press, and wondered if public perception of the team might not be tainted. Their remarks were prompted by Lonnie McLean, chairman of the Transportation Committee, who asked what others thought of the team and its work.

Dale Roper, a former member of the transition team's land-use committee, said he resigned when it was announced the committee chairman, Burris, would

Student placement gets second look

By MELODIE STEIGER

A proposed student placement policy for Federal Way schools has been put on the back burner in the wake of vehement parent protest.

The Federal Way School Board agreed Monday night to postpone its vote on the proposed policy until its June 28 meeting (rescheduled from June 26).

The policy would put the responsibility for pairing students with teachers firmly in the hands of principals. School district administrators say it merely enforces the classroom selection process that now is underway at elementary schools.

Parents, however, argue that special requests for particular teachers are a de facto process at local elementary schools. Indeed, several told the school board Monday night, parents should have that right.

Lake Dolloff parent Sonya Krebbiel said she had collected signatures from more than 40 parents who agreed that the proposed policy is too restrictive.

"Parents have the right to advise staff about what is best educationally and emotionally for their children," she said.

BOARD MEMBERS and district administrators have said the placement policy simply puts educational needs of children at the root of teacher requests. Rather than asking for a particular teacher for his or her child, a parent is asked to point out any educational needs

Ring road will help shoppers, not traffic

By LYNN KEEBAUGH

A ring road connecting South 320th Street with South 312th Street behind the Federal Way Shopping Center would be good for businesses in the area, but would make no noticeable dent in traffic congestion on South 320th and Pacific Highway South.

That's the conclusion of a six-month, $100,000 feasibility study conducted by Reid Middleton Inc. for the King County Public Works Department.

The study was presented to the public yesterday, along with details and maps of four potential routes that would extend 11th Place South, aligning it with 14th Avenue South and connecting South 320th and South 312th.

The study shows only what is possible, said Rex Knight, manager of engineering services for public works. It is not a recommendation and can not assume any road will be built, he added.

That wasn't reassuring enough for several residents whose homes border the area of the potential link road. The study states that construction of any one of the alternatives would require the demolition or relocation of commercial and residential property. The Federal Way School District bus maintenance facility would have to go in any event.

from 1:30-2:30 p.m. The market will feature all its usual goodies such as fresh fruits and vegetables, flowers and hand-crafted items. The market is at the corner of Second Avenue and Smith Street in downtown Kent. For more information, call 626-0782.

SUNDAY: Theater-goers can get a special deal from the Intiman Theatre Company with a "Pay What You Can" performance of "Hamlet" at 2 p.m. The minimum price is $1. Another such performance of "Hamlet" is set for next Sunday, June 25, and other plays are selected for the special performances through the summer and fall. Tickets for those performances can be purchased only at the Intiman box office, open from noon to 7 p.m. Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and from noon to 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday. For more information, call 626-0782.

THIS WEEKEND: The Pavilion Mall will host a showing to intrigue anyone interested in unidentified flying objects with a UFO Photo Exhibit. Twenty panels of photographs of UFOs from all over the world will be displayed, as well as a videotape on the subject and speakers. Dr. J. Allen Hynek, founder of the Center for UFO Studies, will be available at the exhibit. The show will be open during mall hours today, tomorrow and Sunday. Pavilion Mall is one mile south of the intersection of Interstate 5 and Highway 405 in Tukwila. Call 575-8090 for more information.

At the Movies

"BEACHES"

Bette Midler shines in this touching story about two girls from vastly different backgrounds who become life-long pen pals and friends. Barbara Hershey's performance can't be faulted, either, and Lainie Kazan steals every scene she's in as Midler's mother. Playing at Gateway Center.

"FIELD OF DREAMS"

A baseball fairy tale in the general mold of "The Natural," but more contemporary and less about baseball than about one man's struggle to come to terms with bitter-sweet memories of his father. Based on the novel "Shoeless Joe," the movie is faithful to the book in spirit if not every detail. Warm, witty, with bursts of visual splendor, such as the eerie initial appearance of the "ghost" of Shoeless Joe Jackson in a baseball diamond carved from a corn field by the film's engaging star, Kevin Costner. It's a movie with a message: Follow your dream and you might get a second chance. Tender hearts should bring Kleenex. Rated PG. Playing at Sea-Tac North and Lewis and Clark.

"INDIANA JONES AND THE LAST CRUSADE"

"Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" won't disappoint devotees of the George Lucas/Steven Spielberg hero. The inimitable Indy (Harrison Ford) gets tangled up with Nazis, religious fanatics, and his own father (Sean Connery) while searching for the legendary Holy Grail. The plot is thin, the action predictable and the suspense non-existent, but the stunts are routinely breath-taking, and Connery adds some spice to the formula mix. Rated PG-13. "Indiana Jones" is playing at Sea-Tac North and South and at Southcenter.

"PET SEMATARY"

A Stephen King vehicle that's more chilly than chilling, due to an overly streamlined script and a succession of false alarms, "Pet Sematary" has a few scary moments, but not nearly as many as it promises. A young family moves to Maine and discovers the unique properties of an Indian burial ground. Fred Gwynne has a supporting role. Rated R for violence and some bloody effects. "Pet Sematary" is playing at Sea-Tac North.

"RAIN MAN"

"Rain Man" is a classic contrast between character playing and character stereotyping. Tom Cruise brings his usual slick self, this time a high-strung Los Angeles businessman. Dustin Hoffman is his autistic math genius brother. Hoffman's performance, as usual, is impeccable. The two brothers meet, essentially for the first time, when their father dies and leaves his fortune to the autistic's institution. Cruise's character kidnaps him as leverage and as a way out of his latest business failure. The two set out on a cross-country road trip in dad's classic convertible — it's a rocky road into the Big Bird, Cookie Monster, Bert and Ernie, Grover and the rest of the Sesame Street gang will perform live next week at the Seattle Center Coliseum.

"Big Bird's Sesame Street Story" will be performed Wednesday, June 21, through Sunday, June 25. The shows will retain the entertainment and education aspects of the television series, but will add the excitement of a live show.

Reserved tickets are $8 and $9.50 and are available at all Ticketmaster outlets and by calling Ticketmaster at 628-0888.

about an untidy plot when there are Klingons to fight? "Star Trek" is rated PG and is playing at Sea-Tac South and Lewis and Clark.

"STAR TREK V: THE FINAL FRONTIER"

"Star Trek" may be one of the best sequels out this year. Better than "Rocky" or "Friday the 13th," the fifth "Star Trek" sequel is as comfortable as an old pair of sneakers. The characters need no introductions. In this latest installment, the Enterprise is commandeered by a renegade Vulcan named Sybok (Laurence Luckinbill), who does things we don't associate with Mr. Spock's race, like smiling. The plot begins on an epic scale, but tapers out. But fans of Captain Kirk (William Shatner) and Mr. Spock (Leonard Nimoy) and the rest of the Enterprise crew won't be disappointed. What can compare with the spectacle of Kirk, Spock and Dr. McCoy (DeForest Kelly) eating beans around a campfire in Yosemite National Park? Who cares

Dogs and cats will unite at last

By ANN SEIDNER HARTMAN

Free hot dogs could be the start of something tasty for kids at the Avenue Act I theater in Auburn.

They may be a step down from the usual multi-course meals the Avenue Act I serves its theater patrons. But the beefy treats are just right for the kid-sized patrons of kid-sized theater.

That was Dennis Hart's idea, anyway, when the theater owner started the Hot Dog Children's Theatre, which staged "Alice in Wonderland" in January and will open its second show, "Puss in Boots," next Saturday, June 24.

But children who come to the performances will receive a lot more than a free hot dog. They will get a full-fledged production of a favorite story, complete with costumes, sets and props in the atmosphere of a professional theater.

A cast of 13 children and adults from the local area will perform the classic "Puss in Boots," about a miller's son who is left a legacy of the family cat. The cat is a smart one though, and gets a hold of the boots of an ogre, which he believes are magical. The cat outwits the mean ogre to win a princess and castle for his master, and he sets all the ogre's victims free. The story ends happily ever after.

The show is equally entertaining for children and adults, said director Bonnie Fay Nelson. "It's for all those who believe in once upon a time," she said.

NELSON, Hart and other local performers who have been involved with the Avenue Act I for years, are hoping that the Hot Dog Children's Theatre will be a once-upon-a-time story itself. They see it as a way to continue the theater's strong tradition and desire to produce quality children's theater in the area and give kids themselves an opportunity to produce theater.

The Avenue Act I always has been oriented toward children's theater, said Nelson. "I think the first production we did was 'You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown.' (Children's theater) has been a long dream of Dennis," she said.

Puppeteers to stage shadow show

The Seattle Children's Museum will present the Carter Family Marionettes tomorrow in a Chinese shadow puppet performance for young children.

The family of puppeteers will stage "The Legend of the White Serpent" as part of the museum's current exhibit called "Dragon Tales: Toys and Folklore of China's Children." The show is performed using colored puppets which, when lit from behind, cast a colored image across a translucent screen.

Like audiences thousands of years ago, today's audiences watch colored shadows without ever seeing the puppets themselves.

After the show, however, children will get the chance to see the puppets and make ones of their own in a workshop that will run from 8:15-9:30 p.m. The performance begins at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are $5 per person. For more information, call the museum at 441-1768.

Bible quizzing competition prepares boy for ministry

By WENDY CULVERWELL
Bob Taylor's mother wonders how he got spots on his "Washington" T-shirt. Darlene Taylor speculates they might have come from handling old Bibles in the family library. Actually, Bob admits to his mother, the spots are from the slugs he made out of Tootsie Rolls. Bob Taylor, 14, is a versatile young man. He bakes, is an honors algebra student at Illahee Junior High School, and he's already preparing for what he wants to be when he grows up — a minister. Darlene and her husband, Robert, agree that they have an unusual son. Darlene calls him "one of those rare breed of people who don't care what other people think." Robert confides that he's known for four years of Bob's plans to enter the ministry. Darlene wasn't immediately privilege to that information, but when she did hear about her son's ambition, she wasn't surprised. Her third, and by-far youngest child, has always had a gift of understanding the scriptures, she said. His two siblings are graduating from college. IF MINISTRY in the Nazarene church (the Taylors attend Federal Way Church of the Nazarene) is indeed in Bob's future, he certainly will be well-prepared when he starts his education. Thanks to the International Bible Quiz program, Bob already is an expert on the Book of Matthew. The program holds Bible quiz tournaments throughout the world, culminating with the selection of an international champion each summer. Participants compete on teams of five throughout the school year. Bob was one of five students who represented the state of Washington at last month's regional Bible Quiz, held in Idaho. A newcomer in the world of Bible quizzing, he earned his spot on the team by competing successfully on his church's behalf and doing well at the district quiz off. He didn't qualify to go on to international competition, but the Washington team did place first overall. "No one expected him to go so far — he's so young and he's never done it before," Darlene said.

Because there is so much material to quiz on, Bible Quiz organizers choose one book to focus on each year. This year, Bob's first, that book was Matthew. The coming year will have two short books — Romans and James.

ALTHOUGH tournament season doesn't start until fall, study materials have arrived and Bob will have only a few days of vacation before hitting the book. His mother said she would give him a few days of vacation before handing him his study papers. "It's very intense," she explained, adding that she wouldn't push him to excel if he wasn't interested in Bible quizzing. Like most kids his age, his mother said, he goes full guns on projects that interest him, sacrificing those that don't — an allusion to the school work that makes him squirm.

Until this past school year, Bob attended Colonial Christian and Seattle Christian schools, so he is new to the public school system. Darlene said they decided to make the switch to save themselves the commute to Seattle and because the Federal Way School District offers more special programs. Bob's Christian-based education has, of course, aided him in his quest to be a top Bible quizzing, but there is one small problem. Bible Quiz calls for answers, word for word, out of the New International Version (NIV) of the Bible. Most of Bob's studies have been in the version he prefers, — the King James version.

TO DATE, he said, he has managed to avoid saying "shall" when the correct answer calls for a "will." The Taylors as a family got involved with Bible quizzing at the Church of the Nazarene, the only local church which participates BOB TAYLOR, a 14-year-old Illahee Junior High School student, already knows what he wants to be when he grows up — a minister. He's preparing himself for that goal by competing in a Bible quiz program that grills participants on their Biblical knowledge.

in quizzing, according to Darlene. She would like to see other local churches take it up to widen the scope of area competition.

Bible quizzing calls for quick, precise answers, for which the best preparation is memorization. But, according to Darlene, who coached the Nazarene team, that isn't the goal of the competition. Directors are provided with materials that help students to understand the Bible as well as the facts they need to compete.

"It isn't enough to memorize," she said.

BOB STUDIES the NIV Bible approximately an hour-and-a-half each evening — more if there's a big tournament coming up. He participates, on average, in one Bible Quiz tournament a month.

FATHERS ARE THE SAME, DESPITE THEIR DIFFERENCES

Any man can be a father, but it takes someone special to be a dad.
— Author unknown

"A wise son heareth his father's instruction."
— Proverbs 13:1

Although he might be tall or short, Or young or gray or bald, He's still your dad, or any sort Of name by which he's called. For all the things that life demands He'd always toil and strive, By working with his brains or hands And keeping you alive. At times he had to punish you, To teach you right from wrong; As well as everything he knew To help you get along. The Bible tells you to obey And love him while you can; So just remember, come what may, Your father's quite a man.

Development is preventing aquifer recharging

ment there is, the higher the demand for water is from Federal Way's increasing population.

"The more you put impervious material in, the less water is available to go into the ground through percolation," Krautkramer said.

Currently, the district has about 20 wells to supply Federal Way customers. Those wells tap into a shallow and an intermediate aquifer. The district soon will drill a test well into the deep aquifer to see if it can find more water. That's expected to cost $115,000. It will cost another $400,000 to drill another two production wells.

It's anticipated those two new wells will keep up with the peak demand for water in Federal Way until Pipeline 5 is on line. However, new wells are only a stop-gap measure at this point.

"More wells isn't the answer," Krautkramer said.

The short-term answer, according to Federal Way district officials and the RWA, is Pipeline 5. Federal Way will take 4 million gallons a day from the pipeline. Right now, Federal Way's peak demand is about 11 million.

HOWEVER, Pipeline 5 is strongly opposed by environmentalists, fishermen, and the Muckleshoot Indian Tribe, who fear that if any more water is taken out of the Green River, it will harm salmon spawning in the river.

Final permits for the pipeline construction have not been approved yet, and even when they are, any opposition group could hold up the project with a lawsuit for years.

Proponents of the pipeline say they won't be allowed by the state to take too much water from the river during dry summer months. The pipeline will operate only when there is

According to one author who has studied America's threatened water supply, Americans' water use is increasing rapidly.

In 1900, the average water use was 100 gallons a day per person. Currently, Americans use 1,875 gallons a day per person, including all industrial uses. According to Charles Bowden in his book "Killing the Hidden Water," by the year 2000, Americans will be using 6,000 gallons a day.

CURRENTLY, the Federal Way district has a voluntary lawn-watering conservation program. Residents are asked to water their lawns only every third day. To find out on which day residents should water their lawns they can call the district at 941-1516.

Federal Way has no mandatory conservation program and has no immediate plans for one. Conservation is only voluntary.

"When you have a groundwater system, it never hurts to conserve," Krautkramer said.

Local environmentalists have raised the issue of development and its effect on replenishing the aquifer, but so far King County has no policy to consider aquifers when approving developments. Other areas of the country do have such a policy.

Cape Cod, Mass., is similar to Federal Way in that it also is an aquifer island and relies completely on groundwater. The state passed a law restricting development in the Cape Cod area two years ago to protect its aquifers.

Perhaps they should be, according to environmentalists. The Hylebos Wetlands in Federal Way are considered to be an important recharging area for the aquifers. Ilene Markck, who has been the wetlands' guardian for decades, has raised the issue of aquifer protection at public meetings several times.

While protectionists have been unsuccessful so far in convincing the county to create an aquifer-protection policy, they hope they'll be more successful when Federal Way officially becomes a city.

Aquifers are drying up because of growing demands for water in Federal Way and because of concentrated development in the area. That one-two punch is having a kind of Catch-22 effect.

enough water in the river, officials say. Usually, that's only during rainy winter months.

Opponents argue that most areas don't need more water during winter months. However, using the pipeline in the winter will allow Federal Way, and the other South King County districts, to let other resources replenish, say RWA officials.

Also, utility officials around the country are studying a relatively new way to store water called aquifer recharging. Essentially, recharging is taking water from another source such as the Green River, and putting that water back into the underground aquifers.

Tacoma and Seattle are currently studying recharging. There are some problems associated with forcing water back into the ground, but water experts expect those problems will be solved someday.

"Recharging is probably the future of most of Western Washington because of seasonality," Krautkramer said. "Ultimately there will be a scheme that works."

ALSO, OFFICIALS expect to see more drainfields, such as rooftop drain systems, hooked into the ground instead of just letting stormwater run into sewers and eventually into Puget Sound.

"We're entering a new era of groundwater management," Krautkramer said. Krautkramer has been studying Federal Way's aquifers for the consulting firm of Robinson and Noble for 10 years. The firm has worked for the Federal Way district for about 25 years.

Federal Way should be concerned about the future of its water supply, but residents shouldn't panic, he said.

"I don't have a great pessimism about the future," he said. "We should be aware of groundwater without being afraid."

Finally, probably the most logical and least expensive way of guarding the area's water supply is conservation, he said. Some studies have shown that water use can be cut in half through a concerted conservation effort.

"We're very sloppy in the way we use water in this culture," he said.

Harris gets school board approval and a pay raise

By MELODIE STEIGER
Proclaiming satisfaction with his nearly two years at the head of Federal Way schools, the Federal Way School Board has approved the continuation of Superintendent Richard Harris' contract and given him a raise, to $77,438 a year.

A unanimous approval of the $5,402 raise and contract continuation, through June 1992, was cast by the board after executive session at a June 12 meeting.

The school board had earlier reviewed Harris' performance as district boss, in executive session.

"He rated quite high in some areas, although higher in some areas than others," said Nancy Robertson, president of the board. "Overall, I'd say we are very happy with Dr. Harris."

The superintendent was judged on his progress toward goals, staff and personal relations, board relations, educational leadership and business acumen, among other things.

The evaluation standards were set by the school board and Harris when he was hired here in August 1987.

Harris also recently fulfilled a major part of his contract, which stipulates that he must be a Federal Way resident. He moved from his Pierce County home to east Federal Way, within school district boundaries.

Besides his newly approved $77,438 salary, Harris receives $224 per month in medical and dental insurance. He is allowed $500 per month for area travel expenses, and long-distance trips are approved by the school board on a case-by-case basis.

Harris said the raise is part of a district effort to make administration salaries measure up to those in surrounding districts. The school district recently revamped its administration salaries, rewriting some job descriptions and adjusting some salaries to fit. All school principals received a 3 percent pay raise, and about 10 coordinators and assistant superintendents received raises of up to 3 percent. Cost to the district will be $88,600 per year.

Harris' past salary, $72,000 per year, put him about in the middle of the superintendent salary scale for surrounding school districts. This pay raise puts him near, but not at, the top.

George Daniel, superintendent of the Kent School District, is the area's top-paid schools boss at $91,372. Gary Kohlwe of the Renton School District earns $76,148. James Fugate of Auburn makes $76,148, although the Auburn School Board has not yet reviewed his contract this year. Ted Matheson of Highline earns $72,381, plus a $4,000 annuity.

School lunch prices are going up

Inflation and last summer's drought in the Midwest are being blamed for the coming increase in the price of meals at Federal Way schools.

Mary Gallier, director of district food services, says the prices for elementary school breakfasts and lunches have not been raised in eight years. Meal prices in junior highs and high schools have not increased in four.

In the meantime, she said, the costs of food and paper products have bounded ahead of meal prices here. Food prices have increased 10 percent and paper products 24 percent this past year. In addition, the Midwest drought will play havoc with the fruit and vegetable market, Gallier said.

The result is the following overall price hike for meals:

- Elementary school breakfasts, from 50 cents to 60, and junior high and high school breakfasts, from 60 cents to 70. Reduced-price breakfasts will not change from 30 cents. Breakfasts for staff will go from 75 cents to 85.
- Elementary school lunches, from $1 to $1.10. Junior high and high school lunches, from $1.25 to $1.35. Reduced-price lunches will not change from 40 cents. Staff lunches will go from $1.50 to $1.75.
- The price of a single serving of milk will rise, from 25 cents to 30.

All new prices will be in effect starting in fall.

Gallier said she may be forced to increase prices again soon, perhaps as early as next year.

"I agonized over whether this increase is enough," she said.

Burriss and Mitchell defend team's motives be hired as a private consultant to study land use in Federal Way.

Roper said he believes land use must be studied, but not privately. He said county zoning and planning regulations aren't necessarily to blame for growth problems in Federal Way, but that the interpretation of those regulations by planners and county officials is.

The city of Federal Way can be responsible for interpreting the county regulations in the spirit in which they were written, he said, and can update them at any time to fix flaws.

But Burriss responded that the county's plan for Federal Way is "precisely what the people of Federal Way voted to get away from. Seventy percent voted against their plan."

Burriss said he never intended to create a new land-use plan for Federal Way. The intention was to amend the current plan, "to go through in detail and correct those problems."

He added, "Federal Way is going to be a city. It has to set its own standards. Federal Way needs to set its own agenda."

Maryann Mitchell, chairwoman of the transition team, said its members plan to keep working.

"These people aren't the kind of people who back out," she said.

Many of the transition team members are the same people who fought for cityhood and they're tireless workers, she added. The idea of creating a new city was to bring government closer to the people and to get citizens involved.

"That's what the whole election was about and that's what we're doing," she said.

Chamber members, some of whom are involved with the team, generally were supportive of the group, but a few qualified their support with some criticisms.

They said that whether it's the fault of the transition team or not, too few members of the general public are taking part in the weekly meetings. Issues such as land-use planning, as in any governmental entity, include comment and ideas from the general public, and that has not been happening to date.

Other members chastised city council candidates for not playing a bigger role in the transition process.

"They are supposed to be our community leaders. They should come up with suggestions for these volunteers to be working on. They should identify the issues," said Carolyn Hayek, Federal Way District Court judge.

Mark Hutson, a marketing consultant, said the council candidates should be working together to ensure a smooth transition.

Roper said that although he disagrees with the way the transition team has approached land use, he supports its overall goal.

"Potential councilmen are doing themselves a great disservice not to get behind the team," he said, adding that council members will need the information collected by the team to make the transition to cityhood.

Some council candidates have attended the meetings, said Mitchell and Position 4 candidate Jim Webster. Webster said he has attended some meetings and found them helpful. Mitchell said those who do attend have been helpful in return.

A number of team members resent the sniping and complaints hurled at the team by outsiders and what they consider one-sided and nay-saying media coverage. Bud Thorsen, Fire District 39 chief, said many criticisms are coming from people who have not attended a single transition team meeting.

Jim Cron, a Boeing employee and member of the team, said he doesn't understand why a volunteer group should be under the pressure the transition team is finding itself.

"I think the group expected more support from the community," Cron said.

Parents want a say in students' classroom placement

the child has, such as a handicap or documented learning problem.

According to the proposed policy, the principal then may use that information to evenly distribute children by personalities, gender and abilities throughout the school.

Lake Dolloff parent Donna Frey strongly urged the board to strengthen the language of the policy. It should state that principals will consider information offered by parents, not that they may consider such information, she said.

"They way it is now stated gives the principal the option of ignoring the teachers, parents, the building guidance team and other professional sources outside the school," Frey said.

DOLORES GIBBONS, assistant superintendent for elementary education, has said that the policy would curb the problem of popular teachers consistently getting children of parents active in schools, since those parents more often make teacher requests.

One parent, Terry Elofson, supported Gibbons' view at Monday night's meeting.

"I consider it truly demoralizing to teachers to have so many (parent requests)...It's also demoralizing to children whose parents don't request teachers," she said.

School board members admitted surprise at the reaction the policy has stirred since it was proposed weeks ago by district administration. Board member Gail Pierson said she was surprised to read the policy in the first place, since she thought it already was in place at elementary schools.

"...and then I heard the public's dismay," she said.

Board members agreed that communication problems, particularly about the parents' part in the placement process, are the cause of that dismay.

Board President Nancy Robertson said she intends to support the proposed policy at the July 28 meeting, but that delaying the decision allows time to make some adjustments, such as the ones suggested by Donna Frey.

"I think it's been a communications problem from beginning to end. There has been a lot of misunderstanding, but I don't feel this (policy) is a drastic change," she said.

The June 28 school board meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the board room of school headquarters, 31405 18th Ave. S. Public comment is invited in the early minutes of the meeting. For information, call 941-0100.

Road wouldn't alleviate traffic woes route plans)," said Kris Kelley, who lives on 13th Avenue South. "Anything they do is going to put a road right in our back yard."

But if a road must be built, she and her husband, Don, prefer Alternate A, the route that would cut through the back parking lot of the Federal Way Shopping Center, without requiring the acquisition of land belonging to homeowners along 13th.

Alternate C, on the other hand, would butt the road up against their property, and homeowners would lose some of their back yards for right-of-way.

Alternate B splits the difference, explained Knight. In it, the road's center line would straddle the property lines of the shopping center and homeowners, and each side would lose an equal amount of land.

A fourth plan, Alternate D, would extend 11th Place only as far as South 316th, cutting through the south end of the shopping center (requiring demolition of buildings) and meeting up with Pacific Highway South. South 316th on the east side of the highway currently is under construction and the two roads could meet at the highway, Knight said.

If the ring road won't solve traffic problems, Tom Willis doesn't think it should be built.

Willis lives at the corner of South 317th and 13th Avenue South.

"It's going to cost an awful lot of money not to solve anything," he said.

The study estimates the cost of the project to be from $3 million, depending on which plan would be used.

Willis suggests alleviating traffic on South 320th by adding access to Interstate 5 at South 336th Street and South 288th Street, taking the traffic pressure off South 320th.

Knight said no time line for the project exists because no one has decided to go ahead with building the road.

The county has done its part, he said, in completing the study. The decision to build the road will lay in the city's hands.

Building the road would improve access for shoppers trying to reach businesses in and around Federal Way Shopping Center, and even those farther south along the highway and South 320th west of Pacific Highway South, Knight said.

It would be conceivable that such a road might not be built until someone comes along to redevelop the Federal Way Shopping Center or some other land in that area. If that happens, the developer can be forced to help pay for all or part of the road as it affects traffic and the community, Knight said.

Man says 30 taxis have followed him

A Federal Way man is worried that an acquaintance he made in a bar last December might turn into a different type of fatal attraction.

The 25-year-old told police he has been followed by a succession of taxi cabs on a regular basis since he spoke to a female employee late last year in a Kent lounge. At the time, another patron, a driver for a taxi company, took exception, and tried to pick a fight, the man said.

When he refused to fight, the cabbie told him there were "other ways to take care of him," the man reported to police. Since then, he said he has been followed by 30 different taxis, to and from the bus stop before and after work and when he walks places after work. At least 15 drivers of the taxis have made menacing comments to him as they drove past, he said.

Since the alleged incidents have occurred on public streets, none of the drivers has stopped their cars to harass the man, and no one has assaulted him police took the case for information only.

Federal Way booters vying at regionals

State represented well in California

By CHUCK MINGORI

Federal Way is doing its part to represent the state of Washington in the Far West Regionals soccer tournament.

Four of the eight youth teams from this state that qualified to the regional tournament in Pleasanton, Calif., are from Federal Way.

The Federal Way Storm, Federal Way Star Shooters, Federal Way Silver Bullet and Federal Way Nitro are all down in California now participating in the regional tournament that starts tomorrow.

Opening ceremonies are set for tonight, as all 13 states in the Far West Regionals will be represented by their state colors and by their state championship teams, who will parade around a high school stadium in what one coach described as a "mini World Cup" like atmosphere.

Boys' and girls' state champions at the U-12, U-14, U-16 and U-19 age levels will compete for regional titles. Regional champions at the U-16 and U-19 age divisions will qualify to nationals.

The following is a team-by-team report of the four Federal Way area teams playing at regionals:

THE STORM, coached by Mary Baumgardt and assisted by Karen Austin, opens regional action tomorrow at 11:30 a.m. against Colorado, followed by a 4 p.m. game tomorrow against Southern California. The Storm then faces Oregon Sunday morning and Arizona Monday morning to complete its preliminary games.

The top two teams from each flight advance to the semifinals to see who reaches the finals, which are held on Tuesday.

Some of the players on this year's U-14 girls' Storm team played in regionals two years ago on the U-12 team. The Storm has won the Washington state championship three consecutive years and is unbeaten the past two years. Still, Baumgardt expects tough competition in Pleasanton.

"Usually, it's the California teams that are pretty strong," said Baumgardt. "But they're all tough. They're all state champions. Plus, I'm down to 13 players from 16. It's going to be tough."

Baumgardt also said the weather could be a factor, which will not help considering the Storm has to play two games one day and will have only two subs due to injuries. Southern California also could benefit from the weather and having the advantage of playing its first game of the tourney against the Storm.

"They're used to warm weather, we're used to the rain," said Baumgardt. "Maybe we'll get lucky and it will rain. They wouldn't know what to do."

"But I do know the girls will do the best they can. They'll go out and play hard."

Members of the Storm are Justi Baumgardt, Karlene Bush, Rachel Domzalski, Amy Felker, Amy Fischer, Suzanne Hamant, Regina Heidal, Michelle High, Jennifer Mauck, Erin Pochman, Wendy Rebar, Carli Redmond, Dawn Riley, Cindy Smith, Eileen Walsh and Melissa Wykes.

THE STAR SHOOTERS, coached by Steve Manderville and assisted by Ron Whaley, open regional play tomorrow morning against Nevada. Then they'll meet Idaho tomorrow afternoon, Arizona Sunday and Alaska Monday. Should they qualify to the semifinals, the Star Shooters would play again Monday afternoon with finals on Tuesday.

Manderville has been preparing his team for this moment for several years, as the Star Shooters have played in a higher age group in league the past two seasons.

"I've had this in the back of my mind for five years, taking this team there (to regionals)," said Manderville. "I've been to regionals before (twice) with my oldest daughter's team. I have an idea what's needed to be prepared for, and I've tried to do that."

Manderville hopes his team plays well, but because the Star Shooters have never met any of the teams at regionals before, it's hard to predict what will happen.

"I feel we have an excellent chance to do well, but you have nothing to compare it to," he said. "We have no idea what the level of play the other states are in comparison to us. We could do very well or we could be overwhelmed. There's no

Junior Legions nab win at Woodinville

Federal Way's Junior American Legion baseball team racked up its third victory in a row by a 6-2 score at Woodinville Tuesday.

Omni Executive Center improved to 6-3 in District 11 play and overall with the win.

Federal Way struck first with a run in the top of the third.

Danny Graham hit into an error and stole second, then scored on a base hit by Mike Sugg.

After Woodinville scored one in the bottom of the inning, the Feds came back with four in the top of the fourth.

Mike Dunlap made it to second on an error to start it off, and Steve Martell drove him home with a single.

Martell was out at second as Jamie Wright hit into a fielder's choice.

Rod Janson singled and Joey

Sonnenfeld scored Wright with a double, then Dan Lydell walked to re-load the bases for Graham — who responded with a two-run single.

Woodinville cut the lead to 5-2 with a run in the sixth, then the Feds picked up an insurance run in the top of the seventh as Josh Austin singled, went to second on an errant pickoff and scored on a base hit by Dunlap.

Graham threw the first six innings to get the win, striking out seven while scattering five hits and four walks. Sur Johnson went the seventh, walking the second batter he faced but retiring the rest.

FEDERAL WAY will take part in the Lakefair Tournament at Olympia this weekend, before coming home to play Burien in an 8:30 p.m. game at Sacajawea Park Tuesday.

Feds ride combined one-hitter

By TIM CLINTON

Three pitchers combined for a one-hitter Tuesday as the Federal Way American Legion baseball team posted a 5-1 victory at Enumclaw.

Terry Holbrook was perfect over the first three innings with the exception of one walk and struck out four, then Chris Martin went the next two and allowed an unearned run on a hit (a triple) and an error.

Floyd French went the sixth and seventh to finish off the game, striking out three of the six batters he faced. French hit the first batter he came up against, but he was erased by a double play.

"The pitching was good," said Federal Way Omni Executive Center head coach Tom Wagner. "Holbrook and Chris did a good job, then Floyd came in and slammed the door."

French, Wagner's pitching mainstay, earned his first save of the year to go with a 4-1 record, a 1.73 earned run average and 27 strikeouts in 25 and two thirds innings of work.

Martin (1-0, 0.00 in four innings) got the win, while Holbrook now has a 3.60 earned run average and 10 strikeouts in 10 innings to go with his 1-0 record.

Wagner wanted to give all three pitchers some work since the Feds had not played since last Thursday, but not too much since they begin a three-day tournament in Selah today.

Federal Way opens with a 2 p.m. game against Olympia, with the Yakima Beetles also being in the Feds' bracket.

"It's going to be a tough tournament, no question about that," said Wagner.

AS FOR Tuesday's win at Enumclaw, it set the Feds back on the right track after they had lost three of four.

Federal Way now stands at 6-3 in District 11 play at the halfway point of the league season, and the Feds are 8-3 overall.

"We made a few miscues, but it was a lot better," said Wagner. "Getting over school may have helped for some — they're not thinking about so many other things. We're moving the ball better, and we had a couple hits with guys in scoring position and we haven't been doing that."

Federal Way scored its first run in the top of the fourth, as Mike Sugg walked and came around when Mary Mogensen hit into a single and an error. Sugg was brought up from the Junior Legion team, since regular first baseman Aaron Martin was celebrating his graduation in Hawaii.

Chris Martin, Aaron's younger brother, was greeted on the mound in the bottom of the inning by a leadoff triple on an 0-2 count followed by an error and a run, but the Feds scored two in the fifth.

Jamie Sonnenfeld led off with a walk, and Mark Nielsen laid down a bunt single with Sonnenfeld going to third as pitcher's belated throw went wild.

Allen Hensley singled home Sonnenfeld with a grounder up the middle, and eventually made it around on a wild pitch, a base hit by Matt Wimmer and a Sugg sacrifice fly (Nielsen was out on a fielder's choice in the meantime).

FEDERAL WAY picked up two insurance runs in the top of the seventh.

Jeff Wagner singled, went to second on a balk and to third on a Wimmer bunt, ahead of a walk to Sugg. Mogensen then drove in two runs with a double to left center to cap off his 2-for-4 day.

Popularity of recreational vehicle travel increases

Travel by recreational vehicle continues to increase in popularity partly because of the economies RV owners enjoy on food and lodging, and partly because RV travel has become a social phenomenon.

Evidence of this popularity is easily seen in public and private campgrounds on any given summer weekend — they're filling up fast these days — or on busy interstate highways and Friday or Sunday night during peak travel season. Washington State Parks now fill their most popular campgrounds several months ahead, while RV hook-ups are snapped up by early birds on most summer weekends.

These streams of recreational vehicles pack people of all ages, types and income brackets. Today's RV may range from a folding camping trailer that sells for as little as $1,500 to a full-fledged motorhome priced from $20,000 to $50,000 (and up to $100,000 for the super luxury models).

What most of these travelers have in common is love of long-

Exploring the Northwest

by Cary Ordway

ing to meet other travelers with common interests.

Open Road

A major reason recreational vehicles are popular with retirees is their mobility. "Snowbirds," for example, live in their RV's an entire season at a time, moving to the sunny Southwest in winter, back to the Northwest in summer.

But families find RV's a convenient way to travel, as well. Particularly with the larger units, it's easy to pre-stock your vehicle with groceries and other supplies and be ready to go anywhere on short notice. There's no packing or unpacking — your "motel room on wheels" is all self-contained.

While the RV traveler does enjoy savings on meals and motel room costs, keep in mind that most RV travelers eat at least one meal a day in a restaurant. And most RV parks will charge a nightly fee of $10 to $15.

Saving Money

But the RV industry insists that savings can be substantial. Motel and restaurant operators may dispute its findings, but an industry study determined that RV vacations, on average, cost 52 percent less than comparable car/hotel vacations, and 78 percent less than air/hotel vacations.

The 1987 study was conducted by Pannell Kerr Forster, an international firm of certified public accounts with expertise in the tourism and hospitality industry. Using a hypothetical travel party of a father, mother and two children, the firm estimated travel costs between 25 selected city pairs in the United States.

The firm estimated the most costly seven-night RV vacation for a family of four at $450 on average — including fuel expenses, campground fees, groceries purchased to cook three-quarters of the meals and restaurant costs. The same trip using motel units would cost $909, the study concluded.

Social Interaction

The success of Thousand Trails, American Adventure, NACO and a number of other companies selling campground memberships has much to do with the social appeal of camping with a recreational vehicle. Most of these resorts have elaborate facilities — swimming pools, central recreation and meeting areas, etc. — that encourage members to meet one another.

Even though such memberships can cost thousands of dollars, many people seem satisfied with the investment as they travel from campground to campground, meeting new friends and renewing friendships with people they've met at other campgrounds in the system. In membership campgrounds, RV owners basically are paying for this social "compatibility," and, of course, facilities.

Camping clubs also are becoming quite popular. Nearly one-fourth of all RV owners belong to at least one club which generally fall into two categories: national camping clubs that are open to all RV owners and clubs organized according to brand name, RV types or mutual interest. The California-based Good Sam Club, for example, has almost half a million members.

Of course it's possible to have the same social interaction without buying any sort of membership. There are some 16,000 state and private RV campgrounds throughout the United States — each offering a chance for RV owners to be social.

In Washington, the state parks provide excellent camping facilities with RV hook-ups, although they're often crowded during the peak travel season.

The Washington Resorts and Private Parks is made up of 56 campgrounds located in all parts of Washington. These campgrounds vary in size and price, but most have elaborate facilities for the RV user.

Team members of the Star Shooters are Raelyn Adams, Kami Andreasen, Maren Beer, Rae Anne Deakins, Farrah Feist, Stephanie Fiorito, Erin Fitzpatrick, Michelle French, Heidi Haynes, Christina Heskin, Judy Koenigs, Jaime Manderville, Danielle Marsh, Kelly Whaley, Kelsey Wohlhuter and Bridgette Wolanski.

THE NITRO, Washington's U-19 boys' state champions, open regional play tomorrow morning against Idaho, followed by a game against California South tomorrow afternoon, Wyoming Sunday afternoon and Oregon Monday morning. Semifinals are Monday afternoon with finals on Tuesday.

Tim Duffy is head coach of the Nitro, assistant coach is Vic Earle and Jim Dillon is the trainer.

Dillon said the Federal Way-based team is going to regionals with one thought in mind: "We're going down with the idea we're going to win the tournament. We're not going down there to have some R and R and vacation. We're going down to play soccer."

Dillon pointed out that the Nitro was the first Premier II team to win a state title. The team draws half of its players from Federal Way and the other half from such areas as Puyallup, Tacoma and Renton.

While teams playing at the U-12, U-14 and U-16 age levels have a chance to return to regionals, some of the players on the U-19 Nitro will be too old to play for this team next year.

"This is the capper," said Dillon. "These are the guys going on to play college ball. In my mind, this is the most important state championship of them all. It means the most."

Hamling, Rodney Lackland, Scott Lee, Donny Marshall, Beau Olson, Rick Phillips, Chris Scotti, Alex Sigman, Andrew Szalay, Ken Urakawa, Joe Wagner and Sean Young.

THE SILVER BULLET, coached by Jerry Capodanno and Marvin Smith, will play its first game tomorrow at 4 p.m. against Wyoming. Next will be a 7:30 a.m. game Sunday against Hawaii, with an 11:30 a.m. match against Nevada to follow. Monday, the Silver Bullet will face Idaho at 7:30 a.m.

Sponsored by Marvelous Movies, the Silver Bullet won state as a U-10 boys' team, lost in the finals as a U-11 squad and then came back to win the state title this year at the U-12 level.

The Silver Bullet just recently won its third straight Viking Cup Invitational.

Capodanno explained that when the Silver Bullet was formed three years ago, it was a team that consisted of players who had nowhere else to play, because all the other teams were filled.

"It's kind of a nice story, because these kids have come a long way and they've worked hard," he said.

Capodanno, who has been coaching soccer for many years, said this team will always be special to him, because of the amount of determination and enthusiasm the youngsters have demonstrated. The Silver Bullet "shocked" itself by winning its first state title and the squad has continued to improve ever since.

With 13 states represented at regionals, Capodanno said no matter what the outcome is, all the participants are winners.

"No matter what happens, it's going to be a good experience for these boys," he said. "Either way we're going to win down there."

Local spikers land berth in Centennial Games

By CHUCK MINGORI

A team of high school-age girls' volleyball players from Federal Way is headed to the Centennial Games in Spokane Aug. 10-13 after participating in a preliminary tournament last weekend in Bellevue.

The "Federal Way Junior Volleyball Club," which was formed by Paul and Carolyn Jensen, entered a team of female volleyball players in the Bellevue tournament and finished with a 3-3 record.

The local squad, which consists of seven players from Decatur High School and one from Federal Way, will represent zone 6 (Pierce County) at the Washington Centennial Games this summer (Aug. 10-13) in Spokane.

"These girls are just tremendous workers and they've worked really hard to get where they are," said Carolyn Jensen.

The Federal Way Junior Volleyball Club team consists of Kim Kepler, Shannon Caldwell, Shannon Barrett, Sandy Deresch, Chris Cozart, Nadine Hayman and Jenny Wallis of Decatur High School and Christine McCleod of Federal Way. All the girls are either juniors or seniors to be.

The tournament in Bellevue was the team's first official appearance together, and it landed a berth to the Centennial Games as the only participating squad from its zone.

The Federal Way Junior Volleyball Club team has practiced in a rather informal manner, showing up at Lakota Junior High School for workouts once a week since February.

JENSEN, who also is the assistant volleyball coach at Lakota, said the Federal Way Junior Volleyball Club was formed originally to be a boys' team, because boys do not have an opportunity to play volleyball in school.

However, five of the boys who had been turning out graduated last weekend on the same day the tournament was held and couldn't play. The Federal Way Junior Volleyball Club consisted of some 50-60 kids, including 10 to 15 boys.

Jensen explained that the idea to enter a team in the Centennial Games preliminary tournament came when a coach at Lakota dropped a flyer from the United States Volleyball Association into his box at school, thinking he might be interested.

The team currently is looking for sponsors to help pay its way to Spokane, including help with transportation and uniforms. To help prepare for the Centennial Games, Jensen said the girls will be scrimmaging against summer high school teams. Most of the girls on the team also will be attending volleyball camps.

While last weekend's tournament was the squad's only official appearance together, he said the team hopes to make a good showing in Spokane this summer. "I think we kind of hope to do well, but just enjoy ourselves and play some good volleyball," he said.

Jensen also said he plans to continue the Federal Way Junior Volleyball Club next school year, but may set forth more stringent requirements.

Anyone interested in helping sponsor the team to the Centennial Games can contact Jensen at work (839-4500) or at home (839-1382).

Board delays decision to surplus West Campus site

By MELODIE STEIGER

A group of vocal parents this week convinced the Federal Way School Board to postpone the surplus of a district-owned plot of land near their neighborhood.

The board put off any decision on the surplus of Site 40, a 10-acre site in the center of West Campus, to its June 28 meeting (rescheduled from June 26).

Site 40 is a wooded lot on 10th Avenue Southwest, just across the street from the Barclay Place housing development and a stone's throw from The Ridge.

School district administration recommends surplus the land, the first step to selling it, because it would be unsuitable as a school site, said Superintendent Richard Harris. The land has a steep slope on one side and nearly three acres of wetlands in its center, leaving little space to build on, he said.

The site might have been leveled for school construction back in 1970 when it was donated to the district by Weyerhaeuser. But wetlands now are carefully guarded by King County law.

Neighbors of Site 40, many of them "Residents" of Barclay Place, told the school board it should take extra steps to ensure that land will not be sold for use as multi-family housing.

Margaret Nelson urged the school board to wait until the city of Federal Way elects its city council in September. That council might then purchase the property for a park of some similar use, she said.

But Nancy Robertson, school board president, countered that the board is not in the business of being land barons.

"It's not up to us to decide if it will be a park, a single-family development or multi-family development. Once it's up for sale, it's not the business of the board of education," she said.

Surplus property is not the same as selling it. School district property must be surplus at least 45 days before it can be sold to any person or organization, including the city of Federal Way.

In those 45 days, the land can be surveyed and assessed and the school board can talk with potential buyers. Anytime after the surplus period, the land could be sold upon public notice.

Robertson said school sites have been surplus in the past without being sold for several years, and that might be the case with Site 40. Comment on any future sale of the site can be made at public meetings, she added.

But board member Mary Weis countered that sales of surplus sites are made behind closed doors, in executive session. The practice is legal, she said, but does not realistically allow for public comment.

The school board eventually agreed to table the matter until June 28. Board members said they encourage comments on the matter from the public.

The June 28 meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the board room of school headquarters, 31405 18th Ave. S. For information, call 941-0100.

Highline honors scholars

Several Federal Way residents recently were awarded as outstanding students of 1989 at Highline Community College.

Connie Voelker of Federal Way received a scholastic achievement award from the college's psychology department. Voelker, who has a 3.69 grade point average, will graduate this summer. She plans to pursue a career in human services.

John Bandur received a scholastic achievement award in accounting. Bandur maintains a 3.31 grade point average and has worked several quarters as a tutor for other students.

Angelia Denise Davis received an award from the campus Black Student Union. Davis served as secretary of that organization for the past school year.

Beverly Ott was awarded for her work on the Thunderword, the campus' student newspaper. Ott co-edited the features section of that paper.

Laura Dotterwick was awarded for her participation in the college jazz ensemble. Dotterwick is a vocalist for that group.

Jean Shaw received an academic award from the college's behavioral science department. She maintains a 3.7 grade point average.

Shelly Robb was commended for her work in the college's Women's Programs department. Robb has earned a 3.0 grade point average since returning to school after some time away.

Steven Hamling received a scholastic achievement award from the engineering department. Hamling will graduate with a 3.96 grade point average.

Casey Wolverton also received an award from the college jazz ensemble. Like Dotterwick, Wolverton was awarded for his vocal performance.

Holly DeGraw received an award from Phi Theta Kappa, the college's honor society. DeGraw served as secretary to the organization, helped plan activities and co-wrote a society research paper for national competition.

Students were awarded at a ceremony in late May. Each was chosen by the faculty of the college.

Libraries tap Ptacek for top job

William Ptacek was appointed director of the King County Library System Wednesday by the system's directors.

Ptacek, 39, will leave his job as director of the Louisville, Ky., Free Public Library on June 30.

He replaces Herb Mutschler who is retiring after directing the King County system since 1963.

Ptacek has been director of the Louisville system since 1984. The system serves 680,000 people. From 1979 to 1983, Ptacek was director of the Idaho Falls Public Library and before that held posts with the Chicago Public Library.

Under Mutschler's direction, the King County Library System circulated 9.2 million informational and entertainment items last year. Voters approved a $67 million library bond last fall that includes the construction of two new libraries in Federal Way in the next eight years, among other capital projects countywide.

The library board currently is acquiring sites for the new libraries. The board met in a closed-door executive session Wednesday on acquiring the new Federal Way sites, but the sites have not been chosen yet.

Nine take diplomas at Christian school

Nine Federal Way residents recently received high school diplomas from the Seattle Christian High School in South Seattle.

Shon Steger, John Brownlee, Derek Butcher, Chris Johnson, Becky Noble, Brittan Oliberos, Matt Rutter, Jennifer Tibbels and Matt Wimmer all received their diplomas last week.

Steger also was awarded for excellence in the state's Principal's Scholars Program and was given the Washington State Honors Award. Rutter likewise received the Washington State Honors Award.

Wimmer received an award as a Distinguished Christian High School Student.
