D.Coy ploy

Cop got the goods on church

By LYNN FRANCISCO

A King County police officer working undercover and using the name Cherie D. Coy — spent several weeks this spring working as a receptionist at the Ultimate Life Church in Bellevue.

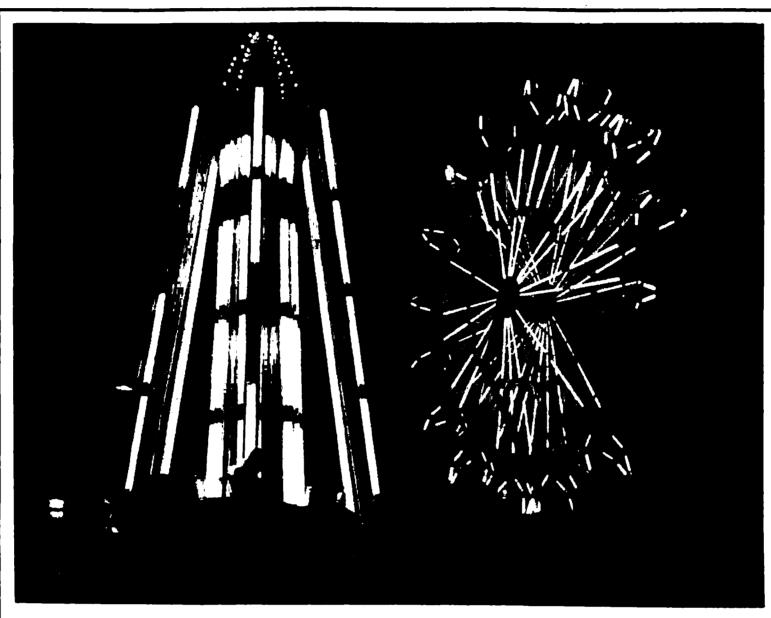

The officer's sworn statements of sexual activity at the church gave police the evidence they needed to serve search warrants on the Bellevue church and four of its other locations, including the Ultimate Life Meditation Center in Federal Way.

The two women and one man were arrested during the June 16 raid in Bellevue, on suspicion of prostitution and promoting prostitution. Several suspects were questioned at the Federal Way church, but no arrests were made.

The King County Prosecutor is reviewing the documents seized in the searches and expects to file charges within two weeks.

ACCORDING TO affidavits filed with the search warrants,

Hammers could be halted at schools

By MELODIE STEIGER

Tomorrow's tally of contract votes by union carpenters is anxiously awaited by administrators of the Federal Way School District. They are worried a potential strike could throw off their modernization schedule.

Jake Walker, director of facilities planning for schools, said the school district is planning revamped school schedules in case modernization construction is delayed by a summer strike.

The school district has been assured that chances of a carpenters' strike are slim, he said.

"It's possible, but they're still negotiating, and I'm told they're not far apart," he said. "There's still a strong possibility we won't have to put any contingency plans in place."

Contingency plans for the beginning of school are being drawn up by principals at Sacajawea Junior High and Thomas Jefferson High School, the two schools most likely to be affected by a carpenters' strike. Both are undergoing heavy modernization construction throughout the summer.

Modernization work at Sacajawea is going so quickly that a late start may not be necessary

Woman carves her career in criminal justice system

By KURT HERZOG

Helen Ratcliff sat in the chapel of the Washington State Penitentiary at Walla Walla surrounded by murderers, rapists and other criminals. Suddenly the lights went out.

She was the only woman in the room. The guards were gone. Besides, they could not have seen her in the dark

As a member of the state's parole board, entrusted with deciding which prisoners are released and when, she was not particularly popular with some of the inmates in the room.

One of those prisoners, whom she knew had once held her responsible for not releasing him from Walla Walla, walked up and put his hand on her shoulder. He was regarded as one of the prison's most ruthless murderers.

"You've got to get out of here," he said to Ratcliff. He picked her up in his arms and carried her out of the chapel and into the kitchen.

"He told the prisoners there that they'd better look after me or they'd have to answer to him," Ratcliff said.

THE PRISONER apparently had learned that Ratcliff hadn't been responsible for his continued incarceration. The man later was released and died soon after of a drug

Solution sought to custody battles

By CONNIE DAY

A group of people has organized an initiative campaign they say would change the way courts look at fathers at the time of divorce.

If enough signatures are gathered, Initiative 528, "Divorce Reform for Children," would be placed on the November ballot. The initiative would mandate that courts give mothers and fathers the same access to their children after divorce. Except in specific circumstances, each parent would be guaranteed equal time with the children and equal say in decisions about the children's gives mothers more time and decision-making power than fathers. Under the proposed law, they say, neither parent could be favored over the other based on gender.

BACKERS of the initiative complain the present system

Others have doubts. Opponents of the initiative say equal access is hard to guarantee and that the initiative focuses on the rights of the parents instead of the best interests of the kids.

Allen and Barbara Walimaki of Bothell are strong supporters of the initiative. They have gone to baseball games, parades and home shows to tell people about the initiative and to get them to

There are two reasons Walimaki has given up his weekends and every spare moment for the initiative: Jason and Chad, Walimaki's boys from his first marriage.

Even though Walimaki has joint legal custody, he does not have joint physical custody, and he says his ex-wife has the final word in all decisions. Walimaki claims it has been difficult to get permission from his ex-wife to have more time with his sons.

Walimaki believes the initiative would help him have more time with his kids and more say in decision-making. If the initiative was adopted, Walimaki could have his custody order reviewed.

"This opens the door for people who want to share the time with their kids," he said.

But time is rapidly running out for the sponsor of the initiative, the Washington Coalition for Family Rights. In mid-May, its members claimed to have gathered 40,000 signatures. far short of the 150,000 needed by the June 30 deadline. State Rep. Paul King of Mountlake Terrace said it's going to be difficult to get enough signatures.

"They're going to have to hurry up," King said.

WHILE MOST people agree that both parents should play a part in the children's lives after divorce, not everyone can agree about how that should take place. According to some opponents of the initiative, the cur-

shame of victims

The United States Supreme Court lately overturned a verdict that penalized a newspaper for reporting the name of a rape victim. The decision appears to leave us all vulnerable to such exposure, but in fact, it protects us all.

As a victim of rape a woman may feel terribly frail. She may suffer personally and spiritually. It is obvious that she would not want to suffer the public pain of having her name in print as a victim.

It is difficult to imagine any larger benefit that could outweigh her right to privacy, which already has been so violated. It is easy to agree that extra care should be taken in sheltering her from further harm.

Those are natural sympathies. Are they ignored in this decision? Not at all. They are, if anything, corroborated. The court's decision is a sensible one.

As a rule of thumb, most newspapers omit the name of a rape victim. American newspapers commonly protect victims of violent crimes by not naming them. But they do so out of decency, not legal obligation. When a newspaper does name a victim, most of the time the victim is wellknown. The public is naturally more interested in news about famous persons.

If the crime or criminal is notorious, a newspaper might also name a victim. In no case is the victim named to cause humiliation or discomfort.

There may be good reasons to name a victim even when neither criminal nor victim is famous. Keeping rape off the front pages doesn't prevent rape. Failing to report rape doesn't make it less likely. Hiding the identity of a victim does not secure the victim from repeated attack by the Public awareness about the crime is far more likely to keep us all vigilant. In some cases, it may even increase the security of a neighborhood or community.

For too long we have let rape victims suffer the whispered suspicion that they were somehow responsible for their own injuries. As victim advocates have tried to teach us, rape is assault first and foremost, often with a weapon, often involving physical injury as well as sexual Punishing a newspaper for printing a victim's name supports the old mythology of shame. It encourages would-be rapists to believe that secrecy and fear are still their most potent allies in pursuing their victims.

Don't build park at old store site

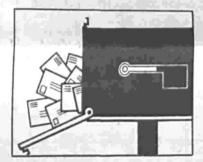

The Federal Way advisory committee recommendation of the area near the Bethel Temple, original Fred Meyer store site and Lake Grove Elementary School as a behemoth park is one of the most outlandish ideas I have heard yet.

1) All of the reasons that were given for not letting Fred Meyer build are also present here but multiplied by the increased size of the area.

2) Next to an elementary school? This should stop the recommendation right in its tracks. All those strangers and young elementary children. We have enough problems concerning young children and strangers without asking for more missing children.

3) I understand it would displace about 25 low-income elderly families from the Bethel Temple grounds. Does King County or the new city of Federal Way have enough lowincome housing for these peo-

4) Closeness to other parks. Only three blocks from Lake

Letters

Grove Park (approximately 5 acres). Only nine blocks from Lakota Park. Only one mile from Sacajawea Park. Only 134 miles from Steel Lake Park.

5) We would have better utilization of the parks if they were neighborhood parks, like Lake Grove Park, rather than a few behemoth ones like those that have been recommended by Dick Burris and David Kapplan. I am sure there are lots of 5-10acre parcels that have not been developed yet.

There's lots of land available for trails

Public trails do not preserve the environment, but heavily impact it. Land planners and environmentalists will be the first to admit this. The impact consists of noise, loss of privacy and wildlife habitat, view impairment, road crossing hazards, litter problems and increased liability exposure.

Although these narrow strip parks are not havens for wildlife, flora or fauna, they can be considered greenbelts. However, their buffering umbrage of trees and shrubs must be controlled artificially by pruning, topping and with the application of pesticides and herbicides. Public land trails are necessary, and do serve a purpose. They are needed to reserve a safe place, near home. for people to exercise for a few hours.

Abandoned railroad rights-ofway, where reversionary rights exist, are not suitable for public trails, because they are private land and would require condemnation. They also tend to be secluded, and difficult to patrol.

Public trails can best be built on the multitude of available public lands - the perimeters of parks, school lands, and military bases, widened road shoulders demarcated by traffic separators which designate bicycle lanes, the buffered, fenced and landscaped outer margins of the freeway rightsof-way, and the 33-mile long city (Tacoma) pipeline right-of-way which connects Tacoma, McMillin, Buckley and Enumclaw.

These lands can serve more than one purpose. They are already impacted by their primary use, so that the secondary impact of a public trail would be negligible or actually help to ameliorate the impact of their primary use. While they do not preserve the natural environment, public land trails can reserve and provide pleasant trails for future generations that are visible, safe, accessible, patrollable and free. Transition team welcomes new ideas

People are talking about the Federal Way First! Transition Team, but what is the team really doing? This is the first in a series of articles to tell you more than you ever wanted to know about the transition team and its ongoing work.

First, some details. The team has about 36 people on its roster now, plus subcommittee members and advisors. The team meets every Monday night at 7:30 in the old fire station at 28th Avenue South and South 312th Street. You are welcome to come and complain, assist, join, or sit and listen. Call 839-2805 for more information.

Most of the work has been divided up between seven recently formed committees. Most have about six members and they gather information and outline options available to the new city council when it takes office after the Sept. 19 final election. The committee chairpersons can provide more detail on the work they are doing and what help is needed.

The Health and Human Services Committee is chaired by Nancy McEleney. Committee members are reviewing annual reports and budgets of surrounding cities to see what services are provided and how much the cities are spending on each service. They are taking inventory of nonprofit social service agencies in and around Federal Way, and listing existing contracts with King County for social services in this area.

The Financial Management Committee, chaired by Russ Wolf, is listing steps the new city must take before and after incorporation to be able to receive money and pay expenses. For example, the new city will have expenses before it has any income, and must first establish itself as a financial entity, then arrange for taxes now being collected to flow to the city. The timing of the incorporation is important. Some tax money must be diverted to the new city by certain dates or be lost.

John Terry chairs the Organization and Procedures Committee. That group will list the decisions that the new city council must make immediately regarding meetings, establishment of city hall and official notices. They are coordinating with the candidates to outline what must be done by law, and to determine what additional information the candidates feel should be collected.

The Personnel Committee is chaired by Rosemary Wolf. That group has been gathering personnel policy handbooks from four local cities of about the same size, and a model policy from the Association of Washington Cities, and will arrange these so all the policies on a particular subject can be easily compared. They are gathering salary information so the approximate cost for key city staff members can be budgeted.

The largest committee is Mary Ehlis' Civic Pride Committee. Actually, this is the Centennial Committee, and Mary provides coordination between the committee and the transition team. The committee projects all are directed toward civic pride, and their organization has been very successful with this work. Members have agreed to write, distribute and correlate results of a survey to determine the "Vision" we have of the future city of Federal Way. The survey is being drafted now and suggestions would be welcome.

I am chairman of the Transportation Committee. It is essentially a committee of one and I try to keep up with who is designing what sort of road project in Federal Way and when it will be built (if at all). Until recently, there also was a Land-Use Committee, but negative reaction to hiring an ex-team member as a consultant has led to the committee disbanding, and it seems likely that most land-use issues will be left to the new city council.

That is a very brief description of the Federal Way First! Transition team committee structure. We would appreciate your comments and any assistance you can give to our

Cold water poured on proposed fire contract

By MELODIE STEIGER

Federal Way firefighters have overwhelmingly rejected a proposed contract presented by representatives of their union and chiefs of Fire District 39 (Federal Way).

Greg Brozek, president of the firefighters' union, said he wasn't surprised at the rejection. But he was startled by the near-unanimous vote: Sixty-five firefighters turned thumbsdown on the proposed contract early last week, and only four voted to accept it.

"When we left mediation, I knew it wasn't a very good deal. And the more (firefighters) I met and talked to, the more I expected them to vote against it. But it was even more lopsided than I expected," he said.

Ed Coutts, assistant fire chief, said he has no idea how far apart the two sides are now.

"That's our question now. We thought we had an agreement, but they turned it down," he

The union's rejection of the contract means more work for a professional mediator, supplied by the Public Employees Relations Commission in March.

Estranged husband kidnaps, rapes wife

A woman who refused to reconcile with her estranged husband told police he raped her Thursday after saying, "If I can't have you, I'll have you one last time."

The 29-year-old woman told police of a day-long ordeal during which her 33-year-old husband drove her around as they argued about getting back together.

The woman, who has been living with her mother while separated from her husband, said her husband arrived at her mother's home at 5:30 a.m. Thursday and the two began to

But instead, he drove directly to the home they had shared in Federal Way, where they began arguing again. The woman said he forced her to have sex before taking her back to her mother's home at about 5 p.m.

Police were notified and the woman was taken to St. Francis Community Hospital for an examination. Her husband was arrested at 11:30 p.m. and booked into the King County Jail for investigation of first-degree kidnapping and first-degree rape.

Negotiations had by then gone on for about a year.

The mediator may call for binding arbitration, in which both sides agree to abide by a contract drawn up by a professional arbitrator.

KING COUNTY POLICE were able to return only 13 of 50 hood ornaments stolen between March 1 and May 1 from the Marine Hills area. They had recovered a cache of 35 hood ornaments after the father of two boys brought his sons into Precinct 5 (Federal Way) when he discovered their loot. An investigation turned up 15 more from a third youth associated with the boys. Robert Pennini Sr., of Auburn, was visiting Marine Hills when he lost his Cadillac hood ornament. He filed a theft report and was able to reclaim his ornament Tuesday during a special three-day showing of stolen ornaments. Decision delayed on burner permit

The Tacoma-Pierce County Health Department has delayed its decision on whether to grant a permit to allow the burning of trash at a tideflats incinerator.

The department, which was to have announced its decision at a Friday press conference, has postponed that decision for at least another week, said Doug Pierce, manager of the health department's waste management division.

Pierce said his department does not have all the technical information it needs to decide whether to issue a burn permit for the incinerator being built on the tideflats by Tacoma Public Utilities The incinerator, if allowed to operate, will extend the life of the city's landfill and provide electricity to about 21,000 homes in Tacoma, by burning trash, wood and coal.

The health department still needs answers to a number of questions raised by the incinerator's operations plan and health risk assessment study, and until it can satisfy all the questions and concerns raised by citizens worried about the safety of burning refuse on the tideflats, no decision will be made, Pierce said.

The health department does not have to wait until the statemandated environmental impact statement (EIS) iscompleted before it denies or grants the permit, Pierce said.

In the meantime, the city plans to contest the state's demand for an EIS. The Tacoma City Council on Tuesday approved the hiring of attorney Albert Malanca to file suit against the state for ordering the EIS at this late stage of the process. The plant is 75 percent complete.

But it also agreed to approve a contract with the consulting firm of Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Quade and Douglas to prepare the EIS, in the event the suit

A dropped third strike with two outs in the top of the seventh opened the door, and the Federal Way Omni American Legion baseball team almost walked through it.

With the Feds trailing District 11-leading Kent Security, 9-6, at Russell Road Park Thursday, Chris Martin took a called third strike, but the pitch went into the dirt and past Kent catcher Brian Fort. Fort's throw hit Martin in the back, and gave Federal Way a runner at first with two out.

Mark Nielsen followed with a single and Matt Wimmer walked to load the bases for Jeff Wagner, who roped a single up the middle for two runs to cut the score to 9-8 and put Wimmer on second representing the tying Aaron Martin followed with a hard shot, but it was right at Kent shortstop Mike Dowd, who fielded it on a short hop and tossed the ball to second for a gameending force on Wagner.

"We just about pulled it out again this game," said Federal Way head coach Tom Wagner, whose team came back in similar fashion against Yakima Valley Saturday only to lose, 7-6. "Maybe we're not making our own breaks. Aaron hit the ball hard, but right at the guy."

"You should win when you score eight runs," said coach Wagner. "The pitchers have to get on top of the hitters and stay away from those walks."

The Feds now stand at 6-4 in District 11 play, while Kent Security — formerly known as Kent Horizon Air - remained undefeated at 9-0. Federal Way is 10-6 overall.

Omni Executive Center is still very much in the hunt for one of four berths into the Division II tournament, though, and has eight District 11 games to go through July 20 — six of which will be played on the Feds' home field at Decatur High School, where they are 4-0.

Federal Way returns to Decatur for the first time since May 28 tomorrow, when it hosts defending District 11 champion Kirkland at 6 p.m. The Feds visit Burien for 8 p.m. action Tuesday.

Aaron Martin — in his first atbat since returning from a graduation trip to Hawaii - hit a leadoff triple and Marty Mogensen singled him home.

Doug Conzatti scored Mogensen from first with a double to right center. The Omni Execs wound up scoring three more in the rally with Gregg Landskov and Wagner adding singles and Nielsen and Wimmer both drawing walks.

Kent scored two in the second and four in the third for a 7-5 lead, before the Feds scored one in the fourth.

Wagner tripled home Wimmer with a shot over the right fielder, but was left on third on a strikeout and a fly ball.

Wagner took the mound to get the Feds out of the third and went the rest of the way - allowing two runs (one unearned) on one hit.

But Federal Way did not score again until the seventh, when it fell one run shy.

Wagner hit 3-for-5 on the day with four RBI, while Aaron Martin went 2-for-5 and Landskov 2-

Star Shooters bag three wins

Shooters came back from the Far West Regionals soccer tournament with an impressive 3-1 record, only to miss out on the semifinals.

The Star Shooters posted the same record as Oregon did during preliminary play, but fell three points shy of their southern neighbor to determine which one would advance.

The Federal Way Star state title, opened up regional play with a 7-2 victory over Nevada, a team that had compiled "quite an unbeaten and unscored upon string" in their own state, said Star Shooters coach Steve Manderville.

"But we spoiled their party," he said. The Star Shooters beat Idaho, 5-0, in their next outing and then were matched up against an excellent Arizona team the following day, June 18. Arizona opened up an early 3-0 lead, extended the advantage to 4-0 by halftime and then held on for a 5-0 win.

Arizona saw a much different Washington team once the Star Shooters adjusted.

"Once we made the adjustments, we played right with them toe to toe. We just couldn't score," said Manderville, whose team has captured three consecutive state youth soccer

The Star Shooters did score in their next game on June 19, as they racked up a 5-1 victory over the Alaska state champions. Unfortunately, Oregon, a team the Star Shooters didn't have an opportunity to play, went on to the semifinals instead of the Washington team.

Arizona also made it to the semifinals, but lost to Hawaii, while Southern California defeated Oregon in the other semifinal game. Southern California avenged an earlier loss to Hawaii and won the regional championship game.

MANDERVILLE said his team proved that it could play with the best at the regional tournament and was happy with all of his players' performances.

"They all did a very good job down there, we're very proud of them," he explained. "We had a good tournament and had a good time. I think everybody learned a little bit down there.'

Manderville said his team went through two emotions during the regional tournament, which was held in Pleasanton,

"When you think you're the best there is, there is always somebody better," he said.

On the other hand, the tournament can be very uplifting, he said, explaining that the level of competition provided his team with an opportunity to see how teams above his can play.

"It gives the girls a goal," he said. "They can vision how a team plays and say, 'That's how we want to play next year or the

Local standout grabs honors at Lynnwood

If Theresa Aune had not joined the Washington Diamond Queens' women's fastpitch softball team three years ago, she probably never would have landed a scholarship to Pacific Lutheran University.

The 18-year-old Federal Way resident recently accepted a "talent award" with the Lady Lutes after ending a brilliant high school career of slowpitch softball.

Aune attended Federal Way schools up to her junior year in high school when she decided to transfer to Lynnwood High School to further her softball career.

Lynnwood is where the Diamond Queens are based. Aune began commuting north for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening practices during her sophomore year at Federal Way, but soon discovered the drive was taking up too much of her time. "It was just too much driving time and it took too much out of her school work," explained Theresa's father, Dave Aune, adding that his daughter's grade point average dropped to 3.0

for the first time. Aune lived with a Lynnwood family five days a week while attending Lynnwood High School for two years and came home to see her family on the weekends. It wasn't until Lynnwood's girls' slowpitch team reached the state tournament her junior year that Aune discovered she wasn't supposed to be playing softball with the school team

According to WIAA rules, students must sit out a year of sports if they transfer to another school and don't live in that school district.

Theresa Aune Aune was ruled ineligible just before the state tournament at Centralia. She had to watch from the sidelines after helping lead Lynnwood to the school's first state tournament since 1972. BUT AUNE came back with a vengeance her senior year, setting school records in home runs (eight), triples (seven) and RBI (27) while sporting an impressive .490 batting average. Lynnwood captured a district title this year and also finished second in the state AA tournament.

Aune went on to claim most valuable player honors in the all-state slowpitch series, batting 10-for-14 and leading her North squad to a four-game sweep.

Aune also was named an all-area and all-Wesco outfielder for Lynnwood to complete her stellar high school career. But all of this probably would not have happened had she not decided to transfer to Lynnwood and stick with the Diamond Queens.

Aune was spotted by the Diamond Queens while playing fastpitch softball for Doug Ehlke's Defenders team out of Federal Way. Washington Diamond Queens head coach Jan Bosworth spotted a talent he did not want to let slip away.

IN FASTPITCH, Aune plays catcher and outfielder for the Diamond Queens, a national caliber team that already has captured first place this year in Vancouver, B.C., Tacoma and Portland, Ore., tournaments as well as placing second in Olympia.

The Diamond Queens are scheduled to go to North Delta, B.C. this weekend followed by trips to Cal State Fullerton in Los Angeles and Sacramento. The Diamond Queens also will be playing in the women's state tournament in Olympia July 20-22 and the regional tourney in Portland July 28-30.

PLU women's fastpitch softball coach Ralph Weekly met with Aune in February to offer her a scholarship. The former Wildwood Elementary and Sacajawea Junior High School student accepted the offer this spring after turning down numerous other offers, including one from San Jose. "I didn't want to go to California," said Aune.

PLU won the 1988 national fastpitch title and the Lutes are scheduled to make trips to Florida and San Antonio next year. Aune already has been assured of a spot on the PLU varsity team along with a teammate from the Diamond

But the two Washingtonians will join a PLU team dominated by Oregon natives. All of the high school teams in Oregon play fastpitch softball, while only Vancouver, Wa., offers girls' fastpitch at the high school level in this state.

THE OLYMPIA School District reportedly will begin its own girls' fastpitch program next year and Fife also has been considering a move to fastpitch.

Only PLU and UPS have fastpitch softball in this state at the four-year level, but community colleges are scheduled to make the switch from modified to fastpitch in 1989-90. For Aune, it was a big sacrifice to leave her hometown and attend school in Lynnwood, but she wasn't getting the competition she needed in this area. "I wish Federal Way would put a program together, but it's worth driving to Lynnwood to play for Jan," she said. Although softball is her number one game, Aune also is a standout in the classroom. She recently graduated with a 3.3 GPA and plans a career as either a lawyer or law enforcement officer.

While slowpitch may be called a hitter's game, fastpitch can be called an aggressive game. Head-first slides are common for Aune, who has dislocated two fingers over the years

Despite missing three of its starters and having only nine players, the Federal Way Mavericks' Big League baseball team came home with a 9-2 victory over Mukilteo Thursday night at Mariner High School.

The win, Federal Way's second of the season over Mukilteo, boosted the Mavericks' record to 2-6. The Mays are scheduled to host Northeast Seattle for a doubleheader today starting at 12:15 at Lakota.

Robert Domzalski pitched a three-hitter, as he struck out six batters and walked only three to lead the way. Chris Nisco also Mavericks post second win of year had a big day as he went 2-for-4 with a pair of singles and scored three runs. Dave McCoy added the final blow, as he ripped a two-run homer to put the game out of reach in the sixth inning.

Federal Way struck for three runs in the first inning. Nisco walked, Rob Sherman reached base on an error and Bill Ludwig also reached base on four balls to set the stage for McCoy, who scored one run on a line-drive sacrifice fly to center field. Mark Landry then had a base hit to score two more Maverick

"That was important, because we haven't been doing well in the first innings of games," said Federal Way coach John Roberts. "It's a lot easier to play defense when you've got a little

FEDERAL WAY rallied for two runs in the second inning. Domzalski and Nisco, each of whom had singles in the inning, scored for Federal Way. Scott Mayer drove in one of the runs when he hit a ball to first base and the throw to the plate was dropped by the catcher.

Nisco came around to score another run for Federal Way in the fourth inning, then Federal Way added three insurance runs

Sherman had a leadoff walk and scored from second base when Mayer, who had just come back from Arizona, ripped a shot over the first baseman's head for a base hit. McCoy then followed when he unloaded on a two-run homer.

"He really drove a nice one over the left center field fence, really a beautiful shot," said

The Big League coach complimented his team for pulling together, especially for playing as well as it did short-handed. "I was proud of every one of them," he said.

Local athletes honored from Olympic Games

Twenty-four athletes from Federal Way took 35 medals and 36 ribbons at the 21st annual Washington Special Olympics Summer Games -Washington's largest sports event for athletes with mental and physical disabilities.

Nearly 2,400 athletes from across the state traveled to Fort Lewis June 2-4 for competition in gymnastics, diving, soccer, swimming, track and field and weightlifting.

To compete in the Summer Games, athletes must have first qualified in local and area competitions. More than 280 athletes from King County participated in the area meet that was held on May 6 at Renton Stadium.

The South King County Striders have been in training since March of this year. Coaching the Striders are Sharon Boyle, Carol Boyle, Kathy Kenyon, Mark Lehner, Tabitha Murphy and Eric Past.
They are helped by volunteers

Amy and Jackie Kim, Liz LeDoux, Leigh Ann Leckband, John Leuty, Heidi McDowell, Mike Moore, Wendy Ongaro, Evonne Akamine, Jennifer Sorensen and Christy Perkins.

Washington Special Olympics provides sports training and competition year-round for more than 6,000 adults and children with disabilities. Anyone interested in volunteering or who would like more information on programs that are available can call the King County Parks and Recreation Office at 941-0655 or 296-4279.

Cardinals fly high into tournament

The Woodmont Dairy Queen Cardinals defeated Benton Realty in back-to-back games to win the Steel Lake Little League Majors Tournament and qualify to the District 10 Tournament of Champions

The Cardinals won the first game over Benton Realty, 4-3, on Thursday, June 15, as Brad Wells pitched a two-hitter. The Cardinals were behind 3-0 in the fourth inning before scoring four runs to win, 4-3. . That forced a second game between the Cardinals and Benton Realty. The Cardinals won that game on Friday, June 16, in another thriller. In the second game, the Cardinals trailed 6-3 in the sixth inning before scoring four runs in the sixth to win it, 7-6 Shawn Kennichott pitched and Aaron Galitzeck had the game-winning

That advanced the Woodmont Dairy Queen Cardinals into the District 10 Tournament of Champions in Kent representing Steel Lake.

The Cardinals opened against the champions from Renton South on Sunday, June 18. Renton South took an early lead, but Steel Lake, behind the pitching of Shawn Kennichott and Brad Wells and timely hitting, rallied to take the game, 8-4.

The Steel Lake Woodmont Dairy Queen Cardinals met the Federal Way National Cardinals on Thursday, June 22. Federal Way National jumped out to an early lead, and a late inning rally by Steel Lake fell short as; the game ended 12-4 for Federal Way National. Good pitching by Marc Bolam and a home run by Brian Hollis helped Steel Lake in its rally.

The Woodmont Dairy Queen Cardinals are coached by manager Roy Alexander and Mike Bolam.

While high school slowpitch uses an 11-inch softball and 65foot bases, fastpitch players use a 12-inch ball and 60-foot bases. The only thing common between the two is the bat.

While playing for the Diamond Queens, Aune has had to commit herself to year-round practices and participate in numerous fund-raising efforts to help finance the self-sponsored team.

The Diamond Queens have developed quite a reputation for themselves. As Theresa's mother, Kathey, pointed out, nobody likes to play the Diamond Queens.
