ANCHORS AWAY! Maurice Talbot and his cast-iron companion, "The Man From Burma," are both deep-sea divers. Talbot teaches diving at Highline Community College. His students crafted the ominous monolith in appreciation of him, and welded the Burmese emblem on its chest because Talbot is a native of that country.

Diver's twin never leaves port(ch)

By SEAN ROBINSON

The Federal Way News "Weird Stuff" search visited Davy Jones' locker this week, and discovered two men from Burma well-suited for diving in the briny deep.

One of the men from Burma is Maurice Talbot, who teaches deep-sea diving at Highline Community College. He came to the United States in 1959.

The other man from Burma is about 7 feet tall, made of cast iron and an old water heater. It's clear where he's from because the words "The Man From Burma" are welded into his chest. He's built to resemble an old-time deep-sea diver. Talbot's students made him as a gift for their teacher about four years ago.

The cast-iron diver stands mutely on the front porch, or so it seems. Talbot installed an intercom speaker in the imposing figure, and he says the disembodied voice coming from the hollow sculpture can startle visiting landlubbers, especially at Halloween.

"I turn it on and start growling," said Talbot. "It's quite amusing to see the look on the little kids' faces. Some of them get scared and run off in all directions."

The diver won't float away. He's holding an anchor embedded in the lawn, and he wears a weight belt to go along with the massive old-style helmet.

Talbot said those hefty accessories were standard gear for early deep-sea divers. The belt would tip the scales at 40 to 50 pounds, and the helmets were equally heavy. The load was needed to make it easier for divers to reach the ocean floor.

It was cumbersome. Talbot said he used similar equipment in the early days of his career. Walking in the depths while wearing it is tricky, because you have to stay upright. He said it's not too bad, "as long as you don't start doing backflips."

Talbot's home contains a raft of nautical artifacts, including two authentic diving helmets that look like something from "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea."

He said he chose diving as a career because it offered more benefits, but there were intangible reasons as well. "Just the idea of doing something not many people can do, that's what attracted me to diving," he said.

Eastiders alarmed by apartments

By KURT HERZOG

A proposed rezone of single-family-zoned property that would allow construction of 276 apartment units has eastside residents upset and warning that the proposal is only a sign of things to come.

Trammel Crow Realty, a Bellevue firm, is proposing that 15.5 acres on the east side of Military Road South, just south of Peasley Canyon Road, be rezoned from single-family to a multi-family zone.

The land is currently owned by Scott Serven, and other partners, but is being developed by Trammel Crow. The firm hopes to build 276 apartment units on the property if the rezone is approved, according to Karen Bitenbender of Trammel Crow.

Neighbors and newly formed eastside community-action groups are opposed to the rezone and development.

Gary Ashenbrenner is a 13-year resident of the neighboring Goldmaur single-family development. The property shouldn't be rezoned because it is too steep and the resulting surface-water runoff could harm the nearby blue heron wildlife sanctuary, he said.

"It could cause some real problems with the ecosystem," Ashenbrenner said.

ALSO, AREA roads just can't handle the kind of traffic generated by multi-family development.

"If you put multi-family development in, you will cause some serious traffic problems," he said.

Developers said the property was identified as an area for a potential rezone to multi-family in the 1985 Federal Way Community Plan update. Now they're just following through with that designation.

A hearing on the rezone had been scheduled for Aug. 24 at

Girl survives attack; police catch suspect

A 15-year-old Federal Way girl may have saved her own life by playing dead Tuesday night after she was attacked and sexually assaulted in West Campus.

But because the girl kept her wits about her and was able to provide King County police with a good description of her attacker, they were able to arrest a man fitting that description later that evening, said Lt. Max Osburn, Precinct 5 (Federal Way).

The man, who has a prior conviction for a 1986 rape, confessed to arresting officers. Police also found on the man a recently started diary that outlined plans for an attack similar to the one he is suspected of making on the girl, Osburn said.

The girl told police she had walked from her apartment to Hoagy's Corner at Southwest 330th and First Avenue South at about 7:30 p.m. While walking back along a path near the apartments, she noticed a man following her. She tried to lose him on a side path, but that's where he caught up and attacked, she said. The girl said the man hit and punched her and threw her to the ground, threatening to kill her with a knife if she didn't do as he said. He then sodomized and attempted to rape her, stabbing her in the abdomen during a struggle.

He tied her hands and feet with her own clothes, and began to strangle the girl with the drawstring from her sweat-pants. The girl said she passed out and came to a few minutes later to find the man throwing dirt on her to cover her body. She said she played dead, hoping the man would leave.

The girl said she waited for a time before leaving, in case the man still was in the area. She flagged a driver near Southwest Campus Drive and Sixth Avenue Southwest, and he called police.

Police broadcast a description of the man over their airwaves, and later that evening a SeaTac Mall security officer spotted a man fitting the description near the mall. The security officer watched the man go into Denny's across the street, and police arrested him there as he sat at the bar.

Police reports say the 29-year-old man, who gave a Federal Way address, confessed to the attack and was booked into the King County Jail for investigation of rape and assault.

The girl was taken to Harborview Medical Center for treatment of her stab wound and released that night.

Ridley, Stead debate

Candidates disagree on moratorium

By KURT HERZOG

Federal Way City Council Position 6 candidates disagreed on the usefulness of a moratorium on apartment construction at Thursday's chamber of commerce debate.

Candidate John Ridley wholeheartedly supports a moratorium on multi-family development and told the 30 chamber members and residents at the debate that if elected he would set up a commission to study controlling development in Federal Way.

"It looks like the sins of the past have caught up with us," Ridley said.

His opponent, Bob Stead, said a moratorium only temporarily postpones prudently dealing with apartment construction.

"It just puts the problem off," Stead said.

Stead is a member of DIRE

(Development Impact Resistance Exercise), a local land-use watchdog committee that has been successful in mitigating development in Federal Way.

Stead said he supports developers' right to build on their property; however, developers should also pay for roads and other services to mitigate development.

"DEVELOPERS should make payments to the community," Stead said. "I've been out there doing something about it. Not just talking about it."

Ridley accused Stead of "waffling" on whether the new city should contract with King County for police services or create its own police department.

Ridley, a Boeing engineer, supports contracting with King County for police services because it would cost less and would avoid a duplication of services, such as homicide investigation, which the county could better provide.

Stead, an attorney and former Federal Way District Court judge, also supports initially contracting with the county for police service. But if county contract costs are prohibitive, Stead said the city should consider creating its own police department.

On contract services in general, Ridley said he was "100 percent in favor of contract services."

Stead said he supported contracting for many city services such as police and street maintenance. However, it's not a good idea to contract for parks maintenance and land-use planning, he said.

Ridley used the debate as an opportunity to attack DeJa Vu, a recently opened nude dance club on Pacific Highway South (formerly Lucky Lady), on three separate occasions. Such establishments cause crime and should be closed down, he said.

"We're going to have to guard and be right with God," Ridley said.

Stead said he favored controlling such establishments through zoning ordinances and business licenses.

Ridley, 61, is married with four children. He lives in West Campus.

Stead, 55, is married with two children. He lives in Marine Hills.

Stead received 3,215 votes to Ridley's 1,318 votes in the May primary election. They will face off in the Sept. 19 final election.

'The Abyss' isn't that deep

Plot works, but effects astonish

By SEAN ROBINSON
As far as special effects movies go, James Cameron's "The Abyss" is a paradox. That's because it has a plot. This rare beast is usually warded away from special effects movies with a cattle prod. So even though Cameron's story (he wrote it himself) has a few holes, and even though the ending is a bit shallow, "The Abyss" deserves praise. It's one of the few films of its genre that makes you care about its characters. Even the obligatory love story works.

"The Abyss" is more adventure than science fiction, but it occasionally is reminiscent of "Close Encounters of The Third Kind." A team of civilian divers working on a prototype underwater oil rig is pressed into reluctant service by the U.S. Navy in a search-and-rescue effort for a stricken nuclear submarine.

The leader of the team, Bud Brigman (Ed Harris), doesn't want his men on the mission, but is forced to comply. The divers are soon joined by a four-man Navy rescue team, headed by Lt. Coffey (Michael Biehn). Complicating matters is the arrival of project engineer Lindsey Brigman (Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio). She is Bud's wife, and the designer of the rig. She will not allow any action to be taken without her supervision.

Her brusque manner doesn't win her many friends, and it becomes clear that she and her husband are not on the best of terms.

A series of mishaps partially disables the rig, and leaves it sitting on the lip of the Cayman Trough in the Caribbean. The trough is an abyss in the floor of the Atlantic which drops straight down for 2 1/2 miles. Yes, somebody has to take a dive into it eventually. And there's something at the bottom. It would be spoiling things to say what the somethings are. But they're pretty strange. They also seem to be perpetually accompanied by a 50-voice chorus and a symphony orchestra.

Things like that prevent "The Abyss" from being great. The music accompanying the somethings is overbearing. It bludgeons the audience into feeling awe, instead of letting them draw their own conclusions. James Cameron has directed some very tight films ("The Terminator," "Aliens"), and he has some similar moments here, but occasionally he drifts.

"THE ABYSS" is a trench in the Caribbean 2 1/2 miles deep, and something lives there. Here, Lindsey Brigman (Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio) encounters it.

There's also the matter of Lt. Coffey, who's cast as the villain. There's nothing wrong with villains, and Michael Biehn does an admirable job in the role, but Coffey is a bad guy of the most frustrating variety: the wacko military nut who's just following orders and doesn't care who gets in his way. These are the kinds of characters who need a swift kick out of the script. They are completely immune to reason, and more annoying than frightening.

Still Cameron knows his stuff. There are "The Abyss," most of which are strikingly original. The idea of life at the bottom of the abyss seems like extra ballast, and has little to do with the story, but it's breathtaking all the same. So are the underwater sequences, including an underwater car chase.

The pretty-good plot lends a ring of truth to the effects, which are incredible. Forty percent of the film was shot underwater, and all sorts of gadgets were invented to make that possible. Instead of recording the dialogue after the fact, which is the established convention, actors were able to communicate during the filming.

The acting is far above average. Harris is a relaxed, charismatic performer, as is Mastrantonio. They provide good romantic sparks, wit, and a genuine affection for each other in some very tense moments during the film's climax.

Todd Graff as Hippy, a member of the crew, is a perfect audience foil. His feelings mirror our own. He is justifiably paranoid of the military's intervention. "You think everything is a conspiracy," says Lindsey Brigman to Hippy.

"Everything is," he replies. Chris Elliott, "Late Night With David Letterman" has a brief and unexpected cameo in "The Abyss," which is a nice touch.

"The Abyss" is definitely worth seeing for its effects alone, which belong on a big screen. The story is average. "The Abyss" just isn't that deep.

"The Abyss" is playing at Gateway Center and Southcenter. The rating is PG-13.

Rubber duckies ride rapids at River Days

The 4th annual Renton River Days family festival runs through Aug. 13, and the flagship event will be a Rubber Duck Derby this Sunday.

It may sound silly, but the sponsors are serious. The American Heart Association is selling $5 sponsorships for each of the 20,000 rubber duckies, which will be set afloat on the Cedar River in Renton. The first ducky to waddle across the finish line wins a trip around the world, and a 1-in-250 chance of winning $100,000 in a random drawing.

The race isn't the only event at the festival. River Days, centered in Liberty Park in downtown Renton, also features a golf tournament and an arts and crafts fair on Friday.

Saturday's schedule gets off to a running start with Park to Park race. The race is a four-mile dash beginning in Coulton Park at 9 a.m. and ending at Cedar River Park. T-shirts and trophies will be awarded to participants.

The Renton River Days Parade follows. The state centennial will be the theme. South Third Street is recommended for the best view of the floats, clowns, cars and horses.

Renton's answer to the "Bite of Seattle," the "Nibble of Renton," offers a wide variety of food choices Saturday and Sunday. Derby car racing for developmentally disabled kids is scheduled for Saturday, as well as the McDonald's Fun Meet.

A petting farm will be in Liberty Park Saturday and Sunday, and there will be continuous entertainment throughout the weekend by instrumental and vocal musicians, magicians, mimes and comedians. Ronald McDonald also is scheduled to make his annual appearance. For more information, call 235-2587.

Video Review

(Paramount cassette, Hi-Fi stereo, no list price).
That "Coming to America" has grossed over $100 million in its theatrical release confirms the superstar bankability of Eddie Murphy — and the size and loyalty of the mostly young, racially mixed audience for the broadest farces.
The story idea shrewdly counters Murphy's controversial reputation as a basher of women in his uninhibited stand-up routine and movies (most recently and most outrageously, "Raw"). Cast as a fabulously wealthy African crown prince who comes to America to find a strong-minded bride who will not cater to his every whim, Murphy manages to keep a straight face as he pursues poverty, servitude and humility in a McDonald's-type establishment on Queens Boulevard in New York City.

The laborious maneuvers by which he tries to convince a simpering pseudofeminist (Shara Headley) that he is indeed the poor African student he pretends to be are directed by John Landis as slowly as molasses in mid-winter.
Murphy recruited Arsenio Hall as his second-banana royal attendant, and the new, possibly experimental comedy team stops the plot every so often for a series of Saturday Night Live-type takeoffs, the most strenuous of which is Murphy's rendition of a Yiddish-accented Jewish kibitzer. The "plot" certainly can use all the interruptions it can find, but what is surprising is how unfunny even the throwaway vaudeville bits turn out to be.

Part of Murphy's superstar status may be based on the fact that his comically intelligent stand-up comedy movies have established his hipster reputation as an ironic off-screen counterpoint to his ultrasquare genre fantasies.

If you managed to avoid "Coming to America" in the theaters, take a look at it on cassette for its cynical exploitation of an audience consisting more of hamburger-joint employees than megabuck entertainers and African princes. Louis Anderson, a very talented white stand-up comedian, is completely wasted in a reverse-racist Sambo role. Meanwhile, James Earl Jones lends his stentorian authority to the role of the King and even has two or three funny lines. But he finally succumbs to the sentimentalized low camp of what is more an efficient money-making machine than a flesh-and-blood movie.

At the Movies

"BATMAN"
Devotees of the Dark Knight will have minor quibbles with Tim Burton's vision of the Caped Crusader, but not many. Though he's too gadget-oriented and not much of an athlete, this Batman is the grim creature of the night envisioned by his creator, Bob Kane. The effects are tremendous, and rescue a mediocre plot, highlighted by a forced and unnecessary love story. Michael Keaton brings an interesting quirkiness to Batman's character. There may be too much of Jack Nicholson's Joker, but so what? He's brilliant. Rated PG-13. Playing at SeaTac South.

"DEAD POET'S SOCIETY"
Imagine, if you can, Robin Williams underplaying a role and you have a thoughtful poignant portrayal in a thoughtful, poignant film. Williams takes a back seat to his students as a free-thinking nonconformist literature teacher at a stuffy, staid conformist New England prep school. The film is bright, uplifting and tragic as it extols the virtues and dangers of the motto, carpe diem, or seize the day. Rated PG. It is playing at Gateway Center.

"DO THE RIGHT THING"
Film-goers who think of Spike Lee as an independent primitive filmmaker will be surprised by the depth and skill he displays in "Do The Right Thing." Lee uses classical techniques such as irony, satire, debate and careful plotting to make a film about racism in a Brooklyn neighborhood. The ensemble cast, headed by Ruby Dee and Ossie Davis, does an admirable job, and Lee is no slouch as the main character. Combining visual storytelling with an intelligent script that offers no easy solutions to the problems of racism makes "Do The Right Thing" the best movie of the summer. Rated R. It is playing at SeaTac North.

"FIELD OF DREAMS"
A baseball fairy tale in the general mold of "The Natural," but more contemporary and less about baseball than about one man's struggle to come to terms with bitter-sweet memories of his father. Based on the novel "Shoeshoe Joe," the movie is faithful to the book in spirit if not every detail. Warm, witty, with bursts of visual splendor, such as the eerie initial appearance of the "ghost" of Shoeless Joe Jackson in a baseball diamond carved from a corn field by the film's engaging star, Kevin Costner. It's a movie with a message: Follow your dream and you might get a second chance. Tender hearts should bring Kleenex. Rated PG. Playing at Gateway Center.

"GHOSTBUSTERS II"
Sequels are tricky things. It's possible to make good ones, but "Ghostbusters II" is just a dismal rehash about the team of ghost exterminators fighting evil. The original film was funny because it was fresh, irreverent and posed no real life-threatening danger. When you take that fun away and try to be really scary, a

MOOKIE (Spike Lee) shares a tender moment with Tina (Rosie Perez) in "Do The Right Thing."

"Ghostbusters II" does, the comedy dies. What's astonishing is that talented, funny people like Dan Aykroyd, Harold Ramis, Bill Murray and director Ivan Reitman managed to make a movie without a single new idea. It's a slimy mess of old jokes and an indigestible touchy-feely ending. Ptooey. "Ghostbusters II" is rated PG and is playing at Gateway Center.

"INDIANA JONES AND THE LAST CRUSADE"
"Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" won't disappoint devotees of the George Lucas/Steven Spielberg hero. The inimitable Indy (Harrison Ford) gets tangled up with Nazis, religious fanatics, and his own father (Sean Connery) while searching for the legendary Holy Grail. The plot is thin, the action predictable and the suspense non-existent, but the stunts are routinely breath-taking, and Connery adds some spice to the formula mix. Rated PG-13. "Indiana Jones" is playing at SeaTac North and at LewisClark.

"PARENTHOOD"
It isn't easy to make movies about family life without descending into the syrup-laden well of sentimentality. "Parenthood" manages to avoid all the clichés that generate labels like "the feelgood movie of the summer." It features an excellent ensemble cast, nifty plot twists, crisp direction of a good screenplay by Ron Howard, and the best performance of Steve Martin's career. It's also very funny. "Parenthood" is playing at SeaTac North and Lewis and Clark. The rating is PG-13, for mild swearing and some double entendres.

"STAR TREK V: THE FINAL FRONTIER"
"Star Trek" may be one of the best sequels out this year. Better than "Rocky" or "Friday the 13th," the fifth "Star Trek" sequel is as comfortable as an old pair of sneakers. In this latest installment, the Enterprise is commandeered by a renegade Vulcan named Sybok (Laurence Luckinbill), who does things we don't associate with Mr. Spock's race, like smiling. The plot begins on an epic scale, but tapers out. But fans of Captain Kirk (William Shatner) and Mr. Spock (Leonard Nimoy) and the rest of the Enterprise crew won't be disappointed. Who cares about an untidy plot when there are Klingons to fight? "Star Trek" is rated PG and is playing at SeaTac South.

Audition offers abound

Area residents will have the opportunity to audition for several different plays next week.

The Young at Heart acting troupe, sponsored by the Avenue Act I theater in Auburn, will hold auditions for the children's musical "Really Rosie." Though the play by Maurice Sendak and Carole King is geared for young audiences, only adults are needed to audition. The play calls for six women and six men ages 19-35.

The auditions will be Aug. 15-17. Call 833-0620 for an appointment.

In Kent, auditions will be held for the Missoula Children's Theatre production of "Hansel and Gretel." More than 50 roles for children and adults are available. Auditions will be from 10 a.m. to noon Monday, Aug. 14, at the Kent Commons, 525 Fourth Avenue N. Call 859-3991 for information.

Local singers and dancers will get their chance to be discovered at an open audition for replacements to the Broadway musical "Cats."

"Cats" is looking for jazz and ballet dancers between the ages of 17 and 32 who also sing. Auditioners should come to the stage door warmed up and in dance clothes at 10 a.m. for men and 2 p.m. for women. Be prepared to sing an up-tempo song and ballad. An accompanist will be provided. Wear flat dance shoes. For more information, call 282-7751.

Anderson, Miller play it for laughs

Louie Anderson and Dennis Miller, two up and coming stand-up comedians, will perform at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 11, at the Paramount Theatre.

Anderson has made a name for himself doing "character comedy," and has won accolades for his clean approach, making his brand of humor readily acceptable to any audience. He has appeared on "The Tonight Show" and "Late Night With David Letterman."

Dennis Miller probably is best-known for his exit line, "I'm outta here," on the "Weekend Update" segment of "Saturday Night Live." He has appeared in his own special on HBO, and recently released a debut album titled "The Off-

White Album. Reserved tickets for the show are $17.50 (subject to service charge). For tickets and more information, call Ticketmaster at 628-0888.

WHAT'S NEW IN TOWN?

Church targets growth

By WENDY CULVERWELL

Being pastor of a small church and being president of a university are, of course, two entirely different matters.

If you can manage the latter, then the former should be a cinch. Right?

Not really, says the Rev. Dr. Eugene Wiegman, who presided over Tacoma's Pacific Lutheran University for six years and currently is moonlighting as interim pastor of All Saints' Lutheran Church here in Federal Way.

Wiegman knew when he was invited to take the temporary post that the departing minister, the Rev. Paul Chell, would be leaving large shoes to fill. Small churches have small staffs, which translates into a broader array of duties for their ministers.

Instead of donning padded socks, however, Wiegman accepted the invitation with a challenge to All Saints' congregation—if you want the church to continue to move forward, you'll have to shoulder some of the burden yourselves.

After all, Wiegman already puts in a full day's work as director of Tacoma's Family Counseling Services and serves as associate pastor at another Tacoma institution, Luther Memorial Church.

When it comes to time, Wiegman can spare about 20 hours a week to the Federal Way congregation.

His ministry will have to be a cooperative one in order to work.

AND IT HAS. At Wiegman's encouraging, old members have been bringing friends to the church, resulting in about 25 new members since last fall. That may not sound like much, but for a 200 or so member church, 25 new people represents a significant step in keeping up with Federal Way's growth.

"We feel we should be growing at the same rate as the community," said Vern Warmbo, president of the congregation and leader of the search for a permanent pastor.

THE REV. Dr. Eugene Wiegman shares leadership duties at All Saints' Lutheran Church with the congregation. The former president of Pacific Lutheran University is serving as interim pastor at the Federal Way church until a replacement for the Rev. Paul Chell can be found.

WIEGMAN'S name may be familiar to longtime Federal Way residents who don't happen to be graduates of PLU. He was the democratic candidate for Congress in 1976 for the district which included, at the time, Bremerton, Tacoma and Federal Way. He lost to Congressman Norm Dicks (D-6th), but did well in Federal Way, he noted.

He enjoys the occasional interim minister position, he said, because it gets him back on the "front lines" of ministry. Administrative posts such as the ones he's held in academia and in state and federal government, tend to isolate him from the people he is supposed to serve, he said.

ISOLATION certainly isn't the case with All Saints'. His "people orientation," is one qualification the church's call committee looked for in the minister candidates it interviewed. Warmbo said a candidate will be presented to the church's membership later this month.

If all goes well, the new minister could be installed within a few months.

Those people skills the church appreciates so much served Wiegman well, he admitted. Where a full-time minister has the "luxury" of committees and programs to help him achieve his goals, that isn't the case with interims. They must sell their ideas to the members and get their help in carrying them out.

WIEGMAN has been able to sell the members on evangelizing to their friends well, he admitted.

"He has us inspired," Warmbo agreed.

The minister's vision of All Saints' already has been carried out in several areas—the outside of the church is being painted and the pastor's office has been spruced up in anticipation of the new pastor.

"I just dropped a hint..." Wiegman said, gesturing to the new blinds and bookshelves constructed by members.

Members also have been helping out with what normally are considered pastor's duties. When visitors express interest in joining the church, the first person they're likely to hear from is a member.

"The pastor's job is to energize people to do the evangelizing," he said.

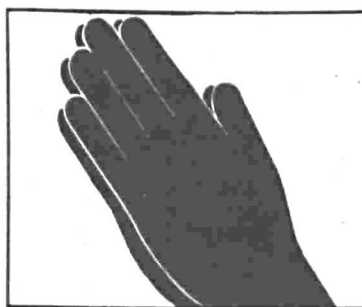

Faith Center to open local child care

The Christian Faith Center will open its first satellite child-care center Aug. 28 near the On the Green apartment complex in Northeast Tacoma.

Jubilee Childcare will hold an open house the weekends of Aug. 17 and 24, and will open for business Aug. 28.

The non-profit center will be staffed by Christian teachers and enrollment will be limited to 100 children. Full and part-time care is available for children from birth to 11 years. For information about the facility, call Christian Faith Center at 927-5443.

IF THINGS GO WRONG, HAVE A TALK WITH YOUR CLERGYMAN

You have just had a terrible week. First, you received bad news about something. Then, as if that weren't enough, you acted on impulse and made some foolish statements that let certain people down and almost cost you a friendship of long standing. Altogether, you couldn't feel more depressed and your self-esteem has never been lower. Of course, you try to make amends with those people whom you inadvertently injured by your unwise remarks. Actually, none of this may describe your problems; but whatever they are, go to your House of Worship and talk to your clergyman. He will give you his best advice, for he is there to help people like you who are in some kind of trouble. And remember to thank God for this guidance He has provided for you, just when you needed it most.

Dear Lord and Father of mankind,
Forgive our foolish ways!

Police

Friendly shower dampens relations

After some Monday night aquatic activities, one long-term engagement may be all washed up.

King County police report a 41-year-old man burst in upon his fiancée of 3-½ years as she showered with a co-worker at that man's home.

The irate fiancée was looking for his 33-year-old girlfriend at the 25-year-old Federal Way man's house. He heard the shower running from outside the front door and went around to the bedroom window, he later told police. At that window he heard the man making sexual remarks to his fiancée, and her giggles. Angered, he went back to the front door, kicked it in, and entered the house.

The 25-year-old man came out of the shower to investigate the noise and was confronted by a screaming jealous boyfriend, he told police. The two wrestled a bit and fell to the floor. Meanwhile, the woman called police.

The jealous boyfriend fled the apartment before police arrived, but later called 9-1-1 to turn himself in. He met police at a local restaurant, where he was arrested. He was booked into the King County Jail for investigation of first-degree burglary for breaking into the other man's home.

Girls see flasher on school grounds

Two girls playing at a school playground told police a man exposed himself to them.

The girls, ages 6 and 8, were playing at Mirror Lake Elementary School at about 8:15 p.m. Saturday when they noticed a man doing situps nearby.

The man approached and admired the 8-year-old's shoes, and then asked her to spread her legs, which she did. He then teased that he had seen her underwear, and the girl replied that he couldn't have, because she was wearing shorts under her skirt.

The man replied that he'd show the girls his underwear, then showed them more than he had promised. The girls said they jumped on their bikes and rode home.

The last time they saw the man, he was headed south through a wooded area near the school. He is described as white, in his 30s and standing 5 feet 7 inches tall with a medium build.

Boy escapes from possible molester

A 13-year-old boy told King County police a man who asked for his assistance led him into a wooded area and tried to molest him.

The boy said he was walking home along South 253rd Street, just west of Pacific Highway South Saturday morning, when a man approached him from behind and asked him for help carrying a stereo.

The boy followed the man to a dirt trail, and once there, the man said he had been told the boy looked like someone who had stolen money from him. The man then said he would have to search the boy, and patted him on the behind. He then unbuttoned the top button of the boy's jeans, and tried to unbutton more, but the boy pushed him away and left.

The man, described as white, 21-22, 5 feet 9 and 120 pounds, walked away northbound on Pacific Highway South. He has red hair, hazel eyes and a fair complexion. He wore a yellow cap, blue striped shirt and blue shorts.

Unusual bundle dropped in woods

A teen-ager on a walk Sunday saw someone dump what looked like a small child or bundle of clothing in a wooded area and called police.

The youth told King County police he was walking in an area not disclosed in police reports when he saw a man get out of a car and walk into a wooded area. Under his arm he carried what looked like a clothed object in the same manner one might carry a small child.

After about five minutes in the woods, the man returned to the car, driven by a woman, and both left.

A police K-9 unit was called in to search the area, but nothing unusual was found.

Local spikers enter Centennial Games

By CHUCK MINGORI

Just about the time this newspaper hits your doorstep, the Federal Way Juniors girls' volleyball team will be entering its first match in the 1989 Washington Centennial Summer Games in Spokane.

The Federal Way Juniors are one of eight girls' volleyball teams in the 15 to 18 age category shooting for the gold medal in Spokane. The Centennial Summer Games opening ceremonies were held at Joe Albi Stadium last night.

This morning at 8, the Federal Way Juniors will square off in Ferris High School's gymnasium against the Spokane Juniors. An 11 a.m. game is scheduled to follow against the Yakima Centennials with competition with the Panther Paws slated for 12:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Depending on how well the Federal Way Juniors do in their pool, another match will be forthcoming at either 4 p.m. or 5:30 p.m. tomorrow. Consolation bracket teams will complete their play with 7 p.m. matches on Saturday, while the match for third or fourth is set for 8:30 a.m. Sunday and the gold and silver match is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

The Federal Way Juniors are coached by Paul Jensen, who is receiving assistance from his wife, Carolyn.

The Jensens would like to see the Federal Way Juniors reach the medal rounds, but more importantly they want the girls to enjoy themselves during the Centennial Games, which are an Olympic-style of competition for Washington athletes held this year to celebrate the state's 100th anniversary.

AN ESTIMATED 3,200 amateur athletes, coaches and managers are participating in the Summer Games, which end Sunday, while another 50,000 or so will be watching the 4-day event in person. The Games will also be featured in 4½ hours of broadcast time by KIRO-TV in Seattle in conjunction with sister stations in Yakima, the Tri-Cities and Spokane.

It is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for the participants.

"I personally am real excited," said team member Sandra Deresch, who will be a senior at Decatur High School. "I think it's a super opportunity for all of us to be in this kind of situation, playing against different athletes who are so gifted."

Carolynn Jensen, whose husband, Paul, is a math teacher and volleyball coach at Lakota-Junior High School, also is excited about the Centennial Games.

"I think I'm looking forward to it almost as much as the girls are," said Carolyn, who will chaperone the girls at their sleeping quarters in Spokane. "I've played a lot of volleyball in my time, but I've never been able to go to something that has shades of the Olympics... It may be the closest they (the girls) get to experiencing anything like it. I think it's going to be exciting. I think it's going to be fun, and if we're lucky, it won't be hot."

The Federal Way Juniors team, which consists of six players from Decatur and one from Federal Way, originated when Paul Jensen started the Federal Way Junior Volleyball

Club at Lakota last January. His main purpose for starting the club was to give local high school boys an opportunity to play considering local schools don't have boys' volleyball teams.

But when the zone playoffs for the Centennial Games came up in June on the same day as graduation at Decatur and Federal Way, only the girls' team was able to attend. Many of the boys playing volleyball for the local club were seniors, Carolyn Jensen explained.

East Coast cowboy promotes West

Ellensburg's Mike Floan is one of those corporate managers who decided to leave the hectic pace of the business world and return to a time when life was simpler and the pace was slower — back to the 19th century.

An executive for Potlatch Company and other major firms in the Eastern U.S., Floan took off his corporate tie and put on a pair of shaps to come out to the Wild West. Here, he set up a team of mules, built a covered wagon and went into the business of horse-drawn — or mule-drawn — transportation.

"I wanted to spend more time with my kids," says Floan, who has adopted Ellensburg as his Number One promotional cause. "And Ellensburg's a good place to live."

While Floan has applied his organizational skills to a number of local community projects — including a stint on the South Central Washington Region 9 Tourism Board — he now hangs his cowboy hat on his Ellensburg Equine Trolley, a unique way for visitors to get to know that historic community.

The authentic trolley is mounted on rubber wheels and offers rides on five scenic routes through Ellensburg that include combinations of the historic business district, the Fairgrounds and the Central Washington University campus. Along the way, the story-telling Floan embellishes his historical commentary with amusing anecdotes.

A ride on the 20-passenger trolley is $3.50 per person and lasts 45 minutes. For more information, phone (509) 962-1889.

More Wild West

Floan also works from time to time for Hidden Valley Guest Ranch, a true western experience that's suitable for just about any "city slicker."

Exploring the Northwest

by Cary Ordway

The Coe family runs this ranch, located in a picturesque valley near Cle Elum surrounded by rolling hills, pine trees and lots of trails for exploration both on foot and by horse. The hot, sunny Eastern Washington weather makes a summer visit like a trip to Arizona, although it's about 20 degrees cooler. In winter, cross-country skiing is the attraction.

Visitors to Hidden Valley enjoy ranch-style cooking, rustic but comfortable cabins and resort-style amenities such as a swimming pool, hot tub and game room.

One of those meals is the Sunday chuckwagon breakfast, a meal "on the trail" a half-mile or so from the ranch. Mike Floan hooks up his team of mules to a covered wagon and takes visitors out to the open-air breakfast that includes pancakes, bacon, fruit and lots of campfire coffee. Other guests actually ride horses to the site.

On a recent visit to the Hidden Valley, we enjoyed a trail ride that was more exciting than the usual "stay-in-line, single-file" ride. With two wranglers in the party we divided into two groups of five or six riders each and "chased down" some calves that had strayed from their pasture. The more timid riders could stay back and watch the action; those who enjoyed "loping" or running their horses got to experience some real ranch-style riding.

Prices at Hidden Valley range from $45 to $59 per person per night, double occupancy, depending on the cabin you choose and the time of your visit. These prices include your meals, while still other options are available for those who want to bring their own food and stay in an apartment-style cabin.

Trail rides, which are usually scheduled at least twice a day, are $15 per person.

For more information on Hidden Valley Ranch, phone (509) 674-5990.

Pendleton Round-Up

One of the big western events coming up soon, is just across the Washington border in Northeast Oregon, where 55,000 people are expected to take in the Pendleton Round-Up.

Events start Sept. 9 and continue through Sept. 16. They include a rodeo with 18 different events daily, Sept. 13-16, and several other special events. The Happy Canyon Pageant, for example, portrays the American Indian culture and the settlement of the west from the early days of Indian inhabitants to the coming of the white settlers. The pageant features a cast of hundreds of volunteer performers.

Also included in the Round-Up is the Westward Ho! parade with its riders on horseback, draft horse teams, rodeo royalty, miners and trappers, horsedrawn logging equipment, wagons, bands and lots of Indians dressed in their authentic costumes.

The Round-Up also includes a beauty pageant, cowboy breakfasts, cowboy shows, Indian encampment, Indian tribal dancing contest and a country-western concert featuring Lee Greenwood and the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band.

For more information on the Pendleton Round-Up, phone 1-800-524-2984.

Awareness Day

And, just for good measure, we should mention something about today's cowboys — the farmers featured in Central Washington's Farmer Consumer Awareness Day in Quincy.

While many Washington residents may not know where Quincy is — much less what it has to offer — the Consumer Awareness Day on Sept. 9 has to be one of the most fun-filled home-spun celebrations in the state. The whole community, from local businessmen to the students in Quincy schools, join together to roll out the red carpet for visitors from all over the state.

We can speak from personal experience after attending last year's event: this is one small-town event that is big-time fun.

It's like visiting an Iowa farming community to get a taste of what farm-life is really like. Visitors not only see a parade of farm equipment and bands and enjoy a food display that could easily be dubbed the "Bite of Central Washington," but they also get educated. Tours are offered to those who would like to see farm produce being processed in one of the many major plants in the area. There's also a dance, and everybody in Quincy — we do mean everybody — treats you like they're genuinely glad you came.

For more information on Farmer Consumer Awareness Day, phone (509) 787-2140.

Invitational tourney opens this weekend

The Federal Way Invitational soccer tournament will kickoff tonight on the Lakota, Steel Lake, Grandview and Sacajawea soccer fields.

The Federal Way Invitational is geared for boys' and girls' premier and select soccer teams in the U-13 to the U-19 age groups. The Federal Way Invitational will run for two consecutive weekends with the finals held each Sunday at Federal Way Memorial.

The Federal Way Invitational is expected to draw approximately 60 teams from around the state, including some from Oregon. Teams enter the Federal Way Invitational to help prep for their league seasons, which begin the first of September.

Also scheduled in Federal Way on the weekend of Aug. 25-27 will be the Cory Condit Invitational, which is designed primarily for Federal Way recreational teams in the U-11, U-12 and U-13 age divisions. This tournament is expected to draw about 30 teams.

The Federal Way Invitational will be manned by premier coaches and parents from Federal Way who are volunteering their time and effort to put on the tournament.

The Federal Way Invitational tournament gets underway tonight at 5. The last scheduled games tonight will begin at 8.

Among the more prominent teams participating in the Federal Way Invitational tournament are the Federal Way Nitro, Silver Bullet and Star Shooters. Each of these Federal Way teams won the state tournament and advanced to regionals.

Green Lake site of regatta tomorrow

Green Lake's annual Summer Rowing Extravaganza will be held from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow.

Twenty-nine rowing clubs from all over the Pacific Northwest are sponsoring one or more racing shells in this year's Regatta. Shells in all categories, from singles to eights, will compete for honor, dignity and the right to sink their teeth into chocolate chip cookies awarded to all participants.

The Summer Rowing Extravaganza is a registered regatta of the United States Rowing Association, and many crews use this race as a primer for the Masters Rowing Nationals in Oakland, Calif., the following week.

The Extravaganza is sponsored by the Seattle Parks and Recreation Department and the Rowing Advisory Council. For additional information, call the Green Lake Small Craft Center at 684-4074.

Junior Legion team won when it counted most

By TIM CLINTON
 The Federal Way Omni Junior Legion baseball team may not have boasted an impressive overall record at only 22-20 this year, but the Feds were able to win when it counted.
 They went 12-6 in District 11 play to tie Kirkland Blue for first place and earn a state berth, then went 2-2 at state to capture fourth out of 10 teams. By contrast, Federal Way was 8-12 outside of league and state action.
 According to Omni head coach Dave Sugg, that was the result of the team's plans for the year.
 "At the beginning of the year we described our objectives clearly," said Sugg. "We wanted to put the emphasis on playing time and make sure the kids got ample opportunity to play in non-league games from an experience standpoint.
 "Our goals were to break even, and another was to win the division, which we did," said Sugg. "We tied in districts, got the state berth, then went on to do exceptionally well considering we had kids who did not make the trip. We emphasized league games, and that's why we did not do well in (non-league) tournaments. I think we peaked right on the money."

FEDERAL WAY entered the state tournament with only 13 players, as Jason Stiles, Rod Janson and Blake Ellison did not make the trip.
 The lack of substitutes made a couple of the games scary when no one was left on the bench and players were feeling queasy because of the 100-degree heat at Kennewick's LaPierre Field, but the team still played well.
 Omni blew away Burk's Candy of Spokane, 24-7, to open the tournament, then took Saturday off before playing Skagit Valley in the winner's bracket semifinals Sunday morning.

 The Feds lost a heartbreaker to that team, 2-1, on a pair of wild pitches following an outstanding first seven innings by starter Dan Graham, but they got their bats going under the hot afternoon sun to pound Marysville, 17-7.
 "After we lost to Skagit, 2-1, it was a real accomplishment for the kids to get it turned around and be up for the Marysville game," said Sugg.
 But Federal Way went on to be eliminated from the tournament by Kirkland Blue Sunday morning, 7-2, with Blue going on to defeat Skagit Valley, 7-3, to reach the championship against tournament favorite Kennewick.
 Kennewick was 3-0 at that point in the tournament, and entered state action with a 44-5 record.

 The team Kennewick had the most trouble with in the early going was Marysville — the same team the Feds blew away, 17-7. Marysville took an early 3-0 lead on Kennewick, before losing after a late Duster rally, 11-6.
 "When we watched them play Kennewick, they were hitting the ball and were a spirited bunch," said Sugg of Marysville. "For us to beat somebody like that our second game of the day — we just hit the ball hard."
 After playing Marysville, Kennewick blasted Kirkland and Skagit Valley in order to get into a situation where it needed to be defeated by Kirkland twice to miss the title.
 "We'd like to pattern our program more after the Kennewick program next year, as far as attitudes, hustle and a more aggressive type of play," said Sugg. "Even in 100-degree weather they were running in and out of the dugout and on every play, or when they got hit by a pitch they ran down to first."

SUGG PLANS on moving up next year to assist Tom Wagner with the Feds' Senior Legion team, with Sugg's assistant, Ron Murray, stepping in to take his place with the Juniors. Nick Snider would also remain as an assistant coach for Wagner.
 "I think next year we'll be state contenders in Juniors and Seniors," said Sugg. "A lot of players will move up, and a lot are better than average players. In Federal Way baseball is alive and well. From 11 and 12 year olds to 18, they were all in state contention this year."

 Out of the players on this year's Junior Legion roster, only five will be 18 next year and too old to play on that team, although they would be eligible to join the Seniors. They are Mike Dunlap, Sur Johnson, Joey Sonnenfeld, Josh Austin and Rod Janson.
 A number of the younger players will probably move up next year, including Sugg's son, Mike, and Dan Graham, who already spent time with the Seniors this year.

Spikers join Centennial celebration

 Centennial Games by taking second in the qualifying tournament. They are representing zone 6 (Pierce County) in Spokane.
 Team members are Deresch, Shannon Barrett, Shannon Caldwell, Chris Cozart, Nadine Hayman, Kim Kepler, Christine McLeod and Jennifer Wallis.
KEEPING THE girls together over the summer has not been an easy task, to say the least. Many of the girls have had summer jobs or have been gone on vacations. Although the team has scheduled practices once a week, the squad's first full practice since June was Monday at the Renton Community Center.
 "The coordination I think hasn't been there, but they've been real flexible with their work schedule and family vacations to accommodate practices," said Paul Jensen.

 Jensen said that the offensive and defensive strategies have been kept relatively simple to make the best use of the talent on the team. He's tried to set up an alignment that balances out the power, but also trying to make sure that everyone is comfortable with their position and roles on the team.
 Winning would be nice, but it's not the main goal.
 "I guess my biggest goal is that the girls enjoy themselves and have some fun, this is kind of a special situation for them," explained Paul. "They would like to do well. I know they'd like to win it all, but I don't know if that's a realistic goal."
 Deresch, who has taken on one of the team's leadership roles, wants to make sure the Federal Way girls do the best they can.

 "I don't think it's that impossible for us to get the gold," she said. "I think it definitely is in the reach. It's just a super opportunity and I hope we take advantage of it."
 Funding for the Centennial Games is provided in part by the Washington state Legislature through the Washington Centennial Commission. Supplemental support is coming through sponsorships from several local corporations.
 The Federal Way Juniors also raised $650 to $700 on their own through car washes and soliciting sponsorship from local businesses for travel and uniforms. John L. Scott real estate and Puget Sound Bank in Federal Way have donated to the cause of the Federal Way Juniors.

A host of activities are planned for the Centennial Games athletes, including a barbecue and dance. Also planned are some sightseeing and visits to see other events during the Centennial Games. All of the athletes' meals and housing is paid for and each one will receive a Centennial Games athletic bag.
NO MATTER what transpires, it's almost certain that it will be a rewarding experience.
 "How many people get the opportunity to go to something like this?" said Deresch.
 "Who knows if they're going to do anything like this again," added Paul Jensen. "It's a unique situation in itself. For some of the girls, it could be the biggest thing they've ever participated in."

Peterson resigns as Warrior hoop coach

By ADAM WORCESTER
 Saying "there's never a good time to leave," Bryan Peterson has resigned as boys' basketball coach at Seattle Christian School to accept a similar position with King's High School.
 Roger DeBoer, an assistant at Bellevue Christian School, will be the new Warrior coach.
 Peterson guided Seattle Christian to three Class A state tournaments in four seasons at the helm. Last year the Warriors finished in the top 12 teams. In 1986, they finished in the top six.
 He also coached the Seattle Christian baseball team to its first winning season and a berth in the state playoffs last spring. No replacement has yet been named for the baseball post.
 "It was time for a move, time for a new challenge for me," Peterson said.
 Peterson beat out a field of 30 applicants for the job, including 11 head coaches, said King's Athletic Director Nick Sweeney.
 "He was the best candidate. He has experience in taking people with different types of talent, putting it together and getting them on to state," Sweeney said. "We're glad to have him."
 King's, a Class A school located in north Seattle, has qualified its boys' basketball team for the Northwest District playoffs 12 consecutive years. It plays in the seven-team Cascade League, composed of teams from the north Seattle area.
 "They might place a little higher emphasis on some of their athletic programs," Peterson said. "Because of the overall size of their ministries, they have avenues to raise money that SCS just doesn't have. And the Northwest District puts on a super tournament."
 At the same time, Peterson said he regrets departing his alma mater. He is a 1975 Seattle Christian graduate and holds majors in history, psychology and religion from San Francisco's Simpson College. He will teach history and world geography at King's.
 "It's tough to leave kids like that," Peterson said of his Warrior players. "They've got some good things in their future. Hopefully, so do I."
 Their futures will clash Dec. 19, ironically, when King's hosts Seattle Christian and its new mentor, DeBoer.
 DeBoer, 25, grew up in Lynden, a hotbed of Class A basketball. He started at point guard on Lynden Christian School's 1982 state-championship team.

 "This past year was my 23rd state tournament. I have pictures of myself as a 2-year-old kid in diapers in the bleachers," DeBoer said. "That grows on you, gets in your blood."
 When he won his state title as a player, he told his parents he wanted to lead a team back as a coach. He thinks he may have found the squad in Seattle Christian.

 "I honestly feel this is one of the top 15 (Class A) programs in the state," he said. "A tradition has been developed."
 DeBoer is just the man to keep it going, said Dave Peterson Seattle Christian athletic director.
 "Roger was by far the most qualified candidate we interviewed. His excitement and enthusiasm really showed through," Peterson said. "He's in love with Class A basketball."
 DeBoer has been head coach

one year at Forest Ridge, an all-girls' school, and assistant the past four years at Bellevue Christian School. He will not teach at Seattle Christian.
 "This has been a dream for a long time," DeBoer said. "I feel very fortunate."
 He describes himself as a "controlled disciplinarian" and an "enthusiastic, encouraging" coach.
 "I am not Bryan Peterson. My style will be different," he said. "But if I do my job, we'll have a very good basketball team."

State requires shots for students

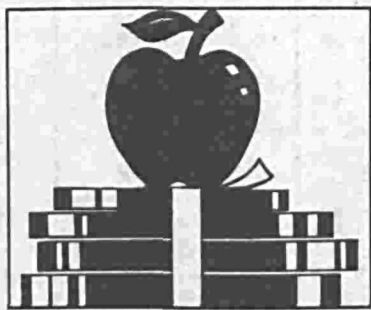

Parents are reminded to update their children's immunization shots before the school year begins Sept. 5.

Washington state law requires documentation of tetanus/diphtheria, polio, measles, mumps, and rubella vaccines before children can attend public schools.

For children in preschools and licensed child-care centers, the law requires that immunization be up-to-date for the child's age.

Each office of the Seattle-King County Health Department offers childhood immunizations. The department's satellite offices include:

- The south Federal Way location, at 1814 S. 324th Place. The office is open Tuesdays from 1-3:30 p.m. and Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 8-11 a.m., and again from 1-3:30 p.m. For information, call 296-8410.

Eastiders fear flood of apartments

King County Building and Land Development Division (BALD) headquarters in Bellevue, but has been postponed until county staff can review the proposal.

Eastside community activists are concerned that even more development will be channeled into their area after Federal Way officially incorporates.

Growth was one of the main issues surrounding Federal Way voters' decision to incorporate and it is likely that some type of restrictions will be placed on development — particularly apartment development — within the Federal Way city limits after the city council

Gates to meet mall shoppers

Federal Way City Council Position 1 candidate Mary Gates will be at SeaTac Mall this weekend.

Gates will have a table set up in front of the Bon Marche takes office in late September. EASTSIDERS say that will logically push development into their territory, outside of city limits, which will still be managed by BALD.

"The thing that concerns me is that we don't even know about these things," said Bill Seifert, an eastside resident and co-founder of an organization called Residents East of Interstate 5 Annexation Consideration Team (REACT).

While the group was ostensibly set up to consider eventual annexation to the new city, it also will monitor proposed development on the eastside, Seifert said.

Another group is currently being organized by eastsider Don na Grossruck. Grossruck is a member of the Federal Way Community Council, but is disenchanted with that group's role outside of the incorporation area.

"This is the kind of thing we want to keep an eye on," said

Grossruck of the proposed rezoning.

Grossruck's group has already met once last month and will meet again at 7:30 p.m., Aug. 21, at the Star Lake Improvement Club. The meeting is open to the public.
