TWIN LAKES MARINE HILLS REDONDO MIDWAY KENT WEST HILL WOODMONT NORTH LAKE WEST CAMPUS

Templeton, Watkins mix it up, make up

By KURT HERZOG

As Federal Way City Council handicappers may have bet, Position 7 candidates Lynn Templeton and Phil Watkins spent a good part of their hour-long debate yesterday politically beating up on each other.

However, at the end of the debate, candidates shook hands and one promised to bury the issue that's set off a recent barrage of attacks: campaign financing.

Templeton said he hopes the two candidates can move on to the real issues, such as growth management and contract services. But at the chamber of commerce debate, the primary issue was campaign contributions.

At the beginning of the week, Watkins distributed a press release and proposed ordinance to the media that would limit individual contributions to $1,000 in future elections.

THE ORDINANCE was in response, Watkins said, to "voter shock" about contributions Templeton had received from supporters. Templeton received $1,250 from Dynasties Restaurant owner Warren Chinn and $2,600 from Marine Hills resident Ron Sandwith, a personal friend of Templeton's.

Templeton was outraged by what he called the personal attack and called Watkins a hypocrite in his opening statement.

"He's attempting to direct his problems with the press (about campaign financing)...to me," Templeton said.

Watkins was the subject of several newspaper articles as early as May for raising more money than any other candidate. Most of that money came from contributors who live outside of Federal Way.

Watkins said Templeton attacked him in those articles, but Templeton said he was only

LYNN TEMPLETON (left) listens while Phil Watkins makes a point during a debate yesterday between the two candidates for Pos. 7 on the Federal Way City Council. The two candidates took turns attacking one another's fund-raising practices, then hugged at the end of the debate. One of the moderators, Lynn Schow, is in the foreground.

responding to calls from newspapers.

"I never ran to the Federal Way News," Templeton said.

"Maybe I can explain to you how to respond to the press," said Watkins, who is a senior research analyst for the Republican party in the state Senate and who also works as a media-relations consultant. "There are ways to respond to issues without attacking character."

"(You've) impugned my character."

SO FAR, Watkins has raised about $9,600 in cash from 136 contributors, 27 of whom live in Federal Way. He has raised another approximately $3,000 from in-kind contributions.

Templeton has raised $7,300 in cash from 46 contributors, 40 of whom live in Federal Way. He has had few in-kind contributions.

THE SOURCE of Watkins' contributions proves that he's a political insider who is only using Federal Way as a stepping stone to higher office, Templeton said.

"Phil is politically motivated," Templeton said. "As one voter said, he's running for a career."

Templeton, currently development director of the King County Boys' and Girls' Clubs and former director of the Federal Way club for 14 years, said he has a commitment to the area that Watkins hasn't demonstrated.

Watkins, 40, has lived in Federal Way for five years and has lived in the general area for 10. Templeton, 38, grew up in South King County and has lived in Federal Way for eight years.

On other issues, the two candidates are close. Both favor an apartment moratorium of at least six months, both favor contracting for most city services, both favor a strong police force initially contracted with the county.

Despite the hard-hitting challenges, the two shook hands and even hugged at the end of the debate.

"I have a feeling you're going to be one of my golf buddies," Watkins told Templeton.

The Position 7 race is probably the closest of the contests in the Sept. 19 election. In the May 16 primary, Watkins received 2,100 votes to Templeton's 2,009.

'Weird Stuff'

Grounded 'Rocket' once dusted crops

By SEAN ROBINSON

The Federal Way News "Weird Stuff" search took an agricultural turn this week, and found the Edsel of crop-dusters.

"The Rocket" belongs to Ray Schow, who runs All-Night Printery in Federal Way near South 330th Street and Pacific Highway South. Outside his warehouse in the Spectrum Business Park, The Rocket is gathering dust and rust.

It hasn't been used since the '60s, but it once blazed across North Dakota wheat-fields at 60 mph. It looks like a cross between a demented hydroplane and a B-movie science fiction gizmo. Twenty feet long and shaped like an aluminum cigar with a propeller attached to the back, Schow said The Rocket has raised a few eyebrows.

"If I could get a dollar for everyone who's stopped and asked me what is," said Schow, "I'd get out of the printing business."

Schow said his father and some friends developed the silvery relic as an alternative to crop-dusting planes. "They put out 56 of them back in Williston, North Dakota," he said. "To my knowledge, this is the only one that's left."

The Rocket got its name from its chief inventor, a friend of Schow's father named Ernie La Rock (Schow wasn't sure of the spelling). On the patent for his invention, Ernie called it, "La Rocket."

Schow's father and his friends were concerned in the early '50s about overuse of herbicide on crops. The planes would use great amounts of chemicals, and covered fields inefficiently. Sometimes, entire fields had to be resprayed because of poor coverage, and that was a worry to the farmers.

Tacoma mayor balks

Burner gets another EIS mandate

By LYNN KEEBAUGH

Tacoma Mayor Doug Sutherland has hinted that if the state Department of Ecology requires an environmental impact statement for an extension of its grant to help build a trash incinerator, the city might just tell state officials to keep their money.

Sutherland made those remarks Wednesday at a news conference called by the Department of Ecology (DOE) to announce the state has decided to extend the city's grant, but with several conditions attached. The city had collected just $10 million of a $15 million DOE grant to build the incinerator before the three-year time limit expired.

One of the conditions attached to the extension — yet to be accepted by the Tacoma City Council — is that regardless of the outcome of pending litigation in Pierce County Superior Court regarding the state-mandated EIS, Tacoma should complete an EIS before the plant officially begins to operate.

The state's attorneys are expected to respond to the city's suit today. Allen Miller, lead attorney for the state, said the state likely will ask the court to drop the suit, saying the city has no grounds for litigation.

Tacoma contends the EIS requirement came too far along in the construction process and unfairly discriminates against the city.

SUTHERLAND SAID the city and the plant's operator, Tacoma Public Utilities, have done everything required by an EIS from the start of the project, short of an actual EIS. He maintains that the incinerator will operate cleanly and in a healthy manner, as shown in State Environmental Protection Agency (SEPA) checklists, scoping studies and health-risk assessments.

"Basically, we have already done an EIS," Sutherland said.

Without coming right out and stating that Tacoma would refuse the DOE's request for an EIS, Sutherland said the city would look at the ramifications of such a study. If the courts say the city does not have to complete the EIS ordered by the state, it will have ammunition to resist any further requirements.

The loss of the $5 million in grant money to complete the incinerator could be made up in a number of ways yet to be explored, he said, adding that Tacoma Public Utilities is "a revenue-driven utility...and there's the possibility of increasing the rates..."

But Sutherland himself said earlier in the press conference that, "anyone can sue anyone for anything," deflating somewhat his argument that an EIS would open litigation doors.

Others questioned whether an EIS would only strengthen the city's position on the safety of

First council to be sworn in Sept. 30

Federal Way's first city council will be sworn in at 6 p.m., Sept. 30, in the auditorium of Decatur High School.

A committee of community leaders has not yet decided just who will swear in the seven city council members to be elected Sept. 19. Rep. Jean Marie Brough (R-30th) will be the mistress of ceremonies at the event, which is expected to last about 30 minutes.

Organizers representing the Federal Way Community Council, the chamber of commerce and the Federal Way First Transition Team are also still deciding which King County and state officials they will ask to speak at the public ceremony. King County Executive Tim Hill is already scheduled to speak.

Organizers of the ceremony have no official power to mandate where the ceremony will be held, but the committee has the informal approval of the majority of the 14 candidates to arrange the event.

While the final election is being held Sept. 19, the election won't be certified until Sept. 29. Also, the last day to register to vote for the election is tomorrow.

For registration information call 296-1565.

Candy is no treat in this movie

'Uncle Buck' smothers giant talent

By SEAN ROBINSON

John Candy is a big guy in search of a big vehicle. The prodigious SCTV alumnus has talent to match his girth, but the right project is yet to appear. He's done some awful films, including "Summer Rental" and the forgettable "Who's Harry Crumb?" The only redeemable feature he's done recently is "Planes, Trains and Automobiles."

With "Uncle Buck," Candy goes the touchy-feely route. Even though his acting shines, he can't save John Hughes' irritating screenplay.

When Bob Russell (Garret M. Brown) and his wife Cindy (Elaine Bromka) are faced with a family crisis, Bob calls his freewheeling brother Buck (Candy), and asks him to watch the kids for a few days.

Naturally, Cindy is apprehensive about the situation, as is the oldest daughter, Tia (Jean Kelly), and Buck's girlfriend Chance (Amy Madigan), who's been trying to get Buck to tie the knot for eight years.

But golly, Uncle Buck's really just a warm-hearted, fun-loving guy who'd never hurt a fly, and gee whiz, why can't anybody see that everything's gonna be just great?

It's hard to tell. But it takes about an hour and 45 minutes to find out. This movie is so utterly predictable that the outcome is clear in the first five minutes. Uncle Buck is clearly "good," and his detractors are clearly wrong about him, so the entire film is a dull game of will-he-win-er-over. The waiting is the hardest part.

It doesn't help that the three women in the story are unbelievably bitchy. Every one of them spends the first hour and a half giving Buck dirty looks, and the last 10 minutes smiling at him with tears in their eyes. My, that was expected.

It's at its worst with Jean Kelly, who plays the teenage brat queen. She looks at everybody with Clint Eastwood eyes. John HOME IMPROVEMENT is just one of John Candy's myriad talents as the crass, crude Uncle Buck, who is entrusted with the care of his nieces and nephew during a family crisis.

Hughes chooses to make her battle with Buck the main conflict. Groan.

Kelly's not a bad performer, and there are a few funny moments when Buck intimidates her boyfriend, Bug (Jay Underwood). Candy has some good bits, of course. It's impossible to smother him, though Hughes (who also directed) does his best.

It's not just the artificial tear-jerker ending that makes it bad.

It's the insults to viewers' intelligence. Hughes allows moments of fantasy to enter the script. Buck does impossible things, things that would get him arrested in real life.

When these elements are mixed in, the audience reacts as if things aren't realistic. That's fine. But then Hughes turns around and says sorry, I expect you to care about these characters and wipe away a tear at the poignant moments. That's an insult. Hiss.

"Uncle Buck" is playing at the Gateway Center. The rating is PG.

New cafe will open soon

The vacant restaurant site in the Federal Way Shopping Center that most recently housed the 3 Pigs Barbecue will be occupied by a pasta restaurant called Cafe Pacific.

Owners John Hatcher and Amy Kay Hatcher have applied for a liquor license, and will have a menu by the scheduled Sept. 1 opening. John Hatcher is a locally-based chef.

Frank Mudrovich, manager of the Federal Way Shopping Center, said the 3 Pigs did not leave because of a lack of clientele. "They really were doing OK," he said.

The owners of the 3 Pigs were interested in creating a chain of the barbecue restaurants, and obtained permission from the owner of the original 3 Pigs in Burien to use his recipes.

Mudrovich said the franchise "went through venture capital and just were not able to do it successfully." He cited lack of funds as the primary reason.

"It was a good idea that just never quite got off the ground," said Mudrovich.

Child protection Act could outlaw some mainstream videos

A little-known provision in the Child Protection and Obscenity Enforcement Act of 1988 could drastically limit the types of movies stocked by video stores.

Starting Aug. 17, videocassettes that a U.S. attorney thinks depict "sexually explicit conduct" will have to carry information identifying the performers, and the tape duplicator must have that same information on file, according to the recently passed bill. If those records are absent, prosecutors can assume the performers in the movie are underage, and that the store or duplicator is breaking the law.

Since these records are not available for most movies already in circulation, the statute could effectively outlaw not only much of the existing X-rated material but some mainstream movies as well. When a similar ordinance was passed in North Carolina in 1985, some video stores in the state pulled, at least temporarily, such movies as "Animal House," "Splash" and "Risky Business."

Video Review

A coalition of nine publishing communications associations, which has filed suit to have these record-keeping provisions declared unconstitutional, compiled a preliminary list of 33 U.S. and foreign movies that could be affected by the legislation. Among them are such home-video favorites as "Bachelor Party," "Blue Velvet," "Ragtime" and even "Kramer vs. Kramer."

"Another Woman"

(Orion Cassette, Hi-Fi mono, $89.95)

Woody Allen's newest "serious" movie is a searing drama about a woman at a crossroads in her life, searching her soul for answers that may not be there.

Gena Rowlands gives the kind of memorable performance Oscar nominators seem to overlook every year. She plays a psychologist who's rented an apartment away from her home to work on a book. But she stops to ponder her own dreary life and starts to eavesdrop on conversation from a neighboring psychiatrist's office. Mia Farrow is the patient whose own tormented life most concerns the good-hearted but neurotic Rowlands.

Writer-director Allen, who does not appear in this movie, explores fascinatingly the disparate paths people's lives can take — and how a combination of fate and choices determine our everyday existence. Rowlands, involved in a sad marriage to a pompous husband, is the object of affection of a would-be suitor (Gene Hackman); while going over the paths her life has taken, she temporarily transfers her own sadness to Farrow.

As usual, Allen has assembled an eclectic cast, including Philip Bosco as Rowlands' first husband, Ian Holm as her current spouse and Sandy Dennis as a long-lost, embittered friend. He's juggled all of them with incredible skill. Under Allen's direction, Rowlands, in particular, gives a compassionate, sensitive portrayal of a quietly desperate woman, fearful of facing the realization that her life has been a failure. It's another major triumph for this under-appreciated actress.

"Another Woman" is not a conventional sort of movie. It explores deep emotions, sensitive observations and touching interpersonal relationships. We wish there were more movies such as this one.

Jeffrey Lyons

"A Taxing Woman"

(Fox/Lorber cassette, Hi-Fi stereo, in Japanese with English subtitles, $79.95)

Next to movie reviewers, tax collectors are perhaps the most reviled people in society. After all, they're trying to take away our hard-earned money. Right?

This is where Japanese writer-director Juzo Itami's comedic analysis of our attitudes toward taxes begins. His heroine is Ryoko (Nobuko Miyamoto), an irrepressible, innocuous-looking tax inspector with a cowlick. The first we see of her, she's sitting at an outdoor cafe, not soaking up the sun, but furtively counting the customers and watching the cash register. Ryoko's an incorruptible revenue-service superhero, able to catch tax scofflaws in a single audit.

The villain is Gondo (Tsumoto Vamazaki), who challenges the tax collectors to catch him. For Gondo, sex is just foreplay to money-making. At one point, he begins to seduce his secretary by tallying up the day's receipts, reaching his figurative climax when he receives a stock tip.

It's comedy — and truly entertaining comedy at that — but it's also social commentary. Itami intentionally blurs the distinction between honest citizen and criminal: Ryoko pursues hard-working families with the same ardor she does mob bosses, and Gondo the gangster is more businessman than thief. The revenue service stakes out and raids suspects as if they were major heroin dealers, and the soundtrack and noirish tint of the movie contribute to the ironic parallel with cops-and-robbers pictures. But the haul here is money, not drugs.

What hurt this movie in its theatrical release was the unfortunate comparison (encouraged by the ad campaign) to "Tampopo," Itami's earlier success in this country. But "A Taxing Woman" contains more black comedy than ribald wit, which may have disappointed some "Tampopo" fans. It would be a mistake, however, to pass it by on videocassette.

LISA HOLM (left) and Robin Downey are Out of the Blue, a jazz duo that will play at the Milton Days celebration Sunday. They play guitar and piano and sing.

Milton fest features varied entertainment

Music, food and entertainment for children will keep Milton residents and visitors busy Sunday when the city celebrates its annual Milton Days Festival.

The Edgewood/Milton Lions Club will start the day with a pancake breakfast from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the community center. The menu will feature pancakes, bacon, sausage, eggs, juice and coffee for $2.50.

The community center is at 1400 15th Ave.

The rest of the day's events will continue in Triangle Park at 9:30 a.m. Entertainment sponsored by the Pierce County Arts Commission and Victory Music will feature the popular children's entertainer Jim Valley. Women, Women and Song, a women's vocal trio from Vashon Island, will perform its version of folk and contemporary music, and Robert Englebert will play with his country band.

Also scheduled are Dave and Cindy Heflick, who perform children's folk music, Out of the Blue, a women's contemporary and jazz duo, and the Jay Mabin-Howard Shanzer Jazz Quartet. Beefy the Balloon Clown will entertain kids with his balloon sculptures.

From 1-3 p.m., the U.S. Air Force Band will send Northwoods to play to Milton audiences. Northwoods is a small band that plays popular music.

The Puget Sound Button Box Accordion Group will perform from 3:30-4:30 p.m., and world weight-lifting champion Jeff MacGruder will give weight-lifting demonstrations from 1-4 p.m.

To top off the day, the annual Milton Days picnic will offer hamburgers, corn-on-the-cob, baked beans, coffee, juice and ice cream from 1-4 p.m. The picnic is free to Milton residents.

In addition to the entertainment and festivities, residents will have the opportunity to meet and talk with many candidates for mayor and city council.

If you would like more information about the celebration or would like to volunteer to be a clown for the day, call Ginny McDonald at 922-9258.

'Angry Housewives' takes to streets

In an effort to burn off a little extra steam, the four blockbusting hausfrau from "Angry Housewives" will belt it out at Broadway Market on Saturday, Aug. 19, between 3 and 4 p.m. for all the world to see.

The public performance of the songs from the Pioneer Square Theater's 6-years-in-the-running hit musical will feature a cast in full regalia. Devotees and the uninitiated alike will be delighted to see this famous act for free.

Meanwhile, "Angry

Housewives" continues at the Pioneer Square Theater's mainstage at 512 Second Avenue. Showtimes are Thursday through Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 7 p.m. For tickets or information, call the box office at 622-2016 or Ticketmaster at 628-0888.

"THE ABYSS"
James Cameron, director of "The Terminator" and "Aliens," has come up with the rarest of combinations: A special-effects movie with a plot. "The Abyss" concerns a group of commercial divers recruited to save a foundering nuclear submarine. They find a good deal more. The writing is good, the acting excellent, and the effects are superlative. Even though the ending is overdone, "The Abyss" is a visual treat, with a good deal of suspense thrown in. Playing at Gateway Center. Rated PG-13.

"BATMAN"
Devotees of the Dark Knight will have minor quibbles with Tim Burton's vision of the Caped Crusader, but not many. Though he's too gadget-oriented and not much of an athlete, this Batman is the grim creature of the night envisioned by his creator, Bob Kane. The effects are tremendous, and rescue a mediocre plot, highlighted by a forced and unnecessary love story. Michael Keaton brings an interesting quirkiness to Batman's character. There may be too much of Jack Nicholson's Joker, but so what? He's brilliant. Rated PG-13. Playing at SeaTac South.

"LICENCE TO KILL"
The title of the latest 007 thriller refers not to a licence to kill but the absence of a licence to kill. Our hero is on probation for taking the wedding night attack of his friend Felix seriously. Stripped of his special privileges by M. Bond goes after the banana republic drug lord behind the dastardly deed. There's no shortage of action in this film, but it's too graphic. The film is missing something — a sense of humor. Bond films aren't fun because people die horrible deaths in them, they're fun because they're silly. Maybe that's inappropriate for a film with such a strong anti-drug message, but the new Bond, Timothy Dalton, left his sense of humor on the dock. "Licence to Kill" is rated PG-13 and is showing at the SeaTac North Theaters.

"WHEN HARRY MET SALLY"
Director Rob Reiner has given moviegoers treat: His perception of male/female relationships is realistic, sometimes gritty, and almost always hilarious. Billy Crystal and Meg Ryan are wonderful as who start out hating each other, forget each other, then survive years of platonic friendship, and eventually...well, see the film for yourself. Playing at SeaTac North. It's rated R.

"DEAD POET'S SOCIETY"
Imagine, if you can, Robin Williams underplaying a role and you have a thoughtful, poignant portrayal in a thoughtful, poignant film. Williams takes a back seat to his students as a free-thinking nonconformist literature teacher at a stuffy, staid conformist New England prep school. The film is bright, uplifting and tragic as it extols the virtues and dangers of the motto, carpe diem, or seize the day. Rated PG. It is playing at Gateway Center.

"INDIANA JONES AND THE LAST CRUSADE"
"Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" won't disappoint devotees of the George Lucas/Steven Spielberg hero. The inimitable Indy (Harrison Ford) gets tangled up with Nazis, religious fanatics, and his own father (Sean Connery) while searching for the legendary Holy Grail. The plot is thin, the action predictable and the suspense non-existent, but the stunts are routinely breath-taking, and Connery adds some spice to the formula mix. Rated PG-13. "Indiana Jones" is playing at SeaTac North.

"PARENTHOOD"
It isn't easy to make movies about family life without descending into the syrup-laden well of sentimentality. "Parenthood" manages to avoid all the cliches that generate labels like "the feelgood movie of the summer." It features an excellent ensemble cast, nifty plot twists, crisp direction of a good screenplay by Ron Howard, and the best performance of Steve Martin's career. It's also very funny. "Parenthood" is playing at SeaTac North. The rating is PG-13, for mild swearing and some double entendres.

Culture shock

English students from Tokyo pay a visit to Our Saviour's

By WENDY CULVERWELL
The Rev. George Gulian wasn't sure he would be able to share "the worst thing that ever happened to him" with his 16 visitors from Japan.

After all, the worst thing that ever happened to him was having a shell land next to him when he was a forward observer in the field artillery in the Philippines during World War II. A Japanese shell, of course.

But that question and others were being answered by Americans and Japanese alike in conversational English lessons, so the associate pastor of Our Saviour's Baptist Church went ahead with his story.

Gulian walked away from the shell a little dirty, but otherwise unharmed. He even saved the charge he found at the bottom of the bomb crater. He showed it to his guests.

"God spared my life years ago so that I might tell you about Jesus," he said.

"It went over very well," he said later.

It's been a long time since Gulian fought the Japanese — long enough that when the Rev. Richard Massey, Our Saviour's senior pastor, asked him to coordinate a Japanese homestay program, Gulian quickly agreed.

"When Christ comes into a person's heart, you cannot hate anyone and still be a follower," he explained.

OUR SAVIOUR'S welcomed 16 Japanese visitors two weeks ago. They are staying with American families, mostly members of the church. They visited Mount Rainier and St. Helens, toured local businesses, and have eaten at every American fast-food establishment imaginable — Taco Time, Dairy Queen, and even McDonald's, which has restaurants all over Tokyo.

And don't forget the shopping — "Shop 'til you drop" was how Massey described what happens every time the visitors spot a store. Given the strength of the Japanese yen to the American dollar, almost any purchase is a steal.

"I don't know if they'll be able to get back on the plane," Massey joked.

Two sets of Japanese visitors are in the United States at the moment. Or at least, two that were assembled from English classes offered in Tokyo by Christian churches. The other group, which has a decidedly lower average age, is in Los Angeles, taking in such sights as Disneyland and the beach.

Gulian speculated that his group of mostly middle-age visitors were more interested in the Washington landscape than Mickey Mouse and sunbans.

The visitors have spent most of their mornings in English classes at Our Saviour's, followed by special chapel programs. During last week's day-long excursion to Mount Rainier, English classes were taught at Paradise Inn. The group also toured the Boeing Co. and Weyerhaeuser corporate headquarters here in Federal Way. The most looked-forward to activity, though, was Wednesday's trip to Seattle for the Mariners-Texas Rangers game.

"They are SO excited about that," Gulian said on Tuesday. He got box seats on the third-base side for them. The Mariners won, 2-0.

THE BAPTIST General Conference, of which Our Saviour's is a member, has sponsored missionary work in Japan since the close of World War II, and has about 15 churches in the Tokyo metropolitan area. Those churches offer English classes, which are popular with Christians and non-Christians alike. The tour group is made up of students from those classes.

Of the 16, three consider themselves Christians and the remainder are Buddhist. But the purpose of the English lessons and the homestay program isn't to evangelize the Japanese, Gulian said.

"This is a means of exposing the Japanese people to English and to the Bible," he said. "We don't pressure the Japanese."

Gulian explained that Americans are often confused

WHEN IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE, GOD HELPS YOU MAKE IT
Once in a while, we all have to make a change of some kind. It might be the retirement from a job of long standing, a move to a different area, or any number of other things. Whatever it is, you will be starting a new chapter in your life, and you must adopt a cheerful and constructive attitude about it. There is no better time than this to start or continue to attend your House of Worship, or if the change is geographical, to find a new one. The comforting word of God will help you bring order and serenity into the present chaos of your life, and point you in some positive directions. You are always where God wants you to be, and He will move you when the time comes. Thus, an apparent catastrophe can prove to be a blessing in the long run.
...hope for the best, and trust in God. — Sydney Smith by the Japanese language, in which "yes" (hai) is said to express understanding, not necessarily agreement. Americans hear "hai" and think they are being agreed with, and that isn't really the case.

"They'll seem to agree with you even if they don't mean to," Gulian said. For Gulian, the Japanese visit offered an opportunity to clear up a 40-year mystery. Stationed in Japan after the war, he lived with a Japanese family. When he left, the family presented him with a Japanese flag on which they wrote good tidings. Though he had a general idea of what they wrote, Gulian never had an exact translation.

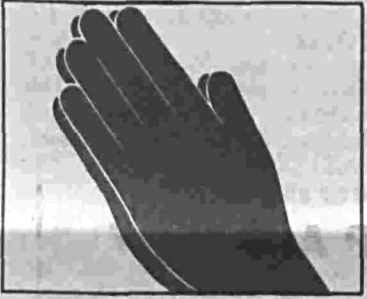

One traveler translated the writing for him, and it turned out that in addition to the good tidings, each member of the family had signed the flag.

ALTHOUGH ENGLISH is widely taught in Japan, the members of the group in Federal Way were more comfortable reading it than speaking it. Talking to them was difficult at best, and a reporter's 10 or so words of Japanese didn't go very far.

One misunderstanding was cleared up, though — "o-hi-o" is Japanese for "good morning" and "ko-nish-i-wa" is the word for "good afternoon."

Those salutations also are the Japanese way of saying "hello" and "goodbye," which is what American hosts and Japanese guests will be bidding one another Sunday at Sea-Tac Airport.

Gulian hopes that this group will be the first of many.

(chemicals) than you absolutely need, it's dangerous," said Schow. "To my knowledge, never once was a field sprayed twice with this. Every bit of it was blasted right down in the foliage."

The Rocket has two booms that give it a 50-foot wingspan. When it cruised through the fields, the chemicals were shot from sprayers attached to the booms, and forced directly and evenly into the ground. Keeping the operation on terra firma made crop-dusting less of an adventure.

"It's a lot safer than a plane," said Schow. "Flying a plane 4 or 5 feet off the ground is a pretty dangerous way to make a living."

It was faster than a plane as well. Schow recalled a day when he took up the gauntlet and challenged a pilot. There was a mishap.

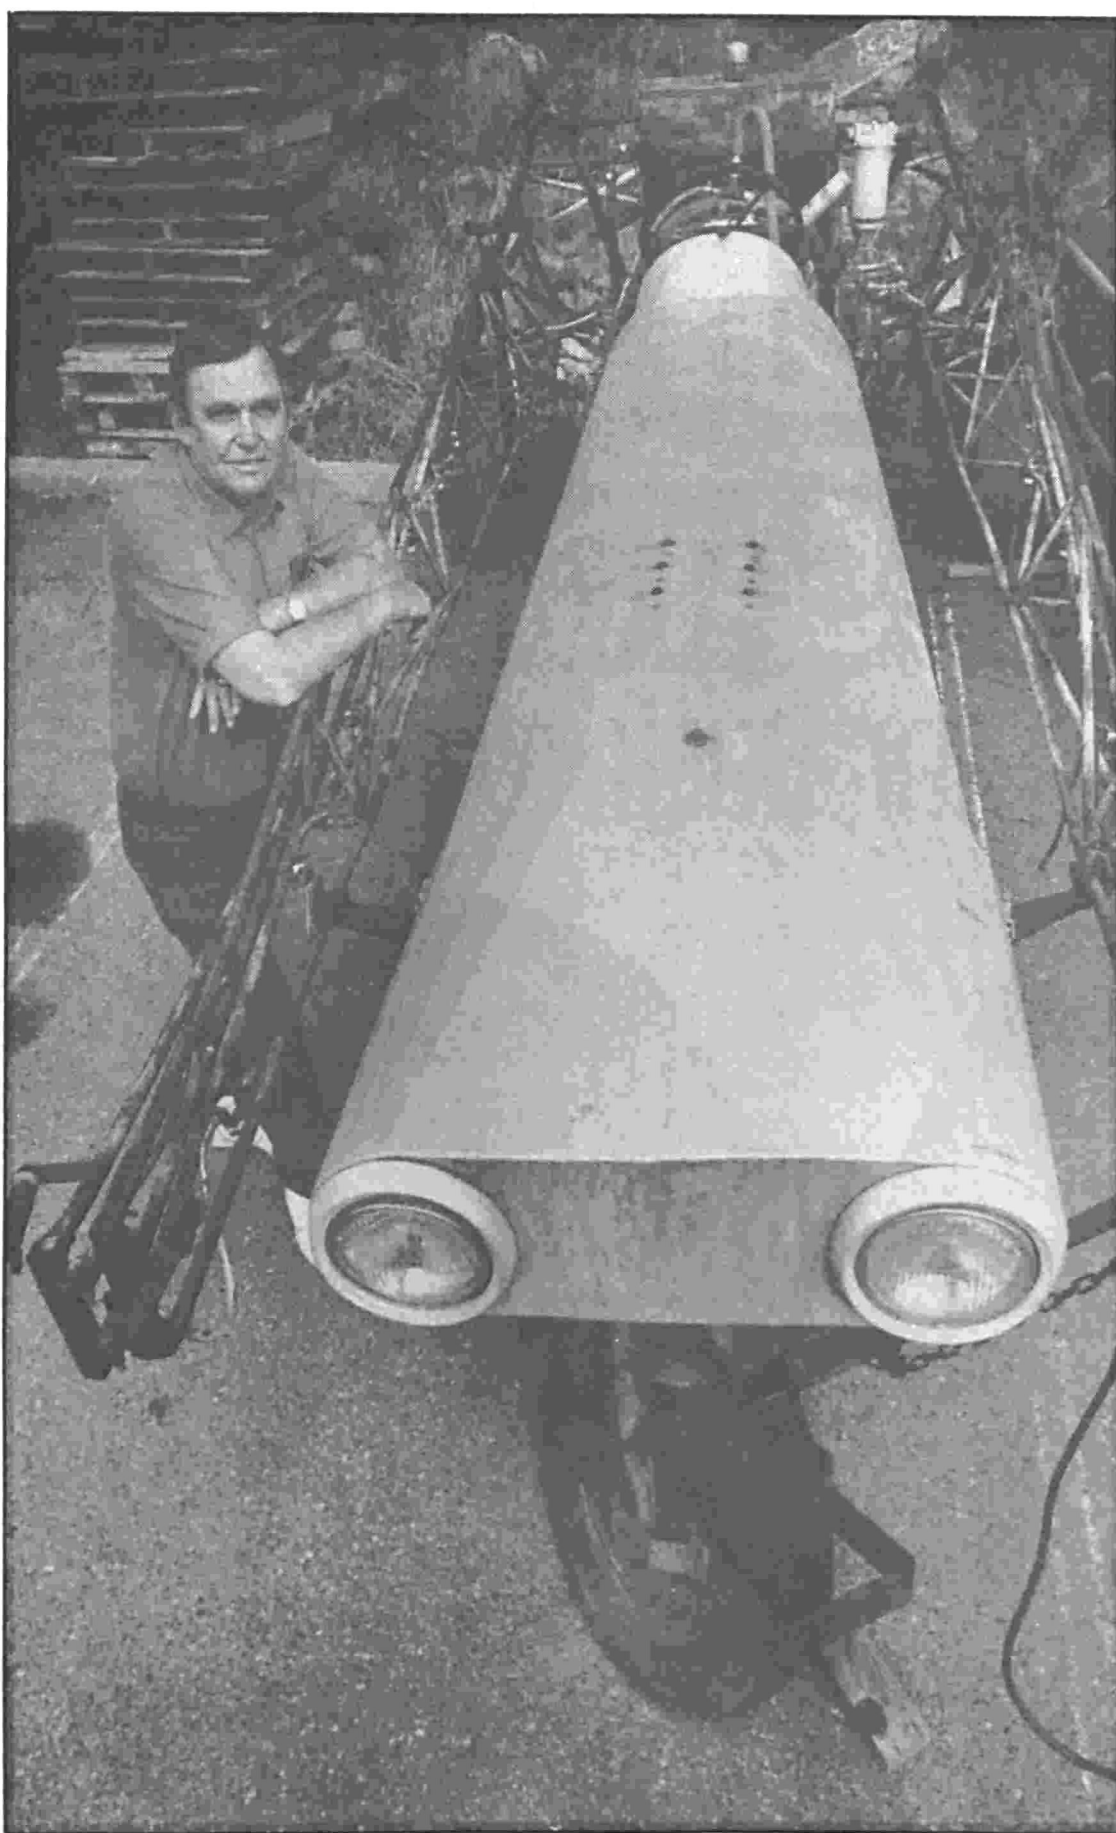

"I was racing a plane in Texas once, and busted a strut off the back wheel," he said. "And I was winning, too."

Though The Rocket was designed to be the wave of the future, it never took off. "We had the same problem as Boeing," said Schow. "You know, cracks in the skin."

It required constant care, and the fragility made the upkeep impractical. It went through a propeller every two or three days. "It's just one of the little entrepreneur ventures that never made it big," he said.

But it's still an eye-catcher. A passing driver spotted it and stopped to gawk. "Excuse me, what is that thing?" he said. Informed by Schow, he drove on, satisfied.

Schow doesn't know what he's going to do with The Rocket. His father had him bring it west in the faint hope that someone might be interested in manufacturing it. He said he's thought about painting it and entering parades, but it's been sitting in its parking space since 1977.

Still, it has nostalgic value. "This kind of brings back some old memories," said

Schow. "Eventually, this'll be a piece of history that won't be written down anywhere."

Accused rapist pleads innocent

A 28-year-old West Campus man entered a plea of innocent on Tuesday to charges of attempted murder, kidnap, rape and robbery involving a 15-year-old girl.

Carl William Klusman appeared before King County Superior Court Judge Carmen Otero to face charges stemming from an attack on the girl in the West Campus area early last week.

Otero ordered Klusman held in King County jail on bail of $1 million.

Klusman is accused of grabbing the girl as she walked along a trail, dragging her into the bushes, holding a knife to her and raping her. He is also charged with stabbing the girl in the abdomen when she struggled to get away.

News Digest

In documents filed with King County Superior Court, prosecutors say that Klusman kept a journal in which he wrote of his fantasies to rape and kill someone.

Klusman's next pretrial hearing is set for Aug. 31.

Suit surprises college

Officials at Highline Community College said they were "completely caught by surprise" by a lawsuit filed against the school in which an employee claimed her supervisor had referred to her as "the wife of the Green River murderer."

Fay McLean, wife of Ernest "Bill" McLean, accused her supervisor of introducing her on two separate occasions as the wife of the Green River murderer.

Ernest McLean, a Riverton Heights resident, was the subject of an intense investigation by the Green River Task Force in Feb., 1986. No charges were ever filed against McLean in relation to that case.

Dr. Ed Command, vice president of the college, said he would wait until the employee named in the lawsuit returns from vacation next month before deciding what steps to take on the lawsuit.

Command said this was the first time his college had been hit with a suit of this type.

"Usually employees go through our regular grievance procedure before doing something like this," he said. "But, it's not something I'm going to spend a lot of time worrying about right now."

In the lawsuit, McLean claims she and her husband suffered damage to their reputation as well as pain and mental anguish from the introductions, which "held them up to public ridicule, scorn and hatred."

The suit asks for unspecified damages.

the incinerator, if it has indeed taken every precaution, as Sutherland said it has. Completion of an EIS would be a good-faith effort and cover all the city's bases, some suggested.

When pressed on that point, Sutherland had no response, although he earlier said the city has nothing to fear from an EIS.

HE ALSO admitted that the city erred in the early stages of the incinerator planning, by not including the public. "As a result, some citizens have gotten a little more concerned than they need to be."

The only citizen to speak at the press conference was Jim Bargelt, a Northeast Tacoma resident. When he raised his hand to ask Sutherland a question, the mayor asked which media he represented. Bargelt retorted, "The Norpoint Booster News."

Bargelt accused the mayor of being "so paranoid about lawsuits, you're hiding behind this (EIS)...Now you're talking about forcing the ratepayers to come up with $5 million because you're afraid of an EIS."

At that point, a Sutherland aide quickly put an end to the press conference.

The DOE has been considering the extension of Tacoma's grant for the past two months, said Terry Husseman, assistant director for waste management. He said public concern over the incinerator was taken into consideration when making the decision, and played a role in putting new conditions on the grant, specifically, the EIS.

The EIS should bring everything out in the open and allay any fears the public might still have, Husseman said.

The DOE never has refused an extension, he added, and it also never has called a press conference to announce one. But citizen and media attention focused on this project seemed to warrant a public announcement, he said.

HUSSEMAN ALSO said the DOE has tried to stay out of the middle of a local issue and not let the grant money become a deciding factor. But that apparently could be the case. Sutherland's comments sounded like a threat to citizens that if they hold up the incinerator with demands for an EIS, they may end up footing more of the bill for the $43 million project.

Other requirements attached to the grant extension include an additional health-risk assessment study with two new air-testing stations, one for stack emissions and one for ambient air quality.

The DOE does not expect to find any hazards, Husseman said, and these extra tests are expected to prove that.

Another requirement calls for a curbside recycling program by July 1, 1991 and an ongoing household hazardous waste collection program available year-around. Related to that is a program to separate heavy metal sources, such as lead acid batteries and other small batteries.

The original grant stipulated that the money must be used on a waste management project. The city says the plant will not only burn garbage to extend the life of the landfill, but coal and wood as well, to generate steam and produce electricity. The DOE now says that at least 15 percent of what is burned must be garbage, although that figure will be negotiable if recycling efforts reduce the need to burn garbage, Husseman said.

THE DOE also said Tacoma must use special handling of incinerator ash to protect workers, public health and the environment.

Sutherland said the city already has done those things or is planning to do them. It even has allocated money to perform an EIS if it becomes necessary.

The DOE extension agreement will be studied by the city and voted on by the council, but an acceptance of the agreement could be three to six weeks off, Sutherland said. The council does not meet again until Aug. 29.

In the meantime, the $5 million in grant money is safe, Husseman said. Once authorized, the money can't be taken away unless the city does not meet the state's requirements.

Buchholz assumes new role at stadium

Former coach steps in as activities director

By CHUCK MINGORI

Carl Buchholz had an idea he was going to be in for a busy time when he visited the Federal Way School District activities office in June.

Although his contract with the Federal Way School District as the incoming activities director did not begin until July 1, Buchholz stopped in early to get a feel for his new position. But he soon was greeted by a coach who wanted to tell him about five problems that needed to be solved.

"I knew right off what it was going to be like," said Buchholz, who already is busy on the job even though the start of fall do sports turnouts not begin until Monday. "But it's an interesting job, there's so many aspects you have to deal with."

Buchholz is replacing Gary Brines, who was the interim director since the post was vacated two years ago by Duane Hammil, now principal at Decatur.

Brines was an applicant for the permanent activities director job last spring, but Buchholz was selected. Brines had a chance to go back into teaching at the junior high level, but turned down that offer.

He is planning to do some work for the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association and pursue private business opportunities.

Buchholz will probably spend most of his time dealing with athletic matters, but he points out that non-sports activities will also fall under his jurisdiction.

As Buchholz explains, his job description basically involves overseeing all of the activity programs in the Federal Way School District.

Buchholz is particularly fond of the elementary track program.

"Those people get more participation probably than anybody else," he said. "There are so many kids involved. It's not tremendous competition, but they have a great time."

BUCHHOLZ ALSO has a great time when dealing with athletics. As many in the school district are aware, he has been involved with activities at the stadium for about 15 years. That's how long he and Dallas Chestnut have split duties as game managers, supervising the use of the field during games there.

He also has worked numerous track meets over the years, having started under former Federal Way School District Athletic Director Bud Hatley.

"I guess I've just been around athletics, involved in lots of different aspects for a long time," he said.

Buchholz has been easy to spot as the starter for track and cross country meets at the stadium. He's the guy wearing a colored beanie with a whirlybird on top.

"Sports and activities should be fun," he said, explaining his playful headgear. "It's also a good way to be identified. If they're trying to find me, it's easy to spot."

Buchholz may no longer be the starter at meets, though.

"This job involves a lot of meetings," he said. "I'm not sure I'll have time to do it."

IN ADDITION to being the starter at meets, Buchholz previously was head basketball coach and assistant football coach at Totem and head basketball coach at Decatur until 1983. Buchholz has taught in the Federal Way School District since 1971 and was a social studies teacher at Decatur for the past 14 years. He served several years as department chairman at Decatur, where he was a driving force behind the award-winning global studies program.

Buchholz admits moving out of the classroom will take some getting used to. School hasn't even started yet and he already has found the activities office to be a "lonely place."

"I'm sure I'll miss the kids," he said.

Buchholz doesn't expect to make the transition from teacher to administrator overnight.

"It's going to take probably a couple years to get real competent at it," he said. "It's a big job. There are a lot of different aspects to this job that I haven't done before."

EVEN ON A day that he said wasn't especially busy, Buchholz was interrupted during an interview several times by telephone calls to deal with school district business.

As he explained, the activities director requires a lot of problem solving. He said people often call him up to say they need something done, and they need it done soon.

Buchholz has some things he would like to get done as well. One of his big concerns is "increasing activities for students at all levels from elementary through high school."

"We need more activities for lower levels, especially," he added.

Buchholz would like to offer more "lifetime activities," such as golf, running, aerobics and perhaps boating.

"Things you do when you're 40 or 50," he said.

Besides athletics, the new activities director would like to see a recreation program developed between the schools and the city in the summer, especially for little kids. It could be as simple as having a supervisor running a playground at an elementary school, organizing a softball or kickball game or setting up hobby-type activities, such as braiding or macrame.

BUCHHOLZ REALIZES that adding new activities and programs will not be as easy as it sounds. Money and having the proper facilities are the two biggest obstacles.

"We have a lot of people interested in expanding programs, but getting money is always difficult," he said.

As a person who enjoys all kinds of outdoor activities, Buchholz would also like to see the school district's site at Five Mile Lake turned into a possible outdoor recreation center.

Students should appreciate the activities that are available to them now, though.

"We have lots of opportunities that other (countries) don't have," said Buchholz. "Students very often don't realize it is a privilege rather than a right to participate in activities. We put a lot of money into activities for kids."

Brines offers parting advice

By CHUCK MINGORI

Gary Brines, former activities director of the Federal Way School District, has expressed some concern about the possible direction of the Federal Way School District's junior high school athletic program.

"I'm very hopeful that those people in the community who believe in competitive athletics keep a watchful eye on what happens as far as the interscholastic athletic programs are concerned both at the junior high and high school levels," said Brines, a former head basketball coach at Federal Way who served as the interim activities director the last two years before Carl Buchholz was hired to fill the post permanently last spring.

"There are some people in the district in leadership positions who have indicated they may prefer an intramural-based program instead of a competitive-based program, particularly at the junior high level," said Brines.

Brines is especially worried about creating an intramural program in lieu of the competitive athletic program at this time since the South Puget Sound League has accepted the Kent and Auburn high schools, which are extremely competitive at the junior high level.

"If anything we need to expand our junior high athletic programs and strive for excellence and not a middle of the league finish," he said. "We have the coaches and we have the athletes. We need the training to compete."

BUCHHOLZ, IN response to Brines' statements concerning the junior high athletic program, said, "I don't know where he got that impression. I haven't heard a thing about that."

Buchholz did say that the school district is going to try to add some intramural programs at the junior high level, but that would be in addition to the current sports program currently offered in the junior high schools.

Junior high school sports have a four-sport season. Each sport runs nine weeks. The fall season includes football for boys and softball for girls. In December, a season begins for boys' wrestling and girls' basketball. Starting in February is boys' basketball and gymnastics for girls, while the spring season includes volleyball for girls and baseball for boys and track for both boys and girls.

Brines said he doesn't want to see the Federal Way schools do what other districts have done and switch to a middle-school program with sixth-, seventh- and eighth-graders attending school at the same building and competing on an intramural basis.

"I just don't want to see the same thing happen out here that happened in Tacoma and Seattle," said Brines. "I wouldn't want to see the district think that's the direction to go and still compete in the SPSSL."

BRINES WORKED in the Federal Way School District for 26 years.

He came to Federal Way High School during the 1962-63 school year and originally was hired as an assistant football coach and

Woman's team wins state title

The Just For Jockettes women's slowpitch softball team from Federal Way captured first place at the United States Slowpitch Softball Association (USSSA) state "E" tournament held in Bremerton at the Kitsap County Fairgrounds.

Whistler can be an attractive summer destination

Now that we're in the hottest month of the year, the idea of visiting a ski resort may be the farthest thing from your mind. But it shouldn't be, given the year-round appeal of an area like Whistler, British Columbia.

Most skiers know about Whistler, one of the premiere ski areas in North America. With two world-class mountains, Whistler and Blackcomb, the area attracts all levels of skiers from the U.S. and Canada. The Seattle area, in fact, is a major market for the Whistler Resort Association.

What many people don't realize, however, is how attractive Whistler can be as a summer destination. Located in a beautiful mountain setting about a 90-minute drive north of Vancouver, Whistler has the scenery and setting of a state or national park, but with luxury accommodations, fine restaurants and good shopping, to boot.

117 Ski Runs

Part of the reason Whistler remains popular as a ski resort is that there are 117 ski runs on the two major mountains. A European-inspired village is at the base of Whistler Mountain,

Exploring the Northwest

by Cary Ordway

featuring enclosed plazas, shops, restaurants and accommodations.

Altogether there are 26 lodges, hotels, inns and condominiums in the village, another 12 lodges in the surrounding countryside. Most of the accommodations are complete with kitchens — excellent for vacation living, be it winter or summer.

The same resort infrastructure that makes Whistler an excellent ski destination also makes it ideal for summer. Accommodations and amenities remain the same, only the activities have been changed.

Some gondolas and chairlifts are operational in summer. The Whistler Express gondola takes vacationers 4,000 feet above Whistler Village where they can relax on a patio in the sun, or do a little hiking or walking through the alpine meadows. Blackcomb Mountain offers rides on its covered "quad" chairlifts from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily. On top, you can take a free walking tour with a naturalist.

If you forget for a moment that this is a famous ski resort, consider that Whistler also offers championship golf. The 18-hole course was designed by Arnold Palmer and various golf tournament packages are available.

Many Activities

Another popular activity at Whistler is mountain biking, a fairly strenuous but rewarding sport that is growing in popularity throughout the Northwest. Guided bicycle tours are available, and mountain bikes can be rented at a number of shops in or near the village.

Tennis is available on several public courts as well as private courts operated by many of the Whistler-area hotels.

Water sports are everywhere you look, from the public beaches at several nearby lakes to the river rafting offered on the area's rivers. Several companies offer boating, windsurfing, canoeing, kayaking and sailing.

If you can't go to a ski resort without skiing — even in summer — there's that, too. Summer ski camps are offered both on Blackcomb and Whistler, where high glaciers allow year-round skiing.

A lot of people however, visit Whistler just to relax. Strolling through the village, enjoying the many pubs and restaurants, are activities just as popular in summer as winter.

Numerous events are held at Whistler — something big is going on just about any given weekend — and you can watch mimes, jugglers, musicians and other entertainers in the open-air courtyards of Whistler Village.

All in 11 Years

It's interesting that Whistler's reputation as a world-class resort area has all been created mostly within the past 11 years.

Until 1911, the area was unknown to anyone but the fur trappers and prospectors who lived in this remote area. A summer fishing resort, Rainbow Lodge, was opened in 1914 and grew to be one of British Columbia's favorite resorts until it closed in 1945.

The railroad helped the area grow, while logging operations brought more families to the region. Additional summer resorts began to open in the 1930s and 40s.

Finally, in the early 60s, a group of Vancouver B.C. businessmen joined together to build a ski lift and promote the area to B.C. skiers. In February 1966, the area adopted the Whistler name and, about 10 years later, the municipal government came up with a plan to convert the area to a four-season vacation destination.

The master plan was based on successful North American resorts such as Aspen and Vail. More acreage was purchased and a federal provincial development loan for $10.4 million was used to begin construction of the European-style Whistler Village in 1978.

In the early 80s, Whistler Village Land Company experienced financial problems and, in 1982, a crown corporation, WCL Development, was created to take over the assets of Whistler Village Land. By 1984, Whistler was attracting international business through marketing efforts that have continually grown in sophistication.

Tracksters place at nationals

Darryl Russell of the Federal Way Track Club captured first place in the boys' 13-14 200 meters, while fellow track club teammate Nikina Thomas came in sixth in the girls' 13-14 100-meter dash during the Hershey National Finals held in Hershey, Pa.

Nikina Thomas

Russell, from Kent, was clocked at 24.46 to place first in his 200-meter race at the national track meet last week. Russell also had been part of a local relay team that finished sixth at the TAC Junior Olympic track nationals in Spokane earlier.

Thomas finished sixth in her 100-meter dash at the Hershey nationals on a slippery and wet track surface with a time of 13.97. Thomas said times in the meet were well below par due to inclement weather.

"The track was real wet and slippery," said Thomas. "The girl who won ran a 13.14 and she's used to running 11.9s. In the book they had her down for 11.9."

For Thomas, this has been a busy summer. The Illahee Junior High School student, who will be a ninth-grader in the fall, has run in three national track meets this summer as well as the many qualifying meets leading up to nationals.

"This is the busiest summer I've ever had," she said.

Thomas also ran in the TAC Jr. Olympic nationals and placed second with a local relay team. Thomas followed up her trip to Spokane with a visit to Arco nationals in Los Angeles, Calif.

THOMAS, WHO maintains a 3.60 GPA in the classroom and was the recipient of a $2,500 Arco/Jesse Owens Games Scholarship for an essay she wrote, took second at the Arco nationals in the 100 meters with a time of 13.31.

Travis Henry of Federal Way, who was on the same relay team as Russell that placed sixth at the TAC Junior Olympic nationals in Spokane, also placed second at Arco Nationals in the boys' 100 meters with a time of 12.11.

The largest number of medals in the state at Arco nationals went to South King County athletes.

Sarna Renfro of Federal Way took first in the 1,500 meter competition in 5:11.50; Alisha Simmons of Kent took second in the 400 meters at 1:07.85; Cheniqua Wiley of Kent placed first in the 100 meters with a time of 13.54; Leland Gayles of Renton finished second in the 200 meters at 26.79; and Alain Fett of Kent took sixth in the long jump with a mark of 12 feet, 5½ inches.

Martial arts club wins team award

The Federal Way Academy of Martial Arts captured its 10th outstanding dojo award in the last three years during the Robert Edwards Summer Finals karate tournament last Saturday at Wilson High School.

Outstanding dojo awards go to the club with the most individual awards won at martial arts tournaments.

The Academy of Martial Arts, whose club director is Claire Austria, has seen its trophy total grow from an estimated 41 to the current figure of approximately 450 since 1986.

One club member grabbing one of the trophies last weekend in kata (forms) division was Ricky Ramono in the 6-and-Under category with a first-place finish.

First place in the pee wee novice division went to Neesha Thomas in kata. The 8-year-old Thomas also claimed first in the fighting competition as well.

In the junior advanced division, Nathan Jones took first place in kata. The purple belt competitor snared a second-place prize in fighting.

Taking first place in the women's beginner competition was Joyce Liberty in kata.

First place in colored belt kata went to Amber Oedewald.

Rob Reeder grabbed a first in men's beginner.

In the junior black belt competition for youngsters 15 and Under, 9-year-old Misha La-Point claimed a second-place trophy in kata. She has been a member of the club for 5½ years.

Misha's mother, Daisy, added a second place finish in the brown belt women's division.

In the junior novice division, Andy Dong claimed second in kata.

Scott Hainline came away with a second-place trophy in the full contact fighting competition for white and yellow belt competitors.

In black belt adult, Carl

Austria finished second right behind Leonard Floyd, who is nationally rated in martial arts magazines.

Finishing third in the black belt division was green belt Long Nguyen.

The Academy of Martial Arts practices a street style martial art form of kung fu called kajukenbo.

The next tournament for the Federal Way club will be the AA rated Steve Curran's tournament in Tacoma Sept. 16. Federal Way Academy of Martial Arts will be out to defend yet another outstanding dojo award, competing against competitors from as far away as California.

Brines concerned about district changes assistant basketball coach. After three years as an assistant basketball coach, Brines became head coach during the 1965-66 season. He continued to work as assistant football coach through the 1967-68 school year.

Except for the 1973 and 1974 seasons when he served two years as vice-principal, Brines continued to coach basketball until 1984 when Jerome Collins took over the boys' basketball program.

"I just got to the point where I didn't want to put in all the time for night games and night practices," said Brines, who also coached tennis at Federal Way until he began working as activities director.

Brines has decided to do some promotional work for the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association and pursue private business interests. He also is active in the National High School Coaches Association, having attended two conventions this summer.

Brines decided not to accept a teaching position at Totem Junior High School after he was not hired as the permanent activities director.

"Sometimes it's hard to go back into what you were doing before with the same degree of enthusiasm as needed," he said.

Two boys found alone in apartment

A Child Protective Services case worker alerted King County police to two young boys who have been living on their own since their mother abandoned them.

Police found the boys, ages 13 and 11, Monday, after they had been camping out in an empty apartment for the past month. The CPS case worker said the boys had been left there by their mother after she had moved out of the apartment.

Both boys were taken into protective custody and placed in a receiving home.

Cat burglar steals sleeper's camera

A SeaTac Village resident told police someone broke into his home as he slept Monday night or early Tuesday morning and stole his camera equipment.

Police reports say it appeared the front door had been forced open with a prying tool. The camera and a bank were taken from the living and dining rooms.

The resident said he thought he heard a noise during the night, but did not investigate. The burglary was discovered when his wife arrived home at 12:30 a.m. and found the front door open.
