Council may limit more apartments

By KURT HERZOG

For the first time, city officials have proposed some specific plans for controlling the growth in Federal Way that's been choking roads and paving over open space.

Those plans are likely to include stopping all apartment development in the city except in the central business district (CBD).

The Federal Way City Council

also is likely to rezone a few commercially zoned areas to scale down the size of shopping centers and other businesses it will allow to be built in outlying residential neighborhoods.

About 25 people spoke to the council's Land-use and Transportation Committee Thursday to express concerns about zoning proposed changes. By far, most of those who spoke before the crowd of about 60 — the largest to attend any council function yet — were property owners or developers who had plans for commercial developments.

However, the council isn't proposing any changes to any specific parcels of commercially zoned property yet. So far, any specific changes are being directed at multi-family development.

According to a recent survey done by the council's land-use planning consultant, Wilsey and Ham Pacific, 45 percent of Federal Way's housing is multi-family housing. That's considerably more than the 35 percent figure quoted by King County officials.

THAT FIGURE is expected to rise to more than 50 percent if all the apartment projects currently being considered by the county are completed in the next couple of years.

At a council retreat Wednesday, the council said it's time to put a stop to apartments and try to reduce the amount of multi-family housing to 35 percent.

That may take years to do, but as a start the council plans to stop any more apartment development outside of the CBD other than what was proposed

City gritty

With the fire and library annexation issues behind it, the Federal Way City Council will turn to other matters this week, such as the 1990 city budget and finding more office space.

The council will hold a study session at 7 p.m., Tuesday, at city hall, 31132 28th Ave. S., to discuss finding more space to house city employees and consultants.

The council has hired workers to clear out the old police precinct building behind city hall, but council members expect they'll need even more space.

COACHING LEGEND Dick Hannula takes a break from overseeing a workout of the Tacoma Swim Club at Foss High School. Hannula has been hired to direct the swimming events at next summer's Goodwill Games.

The swimming competition will take place in an aquatics facility being built in West Campus in Federal Way.

Games hires Hannula to run events

By LYNN KEEBAUGH

Swimming comes first to mind. Then winning. And always, competitive.

These three words are synonymous with Dick Hannula, Tacoma's legendary swim coach. He took Wilson High to a record 24 straight state titles and has coached a fleet of swimmers on to national and international championships.

"When you think of swimming, you think of Dick Hannula. He's probably the coach of all time," says Federal Way High swim coach Al Hoppenrath.

Hannula's reputation extends farther than the Puget Sound area. Inducted in 1987 into the International Swimming Hall of Fame as a coach, the 61-year-old Hannula has coached U.S. swimmers in international competition on five occasions. He also has served three times as manager of the U.S. team, including the 1988 Olympic team that went to Seoul, Korea.

His latest addition to a lengthy and impressive resume is being named commissioner of swimming events for the 1990 Goodwill Games. Those events will take place in the King County Aquatic Center being built in West Campus.

HANNULA WILL coordinate every aspect of the competition, from arranging practice times for swimmers to organizing the awards ceremonies.

When it came time to select a swimming commissioner, there was no dicker, no debate. Dick Hannula was the natural choice, said Bill Sears, media director for Games sporting events.

"You've seen his list of accomplishments. He's the most identifiable person with the sport of swimming in the last 40 years. His credentials are impeccable," Sears said.

Hannula accepts such laurels gracefully, but doesn't rest on them. His success appears to be a manifestation of the characteristics that make him who and what he is.

According to fellow coaches, he is a teacher nonpareil.

There's no secret to the success of Hannula and his athletes, he

Area roads gain county funding

By LYNN FRANCISCO

The 1990 King County budget, which became law without County Executive Tim Hill's signature last week, will bring more than $5 million in road improvement money to the Federal Way area.

Public works officials say the county will complete several roads projects, and will begin design work on others. Projects within the new city of Federal Way that are not fully funded or set for completion by 1991 will be turned over to the city to complete.

South 356th Street, between First Avenue South and Pacific

Highway South, garnered the largest appropriation for the Federal Way area. The $2 million project will widen the roadway to five lanes, except where it crosses over the Hylebos Wetlands, where the road will have only four lanes. The project is fully funded and should be completed sometime in 1991.

The county also has allocated $442,000 for Southwest 356th Street from First Avenue South to 21st Avenue Southwest, to widen that roadway to five lanes. That project also is fully

Rain fails to dampen holiday spirit

And the rains came...and did not let up until 5:30 p.m. Yes, Federal Way did have its first Christmas-tree lighting last Saturday despite the weather. The winds blew and the rains were torrential at times as Fire District 39 (Federal Way) personnel decorated the 50-foot tree donated by Weyerhaeuser.

It takes dedication and support of many people to make an event of this magnitude possible. The 1,000 lights for the tree were donated by these Federal Way businesses: Payless (Federal Way Shopping Center), New Lumber & Hardware Co.,

Pat Rodgers

Target, Ernst Home Centers, Pay 'N Save and K Mart.

Trim for the tree was donated by Sears of SeaTac Mall and thank you Collins Transport for donating the driver and semi to transport the tree.

The following donated their time, talent, and/or financial support: Puget Power, Gateway Center, Cushman & Wakefield, Electric Lighting Center, Signs Now, Federal Way Noon Lions Club, Metropolitan Federal Savings & Loan, Western Community Bank, First Interstate Bank, Washington Federal Savings & Loan, Washington Mutual Savings Bank, Puget Sound Bank, Merle McClatchie, Sherrelle Walker, McDonalds (320th), and Cromwell Marketing & Communications.

The hot apple cider and candy canes donated by Costco were warmly received. And of course Santa (Don McIntyre of the Federal Way Jaycees) didn't let the weather slow him down as he handed out candy canes and toothbrushes. We were serenaded the entire evening by Clifton and Richard Chambliss, Justin Doll, Michelle Lane and Chris Nelson of Boy Scout Troop 336

Trees contribute to quality of life

Editor:
I agree we need the trees, not more flagpoles. If development continues as it has in Federal Way, trees are certainly something we won't have much of in the future. These days they don't fit into the budget of many developers who seem more concerned with profits than preserving the natural beauty of our area.

Letters

It's amazing how many apartment complexes and houses you can fit into an area if you wipe out all trees. Our forests and natural lands are needed for the balance of nature necessary for our continued survival on this planet.

I've lived in Federal Way 23 years and it's been heart-breaking to see what development has done to an area once covered with evergreens and other native plants and trees. I'm not for a name change in Federal Way, but if we must, Evergreen would be my number one choice. After all, it is our state symbol.

I recently read in the Federal Way News that even though the open space bond was approved, the bond is still having to compete financially with developers for park lands — a losing battle for those seeking preservation rather than profit.

It's sad we live in a world where it's more profitable to destroy our planet than it is to preserve it. Most of us alive today hopefully won't live to see total destruction, but is that really what we want for future generations? Our earth has survived millions of years with its inhabitants living in balance with nature.

With complete disregard for the future, we've almost totally destroyed this balance in just the last century. If steps aren't taken soon in support of our environment, our forests may become only a pretty picture in the back issues of National Geographic.

Flagpoles may be patriotic, but they aren't nearly so pretty to look at as an evergreen and have no value in the preservation of our environment. Since maximum profits seem to be the clincher in most decisions made these days, let me put a money value on a tree.

It's estimated that a 50-year-old tree sells for $200. This amount doesn't even do the tree justice when you consider that one tree throughout its lifetime has given us $32,250 in oxygen production, $62,500 in air pollution reduction, $31,250 in erosion control and soil fertility, $37,500 in humidity control and water recycling, $31,250 in wildlife habitat and $2,500 in protein production for a grand total of $196,250 (figures quoted from global ecology, Highline Community College).

Can a flagpole do all that? Even this amount pales in comparison to the true value of a tree and its contribution to maintaining life on our planet.

The evergreen is our state symbol. I think we owe these magnificent trees a lot more respect and consideration. Some of them have been here much longer than you or I, and hopefully if enough of us have the foresight to do something about it now, trees will continue to contribute to life on our planet long after we're gone.

I wholeheartedly agree with letterwriters Bob Anderson and Elaine Ekenman: Let's plant trees, not flagpoles!

Street Talk: Should students be able to attend the district of their choice?

Tamra Akerly
(Waitress)

"No, I don't think so. I was bused... and it was a real pain. I think they should focus on neighborhood schools."

Stephen Banks
(Hair Designer)

"It doesn't make much sense to me. I thought the object was not to be bused, not to send kids away from their home."

Jeffrey Nickell
(Airline Reservationist)

"No, I think the system right now isn't too bad. It should be geared to local schools. You'd have overpopulation in some areas and not enough in others."

Betty Messick
(Housewife)

"I think it's wonderful. I don't think it's necessary for the state to tell people where to send their children to school."

Mickey Jones
(Housewife)

"I think it's great. Why bus kids when there's a school in their neighborhood? There is such a thing as the Constitution, and we're getting tired of being told what to do. Parents should be able to decide where their children go to school."

Greg Bennett
(Sales)

"Sure, it's a good idea. I had moved and wanted to go to my old school, and had to take a special class I really wasn't interested in just to be able to do that. You should have that kind of choice. It should be up to the students."

Jeff Bingaman
(Costco)

"No, I think they should all be neighborhood schools and get rid of all that busing. It's good to go to school with all the kids you grew up with."

Rosalie Sterner
(Nurse)

"I think it would have to be modified. I don't think it would work that simply. In some instances I think it's necessary that they be able to go to a school that's not in their neighborhood."

Check out charities before giving

Editor:
In recent days I have done some snooping with regard to an organization which has been soliciting for money by phone for a charitable purpose in the Federal Way area. Perhaps you've received a call or two or three from them.

I've learned a couple of things I didn't know before, which I will pass on.

(1) The fact that a "charitable" body is registered with the Secretary of State means only that it has submitted a form and paid $25. The Secretary of State does not investigate the credentials of the organization, and does not require a financial report until the solicitation has gone on for a year.

(2) The Attorney General's office investigates questionable solicitations if a number of complaints are received in writing. The Attorney General has an office in Seattle, at 710 Second Avenue, Suite 1300. The ZIP code is 98104. But I'm told by one of the AG's investigators that the laws of Washington do not require that a minimum percentage of funds received through solicitation be actually used for the purposes stated. In other words, the entire proceeds may be used for expenses and salaries of those promoting the solicitation.

It is usually deemed prudent to check with the Better Business Bureau when one is solicited by an organization which is unknown. But in this case, the Seattle Bureau, which had gotten "zillions" of inquiries, did not have any information to either confirm or question that this was a bona fide philanthropic effort.

Probably we should all be quite careful about giving to charities that we do not know.

I'm sure my wife once dated Vivaldi

Like a lot of guys this time of year, I expect to spend some time perched in a tiny chair, through the swelling choruses and leaping pizzicati, thinking about yardwork while my wife swoons to the interplay of oboe and bassoon.

I guess that's what she is doing. I'd hate to think she likes those chairs. When we attend a concert, I always wonder how so many people can sit like cinderblocks while the music is roaring like a bonfire. I have embarrassed my wife once or twice by leaping up during a Rachmaninoff concerto and doing a high-five with myself.

Is there some secret code in the program notes that I have never noticed? Does it say somewhere that the composer spent three weeks in a cold room working up these soaring chords, so we mustn't seem too happy when we hear them?

How come I'm the only guy in the room who is tapping his foot in time to the rhythm of Bach's Oratorio? Their dignified faces don't fool me. I know those other husbands were whining an hour before, "Geez, I hate those chairs. Don't they have any recliners? How about if I wait in the car and do a crossword?"

If my suspicions are correct, at least three other men in the room feel like they married a girl who once dated Vivaldi. Like mine, their wives wear a saintly expression while the orchestra fingers and fiddles frantically. Like mine, they seem to nod knowingly when the conductor turns the page. Maybe their parents sang Italian phrases at the dinner table.

When they ate too fast, maybe Mom chirped at them, "Adagio, dear, adagio." And if they were dawdling, Dad said, "Pick it up, kid."

This is not an easy circumstance for a guy who thinks a fugue is something that happened between the Hatfields and the McCoy's. Listening to a concerto for me is like watching clouds move. After a few minutes, it's all one cloud. My wife is no help. At intermission, I ask leading questions, trying to figure out whether the string section plucked properly, or the brass blew on cue. Because I do not know the lingo, I often fall back on athletic metaphors.

"How about those woodwinds?" I say. "I think they're gonna take this one." She shrugs.

"You think the conductor will put in the second strings?" I say. She looks around, uneasy.

I have tried to get her to tell me what it all means. She grew up with a choral conductor and a piano teacher, after all. She listens to my questions. She looks at me, and I can tell she thinks this is like trying to explain gravity to Chicken Little.

"It's just feelings," she will say. Does this mean that listening to music is merely a form of nostalgia, like looking in a scrapbook and finding some familiar notes? Is it like going to your hometown and driving past the old high school and recalling your first kiss and your graduation dance and how slow the days dragged in the last weeks of May?

"No," she says. "It's more like walking around the house, feeling different in different rooms."

I try this. In the kitchen, I feel hungry. In the living room, I feel sleepy. In the basement, I feel creepy. In the hall closet, I feel alone.

When I come out, she looks at me with pity in her gaze. "Don't feel bad," she says. "Dan Quayle doesn't understand foreign policy, either, but he still goes to the meetings."

In desperation, I call her father, the choral conductor. Here is a man who will appreciate my plight. Here is a man who breaks into song without provocation, sang entire Brahms concertos to his babies to put them to sleep.

"Well," he says, like a gynecologist about to explain sex to a guy who barely understands lingerie, "why don't you tell me what you already know."

So I start with the guy in the black suit who stands up in front and seems to be giving a demonstration of a cheese slicer. I ask if they put the drums in back because drummers can't afford tuxedo pants. I ask if the guy who plays the triangle makes as much as the guy who plays the trumpet — which wouldn't be fair, since the horn guy works harder, and anybody can ring a dinner gong.

He is silent. He asks to talk to his daughter. She listens, nods, shrugs. "Just feelings," she says. She hangs up, and says he is wondering why she married me.

So I will be sitting in those concert halls during the holiday, wondering what room Handel was in when he wrote the Messiah. I'll bet it was a gymnasium at least.

Where else could he practice all those Alleluias without getting the neighbors ticked off?

Thirst drives two to jail for fighting

Two brothers were arrested Sunday night for fighting with lounge patrons who tried to stop them from stealing their drinks.

The two men, one a 22-year-old Federal Way man and the other a 23-year-old Seattle resident, arrived at the Black Agnus at 12:18 a.m. already drunk, management said. The bartender refused to serve the men, who then started to harass other patrons and tried to steal their drinks.

When one woman tried to stop the 22-year-old from taking her drink, he pushed her. Her dance partner came to her rescue, and got an elbow to the face for his efforts. A fight ensued, and after it broke up, the woman and her friends left the lounge.

They were accosted in the parking lot by the two brothers and more fighting broke out. A police officer who tried to break up the fight was hit in the groin by one brother, and had to use his nightstick to subdue the man. During their struggle, they crashed into the fender of a patron's car, and caused approximately $1,000 damage.

Both brothers were booked into the King County Jail for investigation of fourth-degree assault.

Woman raped over a $50 drug debt

A woman told police she was raped Sunday because she could not pay a cocaine debt.

The 33-year-old Federal Way woman said she owed her attacker $50 for cocaine, but could not pay the debt. The dealer to whom she owed the money came to her house with two other men, displayed a gun, and told her and a friend who was visiting to leave the house with him.

He forced the woman to drive her car northbound on Pacific Highway South to an area near the Midway Tavern. One of his companions came with them and the other followed behind in a van. At the tavern the man ordered the woman's friend to leave in her car, and ordered the woman into the van.

The man told her if she wanted more time to pay her debt she would have to do as he said, and he said he wanted sex. Because she feared for her safety, the woman complied, she told police.

The man took her back to her house and told her to expect retaliation if she told anyone.

The woman was able to give police a name and description of the man, and an investigation continues.

Purse-snatcher hits before sun-up

An early rising thief snatched a woman's purse as she was on her way to a tavern Thursday morning.

The 42-year-old woman told police she was walking to Mac's Tavern at 1720 S. 320th St. at 5:30 a.m. when she was pushed from behind and her purse snatched.

She said the thief was hiding alongside the Federal Way News building, and jumped her as she walked by. He grabbed her purse and ran eastbound on South 312th.

The woman said she has seen the man in the area before and could identify him if she sees him again. He is described as white, 18-21, 5 feet 10 inches tall and 140 pounds. He has shaggy brown hair and wore blue jeans and a jean jacket.

On Dec. 6, with tears and celebration, the flag was raised at Hallmark Manor.

According to Chuck Baird, president of the Pierce County Master Gardeners, this is not only their first scholarship award, but also the first such award by any WSU Master Gardener group.

Jessica is a 1989 graduate of Decatur High School and is in her first year of horticulture studies at WSU. Already a recipient of the esteemed Harold Williamson Floraculture scholarship, Westlind states that she has always had an interest in plants and is hopeful for a future career in horticulture.

County slated to complete area road work

funded and should be completed within the next two years, according to county officials.

Another widening project, on South 356th Street, from Pacific Highway South to SR 161, was cancelled by the county. The $100,000 originally intended for that project will be given to other county road work.

THE COUNTY has a $1.6 million project slated for 16th Avenue South, from South 348th Street to Pacific Highway South. The work includes widening the roadway to four lanes. It is fully funded, and set for completion in 1991.

Also on 16th Avenue South, where it intersects with Pacific Highway South (at the north end of the widening project), the county is installing traffic signals, for a price tag of $284,000.

Another project the county will complete is the left-turn lane and signal planned for South 277th Street, at 55th Avenue South. The project will cost $411,000.

The 1990 budget calls for cancellation of a project that was to have widened Southwest 312th Street between First Avenue South and Dash Point Road. That $2.1 million appropriation will now be spent on the improvements slated to 16th Avenue South and for South 356th Street and Southwest 356th Street.

Public Works officials said the spending switch was due to a change in priorities, under an agreement reached with the city of Federal Way.

A change in priorities also caused the county to cancel a widening project planned for First Avenue South, between South 316th and 320th streets. The $93,000 originally appropriated for design work will be turned over to other projects.

THE COUNTY will begin design work on another widening project, planned for South 272nd Street between Pacific Highway South and 16th Avenue South. The budget calls for spending $61,000 on the design phase. Further work on the project will be picked up by the new city of Federal Way, under negotiations with the county.

While some funding has been cancelled for the project, design work will continue on the Redondo Seawall and on Beach Road South.

Public works officials say they were able to cut costs on the project, saving $122,000 in the 1990 budget. But another $100,000 was added for improvements to Beach Road South, located in the area near the seawall.

George Wannamaker, an engineer with public works, said the county is still working on the design for the Redondo Seawall. He added that the county will be holding an open house meeting on the project to obtain public input on the design. The meeting will be from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m., Jan. 10, at Sacajawea Junior High School.

A final project scheduled for Federal Way is a new signal on Peasley Canyon Road South at South 321st Street. The county will complete that $121,000 project.

State OKs grant for tideflats incinerator

The state Department of Ecology (DOE) has agreed to extend a grant to Tacoma City Light to help pay for the city's garbage-, wood- and coal-burning incinerator on the tideflats.

The extension will allocate about $1 million to the incinerator and about $3 million to the city refuse utility, which will provide the sorted garbage to the plant.

The state's conditions of the grant include requiring the city to pursue a more aggressive recycling program, to update the plant's health risk assessment using actual data from test burns, and to operate two ambient air monitoring stations for at least a year.

In addition, City Light will complete an environmental impact statement for the plant, said Mark Crisson, superintendent.

Coach Hannula's lessons last a lifetime

claims. It's mostly just hard work — his and theirs.

"THE MOST important thing is to be a good teacher, and it's more than just the fundamentals of swimming. It's persistence and discipline. Unending personal discipline," he says.

"You have to teach them to rise above setbacks and disappointments. The rest is a mix between being a little bit of a hardnose and being compassionate and understanding of what the athlete is going through."

One former student says that's the coach he remembers. Mike Stauffer now ranks among Hannula's peers as a swim coach. He was on the Wilson swim team that started the 24-year string of state championships in 1959. In 1984, his Lakes High swim team ended Wilson's record reign.

Stauffer describes his former coach as "a very dynamic personality," but says he wouldn't go so far as to call Hannula a hardnose.

"WE WERE ALMOST in awe of him, he is such a powerful authority figure."

"Most people who swam for him in the '60s when I did were scared to death of him. But I had a feeling of closeness with him. If I had a problem or difficulty I always felt comfortable going to him with it."

Stauffer says Hannula instills in his swimmers a discipline and motivation that transcends the sport. Hannula's own four children, now grown, all swam for him and have become successful professionals — two lawyers, a teacher and a dentist.

Hannula himself tells the story of one of his swimmers who went on to Princeton. After graduation he wanted to go to medical school, but didn't quite make the grade. He returned to class, worked harder in his weak areas, and then was accepted at all three schools to which he applied.

"They learn how to handle life," Hannula says. "That's the biggest benefit. I get a kick out of looking back to see that they've taken what they've learned in our sport and applied it to life."

STAUFFER SAYS he is one such example: "I give him (Hannula) full credit for my becoming a high school All-American and getting a full-ride scholarship."

Hannula didn't learn to swim until he was 12 years old. He first swam competitively for Aberdeen High School and then for Washington State University. He says he wasn't a great swimmer, and never achieved a national ranking.

That didn't stop swimming from becoming the driving force in Hannula's life. His achievements attest to that. So does a photo of the eight Hannula grandchildren on the family mantel. It's a dead giveaway. Each child, right down to the youngest toddler, is wearing a U.S. national swimming team suit and posed next to — what else — a swimming pool.

Only his wife of nearly 40 years, Sylvia, is not an avid swimmer, but Hannula says she has other valuable traits.

"She's a good, patient mother," he says.

HANNULA RETIRED from teaching P.E. at Wilson in 1981, but didn't retire from coaching the school's swim team until 1983. He says he wanted to see the crop of sophomores that started out in '81 through to graduation.

The year following Hannula's retirement as coach, Wilson swimmers failed to capture the state crown for the first time in a quarter century.

But, he says, coaching had nothing to do with the loss. Wilson had graduated all its top swimmers the year before, leaving a young, inexperienced team.

"It's probably a good thing I was gone, though," he adds. "If I hadn't retired, I would have stayed until we started winning again."

He isn't joking, Stauffer says. That statement says all there is to say about Hannula's competitive spirit.

Federal Way's Hoppenrath says his team never competed with Wilson during Hannula's years as coach.

"We didn't have the power to swim Wilson. It would have been demoralizing," Hoppenrath recalls. "He always had good swimmers, and a good program will perpetuate itself. But he was a big part of that. He is one in a million, or even more."

BUT BACK in the mid-'70s, Kennedy High's boys also were a team to contend with, and were invited to compete in a dual meet at Wilson, said their coach, Jo Ellen Hathaway. JFK didn't win, but it was an impressive meet.

"I'd been hearing those stories of the winning streak for years," Hathaway remembers.

Swimmers and coaches can learn from Hannula's methods.

Hathaway met him at a conference when she first started coaching in 1975.

"He expects more than other coaches might think is reasonable, but there's nothing wrong in that. If you're going to work, you're going to work hard."

But at the same time, she adds, it's easy to detect the caring and personal respect Hannula has for his swimmers.

"There's definitely another side to the man," she notes.

Hannula may no longer coach high school swimmers, but he's still active coaching the Tacoma Swim Club, which he founded in 1955. The club has spawned such world-class swimmers as 1968 world-record setter and Olympic champ Kaye Hall.

"I guess I'm still hungry. I still enjoy working with the lead athletes. I enjoy the competition," he says.

HE ALSO hasn't slowed down personally. He still swims a mile at least four to five times a week and runs 30 miles a week. And he runs with Hannula on occasion.

"He kills you when you run. I've got about 12 years on him and he runs me into the ground," Stauffer says.

But it pays off for Hannula, who stays a fit 6 foot 1, and 170. Because he's still coaching, Hannula is especially pleased to have a world-class competition pool nearby. It's tough to find pools for practice, especially 50-meter pools, he says.

The pool also will attract high-level competition. He hopes that will encourage more youngsters to swim and will raise local swimming standards.

"We haven't sent anyone from around here to the Olympics for a while," he notes.

Next summer he will again be working with some of the world's top athletes, when the likes of Tom Jager, two-time Olympian and world-record holder in the 50-meter freestyle, come to Federal Way. Matt Biondi and Janet Evans, also Olympic champs, are expected to swim in the Games as well.

AND IF HE does his job well, Hannula will have the events at the pool running so smoothly, he'll be able to enjoy the swimming as a fan, he says.

Then it will be back to work, nurturing and grooming what he considers, "the best-looking young female swimmers I've had for some time."

"I guess I'll just keep on going — unless I can't find a pool to swim in."

Apartments may be focused in city's center

before the development moratorium imposed Sept. 25.

The council imposed the moratorium on all new development within the city, except for single-family residential development, so it could have time to study land-use changes.

The moratorium is expected to last until the community officially incorporates Feb. 28.

Although the city will probably have at least 50 percent multi-family housing for years, it may be possible to eventually reduce that amount by rezoning property to single-family. In that case, existing multi-family housing would be "grandfathered in" but would eventually become single-family housing redevelopment occurs.

IT'S LIKELY that apartment development will still be allowed in the CBD because the city can concentrate its financial resources there to solve traffic problems. The council discussed allowing RM-900 zoning — the densest apartment zone, which allows 48 units per acre — in the CBD. It's likely that any apartment development would be mixed with commercial development, such as ground-floor store fronts.

The council loosely defined the CBD as being south of South 312th Street, north of South 336th Street, west of I-5 and east of 11th Avenue South.

Concentrating development in that area while concentrating resources and services there makes sense, according to Wilsey and Ham Pacific planner Kay Shoudy. In fact, the traffic problems in Federal Way are caused more by a lack of services than too many apartments, she said.

While Federal Way's 50 percent apartment ratio is high, it's still better than other King County cities such as Kent, which has 68 percent multi-family housing, and Kirkland at 50 percent, and isn't much worse than Redmond and Everett, with about 45 percent multi-family housing.

DESPITE THE focus on multi-family, the council's committee heard from only two people who own multi-family zoned land at its public comment meeting Thursday.

Robert Burns owns 1 acre of apartment-zoned land on the south side of South 272nd Street near Interstate 5.

"If you downzone it, I'll lose my shirt," Burns told the committee.

Another resident also said he didn't want his land downzoned to single-family because he would have to sell it for less than he could if it was zoned for apartments.

Even though the council has proposed no specific changes to any parcel of commercially zoned property, developers wanted to make sure their plans aren't shot down. Several owners said they had deals that went awry when the council imposed the moratorium.

Steve Anderson and Alan Wiley of WACO Partners said they had plans to develop a Taco Time fast-food restaurant on the southwest corner of South 348th Street and Pacific Highway South when the moratorium was imposed. The deal is on hold for now, and the two developers hope the land isn't rezoned.

Wiley said the company has found tenants for several bankrupt or abandoned buildings and uses local construction firms for renovation. Allowing development creates a stronger tax base and puts money back into the community, Wiley said.

SO FAR, THE council hasn't voiced any plans to change commercial zoning along most of the Pacific Highway South strip. However, it will examine downzoning property in neighborhoods outside of the CBD.

Specifically, the council will look at changing King County's neighborhood business (BN) zone. The BN zone allows such development as the Fred Meyer store originally proposed for the northwest corner of Southwest 312th Street and First Avenue South.

The store site has been moved to West Campus, but the county never should have even considered allowing the store at the original site, said Councilman Jim Handmacher, chair of the land-use committee.

The BN zone should allow only commercial developments that are intended to serve a neighborhood, not an entire community, Handmacher said. A Safeway grocery store would be allowed in a BN zone, but not a Fred Meyer store, he said.

Instead, a large commercial development, such as Fred Meyer, should be allowed only in a community business (BC) zone.

"People will drive a long way to go to Fred Meyer," Handmacher said. "It's difficult to define."

THE COUNCIL also briefly discussed how to restrict "undesirable" businesses such as the Deja Vu nude dancing club on Pacific Highway South.

It's unconstitutional to prohibit all such businesses, but they can be restricted. One way to restrict such businesses is to allow them only in industrially zoned areas, away from neighborhoods and schools, said Sam Jacobs, an attorney working with Wilsey and Ham Pacific.

They can also be prohibited from being within 1,000 feet of a park, school, day-care center, church or other community center.

The council will have its legal counsel study how such businesses can be restricted. Possible land-use ordinances will be the subject of a public hearing to be held at 7 p.m., Dec. 19 at city hall, 31132 28th Ave. S.

The council hopes to adopt its comprehensive plan on Jan. 9. It will hold another public hearing on proposed zoning changes Feb. 6.

Adelaide honored for character, look

Special recognition for academic programs and school design has been awarded to Adelaide Elementary School in Federal Way.

Adelaide was one of eight schools in Washington chosen to represent the state in a national contest for exceptional school programs. All eight schools, also including Dick Scobee Elementary in Auburn and Pine Tree Elementary in Kent, earned high marks for leadership, teaching environment, curriculum, parental support and atmosphere.

Adelaide will be visited sometime between February and mid-April by a national review panel, which then will choose national award winners. Representatives of those nationally awarded schools will be invited to Washington D.C. for a ceremony in their honor.

"I believe Adelaide represents the entire school district in its level of excellence and support from administrators," said Jill Hearne, principal of the school.

Adelaide also was one of 23 schools featured in the November issue of AS & U, an architectural digest published by American School and University. The school's recent modernization job was part of that organization's annual Architectural Portfolio, a section that focuses on outstanding construction of schools submitted by architects from across the nation.

"They evaluate each school submitted based on what you tried to accomplish versus what you did accomplish," said Rick McGovern, a partner of Erickson-McGovern architects of Tacoma and architect of the Adelaide project.

Adelaide's modernization, which was completed a year ago, updated heating, lighting and energy use at the 25-year-old school. McGovern changed the flat roof to a pitched one, and lightened the corridors with new paint and soft carpets.

Halving a ball

A LONG-OVERDUE dismantling of a Midway Unocal service station included the splitting of its orange "76" ball in half for easy transportation. Traffic near the service station was stalled briefly as drivers watched the ball being lowered by a crane from its perch high atop the station. A Unocal representative said the station at South 240th Street and Pacific Highway South had been closed for about two years, and the company is just now removing its signs, including the ball.

Trial set in teen's killing

Roy Melvin Allen, the 22-year-old Federal Way resident charged with murdering a 17-year-old Decatur High School student last August, won't be tried for first-degree murder in Pierce County Superior Court until March 12.

Allen's trial, which was to begin tomorrow, was continued because his attorney said he hadn't had enough time to prepare his case. The defense attorney wasn't hired until late October, according to Mike Johnson, the prosecutor assigned to the case.

Allen is charged with shooting Paul Damon Walden in the head in the early hours of Aug. 26 at the Norpoint Way viewpoint. Witnesses told Tacoma police the two had argued over Walden's date and over gang affiliations earlier that night at the SeaTac Village Burger King. Allen pleaded innocent to the charges.

Allen apparently followed Walden to Northeast Tacoma, where the argument resumed. The viewpoint was crowded with teens when the shooting occurred.

He was arrested later at his Lakeside Village apartment in Federal Way by King County police. Walden died Aug. 28 at Tacoma's St. Joseph Hospital without regaining consciousness.

Temporary site for UW

Temporary quarters for a University of Washington branch campus should be in the Perkins Building at 11th Avenue and A Street in downtown Tacoma, the university has recommended.

Although a permanent site for the campus is still unknown, the university needs a temporary home for about 400 students who will enroll at the branch campus next fall, said Bob Roseth, spokesman for the university. The school also is recommending leasing space in the Canyon Park Business Center as a temporary location for a branch campus in the Bothell/Woodinville area.

The recommendations will go before the Higher Education Coordinating (HEC) Board Dec. 15 for approval.

Four possible sites for the permanent branch campus still are being considered by the university. Three of the sites are in Tacoma — in the Hilltop area, in downtown Tacoma and adjacent to Tacoma Community College. The other site is in Fife, just south of 20th Street East and bordering 70th Avenue East.

Meetings to solicit public comments about the four choices will be scheduled in late winter or early spring, Roseth said, and a final recommendation should be ready for the HEC Board by the spring of 1990.

The location of the temporary site will not influence the selection of the permanent site, Roseth said.

The permanent campus is scheduled to open in the mid-1990s, and eventually will serve 6,000 graduate and upper-division undergraduate students, the university estimates.

Two caught, four sought in October rapes

Police still seek suspects in four of six assaults on women that occurred in Federal Way in one eight-day period in October.

The rash of violent attacks between Oct. 13 and Oct. 20 resulted in five rapes and one attempted rape. In each instance, the attacker was a stranger or a man the women had just met.

Descriptions of suspects in three of the unsolved attacks were similar, although the incidents were not alike. In one, a 17-year-old girl raped Oct. 19 was abducted and near Pacific Highway South and South 272nd Street.

A 60-year-old woman was abducted and raped Oct. 17 as she left work, and a 17-year-old girl was attacked Oct. 13 as she walked along a trail near Mirror Lake. She escaped unharmed.

In those attacks a suspect is described as a man, 20s to early 30s, tall, with shoulder-length light brown hair. In one instance, the attacker was said to have a mustache.

Police released composite sketches from two of those attacks. The drawings elicited a number of calls, but no hard leads, said Sgt. Pat Ferguson of the King County Special Assault Unit.

In the fourth unsolved rape from that string of attacks, a 26-year-old Fife woman was abducted and raped as she waited for a bus along Pacific Highway South. She described her attacker as black, in his 30s, 6 feet 2 to 4 inches tall with a medium build and a mustache. He drove a dark blue Lincoln Continental with no door handles inside the car. Two men have been arrested and charged in the other two attacks. Irvin B. Lyle, 38, has a Jan. 4 trial date for charges of first-degree rape, first-degree kidnapping and second-degree assault. He is accused of beating and raping a 24-year-old woman at knifepoint after offering to walk her home from a tavern. He was arrested during the assault after neighbors alerted police.

Another man has been arrested for rape after allegedly forcing a 17-year-old girl to have sex with him Oct. 15 after offering her a ride home from a Federal Way restaurant. He turned himself in to police the following day. Prosecutors are reviewing the case for charges.

Although several other rapes have been reported since that alarming rash, they haven't been of a random, or especially violent nature, Sgt. Ferguson said. Most have been date, or acquaintance rapes, which are a continual problem, he said.

The violent, or predatory rapes, involving abductions, beatings or weapons, often run in cycles, as do other types of crimes, Ferguson said. Police continue to investigate the attacks, he added.

Raiders' depth leads to sweep in opener

Kato, Baker set pace for Gators and Eagles

The Thomas Jefferson gymnastics team showed its strength in numbers by coming away first in a four-team meet at Thomas Jefferson Wednesday.

Although they did not have any individuals placing first, the Raiders did take first as a team with 142.2 points, while Kentwood was second (139.6), Puyallup third (132.2) and Olympia fourth (131.2).

The Raiders now have a 2-0 South Puget Sound League record and a 3-0 mark overall.

Catherine Williams of Puyallup was the all-around winner with an 8.7 average and took first in all four events. Williams won the bars (8.9), beam (8.1), vault (8.8) and floor (8.9) competitions.

Chantel Erickson of Kentwood grabbed second in the all-around with a 7.95 score, while Tanya Rice from Olympia and Terri Thompson of Kentwood tied in the all-around with scores of 7.9.

For Thomas Jefferson, high marks in the vault went to Jennifer Watson and Laura Cox, as those two girls tied for third with scores of 8.5.

Karrie Marton captured third in the bars with a 7.9 mark, while Nicole Rollolazo came in fifth with a 7.7.

Michelle Guillermo finished second on the balance beam with a score of 7.6, with Rollolazo taking fourth at 6.9.

Raina Edwards claimed fourth in the floor exercise with an 8.5 score and Rollolazo finished fifth at 8.1. Rollolazo was Jefferson's top all-around finisher with an average of 7.8 for fifth.

JEFFERSON COACH Debbie Hunter was happy to have the first meet of the season out of the way.

"The first one is always a little shaky," she said. "It gave us a base point in terms of what we have to work on."

Hunter was pleased in that all seven Raiders who competed in the vault had at least an 8.0 or better and all of Jefferson's floor exercise competitors also scored an 8 or higher.

"The neat thing is it's a total, team effort," said Hunter. "We win because everybody on the team does their part."

Gymnastics

The Raiders are the defending South Puget Sound League champions and they are returning 13 gymnasts off last year's team.

Hunter explained that the Raiders probably will not have any of their girls placing in the top spot in an event this year, but opponents are most likely going to be overwhelmed with Jefferson's team strength.

"We're really consistent and we've got a lot of depth," the coach pointed out.

The Raiders will have a big test coming up in the next meet on Wednesday, Dec. 13, as they take on Auburn and Kent-Meridian at Auburn High School.

Kent-Meridian placed first in the North Puget Sound League last year and second in the state. Auburn placed third in the NPSL, which has disbanded.

"We know what we've got to do, we just got to get to it," said Hunter. "Conditioning by repeating routine after routine after routine."

IN DECATUR'S season opener, which was held Thursday, Kentridge captured first place as a team with 150.80 points, Auburn was second with 135.2 and Decatur third at 129.95.

Decatur's Janet Kato placed second in the all-around with an 8.02 average. She grabbed fourth in the floor (8.0), first in the vault (8.4), first on the beam (7.70) and second on the bars.

Other Decatur scores in the floor exercise were Cynthia Watson 7.3, Rachel Harrison 6.7, Sarah Burchard 6.0 and Tobi Tight 5.8.

On the vault, Watson finished fourth with an 8.0, followed by Burchard 7.85, Tight 7.85 and Jenny Smith 6.10. Decatur scores on the beam were Watson 6.05, Natalie Thomas 5.45, Jenny Wilburs 4.75 and Harrison 4.60.

On the bars, scores were Watson 7.20, Thomas 5.40, Jenny Bird 4.60 and Burchard 4.20.

BRENDA PASKIEWITZ flies over the horse Wednesday in the vault as the Thomas Jefferson gymnastics team opened said the first meet was a learning experience for her and assistant coach Laura Anderson, who are both new to this area from the Midwest, along with the Decatur gymnasts.

"Our system is different there (in the Midwest) so we learned a lot of what is missing from our routines that we didn't know," explained Mahan who is in her first season as head coach of the Gator gymnasts.

Mahan said Decatur needs to add more C maneuvers to its routines, which will help raise the individual scores. In gymnastics, there are A, B and C levels that are attached to tricks and dance moves.

"They have a lot of dance moves to C's that I didn't know anything about," said Mahan. "Here there are tons of dance moves you can use with C's that will really bring the scores up."

Decatur hopes to bring up its scores on Wednesday as the Gators will host Kentwood and Rogers in a meet that gets underway at 7 p.m.

FEDERAL WAY'S Kelly Baker returned to her true form Wednesday for the Eagles in a meet against Capital (130.2), Rogers (145.2) and Kent-Meridian (148.9).

Federal Way finished fourth as a team with a score of 129.7, but Baker was first in the floor (9.1) and the beam (8.7), she tied for first on the bars (8.4) and placed fourth on the vault (8.4). Baker won the all-around with an average of 8.63.

Gators come back to jolt Chargers in opener

By CHUCK MINGORI

The Decatur boys' basketball team fought back from an 11-point deficit late in the third quarter to hand the visiting Kentridge Chargers a 59-53 defeat in both teams' South Puget Sound League Sound Division opener Friday night at Decatur.

"It's a big win," acknowledged Decatur coach Lee Anderson. "But (more importantly) it's a win. We've just got to take them one at a time. We can't look ahead."

Anderson, whose team broke into the win column for the first time on Tuesday, 74-55, at Foss, said the Gators had good practices in the days leading up to Friday night's league opener.

"We've improved on our execution," said Anderson, whose team is 2-2 overall going into Tuesday's 7:30 p.m. game at Spanaway Lake. "I expected we would rise to the occasion today and play tough."

Decatur, which lost starting guard Brad Fiorito and reserve post player Jason Stiles during the game with ankle injuries, trailed by only a 14-11 margin after one quarter and by a 30-27 count at intermission. But Kentridge began to build a cushion late in the third quarter.

A three-point basket by Kentridge's Marty Sims gave the visitors a 40-29 lead and it began to look dim for the Gators.

But suddenly Decatur found new life. Senior guard Joey Roni made a three-point play with 1:27 left in the third quarter to close the deficit to 40-32.

DECATUR THEN switched to a trapping halfcourt defense, which led to back-to-back baskets by sophomore guard Justin Mentink off steals by Roni to shave the deficit to 40-36 going into the fourth quarter.

"If anything keyed us in the fourth quarter, that was it," said Anderson of Decatur's late third-quarter rally. "We were in a situation where something had to happen and we made it happen."

Outscoring Kentridge 23-13 in the fourth quarter, the Gators gradually pulled away from the Chargers. But it required a gutsy team contribution.

"It was really kind of a team effort," Anderson noted. "Everybody contributed."

Roni scored on a putback to tie the game, 47-47, then hit a free throw following a foul to complete a three-point play for Decatur's first lead since the opening quarter with 4:18 remaining.

Kentridge regained the lead on a three-point play by Collin Crenshaw, who led all scorers with 21 points, but again Roni tied the score with a pair of free throws to make it 50-50.

After a Kentridge basket inside, Kenny Lester answered for Decatur with two clutch free throws at the 2:42 mark. Lester then blazed to the basket for a running layup after a steal by Mentink to give Decatur a 54-52 lead with 2:30 left to play.

Kentridge closed to within one point on a free throw with 1:30 left, but Mentink scored on a backdoor wide-open layup with 57 seconds showing on the clock for a 56-53 Decatur lead.

Dann Black made one of two from the foul line after being fouled with 45 seconds left following a Kentridge miss to put Decatur up by four at 57-53.

Tough defense and key rebounds by Black and Gregg Landskov enabled the Gators to hold off the Chargers in the closing moments. Lester's two free throws with two seconds left provided the final winning margin for the Gators.

Braves drop Raiders

By TIM CLINTON

It was the Lango Taylor show in the fourth quarter Friday, as the 6-8 Bethel center blocked or hampered almost all of Thomas Jefferson's shots to lift his team to a come-from-behind 45-33 victory.

The Raiders had led, 31-25, after three quarters of play, but Taylor and the Braves rallied to score all but the final two points of the quarter to make it a rout.

"He did a good job blocking shots and intimidating inside," said TJ head coach Bruce Case of Taylor's efforts in the South Puget Sound League opener for both teams. "Obviously our center got intimidated."

Steve Hill, the Raiders' 6-6 center, went 0-for-5 from the field in the fourth quarter thanks to the efforts of Taylor, although Taylor also managed to hinder other TJ shooters as well.

Meanwhile, the Raiders wound up having to foul Bethel guards at the other end of the court and shooters such as Karl Schelbert who had been virtually silenced suddenly found themselves icing the win.

Schelbert made 7 of 8 tries down the stretch and his team hit 10 of 15 for the fourth quarter, and went 12-for-21 for the game. TJ, on the other hand, made only 1 of 2 free throws for the game in what had been relatively foul-free action until the fourth quarter. Both teams made 16 of 45 shots from the field.

JEFF JORDAN struck from the left side for the Raiders at the third quarter buzzer to give his team the 31-25 lead, after coming up with a steal at the other end.

The Raiders missed an open shot to start off the fourth quarter, then Taylor scored from underneath. After a Taylor-induced miss by Hill, the Braves' Rob Huddleston slipped underneath for a shot to cut it to 31-29.

Another TJ miss led to two Schelbert free throws to tie it with 6:23 to play. The two teams then traded misses, with the Raiders' misses once again the result of Taylor's play, and Huddleston made two free throws to send Bethel on its way.

Taylor scored 18 for Bethel and Schelbert 11, while Jordan set the pace for TJ with 10, including the Raiders' only score of the fourth quarter with just 17 seconds left to play.

Jefferson girls hold off Foster for a win

The Thomas Jefferson girls' basketball team picked up its first win of the year Friday, holding off Foster of the Class A Nisqually League, 49-47, on the road.

The win gives the Raiders — who were coming off a 37-19 loss at Bethel in their AAA South Puget Sound League opener the night before — a 1-3 record overall. It was the first game of the year for the Bulldogs.

TJ's Barb Beesley scored what turned out to be the winning basket with 1:10 left on the fourth quarter clock, then Foster's Shannon Pitts scored with 51 seconds to go to cut the lead to two at 49-47.

The Bulldogs were then forced to foul, but had not committed enough fouls earlier to send TJ to the line for a chance to miss. Instead, the Raiders kept getting the ball inbounds with a new 30-second clock and just worked the time down.

Foster had actually led at 33-25 with 2:58 to play in the third quarter, but TJ called a time out then scored six straight points to end the period — four of which were by sophomore Julie Breyer off the bench.

Breyer had replaced Beesley because of foul trouble, but Beesley still wound up as the game's top scorer with 21 points. Teammate Jennifer McDermott added 11 and Cacey Zimmer nine.

Freshman Julie Orth paced the Bulldogs with 13 points and Pitts and Jovita Thomas tossed in 12 apiece.

TJ outrebounded Foster, 28-22, led by Zimmer's seven and Beesley's six. Monique James had four steals and four assists for the Raiders and Darcy Neil three steals.

TJ hosts Federal Way (1-0, 5-0) for a 7:30 p.m. game tomorrow.

Federal Way boys take Garfield into overtime

The Federal Way boys' basketball team lost to the Garfield Bulldogs, 53-52, in overtime Thursday night in a game the Eagles had a chance to win.

"It was a tough one to lose really," said Federal Way coach Jerome Collins, whose team fell to 2-2 in preseason action. "We had our opportunities to put it away. I thought the kids played well. If there was such a thing as a moral victory, that was one last night."

Garfield came into the game ranked No. 1 in the state as well as being rated number eight on the West Coast in the National Prep Basketball Poll.

But the upstart Eagles, led by Donny Marshall with 18 points and Lake Dawson with 13, gave

Boys' Basketball

last year's Class AAA state runnerups a run for their money on their own court.

Federal Way had to play the final six minutes of the fourth quarter and the overtime period without Marshall, who fouled out of the game. And 6-8 forward Andy Jerdal also played in foul trouble for the Eagles, who lost on a three-point shot by Garfield's Bryant Boston.

Collins pointed to some critical calls made by the officials that affected the outcome of the game.

One came with seven seconds to go in regulation time as the Eagles were called for a lane violation on a one-and-one opportunity by guard Rod Janson. That wiped away what could have been a one-point Federal Way lead. Instead, the game went into overtime.

DURING THE EXTRA period, another crucial call was made as Dawson pinned the ball on the backboard on a breakaway by a Garfield player. Collins said the official under the basket ruled it a live ball, but the official out top called a technical foul for slapping the backboard.

"If anything, it was goaltending, it definitely wasn't a slapping of the backboard," said Collins.

Garfield was awarded two technical fouls shots, plus the Bulldogs were awarded the ball.

Later, with 17 seconds to go in overtime, another flagrant play was made, Collins said. Ricci Greenwood was at the foul line with two free throws. After he was handed the ball, a Garfield player jumped into the key to call a timeout, which should have been a technical foul, said Collins. Instead, Greenwood was allowed to shoot the first free throw, then Garfield called its timeout.

Greenwood made both free throws to put the Eagles ahead by two. The Bulldogs then hit a "desperation" three-point shot to put Garfield up by one.

Federal Way had one last opportunity to score, said Collins, when Dawson got the ball inside on a lob pass. Collins said a Garfield player "just thrashed Lake into the wall," but no call was made and that was the game. "We did everything but win on the scoreboard," said Collins.

Collins was pleased for the defensive effort the Eagles did on Garfield's Tony Harris, who was held to 19 points after scoring 38 in an 83-70 win over O'Dea earlier in the week.

The game at Garfield was Federal Way's first on the road this season. Next up for the Eagles is a 7:30 p.m. non-league home game tomorrow against an Australian team prior to opening up South Puget Sound League Puget Division play on Tuesday at home against Thomas Jefferson. "That's when it really counts," said Collins of Tuesday's 7:30 p.m. SPSSL opener against TJ. "Countdown time is here."

Federal Way drew 12 points in scoring from Greenwood Thursday, while Jerdal added six and guards Janson and Murphy added two and one, respectively.

Federal Way led 14-9 after one quarter, but Garfield pulled into a 32-30 lead at halftime. The Eagles trailed by one, 40-39, going into the final quarter before the game went into overtime tied at 47-47.

Decatur falls in overtime

The Decatur girls' basketball team took two losses in 24 hours this week, but the Gators did not go down without a fight.

Decatur went into overtime in its South Puget Sound League Sound Division opener at Kentridge Thursday before losing, 51-47, after dropping a 50-42 non-league decision to Garfield at home the day before.

The Gators now stand at 2-3 overall to go with their 0-1 division record.

Decatur played Kentridge to a 44-44 tie in regulation time Thursday, before the Chargers outscored the Gators, 7-3, in overtime to win it.

Decatur had to overcome a 43-37 disadvantage in the final four minutes of regulation play but did so with the help of a three-point shot by Kim Houston, and Kentridge wound up needing a free throw by Michelle Tuttle to tie it at 44-44.

The Gators had to play the overtime period without the services of leading scorer Kathy Laky, as she fouled out with 15 seconds to go in regulation on a charging call.

Both teams had icy shooting in the contest, with Kentridge making just 18 of 48 tries from the field and Decatur 19 of 44.

Laky led the Gators with 13 points, and center Shannon Barrett finished right behind her with 10. Amy Stiles scored eight, Houston and Tara Beckett six apiece and Nicole Adkins four.

DECATUR led a powerful Garfield team by a 12-7 margin at the end of the first quarter Wednesday, but the Bulldogs came storming back to outscore the Gators, 19-8, in the second.

Laky was also Decatur's top scorer in that game with 17 points, and Barrett and Adkins added six apiece. Carrie Roper had four and Beckett and Stiles both scored two.

The Gators will return to action tomorrow, hosting Spanaway Lake for a 7:30 p.m. SPSSL Sound Division clash.

The Federal Way boys' swimming team ran its season record to 2-0 with a 132-39 victory over Kent-Meridian Thursday.

"It looks like we're a little stronger than I assessed at the beginning before we had any meets," said Eagle head coach Al Hoppenrath. "Our times are looking pretty good so I look for us to have a pretty good season."

Hoppenrath is now expecting his team to boast a 4-0 record going into January. The only

Eagles struggle to SPSL-opening win

The Federal Way girls' basketball team had to struggle, but the Eagles managed to post their fifth straight win of the season without a defeat Thursday with a 62-53 home-court win over Kentwood.

Janelle Oakeley poured in 18 points to lead Federal Way to its South Puget Sound League Puget Division opening win, while Jenny Mahlstedt added 17 and Jennifer Evans scored eight points to go along with her 14 rebounds.

Shannon Sehlin was next in the scoring column for the Eagles with six points, while Jana Woodworth added four and Brooke Edwards, Tara Boe and Tiffany Rutter scored three apiece.

Federal Way held an 18-8 lead after one quarter and a 33-22 lead at intermission, but the Conquerors fought back to trail by only one point at one stage in the third quarter.

The Eagles led 41-34 going into the final quarter before outscoring the visitors, 21-19, to put the game away.

Kentwood was led by the 21 points of Kierstan Grunow and the 13 points of Jill McDougall. It was a foul-plagued game as Federal Way was whistled for 23 fouls, while Kentwood drew 31. The Eagles went to the foul line 43 times and made 24.

Girls' Basketball

"It was an ugly, ugly game, but the kids survived it, that was the main thing," said Federal Way coach Chuck Czubin.

Czubin added that Federal Way was "playing not to lose in the third quarter" instead of playing to win, but managed to relax and play better in the final quarter.

The final score was "much closer than we thought it would be," noted Czubin. "But it was a good lesson for us. We needed something like that."

Federal Way will take its unblemished 5-0 season record to Thomas Jefferson tomorrow to play the Raiders, who lost at Bethel, 37-19. Thursday, Federal Way will host that same Bethel team.

Dunlap joins Australia-bound team

Federal Way High School's Mike Dunlap will join the American Stars Baseball Team as it travels to Australia Dec. 19-31 to compete in the 1989 Pan Pacific Baseball Challenge in Brisbane.

Selected players representing five states will compete against the state all-star teams from New South Wales and Queensland. The 11-day, two-city tour will feature top baseball competition as well as scheduled sightseeing of the major attractions.

The three coaches who will lead the Stars are: Marc

Roberts of Centralia; Rob Hollis of Gallup, New Mexico and Scott Woodard of Deming, New Mexico. Rogers, a graduate of the University of Puget Sound, is presently the head baseball coach and an English teacher at Centralia High School. He was voted Coach of the Year in the Black Hills League as he guided his 1989 league championship team to a regional berth in the state playoffs.

Hollis is the head coach of Gallup High School and has taken his team to the state playoffs each of the last two seasons. His 1989 team posted a 12-8 record and will have 10 returning players on the 1990 squad. Before coaching at Gallup, he was an assistant coach at New Mexico State University and Pan American University.

Woodard is the head coach at Deming High School. He guided his team to a 22-3 record in 1989, capturing the 3AAA state title and was named the Coach of the Year in that division. Before moving on to Deming High School, he was the head coach at Tularosa High School from 1986-

88 where his teams won the 4AA state championship for two consecutive years, earning Coach of the Year honors both years. Woodard has posted a 57-15 record over the past three seasons.

DUNLAP, a 5-9, 170-pound catcher, will be joined by three other players from Washington in Liberty's Glen Walker, Prairie's Jason Weisner, Skagit Valley Community College's Matthew Virata, Columbia River High School's Patrick LaMonica and Yelm's Josh Copeland.

Derrow accepts Husky scholarship offer

Decatur High School football player Mike Derrow has announced that he will accept an athletic scholarship offer from the University of Washington.

Derrow is a 6-1, 215-pound senior inside linebacker for the Gators who was named to the South Puget Sound League's Sound Division first team. Derrow led Decatur this year with 136 tackles.

"It's terrific," said Decatur head football coach Greg Flynn of Derrow's scholarship offer from the UW. "Mike's worked awfully hard for that. It's nice to see all that hard work pay off."

Derrow was heavily recruited by other colleges as well, including Oregon and Oregon State, Washington State, Idaho, Idaho State and Montana, but has agreed to sign on national letter of intent day with the Huskies.

The Huskies were quite high on Derrow.

"I know they feel he's one of the best linebackers in the state," said Flynn.

Schedule keeps Sinatra out of mob-boss role

Q: We hear that Frank Sinatra will play a mob boss in the new "Godfather" movie. Considering his past image problems, do you think it's a good idea?

J.K.
A: Sinatra has been raked over the coals for allegedly counting mobsters as friends, so it wouldn't seem to be a great idea for him to play one in a big-time, big-budget new flick. But Sinatra feels that he's put all those "gangster association" allegations safely behind him. He was asked to play a senior organized crime leader in "Godfather III." Only his concert schedule — not any squeamishness about the part's suitability — blocked the casting, I'm told. Eli Wallach wound up with the part.

Q: What do you think Joan Collins will be doing in 10 years?

J.C.
A: That's a visionary question, one I actually put to Joan recently. It should be mentioned

Gossip Column

By Robin Adams Sloan

that she'll be in her mid-60s after the next decade, a bit long in the tooth to play sex goddesses on television. "In 10 years," says Joan, "I'd like to be living in the south of France with a wonderful view of St. Tropez, with a boat in the harbor, having written two or three more books, acting now and again and having my children come and visit. I'm also looking forward to having a lot of freedom."

Q: With all those '60s rock groups going back on the road, what about The Beatles? There has certainly been talk.

S.L.

A: And there's been even more talk. This summer Paul McCartney discussed the possibility. However there's a clincher: Lawyers at the firm that handles Apple, the Beatles' recording company, are not sure Paul, George Harrison and Ringo Starr could tour as The Beatles. That name is owned jointly by McCartney, Ringo Starr, George Harrison and the estate of John Lennon. The executor of Lennon's estate is Yoko Ono, who hasn't always been too friendly toward her late husband's associates.

Q: What's this about one of Johnny Carson's wives being in such desperate shape that she's camped out among the homeless in a Los Angeles park?

B.I.

A: Joanne Carson, Johnny's second wife, confesses that as a teen-ager she found herself at odds with the world — "due to circumstances beyond my control" — and camped out, homeless, in Plummer Park in West Hollywood. Joanne tells me her life was turned around by a kind woman who took her in, got her a job and then convinced her to return to school. Joanne recently returned the favor, in a way, by spending a night in the same park to dramatize the plight of the homeless. As Carson's ex-wife, Joanne is amply provided for financially for the rest of her life.

Q: Has Farrah Fawcett broken up with Ryan O'Neal, her longtime boyfriend, because they argued all the time during the shooting of a movie they recently made together?

G.S.

A: Farrah and Ryan have been living together for the last 11 years. The arrangement has had its ups and downs, the biggest "up" being the birth of the couple's young son. Another admittedly less lofty up has been the fact that Ryan and Farrah actually work well together professionally. They really surprised themselves with "Small Sacrifices," the TV movie that they both co-starred in recently. They got along on the set just dandy. "It was a wonderful experience," Farrah told me. And I believe her.

Q: Isn't Bob Hope a real money monger, secretly jealous of Ronald Reagan for all that loot the ex-president received for doing very little in Japan?

B.D.

A: Hope is one of the richest men in Hollywood. He appreciates money but isn't chintzy. He now does a great deal of work for various charities. In any event, when I asked Bob about the $2 million Reagan received from a Japanese media conglomerate just for making some personal appearances and speeches in Tokyo, Hope was typically fast of tongue. "Everybody hates anybody for getting money over the table," said Bob.

Q: I read that Peter Max, the famed pop artist, is a familiar figure on the New York flea-market scene, a la Andy Warhol. Do you think he'll ever really follow in Andy's footsteps?

F.I.

A: That all depends on whether you mean as an artist or as a collector. Max tells friends that he'd very much like to become the next Andy Warhol, but he seems to be referring to his appetite for acquiring jewelry, cookie jars (that is if Andy overlooked any) and such. The modus operandi of these two artists differ in that Warhol paid outright for all his collectibles, while Peter Max apparently prefers swapping his paintings with flea-market dealers in exchange for the stuff he finds.

Gardeners dig Christmas gifts to work with

Every year I do gardeners a favor and print up a wish list of Christmas gifts. This is the week to make sure you get what your garden needs. Just circle the gifts you want and leave this list lying about for Santa to see.

For the serious vegetable grower

Time for a tiller? You can till the soil with a sharp swan-necked hoe if you have a small garden, or a mini tractor with furrow attached for a farm-size garden. In between there are plenty of gas-powered or electric tillers.

The smaller units are light enough to lift with one hand and are the easiest to maneuver around rows of vegetables.

Going organic? There are rotating drums and screen sided traps to store organic material in. You might want to give a box of compost maker and a strong pitchfork for spreading the completed compost on the soil.

For the lawn fanatic

Tie a big red bow on a shiny silver mower. Try the old fashioned push mower instead of the noisy gas powered mowing machine.

A push mower gives a clean, quiet cut and new technology makes these lightweight machines a lot easier to push than the sweat machines that were used a generation ago.

Give the latest book on lawn care. Rodale Press has come out with "The Chemical-Free Lawn" and this book will teach any Lawn Ranger how to grow the perfect lawn without all the fuss and expense of chemicals.

Flower people

It should be easy to find bud vases and baskets for flower growing gardeners in the winter. Other good ideas are clay pots, soil mix and watering cans so the flower grower will be ready for starting seeds next month.

Rosarians

People who grow roses always appreciate a good pair of pruners. Thick gardening gloves to protect them from thorns and a trellis or arbor for a climbing rose might also be needed.

It's a little too early to find bare-root roses for sale, but most mail-order rose growers sell gift certificates that can be used later. My personal recommendation is a certificate for the new pink rose called "Pleasure".

This is a vigorous floribunda that showed excellent disease resistance to mildew in our test gardens.

Any rose that can bloom all summer and never needs spraying deserves all the honor that the All-American Rose Selection bestows on it. "Pleasure" received this award for 1990.

New home owner

First time homeowners are usually desperate for decent garden tools. A shovel, rake and hoe are three of the basic tools every yard owner needs. If you know of someone who will be putting in a new lawn, a landscaper's rake will really pull in the gratitude.

This type of rake is much wider and lighter than a regular rake, so it's easier to accomplish all the leveling and smoothing that goes into preparation of a seedbed. You can find landscaper's rakes at most hardware stores.

Senior citizen gardeners

While any gardener would appreciate knee pads, the more experienced gardener knows just how useful knee guards will be. You can find foam rubber knee pads at hardware or home improvement stores.

Garden carts are also useful for busy senior gardeners, as well as gardening notebooks and diaries. There are now several gardening dairies in the book stores that not only remind you of the chores that need to be done during the week, but give plenty of room for personal records.

Great for all of us that forget just how long ago the radish seeds went in or when the carrots should be ripe.

THE SECOND DOCTOR to practice in Federal Way, Dr. Robert Lundeen, will retire at the end of the month.

Friendly physician finishes career

By KURT HERZOG

A doctor who's been a Federal Way favorite of his patients for 35 years will retire at the end of the month.

Dr. Robert Lundeen, 65, moved to Federal Way in 1954 after finishing his residency at a Tacoma hospital. Lundeen was the second doctor to come to Federal Way.

The first was Lundeen's friend and partner for many years, Dr. Bertold Bruell, who retired last March. The two friends shared an office as well as calls for many years.

Lundeen is retiring because he wants to travel around the country and take it easy. He says he will continue assisting with surgical procedures at St. Francis Community Hospital about once a week.

Lundeen is one of a vanishing breed of doctors. He's the kind who still makes house calls and tells his patients to call him at home if he's not at the office.

In some cases, patients have come to his Marine Hills home, where his wife, Marion, who's had no formal training, has occasionally worked as a nurse of sorts, comforting ailing patients and watching over waiting children.

The doctor is known as a modest, quiet man. Indeed, those are the qualities most admired by many of his patients.

"He's very kind and gentle," said Robin Pradel, his office manager for 17 years. "People respect that."

Pradel recalled Lundeen making 56 house calls to one family in about two years, even though they had another doctor they went to for routine medical care because of insurance reasons.

"They always called Dr. Lundeen in the middle of the night, though," Pradel said.

Lundeen has been in practice long enough to see some of his patients born, grow up and have their own children. His youngest patient is newly born and his oldest is 100 years old. He's seen some of his patients get old and die.

"It's a difficult time," he said. "You get to know your patients and you try to be a help to the family. I've formed so many good relationships with so many people."

Even after just a short chat with Lundeen, it's obvious he'll miss his practice and patients.

"I always wanted to be doctor," Lundeen said.

Call 'Ghostbusters II' for entertainment from start to finish

I think "Ghostbusters II" (RCA... Columbia cassette, 102 minutes, Hi-Fi stereo, $89.95) got a bum rap this summer.

First, critics complained that it wasn't good enough. Then, it got lost in the shuffle as moviegoers rushed to see "Batman." Ironically, it's possible that the same thing may happen again on home video, with the caped crusader crowding out the clown princes of slime.

All of which does a disservice to this entertaining movie. Not a gem of a blockbuster (few movies with a II in the title ever qualify in either category), this is a straightforward scare-comedy that's fun from start to finish.

Video Review

Bill Murray steals the show with nonstop wisecracks, while Sigourney Weaver, considerably tamer than she was in the original 1984 movie, serves as straightwoman and leading lady. There are some great moments from the sidelines: a riotous performance from Rick Moranis, which reaches its peak with his wimpy courtroom defense of the ghostbusting trio; and a very funny characterization by Peter MacNicol as a museum director with an Eastern European accent of dubious origin.

Compared to the original, "Ghostbusters II" is subdued, but that works in its favor. Nobody throttles you for laughs — it's all relaxed and easy to take. The special effects are vivid, but they too reflect a good-naturedness that helps make the movie enjoyable.

If you skipped this one in theaters, you're in for a good evening's entertainment on video — although you may be annoyed by the choppy video panning and scanning of the original widescreen frame.

Leonard Maltin "Scrooged"

(Paramount cassette, 101 min., Hi-Fi stereo, no list price) Bill Murray is one of the movies' great clowns. As Frank Cross, the arrogant television network exec in this uproarious update of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," Murray offers viewers everything they like about him — sarcastic smirks, disgusted eye-rolls. This time, though, he's also got a mean streak.

Christmas spirit strikes; coffee customers honored

If you're looking for a plethora of tidbits about the business community in Federal Way, you've come to the right column. Let's get right to it:

Karen Smith, the Key Bank of Puget Sound representative for the 1989 United Way Campaign, was pleased with the 37 percent increase in total donations over last year. Federal Way led the South King County campaigns.

Coffee Europa honored its best customers who have been coming in the shop on a regular basis since their opening. Food and libations were served to approximately 60 guests to say thank you.

Not only did they raise more than $4,500 in donations for "Toys for Tots" in one night, according to Frank Witmer, general manager of Federal Way's Black Angus, but the restaurant now is trying to raise $10,000 companywide selling Christmas tree ornaments for cerebral palsy.

Instead of buying gifts for each other, Callie Girden and her staff at Olsten Temporary Services began a new tradition several years ago. By getting the names of children from Child Protective Services, each staff member adopts a child and gives a gift to them.

Stephen Jones, registered representative for Metropolitan Life, is pleased to be part of a branch office that was awarded the "most improved for the year" out of 13 western states and number one in the Seattle region.

Marilyn Monroe is still a doll. No, this is not the tabloids. But at Dolls Unlimited, you can see a Marilyn Monroe doll valued at $10,000. Only 300 were ever made.

Always inventive, always changing, Ginger Spice has just received a patent, a copyright and a registered trademark on a special tool used to measure facial structure. The Oftomizer is used to match your facial structure to a hairstyle.

Attorney Michael Prathum is involved in his community. Not only active as an ambassador in the chamber of commerce, Mike is on the board of directors of the Federal Way Boys' and Girls' Club and a board member of Phases, a drug-free drop in center for teens.

Pastor Sheryl Peterson and the Wayside United Church of Christ is involved. With five sister churches including ones in East Germany, Nicaragua and El Salvador, the Wayside United Church of Christ is directly tied in with current affairs and their effects on the world.

We have a published author in our midst. Bill Drake of Drake, Sanchez & Co. was published in Financial Management Newsletter, a national publication distributed to law firm managers. "Effectively Using Compensation Surveys: A View from Oregon and Washington" was the title.

At the regular weekly meeting of the chamber's legislative committee Thursday, we heard from the Seattle Organizing Committee of the Goodwill Games. Libby Gates and Gretchen Sorensen spoke on the need for $8.5 million from the state to secure the needed personnel to handle the Games security.

Dick Forster and Joan Erikson, both of the Federal Way News, led the chamber membership in a stirring rendition of "Jingle Bells" and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" at the monthly membership luncheon on Wednesday. No bah humbug in the Federal Way business community.

Algie Martinson, chair of the Citizen of the Year Award, needs your help. Nominations for this prestigious honor are now being accepted. Contact the chamber office for the award criteria.

What does Ken Wolters of Firestone, Peggy Longnecker of the Weyerhaeuser Tacoma Credit Union and Roger Hurst of Sir Speedy Printing have in common? Well, each hosted a student from the Federal Way high schools through a program called Job Shadowing. Students spend the morning in a business to see how its run. It's a great experience for the student and the business owner. Call the chamber for details.

The chamber of commerce is hosting an open house on Dec. 14 from 3-6 p.m. Stop by for some holiday cheer, 34400 Pacific Highway S., Suite 1.

Only eight months and counting...until the Goodwill Games.

If you don't cut a sweetheart deal, the IRS won't mind

What's wrong with doing business with members of your own family? At least, on Mother's Day, you know where they are.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My wife (age 64) and I (age 70) own our home free and clear. We would like to use the concept of reverse mortgaging to get an income from our house. But instead of going to a mortgage company, we approached one of our three sons on the possibility of him and his brothers buying our house by paying us monthly installments. When he checked with his accountant he was told that because it was a family arrangement, no tax benefits of any kind could be taken. How do you feel about this kind of arrangement? Is there any way of doing this so that each of us can benefit?

Mr. M.F., Phoenix, Ariz. Answer: Your son's accountant is being a little rigid. Simply because it's an inter-family arrangement doesn't matter to the Internal Revenue Service as long as the transaction is strictly a business deal with no "sweetheart" clauses.

Don Campbell

About Real Estate

If we're talking about a straight sale of the property to your son (with you and your wife taking the once-in-a-lifetime exclusion of capital gains up to a maximum of $125,000) then, of course, the tax advantages are limited to the exclusion. But this has nothing to do with family — they're the same limitations that any unrelated buyer and seller must live with.

The most common way for parents and children to enter into a reverse annuity agreement is through a sale/leaseback/annuity program (you'll need a lawyer with some experience in the field, however).

Under this arrangement the child buys the home from the parents, and the parents retain possession of the home by leasing it back from the child. With the proceeds, the parents then buy an outright annuity, which gives them a monthly income for life. The rental that the parents pay has to be at fair market value (but there's quite a bit of leeway here).

The home now becomes a piece of income-producing property for the child with all of the deductions — taxes, depreciation, insurance, maintenance and management fees — associated with such ownership. Their rental income, of course, is fully taxable.

It sounds a little more cumbersome than it really is and, of course, not everyone has children in a position to make such an investment. But blood ties, alone, aren't automatic disqualifiers.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I am a retired, disabled Vietnam-era veteran. I had a shoe business and was losing so much money that my ex-wife and I filed for bankruptcy this past May. I have never used my VA entitlement and have never bought a house. I would like to buy a house early next year, but I am too embarrassed to ask a broker about it. I heard that I have a good chance of assuming a loan, but I couldn't buy a new house for several years. How can I go about this? I will have about $3,000 for a down payment.

Mr. G.C.K., Denver, Colo. Answer: I don't like to rain on your picnic, but it's not going to be an easy row to hoe. Normally, going the assumable VA-loan route is your most practical approach. Unfortunately, the VA has been stuck with so many foreclosed properties that HUD (the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, which oversees both VA and FHA properties) has become far, far more critical of the credit history of would-be buyers than it ever was before. I can't see them okaying you with such a fresh bankruptcy behind you.

Your best (perhaps only) bet is to find a seller who has either had no luck selling his home conventionally, or who would rather finance it himself as an investment. But, again, he's going to want to see your credit record — and you're going to have to be pretty convincing.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I have recently read stories warning owners of time-share properties to beware of "resale" firms. They told of many gimmicks and rip-offs. My problem is that I have relocated from Texas to Ohio and no longer can use my time-share on the beach in Texas. This has been paid in full but, of course, we are still paying monthly dues. Can you tell me the best way to market this? I have run expensive ads with little response.

Ms. J.M., Pickerington, Ohio Answer: It's a jungle out there, all right. You pay your upfront money to a "resale" firm and it's money down the old drain. Most time-share owners, even when they succeed in selling, do so at about one-third the price they paid. About the only thing I can suggest is that you keep advertising in papers within an easy commute of your time-share, mark the price down attractively and cross your fingers. You could, of course, simply walk away from it. Since it's fully paid for, it isn't likely to reflect unfavorably on your credit report but, of course, your entire investment is down the tubes.

'Scrooged' offers inventive holiday comedy

Cross' miserliness and holiday jeer get out of hand, he is visited by ghosts (urbane and rotting John Forsythe, filthy and grating David Johansen and pugilistic pixie Carol Kane) who try to show him the true meaning of Christmas.

Director Richard Donner, usually responsible for glossy hackwork, is inspired here. Some of the movie's best bits are throwaways: Murray's garbled imitation of Richard Burton for a group of homeless people and his surprisingly cruel Richard Pryor "joke."

With the exception of the dull Karen Allen as Murray's paramour, the supporting cast is marvelous — including John ("52 Pick-Up") Glover as a wired LA slimeball and Bob Goldthwait as one of Murray's nebbishy underlings.

"Scrooged" made a respectable, if not spectacular, showing in theaters last Christmas. What turned many critics and audiences off, I presume, is the movie's unabashed mean-spiritedness, violent pratfalls and cynical tone. Especially weird is the movie's climactic scene — a reformed Murray's sometimes moving soliloquy on love and generosity, which a second screening, on video, proves is as much of a put-on as it seemed in the theater.

Video Review

But, in the end, this is an inventive Christmas movie, and a welcome relief, from the syrupy schmaltz all too often served up for the holidays.

Paramount's film-to-tape transfer of this big, colorful farce is excellent, but, unfortunately, video kills Murray's final audience-participation gag.

Doug Brod National Registry Picks 25 Flicks For Archive

The National Film Preservation Board recently released a list of 25 movies to be protected in the Library of Congress for their cultural, historical or aesthetic significance.

Under new legislation, it becomes illegal to sell or present altered (edited or colorized) versions of these movies without a consumer notice describing the alteration, unless the original filmmaker has approved the changes.

Of the 25 movies on the list, only three remain unavailable on home video: "The Crowd" (1928), "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" (1937) and "Sunrise" (1927).

Except for "Nanook of the North," a 1921 silent available from International Historic Films, all of the movies are available on cassette or disc from major video distributors.

Seniors raffle off doll house, gifts

The Federal Way Senior Center will sell raffle tickets for a miniature doll house and train set in its annual holiday fund raiser at the Bon in SeaTac Mall.

Center volunteers will staff a desk in the main mall entrance to the store from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily beginning Monday and ending Saturday, Dec. 16.

The grand prize is the doll house, or a train set, said center director, Yvonne Sullivan. Whichever is not selected will be awarded to another ticket holder. An afghan and hand-painted sweatshirt also will be awarded, she said.

Tickets are $1 each. The raffle is the "grand finale fund raiser" for the center, Sullivan said.
